"Your Chief Engineer Mr. Babu Rao along with his assistants completed the installation on the 30th ultimo. The Rupabani cinema opened its doors to the public at 2-30 P.M. on 31/12/48 with Triple Motograph Mirrophonic Sound and a new Bengali film "SAMAPIKA" with tremendous success. Both light and sound are satisfactory and the public are highly satisfied."

To Irritate Sardar Vallabhbhai!

Our two film boys, Badami and Bhavnani, who have taken up the none-too-easy burden of producing newsreels and documentaries for the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting are completely lost in the unholy tangle of the red-tape in New Delhi.

Since August 1948, the month in which both took on their duties as active producers of newsreels and documentaries, they have been kept busy shooting brown-toured correspondence between Bombay and New Delhi praying for one sanction or another from a pin to broomstick. By the time the sanction for the pin arrives, the need for it is over and a broomstick is badly needed.

These boys who have been used to working hard in sun and rain as film directors all their life are now tied to office desks drafting the never-ending letters of request instead of going out and actually producing some useful films.

And yet during the last 5 months, in spite of the New Delhi red-tape strangling them every minute, whenever they found the noose sufficiently loose, Badami and Bhavnani have slipped out and produced a few newsreels and documentaries which could not be shown because the “patriotic” exhibitors in the country would not show them by paying a small weekly hire.

Bhavnani has done a good job of “Operation Kashmir”, though this documentary is a trifle too long, but by the time this film actually arrived on the screen, due to lack of co-operation from the exhibitors, the operators in Kashmir returned home for a well-earned rest. This film which has bits of political propaganda cannot therefore be shown any longer without prejudicing the inter-dominion talks of settlement over Kashmir.

Likewise Badami has made a beautiful newsreel of Sardar Vallabhbhai’s visit to Sewagram and quite a few other topical newsreels but all of them are worthless today because these reels could not be exhibited in time and their news value has since evaporated.

The Films Division was established in April 1948 with an annual budget grant of Rs. 33 lakhs. Months were wasted in advertising different posts and after engaging Badami and Bhavnani in August the technical staff was actually employed in November. A lot of equipment has either been purchased or ordered and very recently the premises of Ambalal Patel at Walkeshwar have been taken up by the Ministry on a monthly rental of Rs. 7000/- which works out at Rs. 84,000/- per year merely in rental for office premises without a studio, laboratory, editing rooms etc. Calculating a conservative return of 6% per annum on building investment Ambalal’s building is now worth 14 lakhs.

For half of that amount, the Government of India could have built the most up-to-date studio, laboratory, editing room and offices all within 6 months and all this property would have belonged to our people, instead of helping Ambalal Patel to turn his extravagance into a profitable investment.

After patronising Ambalal Patel in this manner, the Ministry of Information has once again advertised Business men and industrialists find DeVry 16 mm motion picture Projectors invaluable for training purposes and to promote sales.

For accurate demonstrations in auditoriums, operating theatres and hospitals, DeVry 16 mm Projectors present the ideal medium.

DeVry 16 mm Projectors are playing a vitally important part in nation building activities sponsored by government departments and rural uplift societies.

The importance of visual education is being increasingly recognized by schools and colleges, and DeVry 16 mm Projectors are unrivalled as teaching aids.

March, 1949

Times of India 4th Jan. 1943) for 17,700 square feet office accommodation, one sound stage for film production 50 ft x 100 ft, one dubbing theatre 24 ft x 50 ft, projection theatre 25 ft x 50 ft, and 12 film vaults ft. x 9 ft.

If all these items are still required by the Films Division of the Ministry of Information, what the hell are we paying Rs. 7000/- a month to Ambalal for?

Because Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel is at the head of the Ministry, must we call all this waste of public money a virtue of necessity?

Due to his long life of self-denial and self-imposed nudity if Sardar Vallabhbhai has forgotten the art of making the rupee go a long way, he can certainly take a tip from his own son Dahyabhai who is a leading commercial magnate and knows well the intricate economics of the rupee market.

Considering the present mess in the Films Division the Ministry, the first year’s budget of Rs. 33 lakhs actually threatens to be a total loss, unless some of the equipment so far purchased and the skill acquired Badami and Bhavnani in conducting brown-coloured correspondence with New Delhi secretaries can be reckoned as an addition to our national assets.

It is really amusing to observe that Indians who could find a million faults with the bureaucratic inefficiency during the British regime cannot see their own faults now and seem satisfied in keeping alive the double heritage of the British mess with the same tangled red-tape with clumsy white-capism as an additional distortion of our new freedom.

We all venerate the services of Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel to the nation. In him we have our greatest statesman of the day. But if he is too old and ill to be tied down to a desk which needs twelve hours of hard and efficient work, can’t we name him as Bhishma, the triarch of our nation, and run to him in our hour of need for advice and guidance?

We are a nation of poor people and we cannot afford waste even a single rupee for in doing so we deprive someone of his two hungry meals. Even Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel, with all our veneration for him, cannot be allowed to waste our money on inefficiency, indecision or clumsy management.

Whether Sardar Vallabhbhai likes it or not, let us frankly tell him that the Films Division in Bombay is running in an inefficient, indecisive and clumsy manner and the result that almost all the public funds spent so far have been wasted. By next March the bill will mount to 33 lakhs.

It is common knowledge that our popular leaders are not like criticism. It is also known that in their self-effacing wisdom, many of them do not even like suggestions. Nevertheless, we risk their displeasure, in our nation’s interest, and give below some suggestions:

1. The producers of documentaries and newsreels, Badami and Bhavnani or whoever else in future, should be given wide discretion to produce subjects without interference from the chair bugs in New Delhi. These producers should be made to do active production work and not tied down to the desk to shoot out brown-coloured correspondence.

2. To get round the Finance Department’s clumsy and ever delaying red-tape, a duly authorized finance officer should be attached to the Films Division with powers to sanction day to day production expenses so that the producers do not have to run for petty sanctions every minute and waste valuable time for which the people are paying.

3. A comprehensive policy of the Films Division of the Ministry should be once for all decided on high ministerial level and a written document of directives mentioning all items of production, distribution and exhibition should be in the hands of the producers and the administrator.

4. The exhibition of newsreels and documentaries produced by the Films Division should be immediately made compulsory all over India and their tariff of weekly hires fixed in proportion to their cost of production. The exhibitors, who have made blackmarket millions, must be made to contribute their bit to the nation’s educational effort. There is no other choice in a free country.

5. As the Films Division is going to be a permanent feature of our Ministry, there is no sense in hiring out Ambalal Patel’s premises at Rs. 7,000/- per month without even full facilities and wasting people’s money to

In the screen again, Sitara plays the lead in “Lekh”, a social theme of Liberty Art Productions.

Make only Ambalal Patel richer than he is now. The government must either build their own studios and see premises on a permanent basis or requisition the famous Cine Laboratory & Studios at Mahaluxmi and set up the whole organization by getting the price of the same assessed by Government experts. The Famous Studios were originally built by Mr. Shiraz Ali Hakim with the help and co-operation of the Government of India who placed at his disposal cement, steel, bricks and equipment so that the premises and equipment could be ultimately used for the purposes of producing Government films. The present Marwari owners—Rungtas—have no moral right to turn these beautiful studios into commercial proposition considering that the material and equipment used in these studios were obtained with Government sanction in times of great scarcity and at the expense of other public institutions. These studios should be acquired straightaway and made the central organization of the Films Division of the Ministry. There is no need to blush in doing this, seeing that these studios will be used for our national activities in producing educational films.

Under no circumstances should any premises be placed as within ten years the amount of hire paid will exceed the cost of outright purchase at present.

6. A special secretary of the Ministry, efficient of course, should be placed in charge of the Films Division at Bombay to eliminate all useless correspondence with New Delhi. This secretary should be made directly responsible to the ministry.

7. All foreign newsreels at present shown in India, for which our Indian exhibitors pay most willingly so far, should be stopped and a part of their footage containing items of educational and national importance to our people should be incorporated in our own weekly issues. This can be done either by purchasing such footage outright or by mutual exchange by giving footage of our own news items for foreign exhibition.

8. All national functions like the A.I.C.C. Sessions, Gandhi Jayanti celebrations, Government House parties etc., should be exclusively photographed by the Films Division and no other professional or trade photographers be allowed to shoot such events for commercial purposes. Amateur photo enthusiasts, however, may be allowed this privilege provided they give an undertaking not to exploit any footage commercially or sell it to any one else but to the Films Division if required.

9. All foreign cameramen should be stopped from photographing any national event. Any footage of such events intended to be sent overseas should pass only through the Films Division. This will stop the foreigners from slandering our people.

We have a number of other suggestions to make but we stop here for want of space and wait to see what actual results the frown on Sardar Vallabhbhai’s face yields in the immediate future. That man doesn’t smile even for charity.

Bimla Devi is wondering what that guy of a director means in “Kamal”, a social story of Hind Kamal Pictures.

TIONAL BOARD OF CENSORS:
The news that the Government of India have arm-themselves with powers to centralize film censorship in a view to achieve uniformity of censorship has none too soon. We have been asking for this for last 15 years and though we did not expect much from erstwhile foreign rulers, our only regret is that took 17 months of our independence and no end of vacillation and propaganda for our own ministers to realize the pressing need of this measure.

So far the different provincial ministers have been exercising their autonomous powers with almost vindictive individualism and we have often seen the disgusting spectacle of a film, banned in one province for substantial reasons of its being anti-social, being shown in other provinces with impunity carrying its docket of crime, sex perversions and other anti-social aspects of life.

At least in the field of films not much of co-ordination in common ideals was found among the different provinces and the cunning film producers took full advantage of this defect in the different Congress administrations in India. The distributors of foreign pictures particularly preferred to get their pictures censored in Calcutta for some mysterious reasons and kept clear of the Bombay Board of Film Censors which had become too alert and watchful to suit the designs of these foreign distributors.

We suggest that the new centralized organization for censoring films should be named “The National Board of Censors” and located in Bombay. The following suggestions we hope will be useful in the formation and working of the new Board of Censors:

1. Bombay, being the largest centre of indigenous motion picture production and the main port for importing foreign films remains the only convenient place for all producers and distributors including those from Madras and Calcutta.

2. The present Code of Production as adopted by the Government of Bombay should be made more comprehensive to include cultural censorship of films suited to our future national ideals and past religious and cultural traditions.

3. The Board should engage competent examiners having excellent knowledge of the following languages: English, Hindustani, Tamil, Marathi, Gujarati, Telugu, Kannarese, Bengali and Punjabi. At least two examiners in each language are necessary, till such time as pictures in provincial languages are being produced.

4. The Board should step gradually the production of films in India in any other language except in Hindustani to harness fully the medium of the film for spreading the national language.

5. The Board should consist of at least 20 honorary members each knowing at least two languages and each member should be paid at least Rs. 30 per film examined by the full Board or its Sub-Committee members.

6. A precise procedure of censorship of films from their primary censorship by the permanent examiners to the stage of examination by the full Board should be laid down, so that the producers know what is expected of them. A final appeal should lie with a minister of State specially empowered to give an executive decision in the event of the full Board’s decision not being acceptable either to the producer or to the people.

7. The members of the Board should be appointed for a period of 5 years and given a special training in evaluating pictures from all possible angles. Occasional lectures by well-known film critics or the latest literature on films and their social values can be immensely useful to broaden the outlook of the members of the Board. The selection of merely highly educated persons is not enough for censoring films. Film censorship needs specialized talent. As we have said before: “Censoring...

tion pictures is like holding the world in one eye and the picture in the other and weighing both accurately the balance of current social values. It is a difficult task to censor films and an indiscriminate selection of films will only serve to defeat the main purpose of censoring.

8. The National Board of Censors should censor only films but also stage plays and other performances for the entertainment of people, including the vilified "Ram Leelas", which often present a distorted version of our religious and spiritual heritage.

9. To maintain a competent board of censors the government will need funds. To meet this demand, the board of censors, including the members, will only serve to defeat the main purpose of censoring.

In a case of a picture having to be seen, because of controversial contents, by the full board, the producers or distributors should be made to pay the honorarium to the members for censoring the picture. This procedure will also reduce the number of frivolous objections from the producers and the board may not be assembled unnecessarily.

10. To determine the final shape of the National Board of Production, the procedure of censorship and the formation of the National Board of Censors, a small committee of three members may be immediately appointed to collect evidence in Bombay, Madras and Calcutta from representatives of producers, distributors, exhibitors and film critics and a report submitted to the government within two months. The formation of the board, its procedure and the composition of the Production Code may be a temporary measure for five years to be revised if necessary at the end of the period.

No Government, however democratic and well-intentioned, has a right to thrust a law on the people unless authoritative opinion of the different people affected has been collected and sifted to suit the national ideals.

It is only fair to the producers that a committee suggested above should be appointed to represent the interests of the trade and other interests before the government finally imposes a national censorship on plays and films.

If the Government of India agree to appoint such a committee, we suggest the name of the Hon. Mr. Varji R. Desai, Home Minister to the Government of India, as its chairman, as by personal experience we have found him to be very competent for this brain-storming work of film censorship by virtue of his first-hand knowledge of films and film people.

We are sure that the services of Bombay's Home Minister will not be denied to us for a short period of three months to solve this all important problem which affects the lives of millions of people every day.

IP THESE MURDERS!

Quite a few dirty things that happen in a film studio one after the other, because there is a silent conspiracy amongst all studio workers, thrown together in an olly brotherhood for a common bread hunt, not to talk about any ugly incidents which would attract the attention of the law and ultimately restrain their liberties or embarrass their bread hunt.

In spite of all the hush-hush precautions taken by the studio owners once in a while we do get reports of rapes, assaults, outrages and accidents which only tend to prove that all is not right and moral in our film studios.

But we wonder how many people know of the infanticides that often take place in our film studios and are passed off as common casualties of film making.

When we see a little six-month or year old baby in picture, little do we know that little one has gone through to lend domestic colour to the picture and earn a little for its poor mother.

When a film producer needs a little baby for his scenes, his production manager gets one from the poorest class of people who earn, live and die on the streets, by paying between Rs. 10 and Rs. 20 per working day to the mother. Quite a few of these little babies often arrive with death already lurking in their innocent eyes (poverty is the polite name for this waiting death) and half way through the picture, the little one often lets go its prospective stardom and joins the stars in heaven. Many an apparently healthy baby has also heaved its last breath on the studio sets to give the film people a little glimpse of real tragedy.

These little deaths are never known to the outside world even though they are virtually so many murders.

Jairaj, our popular actor, plays the lead in "Singhar", a social story directed by J. K. Nanda.
The wombs that carried the little ones are too weak and poor to scream in protest and when they cry the jingle of the producer's silver stifles the mother's wail and sends it back to the womb to light up another poor flame on the pavements of our city.

Why do these little babies die? Here are some of the reasons:

1. The babies that are brought for screen work are children of poverty and as such too ailing and ill-nourished to stand the rigours of film work.
2. The strong electric lights which are required for photographic purposes affect the little ones who have hardly any vitality to endure the strong light.
3. Ailing babies who cry constantly spoil the talkie shots of the producers and are often doped with little opium pills by the mothers who are anxious to earn a few rupees to keep body and soul together. Many babies die of opium poisoning.
4. Film work demands as much effort from a little baby as from an adult and consequently these little mites are handled and manhandled so many times that at the end of the day they are completely exhausted.
5. The film studios are too stuffy and foul to provide healthy environments to a little life which needs fresh air constantly.
6. Neither a nurse nor a doctor is ever kept on the sets to look after the health of the baby. To the poor destitute is the nurse and death their only doctor. Film producers emphasize this tragedy of life by their complete disregard of basic humanitarian responsibilities.
7. Doctors are sometimes called only to certify these baby murders as casual deaths due to natural causes and mothers are compensated for the "accidents" and sent back to their roadside homes with a small load of silver—the price of the dead and dried little faggot of skin and bones.

Watch the film babies closely in the future pictures you see and you will often find the babies changing. Whenever you see a change, remember what we have written.

And yet film work must have babies if our films are to reflect our home life. In England there is a law which does not permit youngsters under fifteen to act for the screen. This law is more often observed in breach than otherwise and as the Home Office realizes the unavoidable requirements of film producers in baby talent, it has now appointed a committee to investigate the whole question thoroughly and frame suitable rules.

A similar law would be a great hardship to the Indian film industry and yet something must be done about these heartless murders of little ones. We cannot allow the producers to go on with this crime any longer. Those little ones must be protected by the State.

We have a few suggestions to make:
1. No child under the age of six should be permitted to work in film studios unless a certificate of its physical fitness has been obtained from a qualified doctor and recorded at the local police station by the producer.
2. A qualified doctor or a nurse must at all times be present on the studio set as long as the film work of the child is being taken.
3. The child must be provided with milk and other nourishment during its working hours under medical supervision.
4. The child must not be kept inside the studio for a period longer than half-an-hour at a stretch must be generally kept outside and taken in only for actual shooting.
5. No narcotics such as opium, cocaine etc. should be administered to the child to produce stupor or comatose even by the medical attendant.
6. The child should be kept under the strong electric lights (a close-up usually requires as much as 10,000 candle-power of light and sometimes even more) for minimum amount of time absolutely necessary for film work. A dummy must be used for general lighting purposes and the same replaced by the child only at last moment.

Breach of any of the above conditions should be made a penal offence punishable with imprisonment or fine or both.

As our film producers understand only the letter of law and nothing less we expect the Government to look into this all-important humanitarian question urgently.

DR. JAYAKAR WASTED HIS EDUCATION?

"The miracles our saints perform on celluloid are a horrible torture to me. Personally, I would prefer these saints and mythological figures to be left severely alone. All these venerable old celebrities are pressed to us as miracle-mongers. Miracles are the least part of their service to humanity. It is enough that we know about these exaggerated fantasies in literature. Supernatural powers are distributed to them need not be immobilized on celluloid. What we need for popular education is the spirit of rationalism, a faith in human endeavour to rise to its highest. That is denied to us when it is sought to impress our minds with the distance between us, mortals on the one hand and the saints and mythological heroes on the other. If they are represented as an idyllic distance you create between them and the votes, the greater is the scope for human aspiration. An emotional people need realistic pictures as a corrective to a national bias. Films must take up their sb to root out superstition, explode miracles and help promote a rational outlook on life's affairs."

The above opinion was expressed by the Rt. Hon. Dr. M. R. Jayakar, M.A., LL.B., L.L.D., D.C.L., Bar, Privy Councillor, in the course of an interview "Filmindia" way back in April 1942 wherein he condemned mythological films and pleaded for a ratio approach to life on the screen.

But V. Shantaram and Baburao Pai, two "highly educated" film producers of India seem to think otherwise the way they have commited their protest against ban, proposed by the Government of Madras, on actors playing the roles of Hindu Gods and the incriminate featuring of such Gods in mythological film.

While the Government of Madras feel, and right that the present abuse of Gods and our mythology having a degenerating effect on the Hindu religion...
morana plays the lead in “Lachhi”, a social theme of Kuldip Pictures.

Our people are losing veneration for our ancient arts of worship, the great Shantaram classifies even his tsukaram”, the social story of a modern saint, as a mythological subject and claims to have done full justice to mythological characters presented in “Tukaram”. Shantaram, of course, is not expected to know the correct meaning of the word “mythology” and that is how tsukaram seems to have acquired a mythological status.

While Baburao Pai of Famous Pictures describes ministers of the Madras Government as “the modern interparts of Mahomed of Gazni” and “idol breakers the screen”, he questions the right of the Government to stand outside the mandate of the electorate and stop the people from producing their own versions of Hindu gods. Baburao Pai seems to labour under the delusion that the film producers have voted the different Congress ministries into power.

But what amuses us most is that these two film producers, Shantaram and Pai, are wiser than the Rt. Hon. M. R. Jayakar, M.A., LL.B., LL.D., D.C.L., Bar-at-law,ivy Councillor. Why the hell did Dr. Jayakar spend that time getting those degrees if these little film producers can be wiser than him?

YOU’LL HARDLY BELIEVE—

That according to Actress Kamini Kaushal you can’t “heaven” into your “heaven-made” marriage by varying ways of making love”. Why not open a class to teach us some of these “ways”, and thus give us a little taste of heaven too?

That Actress Kamini Kaushal says that this method of putting heaven into marriage is hard and “not for the shallow and the ignorant”. We admit her being very “deep and enlightened” but then how do the “shallow and ignorant” get heaven?

That Actress Begum Para regrets that though princes and college students have tried to woo her, they did not put any warmth in their wooing and it all proved in vain. That’s a hint to our romantic boys. Next time they should carry the burning torch in their hand in the Olympiad manner and then Para won’t complain of want of warmth.

That film actress Protima Das Gupta fancies a world of women without men in which there will be no prostitution. How will the prostitutes live then?

That in Actress Protima’s world of women “there will be no infection”. That means there will be no injection either. How will those women cure rheumatism in the legs and sciatica in the hips? I am all worried about these ladies.

That wherever film actress Snehaprabha goes only Chinamen seem to fall in love with her. Even the Chinese waiters give her a free meal saying: “We like you very much”. That’s because of Snehaprabha’s funny nose. It probably looks Chinese. How unfortunate!

That according to our long-nosed actress Veera, her husband pays a compliment to her sex and to her person by defending womanhood. Why drag the entire womanhood to justify one woman?

That according to our long-nosed actress Veera, her husband can make the woman he loves feel just like a queen. But queens are not known for any traditions in womanhood. Is that why Veeraswamy’s previous queen went to Pakistan?

That according to our long-nosed actress Veera, her husband is “a man who refuses to be bored”. He needs that divine patience now after Neena’s departure, even though Islam gives four chances all at once.

That lhehana, the window-woman from “Khidki”, feels rather uncomfortable with our little Yashodhara Kathju in the same picture. Educated girls should make it a little easier for our Rehanas of the screen.

That while our politicians were busy stopping the shooting war between Pakistan and India on the eve of the New Year, actor Rehman started another one with Kuldip Singh at the Ritz in Bombay. That means more work to the U.N.O.

That many Muslims in India still emphasize their loyalty to the State in this strange manner and create plenty of goodwill for their fellowmen.

That Protima Das Gupta has been completely outclassed these days by the light-eyed Nigar Sultan who also wears slacks and goes one better by lending the masculine gender to her speech.

That the one place which Protima Dasgupta failed to storm was Minister Morarji’s office in spite of the “Sadhu” banning “Jharna” for misrepresented village life. The slacks probably gave the minister a wrong impression.

That after her shortly expected baby, Veena will be once again on the screen to earn a new living as the old one is in the safe custody of her affectionate brother. Al Nasir will also be signed up to prove his loyalty as the husband.

That both Al Nasir and Veena do need film contracts even badly after their long holiday in Pakistan. The snag is that the new baby will acquire the Indian natality if born in Bombay. That is putting Islam in er all over again.

That the ever charming Mumtaz Shanti, who is now old, has named her little “munn”, Sikandar, gives Walli Saheb a right to produce Sikandar, the without Prithviraj.

That Producer Roop K. Shorey who learnt some acting tricks in Hollywood within a week is reported training Meena these days to make her the Rita of India.

That film actresses go to the race-course these days for snapshots in community groups to prove that are birds of same feather, in case people mistake for others.

That film actress Kamini Kaushal takes her screen to the races and the horses shy and lose their. That’s why we have been having so many flukes.

That some one mistook Kamini Kaushal for a fisherman and wanted to know whether she had come to sell or back horses. We congratulate Filmistan’s Chuni on his clever idea of advertising “Nadiya-ke-par”. Sket of live fish would have, however, added more in.

That if attracting attention by looking odd and unusual in the public is the sole aim of our film actresses, we must admit that some of the film actresses succeed admirably in doing so on the race course. If they could only hear what people talk and think of our film industry!

That Suraiya now wants to start her own production company and collect all the profits herself instead of making all the money for the different producers. Producers seem to have heard of these plans and they threaten to sign her up for the next thirty years, along with her granny. Because granny is a part of Suraiya’s box-office. It seems to be a case of two negatives making one positive.

That Director Nanda has become wise in shouting these days the way he exercises his lungs only on Durgabai, Jairaj, Singh and others leaving alone Suraiya and Madhu Bala. It seems to be a matter of more contracts! Or isn’t it?

That Suraiya doesn’t eat even a chocolate on the sets for fear that her “chocolate charm” might fade away and instead eats “kabols” made by granny. It is a precaution all little people take to prolong life. Nargis, however, doesn’t care a damn whether it is chocolate or charcoal as long as it tastes sweet.

That Manu, the magician, lost a great opportunity of opening his Liberty Cinema during Itaaji’s visit to Bombay. That would have put the royal seal on that pile of cement and steel and made it legitimate.

That a new “Ramayan” has been written recently by Mohanlal Dave and Vijoo Bhatt and now there is no further need of worshipping Ram and Sita as our deities because all their godliness has been squeezed out of the new version.

That V. Shantaram brother of V. Kashinath in turn brother of V. Avadhoot is also going to give us a new version of Shiva’s life after which Lord Shiva will look superfluous in the Trinity. Why not put the three V’s together and give us a new trinity?

That after reading the January issue of “filmindia”, Chandulal Shah refused to remain the president of the producers but because that would give undue importance to Baburao Patel the producers did not accept his resignation. Chandulal re-accepted the post after some “diplomatic” language.

That Pandit Indra goes about like a wounded dog these days after reading the report of Chandulal Seth’s performance before Minister Morarji. Panditji still maintains that his Seth spoke better Hindustani than the Minister. That’s why Panditji is not given the dialogue work of Ranjit. He is still a court poet.

That of all people Producer-director Kishore Sahu, the greatest Hindi author, critic and what not—of course according to himself—thinks that Minister Morarji gave a beautiful Hindustani oration and what that Ranjit chap spoke was all wrong. Now who is to decide between these two scholars?

That Minister Morarji is now guilty of at least one “murder” because of his “No Smoking” order in the cinemas. In Surat a door keeper was sent to heaven with the help of a knife because he took Lady Nicotine from the lips of a paramour.

That Tara looks sad and wistful in “Kamal”, a social of Hind Kamal Pictures, directed by Mr. Suryakumar.

REKHI (New Delhi)
What did you think of the Statue of Liberty when in America?

That is the most outraged woman I have seen in the world. Though she symbolizes liberty, equality etc., she has no liberty. Thousands take all kinds of liberties with her during the day and even during the night she has to go to bed with a couple of policemen.

RRA RANI (Jullundur)
What happens when a college girl falls in love with a married man or vice versa?

The college looks like a Montessori class to the girl and the home becomes a boarding house to the man.

KRISHNAN POTTY (Trivandrum)
Is it not dangerous for the Sikhs to smoke?

That is why the Sikhs often carry hukka for fear of the forest catching fire.

SHUKLA (Kanpur)
What happens when a damsel winks at a gentleman?

The gentleman becomes a cave man.

Who rules the world between fools and politicians?

Fools rule the world by electing politicians to misrule it.

HANTARAM (Coimbatore)
What do you call him who calls that face angelic in even paint cannot hide its wrinkles?

A son.

ZIA (Calcutta)
If you have friendship with a Governor’s son, what do you do?

I shall avoid him to save a free copy of “film-india”.

MATHUR (Ghaziabad)
How is it that most of the girls are termed as virgins at the age of 35?

It is a courtesy we can’t investigate further.

People say bald headed persons are always rich?

Then film actor David ought to be a multimillionaire. He is bald beyond redemption.

Do you believe that the modern ladies will ruin the face of India with all their pomp and show?

Ancient women who are considered our cultural ancestors didn’t have less of pomp and show. A woman always dresses for the day and our culture is not tied up with a woman’s dress.

When does a kiss take the shape of an embrace?

At the Palam aerodrome when Nehrus meet Nehrus.

MRS. B. SOLANKI (Jodhpur)
How is it that Mrs. Vijayalakshmi Pandit still looks so young?

She probably takes her youth from the places where she shops and in doing so gives her worries to the shop keepers.

G. NARASIMHA RAO (Waltair)
Whom do you like more: the full moon or a beautiful woman?

I like the moon. She doesn’t scorch you.

GURBACHAN SINGH (Singapore)
What is the Nizam doing nowadays?

Issuing certificates of good conduct to his military rulers.

Why don’t you go to the temple every Sunday?

Hindus don’t believe in Sunday gods.

What is a language?

Words that have turned a world into ruins and a curse that is denied to animals.

"There", points Rajan Haksar, “is the land of our dreams” in “Chand Sitare” of Ravindra Art Productions. But Manorama doesn’t seem to be sure.
They shout and make everyone around miserable.

K. MRUTYANJAYA RAO (Calcutta)
What are churches, mosques and temples?
Houses where gods sleep and where human beings make a vain attempt to wake them up.
Once you said, “my wine is white and comes out a cow.” Still so?
Unfortunately!

M. RUKMINI (Gudur)
Who is Cuckoo in real life, and why have you soft corner for her?
I don’t know who she is but she dances beautifully on the screen. Isn’t that enough for a critic?
Why do the producers think Nur Jehan to be a big still?
They see her baby-teasers and yet don’t believe. And they say that seeing is believing.
What is the reason for the increase of Gandhi cases after August 1947?
The Gandhi cap is the crown of our rulers a symbol of power. It lends respectability even to a thief.
How are Badami and Bhavnani getting on in their new job?
They are doing their best but they are not getting on. The red-tape is pulling them back.
What are the premises on which you base your statement that Pakistan will turn Communist?
Hunger, idleness, Islam and neighbourhood.
What will happen if men retired and handed over the government to ladies?
The secretariat would have to be built ran the ashrams of the men to save time for the ladies rush every time for approval.
What is the best way of investing money?
Buy National Savings Certificates.
Why don’t you put on a Gandhi cap?
I haven’t the right type of character for it.
Is it not odd if they are fighting world war with each other, Nehru and Liaquat Ali should shi hands, dine at the same table and pose for the same photo?
That is politics—a grand game of hypocrisy. They have stopped the fighting now and will sit talking.
When should a producer go underground?
When the income tax authorities make tax evasion a criminal offence.

MARRIS NELSON (Agra)
What kind of a person can have no enemies?
Human beings are so wicked that they will up even thousand-year-old bones and find something in them to slander.
What is the most important event in a man’s life?
Marriage! It turns his life inside out. is romance over the wires in "Neki Aur Badi", a social story of Oriental Pictures featuring Geeta Bali.

ARJUN RAJ MEHTA (Jodhpur)
May we know your opinion about the American journalist Louis Fischer and his writings?

Fischer writes to sell and when people do that they change their ideals to suit the times. Fischer is a poor writer. Though he is much boosted in India, he is hardly read in America.

OM PRAKASH (New Delhi)
To what school of religion do you belong (Arya Samajist, Sanatanist, Buddhism etc.)?

I am a Hindu, which means a student of philosophy and not a code book follower.
Would you like to serve on the film censor board?

No. I am a critic who must sit on the fence and watch both the censors and the producers.

N. S. VARMA (Agra)
When do you, Mr. Patel, propose a tour of U. P, so that I may fix up my marriage on those dates to enable you to accept my invitation?

You better get married and get going. I am not a Congress minister to attend weddings of the rich and bend my head before a garland.

KAMTA PRASAD (Kanpur)
What has made once slim girls like Nur Jehan and Kanan Bala look like balloons?

Their intracity with the dining table.
Was Bapu a God?

Not till God-se lent 'God' from his own name and made him one.

A. N. NARAYANA RAO (Mysore)
Is boxing a human game?

It is brutal above the belt and inhuman below it. And yet they call it a manly sport just as politics is mistaken for patriotism.
Does a woman not know her own mind?

That is what a man imagines and allows the woman to escape punishment for her sins.
No lawyers, no quarrels; no doctors, no diseases; no priests, no superstitious beliefs; no middlemen, no high prices?

No politicians, no nothing.
Is the Taj Mahal Hotel a beauty spot?

From the sea, not in the dining rooms.
What does the Gateway of India indicate?
The history of the British boot—the way it walked in and out.
What is there in Aga Khan’s stomach to necessitate an operation?

There are diamonds inside—for the surgeons.
Is there no God in Russia?

There is. His name is Stalin.
A mother-in-law desires her son-in-law to set deserving members of her family on their legs. Is it reasonable?

It is too much price to pay for the pair of legs she gives to the son-in-law.
Does a romantic woman frame her own laws of romance?

Romance is a Bohemian game and has no fixed rules.

Can a woman play with the hearts of two men?

She can provided men have hearts. What we mistake for heart is usually the man’s pride.

What is it like when a long separated couple meet together?

Time stops and the world suddenly becomes too crowded.

If one of the pre-historic monsters were to come to life in this modern world, what would happen to it?

It would steal the publicity from our politicians and thus be a victim of our penal laws.

Is it possible to sleep with one eye open as some old ladies are said to do?

If you do that memories of the past become ghosts of the present.

Do you hope to go to heaven?

I refuse to. I shall disqualify myself sufficiently before the final event.

Isn’t life more like a great fairy story?

The tales which fairies tell are not tragedies.

D. SURYA PRASAN (Kharagpur)

Is the Soviet film industry bigger than the Indian film industry?

No. But it is harnessed for the spread of Communism.

PRITI PAUL SINGH (Simla)

Where there is a flower, there is a thorn. Why so?

Only in Urdu poetry which smells only of roses and thorns. There are many other flowers besides the rose.

A. S. NAIDU (Secunderabad Dn.)

What are the assets and liabilities left by Mahatmaji to India?

Freedom is the asset we enjoy while his virtue is a liability we can’t meet.

Don’t you think that the retention of English as the common language of India would unite India and also enable international contact?

That is what I think, but who am I? We have wiser fools.

Why is the common man losing faith in the Congress nowadays?

Because our Congress rulers have become aristo-brats who cry when they are criticized and lecture when they are garlanded. That is a poor performance for our one-time freedom fighters.

MRS. INDIRA DEVI (Kanpur)

Which is the most precious secret that you harbour in your heart?

It is temperamentally impossible for me to nurse a secret. Even the ulcer which I had got removed.

What does love mean to Cupid?

A jest for his arrow.

Did you ever show your generosity to any American beggar?

Quite often but even the beggars there need rupee to smile.

If you again publish that photo of Pandit Indra the fair pages of “filmindia” I will stop reading mag. Please note!

Send me your photo and I’ll stop toying with Panditji’s.

MRS. M. M. BRIGGS (Anantapur)

When I kiss my husband, he says I sound like a vacuum cleaner. How can I rectify this?

Ask him to kiss you.

After 21 years of married life my husband only recently started flattering me. Is there anything suspicious in this?

Did some relation of yours die recently leave you money?

My husband says that you are good looking. I do agree. Do you?

My wife does. I don’t.

N. V. R. SWAMY (Negapatam)

Nowadays our women prefer wearing artificial flowers made of paper. Why?

Paper flowers become natural companions of artificial complexion. Neither have fragrance of their own.

Nalini Desai makes a pleasant reappearance in “Gunjri a social theme produced by Nalini Films.
FILMINDIA

February, 1949

SUBBA RAO (Madras)
Do you believe in Ram Rajya?
I don’t. It is too antiquated a mode of life with monkeys becoming gods and women roasted in fire. In the present times we use monkeys for rejuvenation and women as bus conductors.

D. DATAR (Sholapur)
Can love be burnt?
Love can be turned to ashes with the fire of jealousy.

S. SANKARA NARAYANAN (New Delhi)
What kind of reception did you get in Hollywood?
Hollywood always gives an extra friendly reception to a critic which, of course, means nothing except good business.

V. NARASIMHAN (Hyderabad Do.)
Are you a chip of the old block?
My old block is worth millions, the chip hasn’t got a chip even.
Did you dash against any divorced actress while in America?
I had to search for a married one.
How do you deal with one who listens to your vice with a smile and never obeys it?
The only man I advise is Pandit Indra and he doesn’t know what a smile is. He uses his teeth only for biting.

ANGA KAULGUD (Kolhapur)
You make sense out of nonsense. What is the secret your art?
Common sense.

ISS DAYA BAIJAL (Kotah)
When is the Kashmir tangle likely to end?
When the gun yields its place to a surgeon’s knife.

GENDRA KUMAR (Meerut)
Why does my father hate to see pictures when he is only forty years old?
Because he has to pay for them.

ISS V. KUMAR (Tellicherry)
Do you believe in women being independent and working for a living or are you an advocate of marriage or women?
Marriage is also working for a living. Men haven’t begun feeding the women in bed yet.

OMINDER SINGH (Nalba)
Sardar Baldev Singh, our Defence Minister, never appears in his martial dress. Why?
Why should he? To a Sikh his beard is all the brass buttons and the khaki.

RAHIM KHAN (Madras)
Is it not a fact that the stage play “Ghaddar” by Anviraj Kapoor has entirely shaken the outlook of Muslims of India?
Muslims have not seen it to be shaken. The play is a balm to the Hindu mind outraged by the partition of India.

Sulochana Chatterjee plays another popular role in “Lalhli”, a social story produced by Variety Pictures.

MISS U. CHOWLA (Simla)
What must a girl do when her lover threatens to commit suicide every now and then?
Give him a chance once. The every-now-and-then variety of romantic blackmailers live up to an old age.

ATIB USMANI (Bombay)
Pornography as such is censured by society; but when incorporated in poetry it is not only permitted but positively applauded—even the moralists join in the applause! Why is it so?
The human eye is less tolerant than the ear. The story of the ear is often turned into a tragedy of the eye. That’s why people like to hear things but not see them.

P. C. SIDDALINGA RAO (Bangalore)
What tempts educated people to an unsuitable marriage?
The selfish instinct to own a bread-winner and acquire easy security.
What is the difference between a bribe and a commission?
A commission is often a legitimate profit after a deal. A bribe is a temptation in advance.
Are we allowed to kill a national enemy?
The individual has no right to kill. It is a state’s privilege.

M. CHANDY ZACHARIAS (Madras)
Why are Indian princes very much interested in horse races?
MILLIONS OF HEARTS BURN WITH DESIRE TO SEE FREE INDIA A GREAT NATION IN THE WORLD VERY SOON—WE WILL HAVE TO IMPROVE OUR PICTURES A GREAT LOT TO SHOW THE WORLD WE ARE GREAT.

Good Time Pictures Ltd.

—a ray of hope for the fading film industry—

our greatest human drama ever filmed for the Indian Screen

62, BOMBAY MUTUAL BUILDING, HORNBY ROAD, FORT, BOMBAY.
No. The Bombay ministry seems to be scared of Manu, the magician.

Are women ever sincere in their remarks about their husbands?

Yes, when such remarks are meant only for their own ears. Husbands acquire virtues when their wives have an audience of other women.

H. S. RAJA GOPAL RAO (Mysore)

What will be the fate of India if the present growth of population is not checked?

We shall have to build houses on the Himalayas and become Eskimos of the East.

How often do you think it is necessary to shave in a month?

Gandhiji used to shave every day. He was almost fanatically fastidious about this and I follow him at least in this respect.

JETH MALL JOSHI (Bikaner)

How is it that the marvellous novel of Sarat Chandra ‘Shesh Prashna’ has not been filmed yet?

There is nothing marvellous in this novel of Sarat Babu. The adventures of a Bohemian woman cannot make a good story for the screen.

MAHESH (Kanpur)

Whom do you regard as a greater politician—Chanakya of the past or Patel of the present?

Chanakya was a baby in comparison with the shrewd statesmen of Gujarat.

K. R. MAHADEVAPPA (Chickmagalur)

If there is no destruction in God’s creation, what would happen to the world?

God would have to accept paying guests in heaven, the way we are multiplying, in twos, threes and fives.

A. B. RAGHAVAN (Trichinopoly)

Have you ever regretted being born a man?

Life is one long regret but in this world of men being a man is a lesser misfortune.

UDHAV M. DAGA (Bombay)

Why our film hero when he goes to the village well for drinking water, forgets to drink water and begins to look like a fool at the face of the village girl who gives him water?

His throat is not parched but his eyes are thirsty. In this he emulates his producer.

SHAIK MASTAN (Gurdlavalleru)

How long does a man love his wife after the marriage?

Love gets its lease from the woman’s youth and wisdom.

RAYMOND MIRANDA (Mangalore)

Why is it that the length of the films are measured only in feet and not in miles?

Producers give us the films in feet but we see them in miles.

Why is it that when speeches are made ladies are first addressed and then the gentlemen?
FILMINDIA

It is an old Victorian courtesy which even women don't appreciate these days. Many women wear trousers these days and would prefer to be addressed as gentlemen.

Generally politicians do not act in films. Why?

Films have a happy ending which politicians dread. They need chaos and tragedy to be natural. When politicians stage their acts, people pay with their lives.

BULO T. HARISINGANAY (Thana)
What prefix do you prefer before your name—Mr. or Shri?

"Shri" smells of our white-cap democracy. I like "Mr." as there are more blood-sucking bugs in the white caps of the day.

Your November issue was out on the 30th October. How did it happen?

Once in a while my partner goes crazy and prints "filmindia" in time. He, however, repents immediately.

You have made us tools to pay the monthly bills of your grocer, milkman, washerman etc. Is it worthy of you?

Do you take me for a charitable institution?

For two rupees I bring sunshine in your life and how can I do it unless I pay all these beggars in time?

From which school of dancing has our popular Cuckoo learnt her art?

Cuckoo is born a graceful dancer. She has a kick in every curve. It is a pity, producers abuse her art.

KANHAIYA VYAS (Jodhpur)
When Jayaparakash Narain, socialist leader, delivers his speech he keeps his left hand in the left pocket of his jacket. Why?

He probably has his trump card in there. You know the 1942 revolution.

WADHIO J. BIJLANI (Thana)
Is it sinful to love money?

Not at all! Wrongful acquisition or its misuse is a crime.

It goes without saying that Mahatma Gandhi was a true patriot. Was Quaid-e-Azam Jinnah also a true patriot?

Of Pakistan, of course.

Is fame a food that dead men eat?

Dead men digest it better than the living.

RISHI KESH MATHUR (Kasauli)
How is 'goondaism' related to politics?

Politics is licensed goondaism.

Cigarette smoking is described as 'a small quantity of tobacco wrapped in a piece of paper with fire at one end and a fool at the other'.

And the devil of a Congress minister in between.

At times I am so fed up with my life that I wish to put an end to it. But suicide is a crime—both moral and penal. What should I do?

See Indian pictures thrice every day and will pass out of this world gradually.

What is the difference between nature and God?

Nature is the halo of God. Even God needs glamour.

P. VENUGOPAL (Tolicherry)
Are you fond of reading autobiographies of prominent leaders like Gandhiji and Nehru?

The biographies of millions are their autobiographies. What's new in that to read?

D. WILLIAM MOSES (Tanjore)
Are you aware of the fact that a journalist in Madras is trying his best to become Baburao Patel of South India?

That is where journalists and magazines fail in trying to imitate me. While there is always a place for a new person with a new approach, coming another merely helps to advertise the original.

Suppose Director Badami produces a better picture than "Emile Zola" what will you do?

I'll become a Muslim and rush to Pakistan. Badami does that India would be too good a place for me to live in.

What do your neighbours think of you?

They have stopped thinking as I do all thinking for them.

MISS GOURI DASS (Ahmedabad)
Which is the most intoxicating thing in this world?

Flattery. It gives a swollen head which det alone can restore to normal size. It turns dwarfs into giants and makes the wise look idiots.
February, 1949

JAMES CHANDRA ARORA (Agra)
What in your opinion can be the best memorial of Jai?
Forget him and consign him to our pantheon of gods instead of using and misusing his name to justify all the conflicts between the grain and the bullet.

S. PILLAI (Naduroulou, Fiji)
Is it bad manners to sleep in the midst of a movie programme?
It is a blessing if you can do it.
Does lipstick improve or impair the look of an Indian belle?
It improves the appearance of the belle but spoils the laundry look of the man’s kerchief.
What possibly could be the highest tribute we findius can pay to the memory of Mr. Jinnah?
Remember him night and day and watch for another.

M. KANNAPAN (Trichinopoly)
Is it possible for all Indians to speak one language and embrace one religion?
India will then cease to be a secular state and our present ministers would be unemployed.

DORAI SWAMY (Bellary)
How should a newly married bride call her husband?
She doesn’t need to call him. It is difficult to keep him away in the early days.

K. FAZLUR RAHMAN (Bangalore)
What happens when a lover kisses his beloved for the first time?
The beloved starts believing him from that point onwards.
“Low, lower and still lower”. How do you like this option for Rajkamal’s trade mark?
I may not like it but it describes Rajkamal’s recent pictures pretty well.
Why is Maulana Azad keeping himself out of the news these days?
These are bad days for the Muslims. Even the best of them realize that silence is golden.

D. SHAHANI (Bombay)
How would you like to play your part in a game of love?
Love is not a game, it is a race for life and I would like to be at the winning post.

JYOTI PRAKASH (Rajahmundry)
Should India remain in the British Commonwealth?
Yes! To prevent the British from helping Pakistan openly and precipitating a war between the two dominions.
What do you think of Nargis’s singing?
It is music that flies from another’s throat and perches on her lips.

R. A. RAO (Mangalore)
Do you really believe that no theatres and palaces will be built for the next five years due to Government restrictions?
I don’t have to believe. I just see two palaces under construction right in front of my door and I wrote and told our Prime Minister about them. He gracefully acknowledged the letter but the heavens seem to be pouring steel and cement through dark and moonlit nights and the palaces are throwing bigger shadows every day.

JOHN MATHEWS (Bombay)
How can a rich man be made to understand the real worth of poverty?
Poverty has no worth, it has only a woe which only the poor know.
Did you find slums and beggars in America on your recent tour please?
Plenty! The dollar land has its disgraceful side like any other country. I have seen the poor sleeping on pavements after being driven out of public gardens.
What is meant by a “big shot”?
Manu Subedar! He got away with two palatial buildings—one of them a cinema we don’t need.
Why does the Communist Party of India speak ill of the Socialists?
Politicians build their fame on the defamation of others. Gandhiji tried to put scruples into politics but his followers turned them into slogans for votes.

Who, in your opinion, is the biggest liar in the world?

Pakistan's Zafrulla takes my vote.

When is India going to get up-to-date cameras for taking good pictures?

Our cameras are up-to-date. Only our cameramen are out of date.

KANCIS XAVIER (Bombay)

Nowadays mutton cooked by Brahmins is tastier than that prepared by Irani experts. Do you admit this?

I don't think Brahmins can cook it well. They eat it better.

M. BALACHANDRAN (Qu'landi)

Describe the difference that you have noted between the average Indian woman and American woman?

The average Indian woman is the man's shadow while the average American woman is his stature.

UNNYKRISHNA MENON (Coimbatore)

If capitalism is to be rooted out from India, what will the Birlas and Dalmias do?

They will capitalize even Communism and still be in the forefront of events.

M. SEVAK SRIVASTAVA (Allahabad)

How would you feel when you are put in the society of tongawallas?

Tongawallas are the patrons of our filmwallas. I am therefore in a worse company.

PICHAYYA (Agra)

How to tame a shrew?

Taming a shrew is merely a theory not a practical proposition. If women could be tamed so easily life would be one long vacation.

Is sleeping during the day good or bad?

A small nap in the afternoon is good if you can afford it.

P. A. GURUSWAMY (Bangalore)

Did you ever lose a fight?

I have not won one yet.

ASS PUSHPA (Kanpur)

What is the difference between love and attachment?

What you give to the dog is attachment but what you shower on a cat is love. There is a cat and dog difference between the two these days.

Why are some married women more immoral than virgins?

Married women have licensed wombs, while virgins await social sanction.

SANJIVA RAO (Bombay)

Up to what maximum can a film star stay a favourite?

Till she is six children old.

Is it true that K. A. Abbas edited your magazine in your absence?

He did but I had to go down on my knees before he agreed. I was too ill to trust any one else.

KRISHAN KUMAR ARORA (Ambala)

Wherein lies the significance of 'ghunghat' (veil)?

In the curiosity and mystery it creates in the mind of the onlooker.

JAWAHIR S. THANVI (Jodhpur)

What is propaganda?

The present day recitation of Gandhiji's preachings for consolidating power.

Can you cook?

I can do the next best thing—eat and appreciate a well-cooked meal.

P. G. JAGADEESHWARA RAO (Bangalore)

Why are Sadhana Bose and Leela Desai not seen on the screen these days?

They have had their days. Film making is a glamour trade which constantly needs new faces and talent.

BOBBY FERNANDEZ (Sawantwadi)

What pleasure do you find in exposing the faults of others?

There is no pleasure in criticizing others. It is a duty with a purpose in view because the work of the people I criticize affects the lives of millions.

Would Gandhiji have been so popular had he died a natural death?

The manner of Gandhiji's death put the martyr's crown on his great life and gave his death the immortal significance of a new birth.

Is ignorance a bliss?

It must be the way I find Chandulal Shah and Pandit Indra happy.

M. S. VISVANATHAN (Poona)

A woman's husband and child are both dangerously ill. Whom should the woman look after?

The husband. He can always give her another child.

If 'filmindia' sells at Rs. 2/- per copy, how can a poor man afford to read it?

All the libraries in India have 'filmindia' on their list.

POORAN CHANDRA PANDE (Lucknow)

What should we do to some of our leaders who are always anxious to face the camera?

Present them with pocket mirrors so that our eyes are at least saved the strain.

What do the film stars want—fame or money?

They want fame because money pursues fame.

CHANCHAL (Jodhpur)

Who is your favourite political leader in the world?

I like Sardar Patel. He talks less and does more, though I don't always agree with him.

Why are you so anti-Marwari?

I like the Marwaris as a community. In fact I am a bit of a Marwari myself. What I hate about Marwaris is their trade and the capitalism they represent. When the choice is between a Marwari and a Communist I like the latter every time.

A. RAGHAVAN (Anantapur)
What is a dirty mind?
A mind that smells filth in the midst of fragrance.
Do you know the effect of eating raw onions?
It keeps romance at arm's length and gives your best friend a chance.
What are slogans?
Extracts from Gandhi-Gita rolled out by Congress ministers as a face-saving and vote-catching device.
What are you to the Honourable Morarji Desai?
A critic who writes "very strong language always". He wants me to write sweetly and is sure that the film producers won't get diabetes.
Has the dream of Bapuji been fulfilled?
Gandhiji never had dreams. He was too practical.
Sometimes you betray puritanical tendencies. Why?
To make sin more glamorous.

Why don't you become an M.L.A.?
I am not a Congress dummel.
What is commonsense?
Sense that is so uncommon these days.
What is 'obsolete' in the Indian film industry?
The entire industry.
Is it patriotism to see stupid Indian pictures however boring they be?
It is a national crime. The more you see such pictures, lesser the chance of getting better ones.
For most of the college students 'filmindia' has come a habit. Is it a healthy sign?
Absolutely! My health has improved recently in spite of a dangerous operation. Keep up a habit unless you want me to get a relapse.
Define narrow-mindedness in Indian politics?
The congenital inability of some Congress ministers to understand the point of view of others.

A. V. JAYANANDAN (Tellicherry)
What can you say about the moral life of the Americans after your own experiences there?
Americans are as moral or immoral as we are or for that matter any other people are. Human nature hardly varies in this respect.

ANIMA BHATTACHARJEE (Manbhum)
Who is Gandhiji's second son according to you?
The last one is Devadas.

N. K. GHOSH (Bilaspur)
Do you think the U. N. O. will succeed in bringing peace to the world?
No. It was, I guess, not even intended for peace. It seems to be an organization for spying on one another's armament piles.

MISS SHEIL (New Delhi)
Boys of today say, "Kick a girl and she will come to you". What do you say?
She comes all right but with a kick on her foot.

A. KOTESWARA RAO (Guntur)
Is it necessary to have a separate ministry for film in the Government of India as long as there is 'filmindia's' magnificent criticism?
The ministry is needed to codify the criticism and enforce it as a law. Criminals understand la and not criticism.

NIRMAL (Rewa)
What is the difference between the roar of a lion and the bark of a dog?
There is only a small bite behind the bark but a full meal behind the roar.
What have you saved for your rainy days?
The respect of the producers who hate me more than they love themselves.

D. R. SHELGARONKAR (Bombay)
How is it that a woman looks more beautiful when she is angry?
Only in coquettish temper. When a woman is in a real temper she looks ugly. Even Gandhiji looked ugly in temper.

Sindhi refugees have added to the beauty of Bom-
Do you agree?

That is a kind and charitable thought and would heal the wounds of our unfortunate guests if put in practice with equally kind courtesies.

GOVINDA RAO (Mysore)
Which is the most fascinating part of film produc-
The heroine part of it, if she is a newcomer.

WANESHWAR PRASAD (Dhambad)
They say love is blind?
Must be, seeing that people pick up victims with eyes of hatred.

IDYANATH A. (Bombay)
Do you believe in life after death?
I do. That is why I am anxious to improve the producers before we meet again under different auspices.
Should men be gallant towards the female sex in derr times?
Not unless they are old and helpless and always when they are in distress.

RAMACHANDRAN (Madras)
How can I civilize my wife who came from a age?
Leave her as she is and watch her teaching you a few things soon. Don’t spoil the rustic fragrance with the city stink.
Is it a good thing to join in the military to serve our entry leaving our kith and kin behind?
Do you think that our soldiers have no families at home? Our freedom needs soldiers, sailors and airmen to protect it from the jealoues eyes of our enemies. And we have enemies not only across our borders but also inside our ranks. If we lose our freedom there will be no kith and kin even to leave behind.

A. KUTTHAPA (Poona)
What made Seth Dalmia visit U.K. and U.S.A.?
To establish one-world government there! Having done that and left the Westerners in peace, he has returned to manufacture more vegetable ghee.

GANJAN LAL GUPTA (Delhi)
Will you define a common man?
Baburao Patel and that is a complete definition.

NWAR MANMOHAN SINGH (Patiala)
What do you mean by riches?
The stuff that Birla and Dalmia have. Did Indians learn a lesson from Gandhiji’s simplici-
Oh yes! They gave him his scanty costume and proved to him that his simplicity has been the fashion of millions for centuries.

Who is the greatest statesman in India today?
That iron man with a bronze complexion and a mace of gold.

N. S. SAIVANT (Bombay)
Is racing an evil? Can it be stopped in India?
It has been argued out as an evil and is being stopped in India. But one wonders whether stoping racing will stop gambling.

ASHA RANI (Kotah)
Can you see God with eyes shut?
With my eyes open I see men and when I shut them I see their ghosts. Men have crowded God out of this world.
Is not the Gujarati language very sweet?
It is but isn’t it a pity that it does not inspire sweet deeds? Gujarati is the most popular language with blackmarketeers these days.
If you are sent to hell and Sushila Rani to heaven will you envy her?
Oh no! It will be a change we shall both need after a life-time together.

T. KOTESWARA RAO (Madras)
How is it that our forefathers managed without cinemas?
Our forefathers were not such simpletons as we are inclined to believe. They had their own shadow plays and our old literature is full of obscene stage plays which entertained kings and subjects alike. They had chariot races and they gambled till they staked their wives and lost. They waged fratricidal wars which wiped off whole dynasties and they employed poets to turn sinners into gods for posterity to worship. From all evidence our forefathers were greater sinners.

R. C. RAM DADICH (Jodhpur)
What will Vijoo Bhatt produce when the whole of the Ramayana will be on the screen?
Vijoo has engaged Mohanalal Dare to write a new Ramayana and its first filthy version is seen in “Ram Baan”.

RAGHU NATH DASS BAJI (Kotah)
By the way have you any children?
What do you think I have been doing all these years in this tropical country?
My brother died some time ago. How best can I cherish his memory?
Forget him! Remembering the dead is a morbid sentiment. There are enough orphans in this world who need a brother. Adopt one and thus sanctify the memory of one who will never come back.

A. NAGARAJA RAO (Bangalore)
While studying I feel sleepy at 9 p.m. but when I am in a cinema I do not get sleep even till midnight?
That’s why I am keen on the cinema becoming an extension of our schoolroom. We can teach our people better and faster through films.
PRITHVI RAJ (New Delhi)
Why didn’t Mahatma Gandhi teach the lesson of non-violence to women so that they may treat their husbands better?

He did but the women roll his words on the tongue and throw them out violently at men. They expect the men to be non-violent, while the rapiers in their own mouths draw blood every time.

A. S. RAMACHANDRA RAO (Bangalore)
Do you agree with the foreign policy of the present Indian government?

There is wisdom in it—wisdom that nurses our little baby of freedom.

What did you learn most from your recent tour in America?

That India is still the best country to live in.

MISS MOHINI G. A. (Bombay)
Do good people go to heaven?

I am afraid so! That makes heaven an undemocratic place.

PRITAM SINGH (Singapore)
Are thugs still to be found in India?

We call them blackmarketeers these days and dress them in white.

M. S. PAI (Mangalore)
Do you cultivate in your home the ideals of human unity and fraternity?

My home is an international settlement where you will often find people of all creeds and colours at a common dining table.

SHYAMAL SEN (Bombay)
Is there any cultural aspect of love besides mere sexual attraction?

The cradle is the cultural liability of love.

K. V. KRISHNAM RAJU (Bombay)
(Strictly between ourselves), have you kissed a lady in your recent visit to America? Don’t be shy!

Oh no. I am not. Quite a couple of hundred American ladies, my friends’ wives, daugh-"ters or mothers, kissed us all good-bye.

B. YESHWANT RAO (Cocanada)
What is the relation between pain and pleasure?

Pleasure is the silver lining of pain.

G. Y. RAM DASS (Secunderabad Dn.)
By seeing Indian pictures what can we become?

You can become pick pockets, criminals, murde-""rers, saboteurs, revolutionaries, virgin mother law breakers, monkeys etc. Choose your profession.

N. D. JOSSE (Calcutta)
Define immorality?

Morals that have failed to obtain the sanction of our present white capped ministers.

ANANTARAMU (Bangalore)
What is the echo of love?

It is usually an annoying cry from the cradle.

SHARADINI MULHORKAR (Indore)
Do you think the people are entitled to criticize th private lives of our public men, including ministers?

Absolutely, seeing that our leaders and mini-
"ters are daily giving us sermons about what to do and what not. One interference calls for another. If our leaders want us to listen to them they must first set the example in good civic behaviour.

BABU THANVI (Jodhpur)
Do you agree that an optimist is a man who marries his secretary under the impression that he will be able to continue dictating to her?

That is the Western illusion. My wife still... remains an excellent secretary and works eight hours every day.

HAMED HANEEF (Belgaum)
Has any refugee girl joined the film industry so far?

Quite a number of them are working as extras in films these days.

What would happen if Mahasabites, Socialists, communists and Muslim Leaguers join hands against our present government?

Nothing will happen to the present government, only those joined hands will collect a big stock of bullets.

STOM S. IRANI (Bombay)
My husband does not allow me to go out alone. Why?

Wise man! He wants the marriage to be a success. He knows the world better than you do and you should follow his lead.

AMAN SINGH (Meerut)
Why are the present-day college girls so much inclined towards the Socialist party?

Because most of the Congress leaders are in their late sixties and as such are incapable of firing the imagination of those dreamy girls.

SS KAMALABAI (Bombay)
Why I cannot control myself in spending Rs. 2/- per month after your magazine, though at present I am a refugee who has lost everything in Pakistan?

You have still “filmindia” for which Pakistanis are screaming.

SS N. SATYAVATI (Cocanada)
Why is it common nowadays for boys and girls toarry late in life?

Marriage brings the grocer home. And entertaining a grocer needs both age and money.

MOTHALI. (Bombay)
What will be the future of Muslim producers in India if an Indo-Pak war starts?

Some of them will have to be put in prison for the safety of our state.

RS. P. K. SINHA (Lucknow)
Barring “filmindia” which other cinema magazines could you recommend to your readers?

Try some foreign magazines. Some of them are quite good.

M. KANNAPAN (Trichinopoly)
It is generally said that Madrasis are not at all led by anybody in Northern India and that they are eaten with contempt. May I know your personal opinion in this respect? Do you have any dear friends among the South Indians?

I have hundreds of South Indian friends. No one looks upon South Indians with contempt. You have got the wrong end of the rumour. The South Indians suffer from terrific inferiority complex being unable to mix well with their neighbours and live in groups of their own away from others.

E. SAMUEL DANASINGH (Madras)
Why my friends always quote your answers in arguments?

I am not surprised. My replies have been flung back at me by my own friends who invite me for dinner and feed me with my own stuff.

INDRA KACKER (Jodhpur)
Nowadays critics come to light more early than men of any other profession. Why?

This is a world of faults and false promises and there is so much injustice that even worms turn round and scream.

“Ram Baan”, An Unpardonable Slander On Hindus!

Pregnant Shobhana Acts Sita!

Of all the filthy and misconceived versions of Ramayana that have appeared on the screen so far, “Ram Baan” of Prakash is perhaps the worst of its type.

“Ramayana”, says Professor Moer Williams, “is undoubtedly one of the greatest treasures in Sanskrit literature. The classical poetry, clearness and simplicity of its style, the exquisite touches of true poetic feeling with which it abounds, its graphic description of the heroic incidents, nature’s grandest scenes, the deep acquaintance it displays with conflicting workings and most refined emotions of the human heart.

I entitle it to rank among the most beautiful compositions that have appeared at any period or in any country. The character of Rama is nobly portrayed. It is only too consistently selfish to be human. We must in fact bear in mind that he is half a god, yet though occasionally dazzled by flashes from his superior nature, we are not often blinded or baulked by it.

“As to Sita, she is a paragon of modest virtues. Sita is the noblest ideal of a woman. Her noble and firm devotion to her lord, her unbounded love, her exalted conception of the eternal, nay, divine relation of wife to her husband are ideals unparalleled for loftiness and sublimity in any language or literature”.

AND PRAKASH’S RAMAYAN?

Prakash’s “Ram Baan” gives us an entirely different and distorted picture of Ramayana, the epic which has become the sacred and spiritual pride and symbol of millions of Hindus all over the world.

Ramayana is no longer merely poetic poetry. Through ages of devotion to it, Ramayana has now come to be worshipped as a religious scripture of the Hindus and as such any liberties taken with its spiritual contents and teachings, as embodied in time-honoured incidents, must hurt the religious susceptibilities of the Hindus. The warriors of the past have become gods of the present and millions of Hindus have learnt to worship the name of Ram as the symbol of Divinity. Gandhiji, the father of our nation, sang the song of Ram all his life and even used his last breath to shape the name of Ram as his final offering of a life-time of devotion.

Apart from the cultural treasure which we inherit with the name of Ram, it is impossible to tear out from the hearts of millions the altar of spiritual perfection and Divinity with which the word, Ram is identified.

PREGNANT “SITA”:

To such millions of devotees Prakash’s “Ram Baan” must cause intense pain because of the idiotic portrayals of the main characters and the distortion of time-honoured incidents.

To these millions of Hindu devotees Prakash presents Prem Adib as Ram and Shobhana Samarth as Sita. Could our gods be slandered more? Prem Adib with his thick and stretched nostrils, silly and short stature and his sagging and emaciated muscles makes a disgustingly poor picture of our warrior-god who by virtue of his skill in archery and the strength of his character gave to millions an epic of events which has now become a religious scripture.

Prakash presents the eight-month pregnant Shobhana as Sita. Her pregnancy stales every one in the eye and becomes a sickly and sacrilegious spectacle through 14147 feet of the film. Motion pictures are primarily meant for the eye and the eye must necessarily see the correct shape of characters before they appeal to the heart. It is contrary to the spirit of loftiness and sublimity associated with the name of Sita to ask a woman in her dangerously delicate condition to play a role which is worshipped by millions as the noblest and divine ideal of a woman.

Why Jairaj needs a drink with Madhubala so attractively placed beats our imagination in “Singhar”, a social theme directed by J. K. Nanda.
Innocent youngsters who do not understand the technical side of motion picture making but who are yet aware of the familiar story behind a prominently pregnant abdomen, are likely to accept Sita as a pregnant woman during her exile, seeing Shobhana's domestic achievement. If seeing is believing, this tragic misconception of Sita's character, while conflicting with actual history, must perforce bring into contempt the sanctity attached to the name of Sita by millions through ages.

Apart from this problem of pregnancy, Shobhana, as the mother of several children, looks too old and emaciated a woman, with sunken cheeks, bulging anaemic eyes, shapeless arms and sagging hips to portray Sita who though married had no child of her own during the period of the story and who was considered the most beautiful woman for whose hand the kings of all lands had vied and failed. And here is Vijoo Bhatt asking us to accept Shobhana Samarth, with her eight-month old baby inside her, as Sita the godde which millions of Hindus have learned to worship through ages.

Our censors should have realized at least one basic fact that a prominently pregnant woman could not possibly portray the role of a goddes who didn't have her own child till years after the period of the particular picture.

Does this ugly portrayal contribute to our reverence and devotion for Sita? If the answer is in the negative, why are the censors a party to this outrage on the religious susceptibilities of millions of Hindus?

Have the Hindus no voice in the secular state? Have the Hindus become such an impotent race of people as to refuse to protect their time-hallowed altars from such vandalic onslaughts of our movie Ghuznavis?

If a similar outrage had been perpetrated against the Muslims, the Muslims would have invoked the aid of Allah, Himself, to punish the movie-moguls and the censor would have had to revise their decision with double haste.

CARICATURE OF RAVAN

In an epic like the Ramayana which has become a religious scripture for millions by virtue of its spiritual grandeur, every character has some traditional importance and spiritual significance for the mass mind.

Ravan, the King of Lanka, become therefore a character as important as that of Ram. The Valmiki Ramayana describes Ravan as the most learned Brahmin of his times, a peerless scientist, a scholar of unequalled merit, a commentator of the Veda and a staunch devotee of Lord Shiva. It is with such a unique and great personality that Ram had to go to war and win. The spiritual significance of the conflict between Ram and Ravan can never be properly realized unless the intellectual and spiritual stature of Ravan is maintained and emphasized in any interpretation of Ramayana. Valmiki devotes pages and pages to describe the glory and greatness of Ravan perhaps to lift his conflict with Ram from an earthly plane to a lofty spiritual level. It is at that level that his immortal conflict becomes symbolic of the higher values of life.
Now see what Mohanlal Dave and Vijoo Bhatt have given us in “Ram-pani”. Vijoo’s Ravan rolls his eyes instantly like a drunken idiot and eps asking “Main koun?” And himself replies to this with: “Ravan”. This idiotic outburst is peated so often that Valmiki’s lofty nection of Ravan is soon ridiculed & brought to dust with a contempt at drags down also the character of Ram to the same low level.

This “Main koun. Ravan” business finds something like the disgusting tjarati brag amongst our film producers such as “Hoon Koun? Vijoo bhatt”, or “Hoon Koun? Chandulal bhatt”, etc.

DISTORTED INCIDENTS!

Let us now examine a few incidents which the producers have distorted and twisted out of shape to make a story for making easy money.

1) In “Ram Baan” we are shown swamvam’s mandap in Ravan’s hinar in which his sister Shoorpanka goes around, garland in hand, in search of a husband but finding all feated and vanquished by her brother decides not to marry.

This incident is entirely fictitious, yet facts as mentioned in Valmiki ramayan are that Shoorpankha, Ravan’s sister, was married to Vidurupiya who was killed by Ravan himself in a battle. As reparation for this act, Ravan gave Shoorpan-kha the kingdom of Dandkaranya, with an army of 14000, where she was living and ruling when Ram arrived to stay at Panchavati.

Seeing the handsome Aryan, Shoorpankha tries to flirt with Ram and Laxman and is ultimately deprived of her nose and ears when her demoniacal origin is discovered.

What inspired Mohanlal Dave and Vijoo Bhatt to improve on Valmiki’s Ramayan in this manner we cannot say.

2) The golden deer incident in which Sita’s womanly temptation for something that glitters has also been twisted by the producers. Actually when the demon Marich appeared as the golden deer around the ashram, Sita was tempted by the thought of herself wearing a choli (kanchuki) made of the skin of that golden deer.

This incident of a woman of even Sita’s spiritual stature falling a prey to a temptation with its tremendous tragedy of subsequent happenings has in it a specific moral significance for the Hindu world. But Mohanlal Dave evidently missed it and makes Sita say that she wanted the skin of the deer to make a choli of it as a present for Urnilla, Laxman’s wife. From the spiritual significance hidden behind a womanly temptation the whole incident is reduced to a Xmas present affair by this idiotic twist. If this is not distortion, may we know what is it?

SACRILEGIOUS DISTORTION:
3) When Ram goes hunting for the golden deer, Ravan lets out a distress call in Ram’s voice and Sita thinking Ram to be in danger chastises Laxman and ultimately succeeds in sending him in search of Ram. But before going Laxman draws a safety line around the ashram saying that anyone crossing it would be burnt to ashes and takes a promise from Sita not to step beyond the line.

When Ravan appears in the guise of a mendicant and refuses to take alms from inside this line, Sita steps out through the sheer cultural and religious impulse of not letting a mendicant go back empty handed from a Hindu’s home. It is thus that Laxman’s safety line is transgressed and Ravan succeeds in kidnapping Sita.

Contrary to this lofty concept of “atithi-satkar” as practised by Hindu kings through ages, Mohanlal Dave and little Vijoo seem to have mistaken Laxman’s safety line as a modern maginot line and devised a way of stepping over it.

Vijoo’s Ravan places his wooden sandal across the line and asks Sita to step on the sandal and give the alms. This distortion is disgusting for two reasons. Firstly Sita could have stepped out without anything happening to her and secondly Sita, the wife of Ram, could not possibly step on the sandal of a stranger seeing that even the shadow of a stranger defiled the chastity of women according to our old Hindu standards.

If this important incident in Rama-van is allowed to be distorted in this heartless manner, one wonders what will remain of the original Ramayan in another ten years.

OBSERVING GOOD ETIQUETTE:
4) Prakash’s “Ram Baan” once again twists another well-known incident out of shape. It relates to Shabri, the Bhil devotee who was a maid of the sage Matang. According to Valmiki Ramayan, Ram and Laxman meet Shabri for the first time in her ashram while wandering in search of Sita after she was kidnapped by Ravan. There Shabri feeds the Lord with half-bitten berries. After this meeting Shabri entered the fire and destroyed herself.

But Vijoo and Mohanlal Dave must improve on Valmiki and distort
For particulars contact:

JAGAT PICTURES,

When an historical incident. They ring Shabri to the Panchavati ashram on a preliminary social call and Shabri introduces herself to Ram, Laxman and Sita. She, of course, didn’t notice that Prakash’s ita was looking over-pregnant. Now this meeting Ram gives a promise Shabri to return her social call before leaving Dandakarnaya and habri goes happy and smiling. She had presumably come only to ask for an appointment and not to fulfil latang’s prophesy that after a visit from Prabhu Ramchandra to her ashram, she would go to heaven.

Vijoo had to see that Shabri behaved according to modern etiquette and took a previous appointment with Ram.

After Sita’s kidnapping incident,
Vijoo brings Ram, howling around to Shabri’s ashram and Vijoo’s Ram rolls his eyes in a manner to suggest that he had some inner knowledge of Shabri’s destiny, and accepts Shabri’s hospitality. After this Shabri sudddenly remembers having seen Ravan flying with Sita—an unimportant event which could be remembered at leisure perhaps—and Ram once again gets another stroke of grief.
Vijoo’s Shabri must be having some eyesight to spot Sita in Ravan’s flying chariot way up in the clouds. If only we could get those eyes for spot-obers over India our freedom would not be in jeopardy a single minute.

After giving information about Sita’s kidnapping, Shabri stretches the etiquette further and introduces Sugriva, Hanuman and other monkey lords to Ram, forgetful of the fact that Sugriva was actually living on Rishyamook mountain 400 miles away. How all these came within Shabri’s personal introduction zone is a mystery only Mohan Dave and Vijoo Bhatt can solve! The monkey generals also report having seen Sita being taken by Ravan in the flying chariot and bring out her ornaments as further proof of their good eyes-sight. After all this, Vijoo’s Ram stretches his ugly nostrils and takes a vow to bring back Sita and punish Ravan.

Now it is time for Shabri to fulfil her destiny and prepare for heaven.
So Vijoo makes her rush out wildly and stumble over a boulder. That inflicts mortal injuries and Shabri dies at Ram’s feet. And not by entering fire as Valmiki would have it.
But who is Valmiki before Mohan
Dave and Vijoo Bhatt?

A BAD MIX-UP:
5) After mixing up all the locations and characters, contrary to the historical facts found in Valmiki
Ramayan, Vijoo Bhatt and Mohan
Dave reach the battle field.

A battle field must naturally become a greater mix-up and Vijoo and Mohan run amok playing havoc with the sequence of the numerous battle incidents. To quote only one incident of Hanuman bringing the “San-jeevani”, “Vishalyakarini”, “Suvarnakarini” and “Sandhani”, the four herbal remedies from the Rishabh peak of the Himalayas.

These were first brought, according to Valmiki (Yuddhakand 74) on the eight day of the battle when Indrajit, Ravan’s son, knocked both Ram and Laxman unconscious and killed crores of monkeys. It is here that Jambwan, a comrade in arms lying wounded on the battlefield, tells Hanuman to fly to the Himalayas and get the revitalizing herbs to revive Ram and Laxman.

But Vijoo Bhatt and Mohan Dave have a different story to tell. They wanted the Prakash Ram to give some pathetic acting with his broad nos-strils stretched from ear to ear, so that people may say “Kewo pathos chhe?”. So they knocked out only Laxman unconscious (here Umakant acts the best lying half-dead) and made Ram frantic with grief. Apart from the fact that this Ram’s synthesic grief made every one laugh, we would like to know by what stretch of imagination could the writer and the producer single out only Laxman for this half-dead turn contrary to historical facts as found in Valmiki Ramayan?

If Mohanlal Dave and Vijoo Bhatt really wanted to be accurate they should have used a similar incident from Valmiki Ramayan, Yuddhanda, Chapter 101, in which Laxman broke the mortal wounds of Hanuman, himself, after Indrajit's death and Hanuman had to fly all over to bring the herbal remedy from the Himalayas. But this is a tame of conscientious scholars and not of film producers.

HULLO, CENSORS!

It is useless to waste more space on a picture which is at once rotten and inaccurate. Prakash's "Ram Baan" distorts our time-honoured conception of Ramayana and brings to ridicule and contempt lofty characters like Ram and Sita who have been worshipped as deities by millions through ages.

The Production Code recently set up by the Government is emphatic on this point: "Ridiculing or indicting whole nation, its race or people, its tizenny, its creeds, history and culture, its national emblems such as flags or national songs, its nation's builders, living or dead shall not be permitted."

Another section of the Code is still more emphatic: "Presentation of history, mythology, legends and classical works shall, as far as possible, be based on recognized documentary evidence. If dramatic license is taken in their treatment, nothing which will lower the respect of the public for the honoured historical characters concerned shall be permitted."

And the Production Code goes on and on more emphatic: "Characters of Indian or other mythologies, gods and goddesses, historical heroes or of sacred personalities shall not be presented in a frivolous manner;"

As if this is not enough, the Code states: "Obscene or undesirable historical facts or similar mythological episodes shall not be presented."

Doesn't all the distortion of basic facts from Ramayana, as pointed out, ridicule the creed and culture the Hindus? Haven't the producers of "Ram Baan" brushed aside an authoritative scripture like the Valmiki Ramayana, which is the only recognized documentary evidence, and distorted incidents in such a manner as to lower the respect of the public for the revered historical characters?

Haven't the producers of "Ram Baan" presented the sacred personalities of gods and goddesses in a frivolous manner in making Ram and Sita do things which they had not done?

Isn't it obscene and undesirable to portray a sublime character like Sita through the services of an eight-month pregnant woman whose swollen abdomen can't be mistaken by a child of five? And during a period when Sita had not even become a mother?

Who will answer these questions if not our watchful censors? If Ramayana, the sacred book of the Hindus and Ram and Sita, the altars of Hinduism, are going to be dragged to dust in this manner what are our secular ministers doing about nursing the religious susceptibilities of a great and ancient race?

Even a photograph of the Quran provokes the Muslims into a religious jehad but such criminal damnation of the Ramayana can pass unnoticed by a government which is primarily manned by Hindu ministers. Can the proverbial tolerance of the Hindus be abused more?

We demand immediate action from the Government or let them scrap the Production Code once for all and bury deep the political hypocrisy of running a democratic state prescribing fairness to one and all.

It is a pity that this unpardonable outrage on our religious susceptibilities has been committed by a Hindu producer and a Hindu writer. They must hang their heads in shame for slandering our religious traditions in so vile a manner to make a little money for themselves and in doing so grossly insult the glorious heritage of an ancient race.

OUTRAGING OUR ALTAR!

The production values of the picture are very poor. The picture looks as if it was planned as a stunt production. It lacks the spiritual atmosphere completely. It is idiotically directed throughout.

There is little to say about the players who play Ram, Sita and Ravan. Ravan's role is a slapstick caricature which creates cheap ridicule. Chandramohan makes a filthy hash of it. The too-obviously pregnant Shobhana plays Sita—the goddess who was not a mother then—and looks too repulsive and disgusting for words. Prem Adib who plays Ram defames our age-old altar and makes even Gandhiji look a criminal for uttering "Ram" with his dying breath.

Umakant plays Laxman pretty well. But Laxman has little to do and that provides Umakant his strong point.

No Hindu who loves his scriptures and his gods must see this picture. It destroys all our revered conceptions of gods and their great deeds. The picture has failed to be popular and those who have seen it condemn it in no uncertain terms. Prakash's "Ram Baan" is an unpardonable slander on Hindus and Hinduism.

Mazhar Khan gives a sterling performance in "Dil-ki-Duniya", a social story of Noble Art Productions, featuring Munawar Sultana.

Ambitious Educational Plans Of Mr. Aggarwal!
Teaching Little Ones Through The Camera Eye!

While the field of the feature film entertainment, the documentary concentrates on the processes of enlightenment. By documentary is meant the business of recording on celluloid any aspect of reality, interpreted either by factual shooting or by sincere and justifiable reconstruction, so as to appeal either to reason or to emotion, for the purposes of stimulating the desire for the widening of human knowledge and understanding, and of truthfully exposing problems and their solutions in the sphere of economics, culture and human relations. It is of the utmost importance that the production of these is done with imagination and according to the needs of the nation as it has a side and very strong influence on the minds of the audience. It is easier to arm by 'sight' than by reading, thousands of social problems in this scintillating land of ours need solution; appraisals is to be brought to the poor of countless homes which have not seen anything but misery, instructive and nation building programmes need all the publicity people have to be taught how best to maintain and use the hard-won freedom. The film has to serve all these and many more important uses and become in this country a vehicle of ideas and public service.

War proved the importance of useful aids in the training of forces, to defence workers and in research. The documentary has come to stay and its importance as an educational and informational medium has been completely established in all foreign countries and India cannot afford to lag behind in this field.

FACTUAL DRAMA
The feature film's main aim, as already stated, is entertainment and to present drama out of fiction, which did with so great a success that the commercial producer is now not at all inclined to leave this field and enter into another where the market is not already assured. The commercial field was built on private enterprise and the growth of the documentary and non-theatrical cinema i.e., for educational and social uplift purposes must also depend on the same. The documentary seeks the dramatic interest out of the facts and actual life. The artistes of the documentary or factual films are the ordinary men and women and their location is the scene of everyday common life, the fields, the mine, the factory, the school, the railway station, a common bazaar. The cause of this branch of the industry will be upheld by all who are today engaged in the great task of nation-building activities. Cinema is going to be more powerful than press and radio and it has to be safeguarded if we actually believe in democracy and we will have to fight for its freedom.

The nations striving hard to come closer to each other could never find better medium than films. The film will interpret the different ways of life of the peoples of the world and foster better understanding of each other's culture. World is so vast and wide that nobody can see the whole of it or say even a major part except through the eye of a movie camera. It is film alone which can overcome the barriers of time and distance and bring about a closer interest in the life of communities and people otherwise far removed from one another.

SUPPLEMENTING PRESENT EDUCATION

The progress which this small cinema will make in due course in this country will be responsible for the creation of a very large audience outside the city theatres, in universities, colleges and schools in the specialized institutions and the various industrial groups. That day in India is not far when the seating capacity outside the usual cinema houses will be much more than inside them. Mobile units and the 16 mm. theatres are going to play the most important role in this transition.

In an illiterate country like ours cinema has to be the effective medium for education both for children and adults.

The educational films in the literal sense are the films which are meant for exhibition in the class room—of course not as a substitute but as a supplement and illustration to the text-books. There can be direct teaching films dealing with subjects included in the studies of the child and background films which deal with subjects of great value of the general knowledge of the student.

The Report of the Government of India Central Advisory Board of Education reads:

"The advantages of the motion picture film as an educational aid are (a) the interest with which it is seen by the student and the consequent interest in the subject it creates in them...interest which does not subside when the picture fades from the screen but continues and develops into various forms of intellectual activities, (b) economy in the time taken to get things properly understood and (c) efficiency in the communication of knowledge and ideas to the students, efficiency not equalled by any other teaching aid for many subjects.

The function of the motion picture film in education has been broadly defined as three fold:

1. To show what something looks like,
2. to show how something works,
3. to show how something happens.

In performing these three functions the motion picture has a flexibility that is greater and more powerful than the vision of any one man. It has at its disposal the power of the telescope and the microscope; neither time nor space nor man's myopic vision are barriers that cannot be levelled by the camera. It brings into the classroom the world outside, the past and the future. It can show, for example, the operation of the diesel engine, the heart and the lungs, the plants in their orbits, molecules and disease germs, sound waves and telephones. This manipulation of time and distance is possible by various camera position telescopic and microscopic photography, time lapse and slow motion photography, animation drawings and special effects and editing technique. In range and flexibility therefore the motion picture film is unrivalled as a teaching aid."

Ours are the times of great progress and change. Big tasks are ahead of us. We cannot lose sight of even the smallest factor which can contribute to the achievement of the same. We should visualize the schools as institutions which are responsible for the social life of the country. The whole outlook requires a radical change. Children are to be taken to be scholars with an idea that they are to live as future citizens of this land. Their social background is to be studied so that a wholesome and suitable education is given and not at all are they merely made able to read and write. Our objective in imparting education should be to equip them with a sense of service to the nation; a knowledge of the principles and practice of good health and civic life, a real desire for utilizing the leisure hours happily and fruitfully and live a full span of creative life.

REASONS OF INACTIVITY!

It is the function of the background films to bring to the school and the world outside closer and sponsor a better understanding about the world in the hearts of the child in which a life has to live and work.

The Government of India recognized the great importance of this medium of education and recently established a Central Board of Visual Education to help the provincial and other Governments in this respect. Almost all provincial governments have purchased a number of projects and set apart huge sums of money but they all are faced with the same difficulty and that is non-availability of proper films.

The Governments are not starting their own separate production units or educational films, as this is the responsibility of private enterprise and not of the Government in the case of text books.

Private enterprise has been inactive due to three main reasons: (a) suitable educational films do not exist, and hence the schools are not interested in purchasing projector immediately, and (b) commercial producers are reluctant to embark upon this venture of producing educational films which the schools are not equipped to show and (c) there is no proper arrangement for the distribution of such films. At present most of our educationalists are either ignorant of or indifferent to the great benefits of such films and the so-called film magnates quite in the dark about the huge opportunities that this business offers. But in advanced countries thousands of such films are produced to meet the requirements on every subject—history, geography, science, hygiene, civics, etc., etc. The production of such films is a specialized job and must mean the closest cooperation between the producer and the educationalist and requires a synthesis of educational knowledge, child psychology and film technique. It can thus be entrusted only to experts. There are a few institutions who have been carrying on experiments in this direction but they had to fall back upon foreign productions many of which, being alien, are quite out of place and not of much use to our conditions. The three factors contributing to the impasse in this field have to be solved at a time and hence it is encouraging to note the wise steps taken by various Provincial Governments like Bombay, East Punjab, Delhi, West Bengal and C.P. to do some practical work in this field. Eminent educationists like Dr. Tarachand, Prof. Humayun Kabir, Sjt. K. G. Saiydain, Dr. V. S. Jha, Dr. D. M. Sen and Mr. S. S. Mathur and others are considering plans to implement the various schemes in this field. The problem is being studied by expert committees.

THE N. E. I. F.

It is with their encouragement that Mr. Governdhas Aggarwal who has studied the problem thoroughly has formed a big institution like National Education and Information Films Ltd. with an authorized capital of Rupees one crore out of which shares worth Rs. 25 lakhs are being issued at present.

Such a big capital is essential, if the organisation is to work on a sound footing with a long-range plan. It will have on its board of directors such astute and imaginative and nationally conscious businessmen as Sir Samuel Ranganadhan, Lala Karamchand Thapar, His Highness Kharagar, Seth Anandilal Podar, Ex-Mayor of Calcutta, Raja Saheb of Udaipur (C. P.) Sardar Baburaj Sardar Ujjal Singh, Raja Saheb of Kollangode and Mr. Governdhas Aggarwal.

But while these directors ensure the smooth and sound working of the business side of the concern, it can only fulfil its obligations as suppliers of educational films if such films are really educational. Hence to ensure the ‘educational’ quality and standard of its product, the National Education and Information Films Ltd. would seek advice of experts in the field. For this purpose a Central Advisory Council has been formed and it will be composed among others, of Mr. Jaiprakash Narayan, Shrimati Kamaldevi Chattopadhyaya, Mr. Yusuf Meherally and Dr. H. C. Mukerjee. The Vice-President of the Constituent Assembly, Seth Govinddas, President Hindi Sahitya Samelan, Dr. V. S. Jha, Secretary Education Department, C. P. and Berar, Dr. D. M. Sen, Secretary Education Department, West Bengal, Mr. S. S. Mathur, Superintendent, Education Department, Delhi, Ajmer, Marwara and Central India and Mr. B. S. Kesavan, the Curator National Library, Government of India.

Apart from this Central Advisory Council, provincial boards consisting of representatives of local educational institutions, headmasters’ and teachers’ associations will be formed, and from time to time their advice will be sought to keep in contact with local problems and needs.

Field work has already started and branch offices at Delhi, Lucknow, Nagpur, Jubbulpore and Bangalore have been opened.

This institution is combining all the three functions of production, exhibition and distribution of such films by opening provincial film libraries and establishing mobile units exhibiting educational films on a cheap basis besides producing suitable films, so as to make visual education possible even for the poorest. It is hoped that, with adequate public and Government help this new experiment in this direction will not only render great service to the nation but also become a great commercial success thus inviting many more producers, exhibitors and film library-owners to this field.

In the field of books there are a hundred and one new experiments in cheap publication and in the field of illustration and presentation, India needs a bold experiment in the field of documentaries and educational films and we wish that no time is now lost. When this scheme is taken in hand on a nationwide basis, the period required for the education of a child will not only be reduced but a huge sum saved to the national exchequer every year.

This is a review of "Khidki" as in the fourth week of its run at Kamal Talkies in Bombay. Such number of complaints have been heard about this picture and there been so much of virulent propaganda against it by rival producers to mention the censoring and rerouting through which the picture gone, that it has now become extremely difficult to find out what really was the original "Khidki" we found the picture at the Talkies, there is nothing vulgar or objectionable in it though its throughout is both flippant and real. From the beginning to the end the picture is clownish and even stingily so at places.

BOY AND GIRL FARCE

There is nothing like a theme in picture unless the mating of 11 men with 11 men can be called a monial problem presented by the whole thing is a jumble of things.

Eleven girls of a social institution are attracted to their eleven site numbers across the street.

Date of Release: 26th November, 1948
Directed By: Santoshi

The men and the women sing, dance and mock at each other and in doing so provide entertainment according to Santoshi's conception of entertainment.

A couple of attractive dance numbers and a few snappy songs punctuate this farce and the masses go out happy in the thought that they have had some value for their money. Our idiotic masses don't seem to deserve anything better.

Rehana's Curves

The picture is very well photographed in places and Cameraman Chandu shows distinct improvement in his composition and lighting. The direction is as frivolous as the theme. It doesn't need much brains to emphasize Rehana's breasts and even if she didn't have them in original, artificial ones could always be put in.

The songs are quite snappy in tune and composition. The Gandhian song, about which we have received thousands of complaints, is entirely harmless, though the producer's motives in using Gandhiji's name can be questioned.

As the whole picture revolves round Rehana all the characters move round her, including, of course, the director and his character perhaps. The eleven stud bulls under V. H. Desai cast only hungry looks across the street and the way they stared we expected to see eleven holes in the girls' window (Khidki) whenever it was closed.

The girls support Rehana in whatever she does. And she does a lot to emphasize her youthful curves and good eyes. Leela Misra tries to create some impression as the matron but the girls beat her with their youthful figures and antics.

"Khidki" is in the same class with Ffilmistan's "Shehnai", as good or as bad and frivolous. But "Khidki" is drawing larger crowds than "Shehnai", which means that more rotters are seeing "Khidki" and exhibitors seem to be in good season with this picture. It is a pity, however.

‘Lal Dupatta’ Becomes An Attractive Picture!

Madhu Bala Assumes New Screen Personality!

In “Lal Dupatta”, Producer-director K. B. Lall has given us a good picture. It is excellent in parts and good all round.

The story, however, suddenly becomes psychologically inconsistent at a most dramatic stage and the usual tiff of giving a happy ending poils the naturally dramatic conclusion of the story which is assiduously worked up to a tragic ending after an interval.

CINDERELLA ROMANCE

Basically, the plot of the story is the common Cinderella romance in which a rich Zamindar ultimately marries the daughter of a poor farmer, after the usual obstructions, misunderstandings.

The young Zamindar of Amirpur returns to his principality after eight years of democratic education in England and finds his little kingdom runnized by his maternal uncle who is called the manager.

Kanwar is received by his handfull i subjects. Among them is little Kishori, the daughter of Mukhiya Bhikhan Dada, a kisan. Shobha is pretty and has prettier eyes which pull Kanwar to her and thus sow the first seeds of romance in his heart of blue blood. (These princes are supposed to have blood with a different tint).

The manager who is an aristocratic brat resists this romance but finding no counter arguments to the high-sounding democratic sermons of Kanwar, resorts to intrigue to spoil this love story. Taking Kanvar, a man of odd jobs, as his lieutenant, the manager manages to murder Shobha’s father on the day of her marriage with Kanwar. The wedding is thus postponed. The manager now cooks up a new plan and by forged documents and false testimony declares Shobha as an illegitimate child of sin adopted by her murdered father. With the help of Sawan, an unscrupulous woman is persuaded to claim Shobha as her long lost child.

INCONSISTENT BEHAVIOUR

It is here that the story gets a severe psychological jerk because Kanwar readily swallows the pill prepared for him by the manager and throwing his democratic training and sermons to the winds curses Shobha and even hits her with anger and contempt.

The man who had previously shown exemplary sense of justice and equality suddenly becomes a reactionary feudal lord swearing by the old blood tie stuff and refuses even to investigate the stigma flung at his lady-love.

If his old mother had been found guilty of this good-birth complex, one could understand the subsequent happenings better but Kanvar’s sudden transformation from a justice loving democrat to a narrow-minded feudal prince taxes one’s imagination quite a bit. It only proves that the lad had no backbone and in revealing himself thus he loses the sympathy of the audience.

Now the usual sophisticated vamp of the blue-blood variety is brought on the scene and she is thrown on Kanwar with dance and song punctuating the usual sequences.

The Cinderella now begins her cruel journey through the usual vale of tears nursed by Sukhiya, a loyal girl friend of hers. Shobha complains of some mysterious pain in the side and the way she catches at it from time to time we expect her to kick the bucket any minute. But she doesn’t, because the director wanted a good ending.

The manager’s plot is ultimately exposed by his accomplice, Sawan and after a small rebellion and a bit

It is a pleasant moment of romantic give and take between Nalini Jaywant and Dilip Kumar in “Anokha Pyar” a social story of Ambica Films.

(the

As Indian audiences love tragedies due to some mysterious masochistic tendencies, a tragic ending to the story would not only have been more logical but also more popular.

MADHU BALA’S PERSONALITY

Technically, however, the picture has been beautifully photographed, artistically taken and well presented. The dialogue is sparkling and beautiful and Manohar Khanna deserves special praise. The lyrics are not much of a composition but quite a few of them are attractively tune-Recordist Moolgavkar has also done a good job in giving good tone to every word of the songs and the di-ologue—a rare experience in Indian pictures.

Except in those parts where the psychological inconsistencies are noticed, K.B. Lall’s direction is goo d and effective. He has laboured a lot over Madhu Bala and with admirable results.

Under Lall’s competent direction, Madhu Bala acquires a new screen personality. The erstwhile child now looks an attractive maiden with all her curves well framed but no unduly emphasized. Madhu Bala plays Shobha beautifully and proves herself at once competent and versatile in both light and pathetic sequences. Her dialogue is also emotionally delivered.

Rajan Haksar plays Kanwar pretty well for a maiden effort. He speaks well and seems to be sincere about his work. If he stops his face from being flabby, by keeping away from the dining table, he will present a less flat appearance and prove a good addition to our screen talent.

MILESTONE OF MATURITY

Kesari, who rotted in Ranjit for a life-time, does very well in his slapstick role of Sawan. Making a team with the versatile Ranjit Kumari, Kesari punctuates the story with gags and laughter and becomes popular with the masses.

Sapru plays the manager in a very stagy manner and his big fat cheeks have now swallowed his light eyes which were once his main attraction. Pandit Iqbal plays the Mukhiya and looks a sincere kisan every inch and minute.

Bhagabai gave us a bit of a pleasant surprise as the sick mother the way she gives tongue to her dialogue. If all old women of the screen spoke their dialogue as well as Bhagabai, they wouldn’t become so boring.

“Lal Dupatta” is an attractive picture and the one-time little Madhu Bala is its main attraction. This picture is the first milestone of her maturity in screen acting and as such reflects all the shy glimpses of her early maidenhood.

BOMBAY & CALCUTTA
"Anjangarh", A Trite And Boring Picture!

Picture Exploits People's Patriotism!

"Anjangarh" is another poor piece from the New Theatres. It has the usual hackneyed formula of a local king oppressing his people; a mining syndicate exploiting the mineral resources of the state; a Gandhian Sadhu doing humanitarian service and preaching tolerance and rebel offering the usual guerilla resistance.

The whole affair is disgustingly familiar and its pseudo-patriotism stinks in the present after-pains of our freedom. At best, "Anjangarh" is a poor attempt of a producer to cash the prevalent sentiment of patriotism among our people in their glow of freedom.

A BEARDED GANDHI

The ruler of Anjangarh is cast in the old feudal mould. He crushes people with taxation and forced labour. A mining syndicate, symbolising capitalism, enjoys a state monopoly and plays the divide-and-rule game between the ruler and his people. The Syndicate pays theantan but the labourers pay back in sweat with the result that there is a general dissatisfaction among the people.

To keep in tune with the times, the story now introduces Dr. Chowdhary, a bearded humanitariam with a young daughter and a crowd of disciples. Dr. Chowdhary heals the poor physically and spiritually. Though we are not told so, we are still expected to identify this kindly old man with Gandhiji. The words placed on his mouth echo quite a few of Gandhiji's teachings but in case we miss these words in a moment of boredom, there is "Raghubati Raghay Rajaram", the famous "bhajan" of Gandhiji and additionally this bearded doctor is also shot dead precisely with three bullets by the guards at the mine. So don't make a mistake about Dr. Chowdhary being the screen Gandhiji with a beard and a fat, clumsy daughter to boot.

The conflict between power and people and between capitalism and labour continues with power and capitalism getting the upper hand as usual with one Mr. Mukerjee thrown in as the Junior Dewan of the State to crush any rebellion.

Now the screen is got ready to give us glimpses of the 1942 revolution—was it revolution?—and Dulal Mahato, a people's man, becomes the supreme symbol of an underground guerrilla movement. Call him Jaya-prakash Narayan, Nana Patil or whatever you like, Dulal sneaks in and out of windows under cover of the night and escapes his capture like Robin Hood with a price on his head.

DEMOCRACY THROUGH LOVE

Mr. Mukherjee, the Junior Dewan, has in the meanwhile fallen in love with Shubha, the fat and ugly daughter of the bearded Gandhi of Anjangarh. What all his education could not teach him about democracy, his love for this ugly woman teaches him in a few days.

Realizing the quick transformation of Mr. Mukherjee from an autocrat to a democrat, it wouldn't be a bad idea to start love schools in our country to teach democracy to some of our sex-starved ministers and politicians. It is a much easier way, seeing that amongst our women volunteers there are many women a thousand times better looking than Shubha of Anjangarh.

The Raja Saheb, symbolising of course the British in 1942 or perhaps Vallabhbhai Patel in 1948 against the R.S.S. and the Communists—it cuts both ways unfortunately, soon lets the guns deliver their message of death and the poor are soon riddled with bullets in place of curry and rice. The event is staged as a forest satyagraha to remind us of the forest satyagraha we had at Chirner in our freedom's battle.

ONLY DRAMATIC INCIDENT

The directors of the mining syndicate now design to exploit this tragedy of feudalism by broadcasting it to the world when an explosion in their own mine kills fifty workers. That silences them and over the dead bodies of the poor both the ruler and the capitalists join hands in an unholy conspiracy against the people.

Incidentally, this is the most and only dramatic incident in the story. It is well-timed and beautifully executed to bring home the cruel fate of the poor sandwiched between the rulers and the capitalists, both exploiting them for different ends.

Dr. Chowdhary, following the footsteps of Gandhiji in the face of danger, rushes to the rescue of the distressed but is shot dead by the guards at the mine. Just three shots! One less or one more would have confused our identification of the character with Gandhiji.

The death of Dr. Chowdhary makes the love-sick Mukherjee a democrat overnight and now comes the climax of revolution. Robin Hood Dulal rushes to and fro evading the soldiers and the price on his head.

Shubha courts imprisonment and so does Mr. Mukherjee. Very soon the people of Anjangarh—a couple of hundred at the most—march to the ruler’s palace with their Robin Hood leading them.

After the usual vituperation, Dulal begins bargaining with the ruler and the capitalists and all terms being quickly granted, a benign autocracy—or was it a weak democracy?—is ushered in. Now we see the two patriots—Shubha and Mukherjee—coming out of jail and they soon become Mr. and Mrs. Leader, for no fault or sacrifice of their own.

A BORING PICTURE

The production values of the picture are in keeping with the recent standard of New Theatres. With the exception of one sequence, already mentioned above, nothing in the picture is worthy of the much-booted name of Bimal Roy as a director.

The music of the picture has classical fragrance and sounds sweet to ears more enlightened than those of the masses. The dialogue is rather poor for the theme.

From the players, Bipin Gupta easily gives the best performance as Dr. Chowdhary. He delivers his dialogue in an emotional strain but is inclined to be a bit too slow and deliberate in doing so. And yet he speaks too well for a Bengali. The next best performance is given by the little girl (difficult to find her name owing to the idiotic arrangement of the picture booklet) who plays Dulal’s daughter. That is a bright girl with a screen personality and gives a splendid promise of being a very good artiste some day.

Ajay Kumar who plays “Mr. Mukherjee” is evidently new to the screen. He is a man with heavy shoulders but plays his maiden role with dignity and restraint. He will need a couple of pictures more to remove his camera consciousness.

Sunanda Devi plays “Shubha” and looks fat and clumsy. She spoils the Bengali Hindustani and fails to make an impression even in the key role the ground simple role which he plays. Hirala plays the king pin well.

The picture is boring throughout because of its familiar story and weak handling. It won’t pay the exhibitors to make much of this picture. In fact, it might prove a losing proposition.
BANNED IN MADRAS
Madras, December 21.
"Jugnu", a filthy slander on colo.
cife produced by Shaukat Art productions, has been banned by the Madras Government as unfit for exsistence throughout the province.

AN OLD FRIEND!
Sir C. Aubrey Smith, British screen
r, who starred in many a Holly-ood picture, died at the age of 85.
ly recently he finished his role in "little Women".
Young and old alike will remember the case which characterized his portrayals of the "fine old gentleman", especially his classic portrayal
"Little Lord Fauntleroy". Apart from being a stage actor and film r, he was a brilliant cricketer and eyed his favourite game till the age of 75. His clever tactics in bowing earned him the nickname
"round-the-corner" Smith.
At the age of 75, he received his

ANOTHER FILTHY PICTURE
Bombay, December 25.
The Hyderabad Government have the Bombay Board of Censors was cently exported to Rangoon, where was running to crowded houses.

NEW SAFETY FILM
New York, December 19.
It is reported that the American industry is likely to abandon the use of cellulose nitrate as a base in our film industry. The change has en called revolutionary by the ide and is expected to take five ears. This means that the precautions taken in storing, delivery and owing of films need not be so severe as at present.
Films with cellulose nitrate base are originally used in America for purposes. In 1929 after the Cleland disaster in which 121 lives were lost through a film fire, safety rays film came to be used. Gradually this has come to be replaced by the state base.

NO MORE GODS?
Madras, December 26.
With the South Indian producers making demons out of gods and gods out of men, the Madras Government is considering a proposal to prohibit film artists from portraying gods and goddesses on screen.
The government feel that indiscrimiinate featuring of Hindu gods and goddesses has resulted in the public losing veneration for them. Moreover this would be in consonance with Christianity, Islam, Buddhism and other religions where human beings don't personify gods.
So 'Bhagwan' threatens to be an invisible entity in motion pictures in future if the proposal is carried through.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT!
Many British newspapers and periodicals are contributing voluntarily thousands of pounds to lodge an appeal with the House of Lords against what has been described as a Hollywood attempt "to gag English film criticism and intimidate English film critics."

It all started when Miss Arnot
Robertson, a film critic of the British Broadcasting Corporation, clashed with the Metro Goldwyn Mayer for giving her opinion on their picture.
M. G. M. complained to the B. C. and said that she "was completely out of touch with the tastes and ent-tertainment requirements of the picture-going millions."

Miss Robertson demanded a public apology and compensation on the grounds that the letter sent by the M. G. M. to the B. B. C. was "defamatory." She sued for alleged libel and won the case with £1500 as damages but later lost it when M. G. M. appealed to a higher court.

Mr. Tom Driberg, a journalist member of Parliament, speaking about it in a debate on the British Government's new Legal Aid and Advice Bill said, "As things are, it may clearly be difficult in the future for critics or other writers in similar circumstances to risk bringing libel actions at all against these opulent and barbarous Hollywood corporation who may be, who are trying to gag and intimidate English critics."

Declaring open the Documentary Film Exhibition on Saturday, 25th of December 1943, Mr. R. R. Diwaker, Minister of Information and Broad-the importance of documentary films in educating the masses.

Mr. Diwaker, “What is needed will have to take part in the general lection on the basis of adult franchise, which meant that the people would have to decide as to who

Gone with the Wind!
Arizona, January 7.
Hollywood film director, Victor
Fleming, better known to filmgoers as the successful director of that stupendous picture “Gone With The Wind” died on Thursday, the 6th January, of heart attack at Cotten-wood.

Even in his early days of film direction he had made quite a name in adventure pictures directing Jean

Tracy.

Some of the films directed by Fleming are: “Treasure Island”,
“Captain Courageous”, “Test Pilot”,
“The Wizard of Oz” and “Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde”. His last film was “Joan of Arc” starring Ingrid Bergman.

Long Ordeal
Madras, January 3.
According to a restriction order updated by the Government of Madras, the length of film to be exhibited at any cinema show should not exceed 15,000 feet including approved films and the duration of the show should be three hours including the interval.

This order applies to films censored on or before 1st March 1949.

SOUTH INDIAN CODE
Madras, January 1.

The Madras Board of Censors has formulated a production Code for the South Indian producers and is in many respects similar to the one formulated by the Bombay Board of Censors.

Additional emphasis is placed on mythological characters, especially Hindu gods and goddesses which should be shown in such a way that they inspire reverence in the minds of the filmgoers.

All drinking scenes except those places where drinking is shown as an evil will be deleted from pictures in future.

BANNED

The Bombay Board of Film Censors have banned two Hollywood pictures: "Lady In Ermine" produced by 20th Century Fox and "Loves of Carmen" produced by Columbia Pictures.

The first picture was banned on the grounds of having a low moral tone, advocating immoral relationship and appealing to the lower passions of people, while "Loves of Carmen" is banned on the grounds of being a sex-obsessed theme with crime and violence and without any redeeming features.

SMOKING

"Prohibiting smoking in Bombay cinemas is good work. The Government of Madras are also going to bow this lead.

Generally, when college students go to some girls in the cinemas they smoke too much and turn the auditorium into a smoky hell.

'Bombay's lead must be followed by other Provinces if they are as anxious to look after the health and welfare of their people.

'The Ajmer-Marwara authorities also prohibit smoking in cinema houses immediately'.

PUNJABIS ALL!

Have you ever heard the father sing his son’s ‘a son of an owl’, ‘a guilty begotten son’ or ‘a son of a donkey’ in the presence of the son’s mother? If not please see ‘Lagan’ a Punjabi film produced by a Punjabi.

Being a Punjabi I was very much ticked and ashamed on hearing the epithets which no sensible man would tolerate.

‘It is a shame on the producer and the director of this film’.

Sohan Sharma.

WHY PATRONIZE

November 1948 saw the opening of another new cinema, "Kempegowda Talks", in Bangalore. This was one of seven new talks built in this city during the post-war period, in place of cement and steel shortage. I am not mistaken another two cinemas are under construction. The rising problem here is very acute. Yet our popular ministry is allowing mansions to be built merely because the entertainment of the people thousands here are denied a chance to live under.

Coming to this Kempegowda Talkies, it is almost a triangular building. Its corridors, and there are not a number of them, resemble labyrinths and one gets the impression that he is in a monastery instead of a cinema hall. I am very much doubtful whether at first this building was intended to be a theatre.

'Balcony contains only one class viz., Rs. 1-10. I happened to go to this theatre on the second day of its opening to see "Dak Bungalow". I purchased a Rs. 1-10 ticket and when I was directed to the balcony I almost mistook it to be an 8 as class, so bad are the seats. There is a complete absence of fans and there were whispers to the effect that the hall is air conditioned. As the picture proceeded, it became unbearable for me to sit. It was miserably hot and there was an air of uneasiness about the audience. The whispers about air conditioning soon changed into curses and not a soul was able to enjoy the picture. This is winter and I shudder to think what will be the fate of the filmgoers in summer. Is it right on the part of an exhibitor, Mr. Patel to exact Rs. 1-10 from a filmgoer and make him go through all these ordeals?"

V. K. Fakur Rahman.

BANGALORE.

MR. CHANDRALEKHA?

"The Government of Madras have restricted the duration of cinema shows to 3 hours. This, you will no doubt agree, is wise action.

"Strangely enough, Mr. S. S. Vasan, the leading Tamilnad film producer, has expressed his “strong condemnation of the government action. In the past, this patriotic film producer had waxed eloquently on the “educative” aspect of films. He had also propounded many idealistic thoughts on films which were very much appreciated by people who regard film as a fine art. But they were very much dismayed when Mr. Vasan himself produced films based on nothing but myth, magic and mystery. A very queer way of educating the ignorant and superstitious masses indeed!

"From the experience derived from his own films perhaps, Mr. Vasan thinks that any attempt to restrict the duration of cinema show “would result in denying the poor man the relaxation he is seeking”. What concern for the poor man! Poor (pitiable) indeed is that man who must sit for more than three hours in a cinema show to get entertainment or relaxation from Mr. Vasan’s pictures! Will that man get the entertainment at all even if he heroically sits for hours? I doubt very much".

same time thankful to Minister orarji for his stern action, banning ugnu", which was passed by his own Censor Board. The Madras Government have also banned it on the 8th December quoting reference to the ban in Bombay. Mr. Patel, even though the Bombay Censor Board is sleepy one, you are there to wake up at the right moment and save people. But, what about others, especially we Tamilians who are being tortured with 18 to 20,000 feet boredom with some obscene inconveniences under the label "social m"? If the local Censor Board works conscientiously, I think, almost pictures in Tamil being produced should meet with the same fate.

IZAGAPATAM. N. V. R. Swamy.

DON'T MIND VASAN:
“Tm sure you are aware that the adras Government recently decided to restrict the film footage up to maximum of 13,000 ft. It is really boon to us because it relieves us from seeing worthless pictures, some which (e.g., "Chandralekha", "Momi etc.) are 20,000 ft. long. And I’m, Mr. Vasan, the boss of Gemini studio which is notorious for producing such rotten stuff like "Manumma" and "Chandralekha", protests against this restriction. What in we do?”

IZAGAPATAM. K. Mukumda Rao.

CONGRATULATING!
“As from 1st January 1949 the adras Government have issued orders restricting the footage of films to be exhibited to 15,000 ft. or three hours duration. This may be very bad news for the producers of the South, but to an average cinemagoer, it is a great relief as the length of the films in the South generally exceeds 15,000 ft. Imagine the lot of the people sitting continuously for more than 3 or 4 hours inside a cinema house most of which can hardly be called “cinema houses”. I wish to congratulate the Government of Madras through the columns of your esteemed journal on this wise step.”

BOMBAY. K. N. Rao.

THANKS!
“I was surprised to read your reaction to a criticism of Rajaji’s fabulous (for a poor country like ours) salary in the “Editor’s Mail” of Filmindia. Whatever your other defects, I had always credited you with a true democratic spirit. Surely, now that we are (supposed to be?) free, you don’t expect us—citizens of a Free India—to think like slaves! The fact that we tolerated (not always) the old regime with all its pomp and show, does not mean that we ought to put up with it now. We have found our long-lost voice and you cannot stifle it any longer.

“If anyone is mean, it is those who talk of dignity and prestige in the face of the poverty that is eating away the lives of our people. The glory of a nation does not rest on the glory of a few individuals. As long as we are the slaves of hunger and disease, we dare not hold up our heads. Unless we demolish the old rotten structure to its very foundation, how are we going to build the new India of our dreams? The people did not give up their sweat and blood merely to see the continuation of a system they have grown to hate! You cannot wake up a man from deep slumber and immediately want him to fall asleep. Of course you can drug him!

“Well, excuse me Mr. Patel, but I have got to cry: “Shame on you!”

MANGALORE. Vinata Pai.

AGREED!
“In the editorial comments of your December issue on the film ‘Matlabi’ that has been banned by the Government of Bombay, you have rightly pointed out what harm is done by the producers of that film, in screening it at Rangoon. It is equally appreciative that your Rangoon reader has brought this fact to your notice in time. In this connection I would like to inform you that this is quite a common affair in India itself, why to speak of Burma or Ceylon. This film ‘Matlabi’ is now running in the ‘Permanent’ Talkies, Andersonpet, K.G.F. and from this it could be gathered that this condemned stuff of the Government of Bombay is freely allowed in many other places. It is therefore no wonder if it is seen running in a distant country like Burma.

“In the present set up, the censorship of films is akin to that taken against political journals by the different provincial governments. The producer is not much worried if his film is banned in one place, as he is sure to push it somewhere else. Unless the negatives and all positive copies of the film are altogether confiscated the ban over a film may not serve the purpose desired by the censors.”

T. R. R. Swamy.

ROBERTSONPET, K.G.F.

WELL, NANU?
“The local “Olympia Talkies” is a veritable film fan’s graveyard. It is highly surprising that this theatre managed by Nanubhai Desai, a partner of Jayantilal Thakore of Famous Pictures and ‘Prabhat Talkies’—one of the high class theatres at Bangalore—should be so sadly neglected and managed.

“The seats in the 8 as, class are all dusty and their cushions torn. This class situated alongside the ladies' lower classes—which are a real pandemonium or a Babel's Tower—is too sad for words, for it is an adventure to search a seat with a cushion or one which is dust free. Add to this the bugs that attack no sooner the lights are out. At this rate, how can anybody enjoy any picture?"

MYSORE. A. N. Narayana Rao.

SLEEPING CENSORS!

"Accept my heartiest congratulations on your most frank and justified criticism of "Jugnu" which slandered the entire student community in India by its most stupid, vulgar and degenerated theme. Let me also thank through you the Home Minister of Bombay for his praise-worthy act of banning this picture in Bombay, though it is too late for Northern India where it has already run. I wish the Censor Board which to my mind is a "sleeping Board" was a bit vigilant and realistic, and saved the "flowers of the nation" from such a ruthless and mean propaganda against college education which has been depicted in "Jugnu" and where a college boy behaves even worse than a apache and a college girl looks no less than a gammer."

DELI. Jai Bihari Lal Thakur.

SCISSORS FIRST:

"The news that the Government of Madras have decided to offer a prize of Rs. 500 for the best picture produced in the province each year, of course, a welcome one. But it doubtful whether the Governor object, to get better pictures here produced, would be achieved! No adays, pictures with more vulgar are box-office hits and no producers will care for this prize of Rs. 500. If the real object of the Government were to get better pictures, unenthusiastic members of the Censor Board use the scissors without favour, I don't think we can hope to get better pictures.

Government Must Stop This Racket

The latest Indian producer to go on a dollar pilgrimage to America to cash his celluloid junk is Udayakar, the well-known Indian dancer.

Producer V. Shantaram began the vogue by taking "Shakuntala", both in person and celluloid, and so did the great Vijay Bhatt with his "Ram Rajya" and Mehboob's "Humayun".

Shantaram's "Shakuntala" hardly ran three weeks at Art Theatre, a small third-rate down-town cinema in the 8th Street of New York with a capacity of 600 seats, and Shantaram had to pay more dollars for the distribution of the picture than he collected at the box office.

All the best pictures of the world are released in midway or near about—between the 45th Street and 56th Street. So Shantaram's "Shakuntala" travelled to the road exactly 37 streets for its New York "premiere". To describe the location and the importance of Art Theatre in New York in parallel terms we must go to Kamatipura in Bombay and pick upon the Alex Theatre as the nearest possible description of the Art Theatre.

Almost all the leading New York film critics slashed "Shakuntala" and described it as a very poor and amateurish picture, both technically and emotionally. Even petite Jayashree got a few hard knocks from the critics.

Yet in India ignorant newspaper boys were beguiled publishing high-sounding publicity blurbs about the "New York premiere of the first Indian film" and New York cablegrams were published in support of these publicity blurbs. These cablegrams were, of course, sent by Elmer and Burstyn, a firm distributing foreign pictures at 113 West 42nd Street, to whom Shantaram gave pictures for distribution when he could not find any one to buy them.

In fact Shantaram was so much peeved and disgusted with his American trip, probably because the America did not sink in submission under his feet. And even my heart did not have the heart to go even to Hollywood but he went home directly from New York.

In America they didn't know whether Shantaram the name of a cabbage or a cucumber, and they did not carre. And that must have hurt the great Shantaram is used to being interviewed by half-starred newspaper boys in India and taking intellectual poses in press photographs.

On return home Shantaram did not say much about the actual reception he got but talked of floating a distribution concern with a crore of rupees as capital in association with the Americans. The poor Indian newsboys, complete strangers to the gold dollars and ill-acquainted with even the rupee notes, swallowed this "crore-pill" and outdid one another in boosting Shantaram's mysterious "international link-up" and Shantaram gave more intellectual poses for press photographs.

Nothing, however, has yet come out of these big publicity stunts except an additional self-hypnotism of Shantaram as an international film magnate. Even that picture "Dr. Kotnis" which was produced in English specially for the international market is still rotting in the tins unreleased even in India though it is three years now that the picture has been ready.

And the Government of India, who had also overrated this man—being hypnotised by his newspaper publicity, had sanctioned as much as 60,000 dollars for his American expenses and allowed so much Indian money to go out of a poor country. Shantaram, of course, bought a big Packard car for his charming wife and the rest of the dollars vanished in expensive American hotels and tips.

Producer Vijay Bhatt, another publicity product, also seemed to have seen the glimpse of a gold dollar somehow and grabbing the tins of his "Ram Rajya" tickled the Government to give him some dollars and within a week he was on the other side of the Atlantic showing his stupid picture to small invited audiences and squeezing certificates of merit with the help of Hari C. Govil, a disillusioned Indian in America. No one in America was interested in "Ram Rajya" as a commercial proposition and Vijay Bhatt returned to India with a courtesy certificate from Director Cecil B. De Mille. Once again the Indian newsboys, tea-thirsty and crumb-conscious, vied with one another and made much of that certificate and ended by giving De Mille more publicity within a month than he had during a life-time. And India lost several thousand dollars more.

It was now time for another to jump off the board. So M. A. Fazalbhoi, our shrewd machinery salesman, injected Producer Mehboob with enthusiasm and another caravan started on a pilgrimage to the dollar land. Mehboob Filmindia, a new comer with a dimple, is one of the attractions of "Char Din", a social story of Rattan Pictures.

She took his wife and his "Humayun", and taking the Ilbboy family for moral support and as interpreters, landed in New York.

In spite of Fazalbhoy’s super-salesmanship and existing connections, "Humayun" could not be shown commercially and Mehoob’s caravan soon returned to India. Once again India lost several thousand dollars on sunshine.

Long before these three enterprising producers, J.B.H. Wadia had produced "The Court Dancer" in 1932 and succeeded in getting the Columbia Pictures of America interested in distributing the picture in America. The picture was, however, never shown in Broadway as anything heard of it though five annual calendars changed their designs since.

Now come reports of Uday Shankar’s foolhardy enterprise in America accompanied by his talented wife, Nandini and his tins of "Kalpana."

Ram Bagai, Filmindia’s special correspondent in Hollywood, writes to us that, ‘Kalpana’s’ original footage of 14,000 has been cut down to 10,000 for American release, for a rental of a paltry 100 dollars (Rs. 335). "Kalpana" was shown at the Beverly Hills High School on Friday, 14th January 1949; that the reaction of the 500 Indians present was "hodge-podge"; that Shankar should have brought 2 or 3 reels of dancing shorts; that the conclusion was that "Shankar is no film technician and he should stick to his own field"; that we believed in the ballyhoo that this film was running simultaneously in 10 cinemas in Bombay and Calcutta and was still being played to packed houses in both the cities. Truthfully, we were disappointed in the film; that Shankar gave 3-4 private showings in Hollywood.

"At one show the attendance was 5 persons, at another 3 while at one show only one man came and even he left mid-way thus leaving the great Shankar alone to witness his own creation or stop it. He stopped it."

And Uday Shankar and his Amla must have also taken some Indian money for the American trip. And with what results?

These four producers: Shantaram, Vijay Bhatt, Mehoob and Shankar, must have spent over 125,000 dollars over their ill-conceived American trips which brought neither prestige to the country nor even profits for themselves. When the Government of India need every possible dollar to buy food from this hard currency country for our hungry millions, under what earthly excuse can they justify their sanction of thousands of dollars to film producers travelling with their wives and their putrid tins of celluloid in search of a mirage? Are all the soliciting promises seasonally given to the hungry poor by the different ministers of the State to be accepted as hypocritical platitudes which bring neither food nor sincerity of purpose to the hungry millions?

One more film "Ajit" produced by Mohan Bhavani in 16 mm Kodachrome is at present being blown up to 35 mm in Hollywood. It is already being boosted as the first full length colour film from India and though it will never get a commercial break, we won’t be surprised if Mohan Bhavani, who is now a Government employee in the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting, applies for dollars to attend, of course with Mrs. Bhavani the "New York premiere" of this film. That will be some more dollars wasted—dollars with which we can buy some precious food to the dollar-crazy Americans.

We have often written before that no Indian picture can for a long time to come, if not ever, be a commercial proposition in America. It is both stupid and suicidal to chase this mirage and once again we give the reasons:

Film exhibition in America is a monopolized trade and foreigners have no chance at all of introducing their pictures. Out of the 16951 theatres in the United States, more than 2/3rd are owned or controlled by the different producer-distributor concerns like Paramount, M.G.M., 20th Century Fox, etc. The independent theatre owners are also at the mercy of these big combines to keep their theatres running from week to week.

J. Arthur Rank, the British film tycoon spent millions of dollars to get some foothold in America for British pictures. After years of struggle he could hardly get 15 theatres in New York. And these also he got after stepping up the quality of British pictures and using the British Quota Act as a lever for international trade. Rank has been the entire British Government behind him in his efforts to popularise British pictures in America and bring some dollars home. And yet when "The Sons of Liberty", an anti-British organization sponsored by some of the leading Hollywood producers, recently picketed all cinemas showing British pictures, Rank's acquisition of 15 New York cinemas dwindled to only two cinemas. Where Rank is gasping for breath from month to month in America what earthly chance have the Indian producers with their putrid product?

It is true that some foreign pictures, like "Paisan", "Open City", "Shoe Shine" etc., made in Italy, France and Sweden ran well in America. But these pictures got break because they were purchased outright by influential American distributors who had to recover a part of their collections frozen in Italy and other countries. The producers of these films, however, always got very little and all the profits, as usual, were collected by the American distributors.

Besides, quite a few of these foreign films have some quality and unusual realism which hold audience interest in America in addition to the racial aspect that the players in these pictures belong to the white races that have become Uncle Sam's wards under the Marshall Aid Plan. The social life and the costumes in these foreign pictures harmonize with those seen in American pictures and as such contribute to the white democracy of the Western nations.

In spite of all this, very few of these foreign pictures got a Broadway release. The majority of them are shown in small down-town theatres and bring in just a little profit over their cost price.

American producers and distributors are almost automatically conscious of their home markets and are ruthless in scotching any possible competition in their field. With their fabulous resources and an almost unholy unity of purpose in these matters, they will never allow any foreign producer to get a foothold in the American market, though, of course, they are themselves always on the alert to acquire new fields for their own films and ring the heavens down in protest if some nations enact offensive measures to conserve their own economic ability.

Some of the American film producers are perhaps the most selfish, greedy and unscrupulous people one can find in any part of the world. They have often bought quite a few of the British pictures which threatened to appeal to the American masses and instead of showing them in America they have either buried their negatives or shelved the pictures completely. Ruthless and unscrupulous in competition, these producers would easily spend millions to maintain their monopoly of American markets rather than allow a good foreign picture to create a different taste in the American audiences.

Another important factor that militates against the possibility of Indian pictures being popular in America is the language of the Indian films. Though some dubbed pictures have sometimes appealed to the city audiences in America for reasons given above, even the best Italian pictures have failed to be popular in little towns and villages where audiences are completely hypnotized by Hollywood glamour and publicity. The average American, though he fancies himself to be the first cousin the Englishman, can hardly understand the Englishman's English and sticks to his American version of the language. When he hears Sir Laurence Olivier's beautiful diction in Shakespearean films, he is completely flabbergasted and often gives vent to his confusion by saying: "Goddammit! What's all the row about?" To sell an Indian picture to an American audience in such circumstances is like passing a camel through the needle's eye.

It is high time that Indian producers realize the utter stupidity of their foolhardy ambition to produce pictures for the American market. Indian producers haven't a dog's chance to show an Indian picture on a commercial basis in America, and there is no sense in wasting Indian money in buying American dollars and making ourselves more poor than we are today.

Our producers have neither intelligence nor patriotism and it is difficult to put sense into their bullet-proof heads but the Government of India can certainly stop these idiots from draining off our already slender economic resources by refusing them passports to get out of the country with their wives and putrid films.

Unless the Government take some drastic steps immediately quite a few producers who are already packing up new tins of their own celluloid junk are likely to waste some more Indian money overseas in buying dollars with which we can purchase some food for our hungry millions.

On the 26th of November last at the Ranjit Studios Home Minister Morarji Desai walked over a crowd prostrate film tycoons with seven garlands round his neck. Little did he realize that the little man who put the fifth one on behalf of the film workers, much against wishes of Chandulal Shah, the president of the producers and the master of ceremonies for the day, would be an unemployed man today.

This little man's name is Diwadkar and he was working in the Ranjit Studio till that fateful evening. On the December 21, 1946 "rebels", including little Diwadkar, sacked by the Ranjit boss. The Indian Motion Picture Employees' Union is fighting out this case but in the meantime the little workers are giving more than a khaddar garland to our Home Minister. They are laying away their two daily meals to maintain the dignity and sincerity of that affectionate gesture of sweating toil to our popular minister.

This is, indeed, a strange world in which the sweat-workers cannot even garland a people's minister with that garland thrilling the capitalists. One more man did not break Minister Morarji's neck but it has taken the back of those poor workers and disturbed a daily meal routine of 24 workers' families.

On the 13th November—only 13 days before the big election to Minister Morarji—Chandulal Shah had pressed his workers and given them an ultimatum either to leave the Employees' Union or face dismissal. The workers stuck to their Union. The garland incident within 13 days of Chandulal's threat to the workers, before the proverbial last straw on the camel's back and workers are on the streets today. They are living on dust of the streets while their erstwhile boss has since won the Derby with his horse "Balam" and gathered the glory as the best sportsman of the year. Sportsman, indeed, with 24 hungry families of his workers, helpless and starving in the slums of the city!

Under the chairmanship of Mr. S. K. Patil, the President of the Bombay Provincial Congress Committee, the Indian Motion Picture Employees' Union was formed in January 1946. During the three years of its struggle career, the Union had to face plenty of trouble and toil from the studio owners. Threats were handed out and some of them were formed, workers were victimized and the Union was sabotaged in almost every field of its activity but under the presidentship of Prithviraj Kapoor then of Rshit Dave and with the almost fanatic sincerity of D. S. Thakur, the General Secretary, the Union bravely held its ground and claims today a membership of 2145 workers in 18 studios and 4 laboratories. The workers of only two studios, the Rajkamal Kalamandir and the Central Studios, are still eating from the hands of their dog-feeders and have not yet found it necessary to lend their bread the prestige and fraternity of common interests which the Union offers. They are still selling the salt of their sweat to buy blood for their employers.

The Employees' Union demands for the film workers' standardization of wages, dearness allowance, provident fund, gratuity, annual leave etc.

The Union is carrying on a grand battle with the Producers' Association on these points and the producers are not quite happy the way the Union has already recovered Rs. 11,000 as accumulated dearness allowance from the Famous Cine Laboratory and Rs. 20,000 more as over-time wages from different producers. Immediately the producers are faced with the demands of the Union for arrears of over-time wages and dearness allowance, the producers begin victimizing their workers by wholesale dismissals and the Union is compelled to move the slow machinery of the law under the Industrial Disputes Act to redress the just grievances of the workers. Quite a few cases are on the anvil just at present with the law lazy and the workers hungry.

Here is Chandulal Shah leading in his "Balam" after winning the Indian Derby. This dark horse won him Rs. 73000/- in stakes alone and Chandulal is reported to have cleared up another 5 lakhs in betting. What about the workers' bonus, Chandulal?
Only two studios, the Filmistan Ltd. and the Bombay Talkies Ltd., have so far fully co-operated with the Union.

The greatest headache to the Union officials, however, is the collection of Rs. 2,50,000 the balance of the bonus from the Ranjit Studios. In April 1946, Chandulal Shah, flushed and intoxicated by the doubtful glory of having producing 100 rotten pictures, while celebrating his picture centenary, announced in the presence of the Jam Saheb of Nawanagar and thousands of guests a bonus of Rs. 2,75,000 to his studio workers. To this, Jam Saheb, after whom the Ranjit Studios are named, graciously added Rs. 50,000 as his personal contribution and another Rs. 25,000 were contributed by the different Ranjit distributors. That made a total of Rs. 2,75,000 as bonus and the day looked like a workers' divali. After the workers had eaten the sumptuous meal given on the occasion to every one by Seth Chandulal Shah and with the prospect of getting that grand bonus in mind, every grain that lowered itself into those long sweating stomachs came up in gratitude and shouted "Seth Chandulal Shah ki Jai", "Seth Dayaramji ki Jai", "Seth Ganpatbhai ki Jai", "Seth Chhotubhai ki Jai", "Seth Ratilal ki Jai", "Gohar Bai ki Jai". All the members of the Ranjit ruling family blushed deeper in their own dye with the weight of all these "Jais", the gratitude of sweat and salt that went into making those 100 Ranjit pictures and buying a dozen cars, palaces, race horses etc. for Chandulal Shah and Miss Gohar.

Three years have passed since that glorious day when Chandulal Shah promised the workers a bonus of Rs. 2,75,000 and made every grain in that free m shout "Jai" for this and "Jai" for that. But so far of Rs. 25,000 have been paid as bonus.

When the Union demanded this bonus, Mr. Thak the General Secretary of the Union, was told that bonus would be paid in December 1948. December has come and gone and Chandulal Shah has won another Derby but the balance of the bonus has not been paid yet and the workers are swallowing only the salt which the thought of the grand bonus still brings in their mouths.

Chandulal Shah is reported to have told Thak that even the Jam Saheb has not sent in his promised Rs. 50,000 yet. How can the workers then expect Jam Saheb's protege to keep his promise?

The silly workers, they think that with years of sweat and sweat, they deserve that bonus. Little do they know the ways of tycoons and tingoed. Even the free man that this film tycoon gave made the throats of the workers hoarse in crying out "Jai" this and "Jai" that. Even a single grain of the capitalist must cause an ulcer in the stomach of the sweating worker. That is how the world is run today. What chance have these poor Ranjit workers to get those Rs. 2,50,000 from Seth Chandulal Shah seeing that the sporting Seth has to pay 50 race horses costing Rs. 400 per horse per month, to mention many jockeys and lackeys.

We do not think that the Union will ever succeed in getting that bonus from Chandulal Shah but because that money belongs to the workers and smells of sweat, let us pray that Chandulal, in his moment of exultation, throws it out of his safe some day when the Un officials happen to be standing below the Seth's big room window.

That will be another Diwali to the Ranjit workers who have slaved to buy race horses, motor cars and palaces for their Seth Saheb.

STOP THIS HIGHWAY ROBBERY!

With the division of India into two dominions, a new racket is in vogue these days among some Muslim producers and artistes of India.

It is not exactly a state secret that quite a few Muslim producers now operating in India owe their spiritual allegiance to Pakistan and are anxious to use their profits to the sister dominion as fast and as quickly as they can, without having to carry out the unpleasant obligation of paying income-tax in India.

To circumvent the necessity of paying income-tax in India, quite a few Muslim producers are charging very high nominal prices for their pictures for the exploitation rights in Pakistan and sending dup-negatives of their pictures to their own distributing firms, run by brothers, cousins and in-laws. Their firms in Pakistan make as many copies of these pictures as required and after exploiting the same keep their collections in Pakistani banks in the name of the original producers.

This method of sending pictures to Pakistan has a double advantage. In the first instance these Muslim producers are able to build up a reserve in Pakistan to future purposes and secondly, the so-called poor purchase price obtained for a picture for Pakistan expi
Indian producers who sell their pictures for Pakistan are only too willing to co-operate with these Muslim racketeers and receive two-thirds of the actual price in black money and the rest on paper, as it saves them also from the higher income-tax slab.

It is not therefore strange to find some pictures fetching a price of a lakh and half rupees for Pakistan rights while others are sold for as little as Rs. 40,000 only. The wide gulf between these two price ends provides a pointer to what is actually happening behind the scenes. The standard price for Pakistan rights varies between a lakh and a quarter to a lakh and a half per picture but when purchase agreements are produced with prices near about fifty thousand rupees and often less, it doesn't need much intelligence to imagine that a large part of the price has been paid in black money.

There is only one way to avoid this income-tax sabotage so far as pictures are concerned and that is to fix up a standard price for Pakistan rights for taxing purposes and enforce it whenever producers present sale agreements priced below the standard price.

As regards the blackmarket money piling up with some of the Muslim artistes who are resorting to all sorts of devices to avoid rightful taxation, it is necessary to take drastic steps and check up their acquisitions in property, ornaments and gold in safe-deposits as also their seasonal remittances to Pakistan through brothers, cousins and in-laws.

If some of the Muslim producers and artistes are operating in India with the solitary idea of making money by cashing their popularity and sending such earnings to Pakistan, they must be stopped from doing so to conserve our national economy. If our country, in its present state of poverty, can't afford to spend money and get American goods instead, how can it afford this one-way drain on its economic resources? For, nothing comes back to us in lieu of all the money some of these Muslim film folks send out of India regularly under one excuse or another.

SURAIYA A RISKY PACKET!

Pakistan-returned Producer Hasnain of Fazli Brothers is reported to have signed up Suraiya for Rs. 65,000 for his new picture. This is the highest price paid to any artiste during the last two years and is therefore a clear indication of the present boom in motion picture making in India, though the film producers keep shouting about a slump either to extract tax concessions from the Government or to persuade the Income-tax authorities to look at their returns more sympathetically. Surely an industry in slump cannot afford to pay such a huge amount to a single artiste for 3 months of work?

Incidentally, this is the sixth simultaneous picture Suraiya will be making and it adds one more producer to her nanny's diary of daily schedules. It is a well-known fact that Suraiya is a hardworking and punctual girl who works every day of the week including Sundays but formerly she used to dole out 6 days in a month to every producer, now with Fazli's new contract in hand she will be giving only 5 days a month.

If we call this greed on Suraiya's part we would be accused of being unfair as it takes two to make a film.

Injeet Kumari becomes a solid proposition in “Aahuti” “Anokhi Qurbani”, a social story produced by Sansar Movietone Ltd.

For mere “requests”, remembered Gandhiji only their new box-office salesman and attaching different andhiji trailers to their own putrid pictures widely advertised special shows for the Sarvodaya Day.

They were all ready to pull in the cash of the day it they had not reckoned the temper of the people directly. Gandhiji lives in millions of Indian hearts and three million of these in Bombay were in no mood to be entertained on the anniversary of the very day when the Father of our nation was assassinated.

The ever-alert foreign exhibitors realized this temper of the people an evening earlier and rushed a notice the press announcing the closing of their cinemas. The Indian cinema owners had to see threatening owls before their cinemas to induce them to stop their shows.

Is this not disgusting? After this disgraceful exhibition of cheap, mercenary sentiment can any decent an extend any sympathy to the film industry?

Gandhiji’s day of death was not a state secret. It was the whole world’s prayer day, and it will remain so through centuries to come. And yet not one of the different associations of film producers, distributors, exhibitors, artists, importers and technicians who rushed to arland Minister Morarji Desai, issued a direct to its members to observe the Sarvodaya Day in a manner befitting the solemnity of the occasion.

Couldn’t the associations of producers, distributors and exhibitors have asked their members to close all cinemas for a day as a tribute to the Father of our Nation?

They didn’t. And this disgusting fact both the Government and the people must always bear in mind whenever they find these filthy, mercenary minds cashing Gandhiji’s name.

YOU’LL HARDLY BELIEVE——

That Jayashree, of course according to V. Shantaram’s publicity blurb, was not the only one to be offered a Broadway engagement by the Yankees. Our Governor Maharaj Singh was also once offered 90 dollars a day for a stage appearance in America. These Yankees have a rare sense of slapstick.

That prohibition or no prohibition Producer Baburao Pai celebrated the silver jubilee of his “Pyar-ki-jeet” by a grand cocktail party at the Taj. Of course, he couldn’t risk inviting Protima Dasgupta.

That of all people the great V. Shantaram, brother of V. Kashinath in turn brother of V. Avadhoot, himself attended the cocktail party and talked only of his “Shiv-Shakti” and his censorship responsibilities pushing the little Pai into a corner and taking the kick out of the cocktail.

That V. Shantaram, brother of V. Kashinath in turn brother of V. Avadhoot, has warned the people of India that 1949 is a V. Shantaram year. We had better write off this year from our life-time if we are going to get more “Bhools”.

That V. Shantaram confessed before that South Indian producer S. S. Vasan that the quality of Rajkamal pictures had touched the bottom these days but he would take it to the top during 1949. Vasan, of course, did not understand that word “quality” used by Vankudre.

That Chandulal Shah became red—I beg your pardon—dark with rage seeing his favourite courtier Pandit Indra dancing attendance on S. S. Vasan and neglecting the Ranjit durbar. Thirty thousand rupees is big money for Panditji if not for Chandulal.

That under the temporary influence of Vasan, Pandit Indra did not even back Chandulal’s “Balam” in the Derby and thus wished otherwise to the great Sardar. These Marwaris, they shift their loyalties according to profits.

That black seems to be Chandulal’s lucky colour the way the two blackies “Chakori” and “Balam” won the Derby for him twice. It is a personal case of colour harmony.

That no sooner Chandulal had won the Derby, Taimur, the timid, handed his Seth a list of weekly payments. That took the taste of victory out of the Seth’s mouth.

That D. S. Thakur, the Secretary of the Workers’ Union, danced with joy when he heard of Chandulal winning the Derby. He has now sent another reminder the sportsman-seth to pay off the overdue arrears of wages to poor workers. Taimur, the timid, managed to spur: “Eh salo kynathi nikali pado?”

That Producer Kardar who once wanted to build a palace in Bombay has now sold his land and people wonder whether the Kardar palace will ultimately throw its majestic shadow in the Garden of Allah.

That Producer Fazli, who was the first to run away Pakistan, is now reported to have returned to India, adding perhaps too many forbidden fruits to the Garden of Allah. We, however, welcome him back as this secular country did belong to him before it was cut into bits.

That what Gandhiji failed to achieve Vijoo Bhat is sworn to establish—a Ram Rajya—with Prem Adib and “Rani” and Shobhana as “Sita”. When the crowds at our modern “Sita” on the race course on the Derby day, they decided to leave Vijoo’s “Ram Baan” alone.

That while Director Vedi’s marriage with Geeta Dzani is on the rocks these days, another Hindu-Muslim-director-star marriage is on the anvil—probably Kolhapur. Let us wish the new aspirants better luck.

That our film producers did not know of Gandhiji’s centenary and announced their shows as usual for the day till a few stones on the cinemas reminded us of our national tragedy. And they say film producers are educated. They couldn’t even read the newspapers.

That Sher-e-Kashmir Abdullah met film-actresses Protima Dasgupta and Begum Para and wondered if the Kashmir war could have been stopped earlier if these two had been put in command. Protima can surely handle a gun alright if she doesn’t hit the wrong target.

That the respectable women of Bombay are wild with the film producers for misrepresenting their race on the Indian screen. It wouldn’t be a bad idea if the women marched in army formation and stopped a show or two. We guarantee that the Home Minister won’t use his police stick.

That the Bombay Censors are doing their job rather too well these days. They are cutting out songs from pictures and they themselves don’t know why. And the producers insist on asking why. It is an impossible situation.

That producers are rather unhappy when a rival producer is called on to censor their pictures and cut out songs shot twice. But when Minister Morsari thinks that every one is as impartial and unprejudiced as himself, what can the producers do?

That the review of “Ram Baan” was so effective that it took away from “Filmindia” even the machinery advertisement of Evergreen Pictures who are partners in “Ram Baan”. But that doesn’t mean that Simulax has ceased to be a good projector. Aren’t our producers great champions of free speech? And at their official meetings they invite criticism of their pictures!

That actor Yashu, the 50 thousand-runs-star of the Indian movies, insists these days upon taking Sino-china Chatteries in all the pictures in which he plays. Producers wonder why and that too after 30 years experience in production.

That it is not correct to assume that Producer Raj Kapoor has closed down his production business these days because he doesn’t advertise. He has at last found his Nimi after burning down a theatre in “Aag” and is these days sprinkling “Barsaat” on the little sapling.

That the man in the news these days is Kishore Sahu, one of our very few really intelligent producers. He is reported to have sold three pictures long before he himself knew what they are really about. But the distributors know and that is enough.

That another man in the news is the mysterious Govindhandas Agarwal of National Educational Films. He threatens to educate the whole nation with little bits of film and thus deprive the Congress of its millions of blind followers in 7,000,000 villages. We have warned.

That Producer Keshavlal Modi of “Khidki” fame is likely to be appointed as a super censor as he knows the ways of getting things done without much fuss. Why not start a censorship consultation practice?

That the Ranjit “brain-trust” named a picture “Mitti-ke-khiloune” and in the rush of the Derby preparations forgot to give us the “Khiloune” part of it and threw only “Mitti” in our eyes. That is not good sportsmanship for a Derby winner.

Brij Sahani and Nalini Dasai make a new team in “Gunjan” a social story of Nalini Films.

USTAFI USMAN KHAN (Madras)
Are there poor people in America too?
Even the golden cupola of a temple throws a dark shadow in spite of all the gold in it and the God beneath it.

SS B. GANAPATHY (Bangalore)
Do you approve of modern cholis?
So long as they cover the good old things I have no objection.

AGANAL P. PATEL (Kampala, Uganda)
Does Sardar Patel smoke?
If he did we would at least know the nature of the fire burning inside.

RESHI CHANDAR (New Delhi)
When I read that Bernard Shaw was looking for an ellectual heir, I thought of proposing your name. Any jexion?

Every objection! I have no beard. Why not suggest Socialist Ashok Mehta’s name? By the time G.B. dies Ashok’s beard will have grown a foot longer.

Why don’t Indian housewives ever have a holiday?
Because they have ever hungry husbands.

Does a girl who uses excessive make-up annoy you?
Excessive make-up does and so does no make-up. I believe in woman dressing their faces as well as their bodies because the face is the only part of their body woman show to the world and it is necessary to present it as attractively as possible.

DIP SINGH (Simla)
Are women news?
Not unless they are young, beautiful and unattached.

Is there any end to man’s wisdom?
Not as long as his follies are eternal.

What in your opinion should be the function of the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting?
Anything but what it does at present.

K. S. SANKARA NARAYANAN (New Delhi)
What do you think of the romance between Rita Hayworth and Prince Aly Khan?
There is nothing new in it. Adam and Eve went about it the same way and so did I.

S. D. SHUKLA (Kanpur)
Are nights necessary?
Yes, to pile up sin for the sun to clean.
Does Veera sing?
Yes, the song of her talent which has not yet become music for the millions.

SYED MOOSA (Bangalore)
What will you do if you become a millionaire?
This is one problem I shall never have to bother about.

AN APOLOGY
In the February issue of “filmindia” it has been published in a lighter vein that the Sikhs use ‘huqqa’ to protect their beards.

I have since learnt that the use of tobacco in any form is forbidden in the Sikh religion as one of the main ‘Kurahis’. I deeply regret the mistake and apologize to the Sikhs if I have unwittingly hurt their religious susceptibilities.

Baburao Patel.
Will there be a day when we will not have a single policeman?
In Bombay nowadays I see more policemen than citizens.

ARJAN D. BHARWANI (Ootacamund)
I hate ladies wearing sleeveless blouses!
So do I, especially eminent ladies with ugly arms.
Now that India is free, what should be the programme of the Congress?
Gandhiji took the programme with him and didn’t even leave behind a copy for our ministers.
Can you explain why Chiang lost China?
The Chinese did not like hot-dogs and doughnuts. They preferred sauerkraut and vodka.
What about the income tax due to India by the producers who have migrated to the Garden of Allah?
Pakistan will collect it and keep it.

RAJESH N. SAXENA (Bhiwani)
What are the things worth seeing in Bombay?
Marine Drive, Maharaj Singh and Morarji Desai.
How will you feel if some gentleman sitting behind you in a picture house happens to rest his legs on the back of your chair just above your shoulders?
If some one does that to me there won’t be a gentleman left in the chair behind me.

ISHWAR V. MAHBURANI (Bombay)
If romance is the privilege of the rich, what is profession of the unemployed?

Dreams! They are free and fantastic.

What do you think of the person who stole the show of Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru at a recent public meeting in New Delhi?

A practical man! He got something at least of our Prime Minister. We get only high fl o lectures.

P. V. KUPPUSWAMY (Trichinopoly)
Welcoming Minister Morarji Desai, Chandulal Sheth the producers president said, “We are poor, we are weak, we are helpless. We have nothing to offer you except thanks and flower garlands.” What did he really mean by that?

That he has race horses, motor cars, palaces, what not but no power. While the Congress Minister has power but nothing else. That is how both became ‘helpless’.

Has the advice of the Home Minister Morarji Desai to the film producers at the Ranjit Studio had any effect?

Nowadays when some one mentions Minia, Morarji’s name, they ask each other: “Who is this man?” In this the producers are only following the Congress leaders—all promises and no action.

Are you on good terms with Suraiya? Advise her to duce her fat.

_The poor girl works hard enough but I guess she can work off her weight a little more._

What is meant by ‘bursting with emotion’?

_See Nur Jehan, Suraiya, Meena and Manorama on the screen and you will know._

How did you build your personality?

_I worked hard 27 years. 12 hours a day._

HIVANAND PRABHU (Kumta)
What should be done when many boys are fighting th one another for the sake of a beautiful girl?

_If it is a problem of many they should refer the matter to the U.N.O. and ask for a Commission to be appointed._

D. TYAGI (Delhi)
If a tax is imposed upon virgins, will it be of any e to society?

_The government will collect huge amounts from the film actresses, because non-payment would amount to a confession._

P. JHUNJHUNUWALA (Kanpur)
On Jaipur Congress 65 lakhs of rupees were wasted pomp and show. Was it a party conference or a masha?

_It was the victors' vanity fair with the rich on the sofas and the poor on the tent tops. Many called it a disgusting exhibition of Congress democracy. All that money could have built quite a few houses for the homeless poor._

When does love become a monotony?

_Marriage is love's monotony._

AMCHANDER GUPTA (Tukneri)
Why did some people object to Pandit Nehru's issing Lady Pamela Mountbatten?

_Who objected? I did not nor did Lady Pamela. Then what the hell have “some people” to do with it? I kiss my daughter so often and no one objects._

What is a sin in politics?

_The whole affair is one big sin._

A. RAMANATHAN (Poona)
What is the closest to a woman's heart?

_A baby's lips which make her the mother of the human race._

The Yankees say they will one day go to the Moon.

_by?

To find out what moonstruck Indians have been doing there for 10000 years.

For what is Hollywood unpopular?

_For misrepresenting the whole world including their own little town._

OPAL BANERJEE (Barrackpore)
Wherein lies the glamour of a girl?

_In her youth and refusal._

Sulochana Chatterjee, always a bright and sunny soul, plays a great role in “Nai Reet” produced by India Film Corporation.

MISS SULOCHANA (Madras)
What do you think of women as bus conductors?

_If they are nice and polite that is at least something to rest the eyes on, saying that the seats are never comfortable._

Nowadays Rajaji is more like a saint than a statesman, isn’t it?

_Rajaji, a saint? We shall have to call back Gandhi to prove that._

S. P. VASUDEV RAO (Bangalore)
Which is the best way of earning a good name in this world?

_This world is not worth all the trouble. The best name we have has been turned into a vote catching device. If they can do that to Gandhi after 50 years of his selfless service, what is the sense in you and I struggling to earn a name? We can do the next best thing: earn an honest living._

Though the Congress Party is socialistic in its principles, how is it that the Socialists oppose it tooth and nail?

_The Socialists seem to be in a devilish hurry for power and they want it before some of them grow bald and unattractive._

HANUMANTHA RAO (Bangalore)
As man advances in age he becomes more talkative.

_Why?_

ERIAL FOR TALKING THAT HE GIVES IT GRATIS TO THE YOUNGSTERS.

How has a step-mother stepped into this world?

From the itching lap of a man over the praying souls of her step children.

When will India become a land overflowing with milk and honey?

It is already if you count the millions of mothers we have in this ancient land.

SURESH KUMAR (New Delhi)

Does anybody love a statue?

Director Kedar Sharma does but not statues of Lokmanya Tilak or Mahatma Gandhi.

Is this world too bad for you?

Oh no, it is good enough. I get plenty of fun out of it.

How far is it sensible to raise temples in the name of Gandhiji?

We have enough temples and gods already to make our life miserable. The best memorial to Gandhiji would be a Gandhi hospital in every town and village of India where the poor can be relieved of pain and suffering.

Which is the best season for marriage?

When desire is in blossom and dreams disturb sleep.

Do you use a stick while walking?

Minister Morarji Desai does. He has to teach the people something every day and he does it with the stick.

MISS B. N. PRABHA (Bangalore)

What does a lady’s hand bag contain?

That depends on the lady’s activities. I knew one who carried a knife.

What is your opinion about film stars?

I have a good opinion about most of them. I criticise only their work.

Why do people wear wedding rings?

It is a dog collar for the wedded—a proof of loyalty that rarely exists.

What job would you suggest to a woman?

Managing a man is a job of a life-time.

GUNVANT DESAI (Navsari)

How is it that while kisses and embraces in Indian films are censored by Congress governments, Congress leaders at Delhi publicly embrace foreigners of the opposite sex and their photographs are prominently seen in papers?

Film producers turn kisses into currency notes by flavouring the kisses with desire. Congress leaders use them as conventional courtesies.

MISS AVTAR KAUR (Amritsar)

Why do men stare at girls?

Partly to pay back the cost of the dresses which the girls wear and partly to cover their own naked eyes with a veil of desire.

K. KONDALA RAO (Madras)

Is prohibition good ethics?

Yes, but bad economics.

T. BASKOR (Secunderabad Dn.)

Is it true that women who smoke are unfit to be mothers?

In America almost all women smoke and yet they are mothers, grandmothers and great grandmothers.

S. RANGANNA (Bangalore)

How do you feel when you read in the papers about the Malan gaug-sterism?

It is a pity we have no Atom Bomb and we won’t have one as long as we don’t adopt English as a compulsory language of science.

V. S. R. GUPTA (Vizianagram)

Why don’t the other governments follow Madras and Delhi in appointing lady conductors for buses?

They will and then perhaps our ministers will travel by buses. At present they are flying over our heads, counting votes for the next election.

M. VEDAVYASA RAO (Cuddapah)

Is there any difference between ‘tiffin’ and ‘lunch’?

Not in the dictionary but in the tiffin boxes. In India a lunch is a rich man’s tiffin.

N. M. ADVANI (New Delhi)

Do you know what is the present activity of Ashok Kumar, our prominent film star?

I saw him at the races in an old suit and believed the rumour that he had become a producer.

JAGDISH PRASAD JAIN (Meerut)

Where is Charlie at present?

Selling cycles in Karachi.

Do not directors and producers weep before you when you criticise their pictures?

They do but I weep in return for giving me bad pictures.

A. N. NARAYANA RAO (Mysore)

What is our new policy for newsreels?

Make the reels and keep them in the tins till their news has gone out of news. Any way that is what our Film Division seems to be doing with our newsreels so far.

What is marriage?

A public confession of a private profession.

What is a child wife?

An early symptom of a future malady.

When does a woman’s merit really attract general notice?

When the walls of her home enclose love, devotion and service.

When do we infect everyone about us?

When we spray polities and sprinkle religion, the drawing room becomes a lavatory of different stinks.

Does a doctor’s profession know any politics?

The politics of free service to political leaders resulting in more prestige and larger practice.

In the slave market of olden days who fetched a higher price, man or woman?

In the markets of men a woman has always been the best buy.

In the markets of men a woman has always been the best buy.

What is freedom according to the present Congress regime?

Freedom to vote for the Congress legislators and then return home and groan.

What is fame?

A silent censure of others less fortunate.

Why is it that dogs wail most during nights?

They probably bewail the ability of human beings to sleep over their sins.

Which do you think is a very grave profession?

The grave digger’s. His customers never complain.

Is Vallabhbhai Patel a model of sternness?

He looks the goods but he isn’t so stern seeing that his little grandson is not at all scared of him.

When does one go fishing?

Only when there is a bait on the hook and an idle hour to kill.

Like many fond parents have you a favourite child?

Yes, Moti my Banjara dog.

When does a husband call his wife a mouse?

When she starts nibbling at his little purse.

Do you like the smoke in somebody else’s pipe?

I don’t mind a chimney as o’er so long as something is being cooked below it.

Is amnesia beneficial to all detesters?

It is a chronic complaint with them but editors know a cure or two.

Does woman ever confess her mistake?

Not until she makes a bigger one and quotes the previous one as a justification.

We have seen princes made and unmade but not with such speed as now?

That is why we want Sardar Vallabhbhai to live another 25 years at least.

D. A. BENJAMIN (New Delhi)

Would it be possible for you to ask the producer of ‘Mela’ to visit the Kashmir front to study the soldiers’ behaviour with their brothers and sisters here?

Instead of expecting a film producer to improve, why don’t you ask your Commander to be more vigilant about our army’s prestige?

G. LAKSHMINARASIMHAN (Hassan)

Why Gandhiji’s fund is not being collected as fast as that of Kasturba’s?

When Kasturba died Gandhiji was living.

With Gandhiji dead the nation has lost its conscience. Dead gods get merely the flowers while profiteers go to the priests.
FILMINDIA

Are you a spectator?
In this world of hatred and jealousy no one can be a mere spectator, everyone is a victim.

JAWAHIR S. THANVI (Jodhpur)
Why religions were founded, are founded and will be founded in future?
Religion is the conscience of sin. Once in a while some one comes along and excavates the human conscience from the pile of unholy acts and we call it religion.
Which is the favourite game of the Americans?
Making money and when they get tired they play some baseball.
When do you eat your own words?
I spit words, my rivals eat them.
It is said that Pandit Indra is an adopted brother of your wife?
That is right and I have not got over the shock yet.
Who should be called the father of journalism in India?
In India journalism is an orphan profession. Those who grow old become merely old orphans but never fathers.
Who is more extravagant—man or woman?
Woman! Her extravagance keeps the world crowded in the midst of floods, famines, pestilence and wars.

K. L. SESHAGIRI RAO (Mysore)
What makes you hesitate to reveal sex in its nakedness?
Sex becomes a science when stripped and an art when draped. I am an artist and not a scientist.

D. T. BALANI (New Delhi)
Have our actors and actresses done anything to help our soldiers on the Kashmir front?
Under the excuse of helping the soldiers they recently vomited some old bile against prohibition and film censorship and relieved themselves of a bit of helpless frustration against the government.

II. BHAVRILAL (Bangalore)
Why are you so prejudiced against Suraiya in calling her ugly?
I am not prejudiced against her. I don’t even know the kid. I believe what I see on the screen.
Who, do you think, is going to win Suraiya in the field of matrimony?
Whoever does will get a few buildings, a lot of gold and a good-natured girl as I am told.

K. G. MATHUR (Ghaziabad)
I hear that Sardar Chandulalji fears death. Why?
Oh no, he is not that bad. He fears insolvency more and that is why he works hard.
What is the difference between the Indian system of marriage and the English system of marriage?
So long as the purpose is the same, the different systems don’t matter.

Are you in favour of Jai Prakash, the socialist?
Absolutely! Provided he stops talking and starts doing things.

Differentiate between Bapu and Jinnah?
Bapu was the father of humanity, Jinnah the father of Muslims.

MISS U. PAI (Bombay)
Why do the dogs of aristocrats bark only at swine and beggars?
Human beings have made even the dogs conscious by naming some as the pariahs and others as the pedigreed ones. Loyal to their masters the dogs play their part loyally.
Is pity a bad thing?
Pity is a demoralizing sentiment. It has a patronizing and aristocratic flavour which is highly unsuited to our democratic age. Self pity is worse. It is a murder of one’s personality.
What is the yardstick of a person’s intelligence?
His conversation which is often silence in the face of provocation.
Should I see the Taj Mahal only in the company of my beloved?
The Taj Mahal is a symbol of a royal love, fanaticism in love. It is a monument of selfishness to build which thousands sweated day and night for years. Though beautiful in architecture, there is nothing ennobling about it seeing that a crazy king immortalized his bed of pleasure by a mausoleum in marble.
Is hero worship good?
If God is the hero. The rest are idols with a face of clay.

M. B. KANHERKAR (Poona)
Why is ‘ace-director’ Shantaram deteriorating in quality these days?
He has stopped learning. Men like Kishan Sahu and Raj Kapoor are pushing him back.

MISS SUNDARI REDDY (Kurnool)
I am allowed to read “filmindia” but not allowed to see pictures. What should I do, dear editor?
You are not missing much. If all young boys had wise parents like yours, our pictures would improve quickly.

M. RUKMINAMMA (Gudur)
What was the reaction of black marketeers during the recent cyclone?
They made a fortune selling candles where had no electric lights. Blackmarketeers cashed in on fortunes and misfortunes.
My lucky metal is gold. What is yours?
Gold is all the luck the world wants and I am one of the world.
What is the Ranjit studio famous for?
As the place where the film magnates prosed before Minister Morarji Desai.
How to trick people into lending you money?

Friends are robbed through sentiment, lies and crocodile tears. The professional money lenders lose through their own greed.

What is the best way of getting rid of a car which is frequent trouble?

Sell it to your neighbour at his price and watch him struggling with it. You will soon get your price that way.

What is it that struck you most in the American men?

Their tongues which struck a tick-tick every second like a clock.

When does a picture make a silver jubilee?

When approximately half a million fools have seen it.

What is the idea of Ranjit Movietone producing Hanuman’ in 1948?

To rejuvenate the grey-haired Sardar with monkey glands.

Is there any objection if I call you “Uncle”?

None whatever so long as you don’t expect the uncle to give you presents.

“Mohini” one of the recent Tamil pictures is a story about a magic horse. Who said we are not progressing in the South?

I didn’t. I couldn’t, seeing that Vasan is taking all the pains to restore the old Ramayana status of the South Indians.

Don’t you think C. R. would look more dignified in Western clothes?

He looked like a circus clown at the Aligarh University when the boys put a red fez on him. At Rajaji’s age dignity lies in a man’s reputation and not in his dress.

What is Acharya Kripalani’s future?

Every honest critic becomes an outcast in a world of hypocrites and sycophants.

What will happen if everyone thinks of himself and his family?

Everyone will have to work hard and earn and we shall have an ideal state.

One of the recent Tamil pictures is called Demon Land. What does this indicate?

The old place of the south on the map of India.

What is the real secret of Russia’s toughness?

The hunger of millions all over the world.

Name a film actress who is worth her weight in gold.

Quite a few get gold for their weight but the weight is not worth the gold.

MRS. M. M. BRIGGS (Anantapur)

Why is Aruna Asaf Ali so carelessly dressed?

If politicians look normal, their policies will suffer.

What is the normal time a woman should take to dress?

Before getting out of her bed.

KR. RAJENDRA SINGH (Agra)

Which was the year in which the world was created?

In my case 1901.

MIHIR KUMAR DAS (Dhanbad)

Sir C. V. Raman said that comets are like politicians. What do you think?

I think Raman was being modest. A comet is supposed to bring bad luck only to a king. Politicians kill millions every year.

H. S. RAJAGOPAL RAO (Madras)

What makes a skirt a flirt?

A big bulge in the hip pocket of the trousers.

Madras buses have women conductors. What next?

The ministers’ cars will have women chauffeurs.

What is the best way to teach a girl to swim?

Buy her a fine swimming costume and go with a camera to the beach. The rest is simple.

Which is more sacred: Porbandar or Rajghat?

They are the two ends of the same cradle. It is the career in between that has given the nation its altar.

Mr. Winston Churchill is often drawn as a bull dog. Why?

He has a vicious bark which disturbs sleep.

No. I consider it a waste of time to do some clumsy spinning in a machine age. It can, however, be practised as a hobby or be useful for political showmanship.

ADANLAL SHAHU (Jodhpur)
Why is your magazine limited to 76 pages only?
Do you want 760 pages for two rupees?
What is your dog’s hobby?
He likes the bony legs of my dhobi and sweeper. My Moti is a rare snob.

NAGESHA RAO MANAY (Bangalore)
Has anybody seen you in tears while seeing some of the moving scenes in good pictures?
Quite a few pictures have moved me. I am not as tough as my writings.
My friend said that he was having a headache throughout his marriage ceremony. Why?
Married life is one long migraine which only a funeral cures.
What would happen if kisses were to leave scars?
Lips would be fitted with rubber insulators.
What is the record number of questions asked to you by an individual?
There is a guy called Narayan Rao in Mysore. He fires a thousand questions at me every month.
Our leaders were soldiers in the battle for freedom, they say this very often. What are they now?
They are still soldiers firing bullets now.

S. N. MURTHY (Bangalore)
Can a wife be a legal adviser to her husband?
She is the law-maker, not the adviser.
What do you think is the length of Veera’s nose?
Veera has been ill recently and nowadays she looks all nose and no face.
Which was your favourite rendezvous during your stay in America?
The Roosevelt Hospital.

D. AMEENUDDIN (Karachi)
When does too much of realism spoil a picture?
When Pakistan produces the story called “Ghaddar Nizam” as advertised in some papers from Pakistan.

IMMAT SINGH BHATI (Jodhpur)
What do you think of a millionaire wearing the andhi cap and khadi clothes?
A salesman.

HAQUE (Ranchi)
Is there anything more beautiful than tears?
The eyes that hold the tears. When a man is “moved by tears”, he is really worried about the eyes that shed the tears.

ISS K. KUMARI (Vizagapatam)
Our leaders are getting degrees from our Universities very easily?

And both the degrees and the Universities are losing their importance.

SANTOSH SALVE (Kanpur)
Can we expect patriotic sons and daughters from our film actresses?
There is a chance of getting some from those who playback for our stars those songs of patriotism we hear so often on the screen if some of those hot words light up a flame within the womb.

N. R. KAMANI (Bombay)
Had Gandhiji any personality?
In his face was the hunger and anguish of millions. A man whose face reflected millions must be having a divine personality.

K. N. RAO (Bombay)
Can you suggest any way of treating an unfaithful wife?
Divorce her and give her a chance to be faithful to the man she likes. That would be reclaiming one woman.

MISS T. PAI (Bombay)
How does Minister Morarji Desai get time to see even circus shows?
Minister Morarji has already made a public confession about being a normal man and not a sadhu. Normal people need relaxation after the day’s work. I wish he would go to the races once a while and prove that he is completely normal.
How many years will it take for an Indian clerk to possess his own car like his brother in America?
Our enterprise as a free nation has begun with a liability of feeding 370 million starving people. Let us feed them first before we send them rushing about in cars. In America they burn food to keep the prices up.

As I have been jilted very cruelly in love once I intend remaining a spinster. What is your advice?
No man in the world is worth a lifetime of spinsterhood. One jilt cells for another. Forget the sad and marry some one who will help you to build your future. The first jilt is always a good jolt to wake up the fighting spirit in a woman. And when a woman fights back she ends by building a home. The jilts and jolts of life should push you forward and not pull you back. For, ahead, round the corner, is the proverbial life which the world is trying to live.

I have an uncle of mine in Pakistan. Don’t you think that the insurance companies should demand higher premiums from him?
A Hindu in Pakistan can be insured only by God.
Do you give lifts to people waiting in mile-long queues for buses which never come?
My car has become a family bus with my wife’s crowd taking every inch of space and I have to squeeze in somehow beside the chauffeur.

What do you think of a woman at the age of 25 behaving like a child?
Yes, Tears!

In place of the eyes that she always wished to stare at her!

In place of the feet at which she offered her whole life!

Tears became her

That she is on a man-hunt and wants them over 40 with coin and cars. After that age a man likes women who romp about like overgrown school girls. They tickle his paternal instinct and rejuvenate his desires.

KISHANPUROHIT (Kishangarh)
Why has the Marwari dance disappeared from the films?
Every good thing that comes to our screen comes in the shape of an epidemic. The first wave has passed. We shall soon have another one.

CUSH C. SHAH (Lucknow)
What is the difference between truth and God?
Truth is dangerous, God is harmless. Try some truth on the Congress ministers and you will be in jail. You can defame God and still run all over the world a free man.

RANAN (Suva, Fiji)
How did you feel when you came across one of the American giggling girls when you were there?
That's an impression Hollywood has given you of American girls but the American girls are not what Hollywood wants us to believe. They are smart, hard working girls who don't depend on their men for a living. People who work hard have no time to giggle.

Is producer W. Z. Ahmed producing any films in Pakistan?
He is producing stage plays. I guess he has had enough of film production.

How old is Suraiya?
Over 50 pictures old, I guess.

JAIWAL (Nagpur)
What kind of India did Mahatma Gandhi think of?
Ram Rajya! We have already attained the latter half and are frantically searching for the first half.

PRAKASH SHARMA (Shikohabad)
Why is it that these two girls Suraiya and Nargis are so high? Are they the only good artists?
Though Nargis is good in pathetic scenes, Suraiya is hardly a good artiste. But both the girls are in luck. Suraiya buys houses with her huge profits while Nargis spends her earnings on making her brothers— producers and directors.

AGAR MAL (Benwar)
What is there between man and heaven?
The hell of a world with its struggle and starvation.

AWANI SHANKER (New Delhi)
How is it that mostly only the refugees are seen brand new cars at Connaught Place in New Delhi?
The refugees have only recently come to India and they had to buy only new cars. A car can't look old in a year. Can it?

ISHI NAIK (Surat)
What is the role of a wife in a man's life?
She must grease the wheels to make it easier for the man to pull the cart.

B. SURYA RAO (Tatanagar)
Where is India today?
Buried under the white cap.

AJIT SINGH KALRA (Amritsar)
What are the aims and objects of Uncle Sam's Marshall Aid?
Marshall Aid is an export indent for Uncle Sam's goods.

N. V. PRASHAN (Secunderabad)
Why don't some of our film poets present a fine national anthem to the country?
We haven't any poets in the film industry— only word pasters.
What achievements of the Independent government since 15th August 1947 have your commendation?
We are still at the alphabet of our freedom—the Constitution and 20 months have passed.

R. C. SINGH (Ajmer)
If you will give a hard kick on the stomach of a hungry man, will his appetite increase or subside?
He will see red. That is how we are creating Communists, with kicks on hungry stomachs.

SAVED FAZAL P. M. (Quilandi)
Can cocoanut oil influence the culture and mental make-up of men?
Oil has given the Americans the leadership of the world—but that is not cocoanut oil with which our leaders massage their legs.

PURUSHOTAM RAJ R. (Katmandu, Nepal)
What is the dream that won't come true?
Peace—a beautiful dream in the midst of the nightmare around.
What is the difference between the rich and the poor in free India?
The poor are the voters and the rich remain the looters.

MISS NIRMALA (Mercara)
Who is the most respected man in the Indian filmdom?
Mr. Kapurchand! He is worth some crores.

O. M. VENKATRAMAN (Cocoanada)
Is a chaste wife one who never looks at other men?
She does but with loving eyes of a sister.
What are the main points of difference between Socialism and Communism?
Socialism is a shivering philosophy half-way between Capitalism and Communism. It is scared of the red future and looks at the purple past with regret.
Will you join me in condemning the bad habit of smoking?
You can have greater company—Minister Morarji Desai.
What are the things which we Indians have learnt from the Britishers during 200 years of rule in India?
They have taught us communal hatred, petty jealousies and corruption. The British never brought their racial virtues to India. They planted only their colonial vices.
The news in the dailies that the Prime Minister of India does not know his monthly salary provokes laughter. What do you say?

It excites ridicule and proves the incompetency of the man to be at the head of a big country. But all that is perhaps a symptom of the typical Nehru aristocracy which looks with lofty contempt at money and other little things of life which the poor need for their daily hunger.

Will there be an end to this world?

Yes, when you and I die.

I hope I am right in my conclusion about you that you take delight in the abuses of the film producers?

I make them pay for their odd luxury of abusing me and they pay well. Everything is expensive these days, including abuse.

T. C. NARAYANAN (Mangalore)

Who is the second greatest egotist in India?

I am the first. An egotist does not admit a second one.

A. S. NAIDU (Secunderabad)

How is it that I don't find any advertisement of New Theatres pictures in “filmindia”?

The New Theatres and their pictures are so well-known that they don't need to advertise in a magazine that cannot guarantee reciprocal service.

S. A. PADMANABHAN (Bangalore)

Do you think twice before you reply?

A hundred times, son, because with the words I say I reap a living.

BHAGWAT NIRMAL (Patna)

Is there a limit to love?

Life is the limit and Gandhiji reached the limit.

Suggest some means to avoid sexual attraction?

Drop your eyelids and close the windows through which temptation enters.

RAHMETULLAH (Bombay)

Do the Americans spit on the roads as we do here in India?

No. They put some chewing gum into the month and with its help swallow the spittle.

R. M. ARTAGNAN (Ernakulam)

How is the greatness of people measured?

Nowadays by the length of the columns newspapers give for their obituaries. Newspapers are a bit generous in our new-found freedom. They find greatness in almost every corpse these days.

N. V. R. SWAMY (Nagapattom)

Fifty years hence suppose a teacher asks a boy, “Who was Gandhiji”, what reply do you expect him to give?

India's greatest revolutionary. He prepared Indians for freedom but they mistook it for license. He died three years before he was actually killed and his followers buried his memory in temples and chanted his name only when in political distress. They murdered even his memory.

NIRMAL (Rewa)

How is it that Nehru is admired more abroad than at home?

Where did you get that notion? Nehru is an idol of millions in India but there are millions overseas who do not even know him. I have yelled far and wide and I should know this better than others.

S. REHMAN (Bombay)

What pleasure does Chandulal Shah get in horse racing?

The pleasure of profits! Chandulal's life has been one race for profits.

J. M. PUROHIT (Bombay)

What is the difference between a white khaddar and a red cap?

The white khaddar cap because of its inhe non-violence, often gets dyed in its own blood.

S. VENKATACHARI (Madras)

If China falls a prey to the Communists will other Asian countries be affected, particularly India?

The speed at which the Chinese Communists are travelling at present, it won't be long before they shake hands with Stalin across India.

VIJAI KUMARI (Kotah)

What is the tempting bait to attract educated people to films?

Money and glamour attract all girls—educative or not. Art is, of course, the subsequent apotheosis.

MISS MOHINI C. NAVALI (New Delhi)

When people abuse you, I don't listen or report them as I know, 'silence is the best reply to fools'.

Abuse is a compliment in which words are misused. People don't abuse all and sundry.

R. C. WHIG (Delhi)

Should one marry without a bank balance?

Never. It is a double suicide.

L. C. KUMBHAT (Jodhpur)

Have you any ability in song writing?

I wrote a few which Pandit Indra claimed as his own. So I stopped.

Should a blind man marry?

Every man who marries is blind. Faith in his wife robs him of his eyesight. In marriage a blind man hasn't therefore a greater disadvantage than the one with eyes.

Are you an orator?

Only when in a temper. Otherwise I am convinced that it is worth wasting words.

S. K. RAHMATHULLA (Cuddapah)

Can there be a girl in the film field loyal to her legal husband?

Recently I saw some photographs of a girl kissing published in a film magazine. Isn't that a proof of loyalty? It is a pity, however, that films have to submit such printed evidence of their virtues.
K. SHAKUNTALA (Mysore)
What will be the future constitutional set-up of the Hyderabad state?
Hyderabad will ultimately become a Christmas cake.

MRS. P. K. SINHA (Lucknow)
Have our politicians a sense of humour?
The only one who had a rare sense of humour was murdered.

N. VENKATESAN (Nagore)
At what age do you intend retiring from active service?
With the present cost of living, dying in harness seems to be the only prospect.

M. RAMAMOORTHY (Kurnool)
I am really very proud of having a friend like you in Bombay. Do you feel the same?
I do provided you keep yourself in Kurnool.

B. SHANTARAM (Coimbatore)
Is heaven full of angels?
Must be seeing that it is so difficult to get in there.

RANGA N. SONAR (Sholapur)
What will be the effect on our film industry when it is nationalized?
Criminals will be replaced by idiots.

PRASAD S. N. (Ranchi)
The Bengalees claim that they have produced the best pictures in India?
It is a fact that India's best pictures were once produced by the Bengalees. But today they produce some of the worst ones.

A. R. VASA (Bombay)
How can our screen pay the best homage to the memory of Mahatma Gandhi?
By leaving him alone and not by presenting caricatures of his life. Let us have at least one saint undefiled.

Why do most film stars remain unmarried?
Producers don't like to negotiate business with husbands. Married stars usually get fewer contracts.

N. BHAGWAN (Mysore)
How is it that the Home Minister of your province, Mr. Morarji Desai, is not taking any action against the two multimillionaires of Bombay: Mr. Subedar and Mr. Modi who have deprived thousands of poor people of their legitimate shelter by constructing new theatres, though he (Morarji Desai) is well known for his impartiality?
Ask him yourself. Here is his home address: The Hon. Shri Morarji R. Desai, Home Minister, Ridge Road, Malabar Hill, Bombay.

S. HASAN IMAM (Calcutta)
In what way can India give effective aid to the Indonesians in their struggle for freedom?
Indians can't help themselves leave alone Indians. All we can do is to stop the Dutch planes flying over us and pass a few pious resolutions. Only the strong can help the weak and a nation's strength lies in money and armaments.

S. A. GHAFOOR (Madras)
Will Islam perish in India?
Never! And why should it in our secular state? Islam is a great religion but its very democracy has been turned into fanaticism by some of its followers. That is also true of many other religions and it is a great pity because never before did humanity need religion so badly as now.

FRANCIS D. SOUZA (Sholapur)
How much is a vote worth to a true citizen?
Nothing these days. With 70,000 villages packed with white-cap voters, an intelligent voter doesn't get a dog's chance to be a good citizen.

NARESH CHANDRA (Lucknow)
Is novel reading a waste of time?
Absolutely! It is a mental debauchery.

IMAM KHAN (Madanapalle)
What has become of Shantaram's Rajkamal Kalamandir? Has the mandir done any useful service to our society?
It has produced "Blood" a picture in which the hero takes a maiden behind a bush and she returns a virgin no longer. That seems to be Shantaram's idea of service to society.

PRADEEP S. TANNA (Kandivali)
Can we go about in society unshaved without annoying anybody?
Ashok Mehta, the Socialist leader of Bombay, goes about with a year-old beard and is garlanded by many.

Is a child in the cradle the best symbol of 'sleeping beauty'?
Anything sleeping is beautiful except fortune.

Do you know that millions of boys and girls are denied what they love most—an easy access to you and Sushila?
If we meet all who come to see us who will write filmindia every month? And why turn a hard-working journalist into a Congress minister? Don't you all want a good magazine every time?

AMAR NATH CHAKRABARTY (Ajmer)
“Democracy ends in despotism”. What is your opinion?
Not if the voters are educated. In England they kicked out the war-mongering Winnie overnight.

Virtue is not always rewarded. Why?
Virtue is modest and doesn't intrude asking for recognition.

If you become the Home Minister of Bombay what will be your first order?
No garlands—no waste of flowers; no speeches—no waste of public time; more work and less showmanship; more pay and no wrong notions of sacrifice. Running a government well is hard work and people must pay for it.

Pakistan is the 'Garden of Allah', the firdous, heaven and paradise; the fairyland, wonderland and mystery land for Muslims?

Then why are you still wasting our secular sunshine?

C. Pande (Lucknow)

When does a man rest in peace?

When he travels horizontally on his way to another world.

B. Bhandari (Mangalore)

I want to become a film critic. Is there anything odd in store for me?

You can collect some rare abuse from the film producers.

ANDRA BHUSHAN CHOUDHARY (Darbhanga)

Will India welcome Communism one day?

India can't escape it—welcome or not.

RAN CHANDRA PANDE (Lucknow)

What does Indian democracy lack?

Just democracy! The rest of the tricks we have inherited.

OR G. J. D. SOUZA (Ahmedabad)

Why is it that a man takes a lot of trouble trying to get one woman and when he has got her he spends the rest of his life thinking what a hell of a time he would have had with a whole lot of women if it weren't her?

That is marriage and there is no why to it. What are we to do with old love letters?

Destroy them at sight. Old love letters contain a conscience which has grown whiskers—too uncomfortable for present purposes.

S. G. M. DATT MEHTA (Bangalore)

How much time do you think it will take to establish economic stability in India?

We have been ruthlessly robbed by the British and it will take a very long time before we are able to find two daily meals for millions of hungry souls.

ASTER BOMFACE FERNANDES (Sawantwadi)

What is the difference between love in olden times and love in present times?

In olden times love sighed and often died in cloisters. In the present days love spits and is often cought out on beaches.

A man is known by the company he keeps. Is this axiom true with a woman?

The company decides a woman's reputation and character.

K. PATTABHIHARM (Bombay)

"Stop Selling Patriotism" Say India's Ministers!

(We reproduce below some of the letters which we have received from our popular leaders in response to our editorial article, "National Suicide", which appeared in the January 1949 issue of "filmindia". These opinions carry weight because they are from people in office and film producers would do well to read them carefully and revise their production schedules.)

"I am at one with you in calling out to the undignified practice of commercialising nationalism through the agency of the screen. The mighty riddle involving deathless sacrifices of a whole nation to achieve political emancipation is too sacred a theme to be exploited on a profit and loss basis.

"The screen versions with scarcely an exception present a grotesquely eroded picture of how India fought or freedom. In the first instance no amount is taken of the intellectual and spiritual contribution made by our leaders. Then undue emphasis is laid on the so-called underground activities of certain workers. It is in bad taste and even dangerous to appeal to the susceptible youth. Let us hope that such pictures are at a passing phase and will be finally replaced by films informed by high purpose, inspired by a noble ideal and revivified by a truly artistic and aesthetic sense.

"I wish you and your excellent magazine every success."

"I have carefully gone through the editorial article "National Suicide" in the January issue of "filmindia" and find myself in entire agreement with the views given expression to therein. Although personally I am not by temperament fond of visiting cinema houses yet I greatly acknowledge the colossal value and importance of motion pictures in the field of education and propaganda.

"The right sort of pictures. I believe, go a long way in elevating a nation but those which abound in themes of arson, loot, robbery, shooting, dislocation of communications and underground plotting, are nothing but revolting to a citizen of a free State as they inculcate in the mass mind the spirit of lawlessness. They may have some value in a slave country struggling to be free by violent means but surely they can have no place in a free and independent country pledged to 'Ahimsa'."

"Contribution to violent and anti-national programme" says the Hon. Mr. Jaglal Choudhry, Minister of Public Health and Scheduled Class Welfare, the Government of Bihar.

"Cinema, like intoxicating drugs, is a business which prospers on the weaknesses of the mass mind. They say intoxicants in medical doses are good for a man's health. It may or may not be a fact. It is for the doctors to say which way the truth lies. But to all laymen it is evident that the mass mind grasps at the baser sentiment produced in a cinema show. 'Sant Tulisdas' is a religious depiction of a great saint's devotion to God incarnate as Shri Ram Chandra. Even in such an enmolding show the mass mind is attracted more to the great saint's approaches to 'Ratna'. What to say of other films where love affairs reflect all through!"

"The same is the case in some of the so-called patriotic productions. The mass mind has greater appeal for the romantic aspect of the show, the detailed technique of train thefts, revolver shootings, blowing up bridges, wrecking communications and general sabotage, rather than to the motive behind these bold acts of rebellion against a foreign ruler. In the light of our present freedom these acts of rebellion now look like just so many anti-social crimes and have the evil potency of training the mass mind in preparing for a bloody revolution in our country which the communists, the socialists, the sang-hites have in their mind. Such pictures will make probably a greater contribution to the carrying out of the violent and anti-national programme than any politician can through the press or the platform.

"I congratulate the Editor of the "filmindia" in boldly bringing out the salient defects of the so-called patriotic pictures to the notice of the leaders, in whose hand the destiny of the nation now rests, and hope steps may be taken to take out from such pictures the evil sting they have, in the name of 1942 revolution. Large publicity should be given to this aspect of these pictures so that the mass mind is not poisoned by them; else while the man in the cinema business will fatten on the weakness of the people, the country will go to wreck and ruin.

"I had an occasion of going through the January 1949 issue of the paper and to me it appears to portray to the readers ably the evil consequences of cinema shows. Both the cinema magnates and the country at large will profit by such portrayals and I wish the magazine a prosperous career in its pursuit."

"Degrade our historic struggle" says the Hon. Mr. Nityanand Kanungo, Minister for Law,
Government of Orissa.

"I cannot claim to judge artistic merits of films as I have seen very few of them. But it does hurt me and many others, to see the unique character of our struggle for liberation vulgarised in their presentation in some of the films that I have seen.
The deep significance of our struggle was in its novel feature of nonviolence and though many of us like me could practise it very imperfectly, yet neither the country nor the individuals were ever proud of their shortcomings. Stunts and sensations degrade the portrayal of our historic STRUGGLE and I hope profit-seekers should leave alone this theme."

"Exploiting prevailing popular sentiment" says the Hon.
Mr. V. Kurmayya, Minister for Harijan Uplift, the Government of Madras.

"I have read with deep interest your spirited editorial article in the

In his opinion, the depicting of rebellions in a country struggling for liberty is not exceptionable if you also, at the same time, teach how the people should behave in a free country.

"Public opinion needed" says His Excellency Mr. Asaf Ali, the Governor of Orissa.

"I have had occasion to glance at "filmindia", and consider it a well got up periodical. Like most other industries the film industry in India, though greatly patronized is capable of improvement. The criticism to which my attention has been invited is trenchant, but perhaps the say how far they are anti-national. But apart from this there are a great majority of films in India which are anti-national because they corrupt the minds of the young by inflaming their passions and creating in them a desire for a sex life which is neither natural nor pure. I am aware of the educative value of the films, but I am afraid the film trade has blindly copied Western standards and in doing so has corrupted itself and the nation.

"If Filmindia could indicate the lines on which film industry should develop so as to assist in building national character it shall serve a great cause."

"Film, index of national life", says the Hon. Sri H.C. Nasker, Minister for Forests and Fisheries, Government of West Bengal.

"The Hon'ble Minister has gone through the editorial "National Suicide" published in this issue and has greatly appreciated it even though he does not agree fully with the views expressed therein. His view is that the film is the index of national life and the great struggle into which our nation was plunged to win the freedom is naturally a suitable theme for films.

"What appears to him to be really wrong with modern films is that the producers do not set any value to the educative side of films or to the fineness of the art. With an eye on the box-office only, they produce films of cheap quality to attract the masses.

balanced presentation which the critic has in view is usually the result of 'public opinion'."

"Cheap sensationalism should be avoided" says the Hon. Dr. John Mathai, Finance Minister to the Government of India.

"I have perused your editorial article "National Suicide" with interest. While I do not agree with all that you have said in this article, I agree that cheap sensationalism in films with its emphasis on violence should be avoided as far as possible."

"Rightly condemned destructive teachings", says the Hon. Mr. R. Agnibhoj, Minister of Public Works, Government of Central Provinces & Berar.

"I very much appreciate your warning against 'national suicide' in the cinema world. You have rightly condemned the destructive teachings and depictions in the latest pictures in the name of Indian nationalism and have warned all concerned, specially the patriots and politicians to beware of it. But, at the same time, this is not the only sphere where some anti-national teachings and tendencies are inculcated. The objectionable and filthy pictures, which are degrading the lives and morals of our people, are running unhampered in quite a good number.

"I really feel like seeing the hero of your editorial that is Shri Chandulal Shah, and would like to hear his "Inglis" and mark his "plezar". I thought as if you are going to depict him in some of the coming pictures and this is the background for the coming events.

"I do not know much of the pictures, the actors and actresses and the film industry politics. But, I really wish that when the pictures go out for consumption in the market, where all types of people—both males and females, young boys and girls—see them in large numbers, they should impart education, pleasure and happiness and give moral strength, and I hope that Filmindia will make proper efforts in this direction."
Laloo started learning to become a graduate and thus qualify himself for Kitty's love. He found a good tutor in Radha.

Before Laloo or Radha knew where they were, the full moon made their hearts beat fast. No wonder, the pupil and the teacher came closer.

Radha often treated Laloo like a mere schoolboy but Laloo was not prepared to put up with it. He must be taught and in right earnest.

Radha was all joy when she found Laloo preparing for his degree examination. Her efforts had not gone in vain.

And he now qualified to wed his dream-girl, the fascinating Kitty.

His dream materialized and Laloo, the erstwhile object of Kitty's ridicule, was now the idol of her worship.
It was only then that Laloo realized how empty his life was without Radha and he pined for her for hours.

Little did she know, however, the anguish and pain Laloo felt, paying the price of his mad infatuation for a heartless flirt.

But Radha was a noble-hearted girl. She was full of affection even for Kitty—the beloved of her beloved.

Radha, meanwhile, took to the noble profession of nursing, leaving Laloo and Kitty together.

While Kitty was planning Radha’s death, little knowing that she was preparing her own funeral.

To clear the way for Radha and Laloo and make Radha happy ever after.

Kishore Sahu Gives A Technically Attractive Picture!

Kamini Kaushal’s Sparkling Performance In “Nadiya-Ke-Par”!

With the sensitive and impressionable mind which Producer-director Kishore Sahu has, it is not surprising to find in his pictures the last technical bits from different foreign pictures and quite a few attractive situations from many stories read or seen by him. With his natural genius for giving such picks to his own flavour, Kishore often takes a familiar subject look different and that is how “Nadiya-ke-Par” looks with its modern Dushan hunting a tame deer and meeting his Shakuntala in the cloisters of a forest with a river full of tragedy and tears separating the lovers.

And that is why, perhaps, the feature opens with Hitchcock’s technique and ends “Rebecca”-like in the river. Many a picture and its technique thus contribute to make a Kishore Sahu picture an attractive fare for the Indian screen.

And yet we do not condemn this procedure as in picking up the best from his impressions, Kishore is progressing towards a versatile expression of art which may one day lead him to his ideal picture.

LOVE ACROSS THE RIVER

Of the three pictures, produced by Kishore Sahu for Filmistan recently, “Nadiya-ke-Par” is easily the best technically. In fact, the latter all is superb in technique and as such easily becomes a praiseworthy and mark of the technical progress of our film industry.

The story is an attempt to bring together two classes of society, the aristocrats and the fishermen, on the common grounds of love. The river between the two groups of settlements therefore becomes a symbolic gulf to be crossed over with the bridge of love. But the two young loving ones never succeed in bridging the gulf and are ultimately drowned in a whirlpool in the midst of the river leaving hearts on either side more sore than ever before.

Kunwar, the college trained young brother of a Zamindar meets Phulwa the daughter of Damri, a fisherman who nurses an old feud with the Zamindar.

They fall in love and in spite of opposition from the elders carry on their romance. Bala, a young fisherman who took deep breaths at the sight of Phulwa, becomes the evil genius of the plot and uses the ears of both, the Zamindar and Damri, to drop in whispers of mutual hatred.

Realizing the need of Phulwa for a husband, Damri decides to hand her over to the man who excels all in a boat race across the river. This race is won by Kunwar dressed as a fisherman and Phulwa is given to him in marriage. But before they could share the common bed of matrimony, Kunwar’s disguise is exposed and trouble starts for the lovers.

After a number of escapades, we reach the climax in which a grand shooting war takes place between the aristocrats and the fishermen. The lovers try to escape in a boat but right in the midst of the river they are drawn in a whirlpool and drowned. The end is tragic.

PICTURESQUE PRESENTATION

The picture contains some exceptionally beautiful shots of the river and the boats. The riverside atmosphere is realistically portrayed. The photography is beautiful in parts but the sound recording is rather careless. Most of the dialogue and many of the songs are in a local dialect and therefore pass over the heads of the average filmgoers used to straight Hindustani. The tunes are not attractive. With the exception of very few spots, the picture is pretty well directed but always with more emphasis on the camera than on the emotional requirements.

From the players, Kamini Kaushal gives a sparkling performance in the role of Phulwa. Coy and coquettish throughout she plays her part beautifully.

Dileep Kumar, who plays the hero, gives his stereotyped performance and becomes boring, being seen in too many pictures recently. The boy has no new tricks left, it seems. Gulab who plays a crazy fisherwoman overdoses her part by giving her sereechy laughter too long. David, who plays father and pimp at once, fails to convince in either aspect. Sampson plays Damri in an unnecessarily stary manner. Sushil Sahu plays “Bala”, the jealous fisherman excellently and in doing so proves that he can do serious roles better than the frivolous ones.

Ramesh Gupta plays Shri Singh the pal of the hero and in doing so gives an altogether natural performance. Once he sees Maya Banerjee, he assumes a love-struck face and keeps it till the end despite want of inspiration from Maya.

In spite of its good mounting and picturesque presentation, the picture, however, does not seem to have appealed to the masses. And some of the reasons may be: the rustic dialect of the songs and the dialogue; the primitive background and costumes of the fisherfolk; the complete absence of comedy and the once-too-often casting of Dileep Kumar.

And yet the picture is worth a visit to see Kamini Kaushal as one sees a little more of her this time than usual.

OUR REVIEW

“Mitti-Ke-Khiloune”—Another Ranjit flop!

Rotten Direction Ruins Nigar Sultana!

After producing over 100 stupid pictures, the Ranjit Movietone have acquired an unenviable reputation for idiotic flops. It is enough for the filmgoers to see the Ranjit trade mark on the banners to avoid any new Ranjit picture that is released for public exhibition. The Ranjit Movietone have been so consistent in their unfortunate career of motion picture production that one almost admires their perseverance of purpose in sticking honestly to their old guns and not letting down their friends and patrons in spite of whatever progress others may record around them. We also admire this consistent business integrity and salute the Ranjit chief for his unswerving faith in his own intelligence and judgment—faith that has helped him to produce over a hundred rotten and useless pictures without even once being tempted to do something different or purposeful.

TIRESOME OLD PLOT

“Mitti-Ke-Khiloune” is one more picture in the series of Ranjit flops—with the only difference that it has Prahlad Dutt as the director—the man who failed miserably in “Shirin Farhad” and has since been trying desperately to recover his reputation as a film director. And it is a ridiculously strange circumstance that he should come to the Ranjit studios to do so.

If we say that “Mitti-Ke-Khiloune” has the story of “Rela”, “Veena” and a hundred other similar pictures which have appeared on the screen, we are likely to be called harsh in our criticism but unfortunately “Mitti-Ke-Khiloune” is all that and nothing less.

Meena, a rich man’s spoilt daughter, selects Romesh, a poor law student, as her father’s secretary and immediately starts getting fresh with him. It soon develops into love on either side and to give us entertainment the director makes the two express their love in constant quarrels. This entertainment, however, ends by being funny.

Meena’s father, however, dies before he begins to kill us with boredom. His death inside the house is musically announced by the inevitable street beggar singing a song which the durwan at the gate enjoys not suspecting even that his employer is dead inside the house.

PARENTAL BLACKMAIL

Now Meena and Romesh were free to marry but if they had done so only two tins of celluloid would have been ready for the screen. So Chandralal Shah and his “brain trust” begin gum-chewing and produce a telegram about Romesh’s father being very ill and requiring his presence.

Romesh now tears himself away from Meena with the usual promises to return and is ushered into the sick room of his father who is evidently on his death bed. That he doesn’t die throughout the picture is altogether another matter between God and man. The Ranjit folks couldn’t kill a man who was not due and be accused of murder with Minister Morarji on the alert.

Like every dying parent in films, Romesh’s father also starts black-mailing his dutiful son about marrying the other girl from the village. Whatever Romesh says about being in love with some one else is brushed aside unceremoniously and the ceremony of marriage between Romesh and Kusum is performed to the impish delight of Sheela. Romesh’s overwise sister.

LAMP BLACK ILLNESS

But tragedy must travel somewhere in a motion picture to become dramatic. So Romesh, with his typical spineless expression, brings his wife, Kusum, straight to Meena’s house and introduces his wife to his lady love. “Kaisa master stroke?” must be the triumphant cry of all the members of the Ranjit “brain-trust”.

Now Meena starts heaving sighs and catches the usual film sickness in which more and more lamp-black is added to the make-up on the face to make a perfectly healthy woman look sick and sicker.

To give an extra tickle to the impending tragedy, Sheela, Romesh’s sister, is brought on the battlefield and she tries a few tricks of her own to make Romesh’s already miserable married life more miserable and add more pathos to Meena’s tragic existence.

Meena ultimately goes away—far away from the scene of her romantic savagery—evidently to die in peace and solitude, but the spineless hero now acquires some strange paralysis and puts his well-fed weight on the bed defying all doctors as usual.

Sheela, who develops a conscience, now runs an errand between Romesh and Meena and puts the lovers at the two ends of the telephone. The telephone brings the climax and the erstwhile paralytic hero gets up and rushes to Meena’s bedside—miles away—and dies Farhad-like on her death bed—making, of course, his wife a virgin widow.

We couldn’t of course catch the exact theme of this Ranjit picture.
but it must be something to do with the remarriages of virgin widows—the way the Ranjit "brain trust" left behind a virgin widow as a residue of their intellectual gymnastics in story-writing.

UNMUSICAL MUSIC

Music is vindictively used in this Ranjit flop. As if to spite Nigar Sultana for her good performance in pathetic situations, in the role of Meena, a song with bright rhythm is tagged on to every pathetic point and Nigar's good work is completely ruined thereby. It is too much to expect Ranjit song writers, musicians, directors and bosses to harmonize words and melody with the spirit of pathetic situations and it is not therefore a surprise to find sad words with snappy rhythm tagged to the end of every sad situation.

This utterly idiotic procedure completely ruins the dramatic effect of the story, which, in spite of its familiar theme, had some dramatic possibilities in the latter half of the story.

NO SUSPICION OF INTELLIGENCE:

In general production values, the Ranjit traditions of slipshod work and carelessness are honestly maintained, with an extra distinction that the recording of th's picture is just rotten and utterly amateurish.

The picture has been given music just not intended for the story. In the Ranjit "sausage" factory it is quite likely that the wrong songs might have been joined up to the wrong picture. It is worth checking up on th's once again. The Ranjit lyric writers surpass themselves in giving compositions which mean just nothing. Why don't they shuffle the Hindustani dictionary and put words together instead of maintaining the pretense of being poets?

The direction of Prclhad Dutt is utterly unimaginative and unintelligent and more idiotic than his effort in "Shirin Farhad". Nowhere in this long story does the director betray even the slightest suspicion of intelligent thought.

UNFORTUNATE NIGAR

In spite of the director, as we presume, Nigar Sultana proves herself to be a versatile artist in the role of Meena. Her good work in pathetic situations, however, gets killed every time by the unsuitable music put in her mouth.

Karan Dewan plays Romesh, the hero, and the way he does it becomes extremely difficult to define manhood. His performance remains effeminate and stupid throughout and Nigar tosses him on her toes every time he comes within a mile of her. It is a pity that the Indian screen has still to suffer the unpardonable disgrace of screen heroes like Karan Dewan after 3 years of film making.

"Mitti-Ke-Khiloun" is a Ranjit picture after all said and done as such fails miserably. The picture is not worth even a thought by the exhibitors.
OUR REVIEW

"Vidya", A Boring And Amateurish Effort!

Suraiya Fails Miserably!

Premier B. G. Kher is probably the most polite gentleman we have in the country today but even Mr. Kher is reported to have walked out half-way through this picture when invited to see it. He would have probably gone away even earlier but being an old man he seemed to have waited for the interval to light up his foot steps to avoid an accident. And Premier Kher had come with his wife to see Vidya". To inflict on his wife his own decision to walk out in this manner in these days of equality of the sexes, "Vidya" must have proved an unbearably boring picture to our hard-worked Prime Minister.

We sympathize with Premier Kher. ut as professional critics we had no other alternative but to sit through that looked like a never-ending mess of celluloid.

ZAMINDAR’S DEBAUCHERY

Like “Paroo” produced by Navyug hitrapat, “Vidya” is also another attempt to propagate education with the help of some helpless untouchables. The only difference between the two pictures is that in “Paroo” the heroine is an untouchable while in “Vidya” the hero wears this manacle.

Chandu, a cobbler’s son, goes through the usual difficulties and at last becomes a graduate. During this long process he, however, falls in love with Vidya his college pal and daughter of a rich Zamindar.

Their romance creates the usual social difficulties punctuated by the debauchery of Vidya’s father who seems to be living all along in a prostitute’s house. This Zamindar’s life gives us quite a few glimpses of “Aage Badho”, a picture of Prabhat.

In the usual circuitous manner, characteristic of Indian films, the final climax is reached in the lap of debauchery when the Zamindar is faced with his own daughter, Vidya, as the prospective victim of his lust.

It all ends well, however, with the cobbler’s son getting the Zamindar’s daughter and every one else becoming wise enough at the end of it all.

DEV ANAND IMPROVES!

With the exception of photography which is excellent in parts, the entire picture is poor and amateurish. Even Suraiya’s music is very poorly tuned.

Suraiya looks too crude as a college girl and fails miserably in her primarily sympathetic role. Dev Anand, however, shows a lot of improvement in his portrayal as the cobbler’s educated son. The boy is improving fast and deserves encouragement. The rest make a pretty poor show.

In short, the picture is very boring and amateurish, though the main design behind it is purposeful.

"Paroo", Untouchable Trash On Untouchability!

Picture Provides Killing Boredom!

This is one more addition to the rash on untouchability which our progressive" writers and "purposeful" producers have been presenting on the screen ad nauseam. Actually, the picture has nothing new or original, progressive or purposeful to offer.

INSULTING THE DEAD

Inspired probably by the idea of merely showing a Harijan ("neech") girl marrying the ("oonch") son of Zamindar, the author has somehow struggled at this none-too-novel onclusion mainly relying upon sequences which are at best boring and disjointed.

It would have been progressive enough to advocate such a marriage between the two extreme ends of society on the screen fifteen years ago when untouchability was rampant but now with Harijans backed by state legislation it is hardly fashionable even to flirt with the idea or attach any new discoveries to it.

But then the author of "Paroo" had to give us his own version towards the solution of the great "problem" and whether the same is desired to merit a special certificate from Dr. Ambedkar or not, the fact remains that we have one more motion picture—riding on a dead horse—dedicated to the memory of Mahatma Gandhi, the Father of the Nation, who must, in his ashes, be praying: "God, save me from my movie followers".

At least the censors should have realised the utter mockery of such an amateurish and insignificant piece of mediocrity in the name of "Harijan uplift" being dedicated to the Mahatma. In fact they ought to have deleted the dedication unless they are willing to allow every second new release with one of the many Gandhi-isms tagged to it, to be dedicated to the Mahatma for reasons not far to seek. Why insult the great dead?

"OONCH-NEECH" AFFAIR!

The story opens with Mangloo the sweeper, his coughing wife and their little daughter Paroo. The little girl betrays a craving for school which belonged to the "neech" and debarred the "neech" from entering its portals. Her father, however, doesn't like the idea.

Though Paroo somehow manages to stand outside the portals of the school and pick up a few crumbs of primary education her enterprise soon comes to an end with the Zamindar pulling up the teachers. In any case the writer uses this small opportunity to plant the early seeds of romance in the hearts of Paroo and Devendra, the little son of the zamindar. That badly recorded cough soon takes away Paroo's mother to the other regions from where filmgoers can't be bored and Paroo soon grows into a Harijan hoyden who throws herself at Devendra when he returns after his education in England.

That sets the romance rolling and we are soon taken through the usual punctuations of a screen affair. But the producer had to use the dancing talent of Geeta Nizami, and the writer obliges by making the Harijan girl a professional dancer with the "progressive purpose" of bringing relief and uplift to the Harijans through her rhythm on the wooden stage.

Devendra sticks to Paroo through thick and thin. He must, to maintain "progressive" principles and after a theft, a murder and the usual grab-and-run sequences it all ends with Devendra doing Harijan "uplift" by lifting Paroo to his long-woofed bed of romance.

The audience gets disgusted with the crude, insipid and utterly amateurish yarn which fails to appeal due to its outdated theme, hackneyed plot and mediocre treatment.

Shorey Daulaltalvi's direction has nothing to commend itself and fails to save the show from becoming an idiotic hotch-potch.

The performances of the artistes are in keeping with the general idiotic tone of the story. It was a treat to hear the "progressive" manner in which Paroo the Harijan girl, called her father "Papa"—or was it "Puppa"? We wonder how many Harijan girls call their fathers in this English style.

There is nothing in the picture to see and enjoy. It is one long boredom and exhibitors are advised to avoid this picture completely.

This Child Scandal Must Shock Mothers

By:

Doris James

Mothers of stage-struck children are likely to be startled when the team of special investigators appointed by Britain's Home Office to enquire into child employment in the theatre makes its report. Behind the pantomime footlights and the fairy world of illusion there are unfolding horrifying tales of callous exploitation by the more unscrupulous managers. Underfed and overworked youngsters living on a few shillings a week in dirty lodgings, under a supervisor only a few years older than themselves, represent a scandal that puts the black sheep managers under a damning spotlight.

Many people who laughed at and applauded the clever children in the glittering pantomimes in Britain this New Year are going to be shocked and horror-stricken very soon when a team of investigators presents its report to the Home Office committee of inquiry into child employment on the stage.

The Home Secretary set up the committee last June, to consider what safeguards of health, welfare, and education the employment of children as film actors bould be allowed, and also to review existing provisions governing the employment of children in theatrical work and in ballet.

Early in November the "trade union" of the British stage, British Actors' Equity, went into action in an attempt to put an end to the exploitation of young children by ruthless theatrical producers, especially in pantomime.

Peter Bentley, David Duncan, James Edgar, and Vera Raymond—the first three actor-producers, the last an actress—were sent by Equity on a mission to investigate conditions and gather evidence to submit to the Home Office. Their work is nearly complete.

OVERWORKED AND UNDERFED

"Scandalous racket" is not too strong a term to describe the conditions they have uncovered. Not all towns are affected, of course, but a large number of provincial cities and villages which staged this year's

London.

Recruit Ratan Lali Vyas, of Jallap Street, Jodhpur, is 24, 5'-8", speaks Hindustani and has great liking for screen acting.

250-odd pantomimes are guilty of permitting the disgraceful state of affairs already discovered.

Little girls receiving a "salary" of five shillings for a week's work of twelve performances; sleeping six and more in a small room; living on meagre and unsuitable rations; overworked in some cases to the point of physical exhaustion. These are some of the things revealed, which have been going on for years.

Such children are mere commodities in this traffic in human beings. The manager (or manageress) of a troupe of child dancers receives, say, £3 per child. Out of this sum he expects to retain half as his profit. The remaining 30 shillings goes to the child and to cover all living expenses, including board and lodging.

Five shillings from this amount as salary leaves 25 shillings for the child's keep, in a boarding house. How many boarding houses do you know that for 25 shillings a week can adequately sleep and feed a child performing exhausting work? In at least one city, according to an Equity official, the manager of a local theatre was asked by the manager of a child troupe to fix up accommodation—full board and lodging—at £1 a head!

SCANDAL OF CHILD "SUPERVISORS"

Officially, troupe managers are supposed to supply a matron or her responsible person to look after the children, and in the case of reputable managers this is of course done, and done well. But the get-rich-quick exploiters sometimes appoint the eldest in the troupe as supervisor of the younger ones, thus saving themselves the "unnecessary" outlay of several pounds a week.

The result is that a "senior" of perhaps 16 years of age is "responsible" for the health, welfare, and conduct of the remaining members of the troupe.

It cannot be too strongly stressed that many troupe managers who provide the fairies and clever acrobatic dancers among the children who delight pantomime audiences do not chafe in this manner at all. Such managers have consciences to satisfy and reputations to maintain, and provide good conditions for their young charges. But these do not compensate for the harpies who, not content with exploiting the eager youngsters in salary and living conditions, make even further profits out of them by charging exorbitant prices for additions to the children's "wardrobes".

Are troupe managers alone to blame? Not entirely. Theatre managers must take their share of responsibility. They consider their payments adequate and take no further interest in the children appearing in their shows. The attitude of many can be summed up thus: "We pay so much a week to a troupe manager for the services of the children she supplies. What happens to the money is no business of ours."

PARENTS, TOO, TO BLAME

But it is their business. As employers they are in a position to insist on certain conditions being observed by the child contractors with whom they deal. And if the contractors can prove that the rates paid are insufficient to pay children decent salaries, then theatre managers must raise the rates. They cannot merely wash their hands of the whole affair by pleading ignorance.

There is a third party which must also take its share of blame—parents. In many cases mothers show an almost incredible lack of elementary care in their enquiries into the conditions under which their children will live in a strange town. In other cases they make no enquiries at all; dazzled by the prospect of a "stage career" for their children, they blindly entrust them to the smooth-spoken troupe manager who sings such a wonderful song about the bright present and wonderful future.

Twelve girls sharing a midday meal of one tin of stewed meat and two pounds of potatoes, with the landlady confessing: "They are neither properly fed nor properly cared for. and the matron in charge of the troupe has told me not to be extravagant"; another dozen children crowded into an airless, dirty dressing room; another troupe with a measles epidemic because of a lack of sanitary precautions; these are some of the horrifying facts which lie behind the glittering footlights of pantomime.

THRILLING DRAMA OF PASSIONS VS. DEVOTION

Coming!!!
MOTHER AT LAST!

Bombay, January 10. In the 9th January, Veena became a proud mother to a baby girl at Worli, Bombay. We hope the little one grows into an attractive star as the star herself.

RITA-ALY ROMANCE!

London, January 19. The capital romance between Hollywood star Rita Hayworth and Vice Aly Khan has at last taken on a definite shape. Evidently Aly Khan couldn't resist the charms of the star any longer. The marriage will be held at the Roman Catholic Church in Cannes — there might also be a Muslim ceremony at the Aga Khan's home.

ROUGH WORK!

Meerut, January 17. Recently batches of college students raided some of the local cinema houses damaging property and injuring certain employees. The cause for this hooliganism seems to be a demand for concessions and other facilities which were denied to the students.

HURRY FOR HONEYMOON!

Hollywood, January 17. Film star June Duprez and George Moffett Jr. made an announcement of their marriage on Tuesday. Their honeymoon will be a six-day engagement. Fast work, that!

ONE MORE!

Ootacamund, January 24. A fire broke out in the operator's room of the Blue Mountain Talkies the morning of the 24th causing damage to the extent of Rs. 30,000. A considerable part of the film stock was lost.

RUND THE CORNER!

Bombay, January 20. Manorama, who recently married Hen Hakir, is expecting to join her band of star mothers shortly. Now there is no need to publish posing as motherhood has always been the best proof of marriage. Let us hope the little one never sees those disgusting photographs of what Pop & Mum did when not looking.

MARRIED

Salisbury, January 17. Jack Buchanan, well-known British actor-cum-producer, called Miss Susan Bassett his wife and in doing so left the pretense of courtship behind.

ALL FOR MONEY!

Madras, January 22. Mr. Gopala Reddi, Finance Minister of the Government of Madras, told the Assembly that last year the government earned 34 lakhs of rupees by way of entertainment tax. This year the government hopes to earn 95 lakhs, on the basis of the proposed construction of more cinema houses.

The Government of India have already allotted them a quota of cement obtained from the stocks in Pakistan for constructing new cinema houses and they would be built as soon as possible by theatre owners in Madras. What about Bombay?

ANOTHER CRIER!

Hollywood, January 17. Dorothy McGuire is all smiles at the idea of becoming a mother. Her baby is expected some time in the first week of March. The time table may go wrong but the baby will be there alright.

NATIONAL THEATRE!

London, January 21. British theatre-goers are jubilant at the new grant of £1,000,000 made by Parliament for the building of a National Theatre in London.

Prices of the seats will be reasonable so that middle-class families might take advantage of the entertainment.

The National Theatre will also become a centre for the development of dramatic art. Our municipal theatre is still on paper.

DANGEROUS EXPERIMENT!

Hollywood, January 28. M. G. M. director Jean Renoir has flown to Calcutta for shooting some sequences of "The River" from a story by Rumer Godden. This is an ambitious technicolour picture and deals with an English family living in India after the recent British withdrawal.

If the costly technicolour was to be used at all, why wasn't an Indian theme utilized to show the colourful costumes of the Indians to the outside world which is always eager to know something about India? Perhaps the beggars, snake-charmers and the Sadhus are intended to provide the requisite background to the English family. If M.G.M. slanders Indians, it will be necessary to ban their entire product in India.

HIS LAST GAG

Mr. V. H. Desai

Bombay, January 30. Screen comedian, V. H. Desai, died on Tuesday the 25th January at Baroda of heart attack, where he had gone for a vacation.

V. H. Desai was one of the educated artists having passed his LL.B. from the Baroda College in 1925. With his natural aptitude for mimicry and sense of humour, friends persuaded him to take up the screen as a career in preference to the legal profession.

He began with Sagar Movietone playing minor roles in films which flopped too often to give him a name. In 1938, however, his work in "Bhabhi" a popular picture of Bombay Talkies was liked and from that time onwards he scored a series of successes in "Najyooan", "Durga", "Kangan", "Bandhan", "Naya Sansar", "Anjan", "Jhoola" and "Kisnet". Later he joined Filmistan and worked in all their pictures, giving intelligent gags and making people laugh with his ever-funny face — especially in "Eshaan" and "Eight Days". He achieved new heights of popularity in "Kanjiki".

Many other cinemas are also affected in a similar manner.

HOLLYWOOD ON THE RUN! ·
Rome, January 10.
In order to give an impetus to the Italian film industry, the government is seriously thinking of imposing restrictions on the exhibition of foreign films in Italy. New restrictions are likely to be imposed along three lines: a quota on the number of films imported based on the number shown in 1947; making more Italian pictures; heavy tax on dubbing just as the French have done in case of the Italian pictures.
The shrewd American producers are already in Rome bargaining with the Italian government, but details have not yet been worked out.

MORARI TO NOTE!
Chicago, January 15.
According to Mrs. L. W. Hughes, president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, "the time has come to take serious notice of the menace to our children from over-stimulating motion pictures, hair-raising radio programmes and corrupting comic books".
The board therefore appointed an action committee to eliminate vicious comic books and objectionable radio and movie programmes. Film producers and book publishers will be approached because they are held responsible for a large part of the evil which is making levels of innocent children.

THE HORRIFIED FINNS!
Helsinki, January 20.
The Finns have also an active Board of Censors with a new-breaking name—Valtion Elokuvatarkastamo—which does useful work.

In one week the board banned five "horror films". They are: "Temptation", "The Pearl of Death", "The Mummy's Curse", "The Ghost of Frankenstein" and "The Frozen Ghost". Evidently the Finns react sensitively to horror depicted in such films.

Among the Scandinavian countries, Sweden is the only country where horror films are allowed. The rest—Denmark, Norway and Finland—avoid them like rat poison.

TROUBLE IN SOUTH AFRICA
New York, January 15.
Ever since the war, South Africa had been a good market for American pictures, comparatively unhampere by Government restrictions. Two weeks ago, reportedly in anticipation for a request for a U.S. loan, the South African Government clamped down a set of strict import rules. The move involves dollar rather than commodity restrictions and, according to advice received in New York, stands eventually to cut film imports by about one-half. Dollar allocations by the South African Government will be made on the basis of 50 per cent of the amount of dollars expended by an importer in 1947.

ENOUGH AND MORE!
Madras, February 5.
The Government of Madras have ordered with effect from April 1, that theatres or places of public amusement should not be opened earlier than 1 p.m. or closed later than 1 a.m. That is twelve hours of torture.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT!
Bombay, February 6.
On Saturday the 5th February, film actress Latika got married to well-known comedian Gope (in private life known as Gope Kamlani) under the Civil Marriages Act. The next day, a grand reception was given to the newly wedded couple at the Shree Sound Studios in which many film people participated.

There was also a moonlight party later on the Juhu sands where many

MOURNING A DEAR FRIEND

Mr. S. G. Bhopatkar
Poona, January 23

We regret to announce the sudden death of Mr. S. G. Bhopatkar, a great sportsman and one of the most charming film personalities of the day. On Sunday, 23rd January, at his residence in Poona.

Sadu Bhopatkar was an actor who has left an indelible mark on the Indian film industry. He was known for his dedication and hard work, and his contributions will be remembered for years to come.

On the turf of Western India, Mr. S. G. Bhopatkar was familiarly known as the "Treble Pool King", having acquired an uncanny instinct of cashing the Pool several times. The highest Treble Pool of Rs. 42,000/- was won by him. Actor, showman, race horse owner, gambler and above all a gentleman, we shall always mourn Sadu Bhopatkar as a friend who never uttered a harsh word and never used his face but to smile. May his soul rest in peace and may there never be any horse races in heaven. Amen!

Bringing The World In A Classroom!

By:
Goverdhandas Aggarwal M. A.

"I realize the importance of economy, but at the same time I feel at education is a matter which cannot brook suspension or even lay", declared the Hon. Maulana Abdul Kalam Azad, Minister of Education to the Government of India, during his address to the Central Advisory Board of Education at Allahabad last month. He announced that in order to make the programme of basic and social education one of immediate interest and utility, it was decided that the hours will in future be not only ages of instruction but centres of community life which in addition to the usual task will also serve as centres of recreation and sport. The self-point programme given by the Education Minister contained audio-visual aids also and read:

A number of motor vans fitted with projectors and loud speakers are being secured to visit village schools. Films and magic lanterns will be shown and recordings of folk played. It is proposed that each school will be visited at least once a week.” It is really a matter of great rejoicing that due recognition has thus been given to the aims of visual education.

The main aim of education is to train people in a manner to make them good citizens and useful units of society. In order to mould the nation’s character we have to make the educational system perfect. The greatest task today is of the educator in whose hands lies the destiny of the country. The right type of education can never keep itself detached from the economic developments and forces at work in the society. The age of individualism has passed and the desire for unity and joint effort has taken its place. The old philosophy of life has changed and the community has grown. The world around us is changing swiftly while we have failed to keep pace with it. We lack ability and talent most necessary to cope with the burden of the present age, the reason being that our training and knowledge are not up to the standard required. Our methods of education have not changed with the times and we still stick to the old obsolete system. A new concept of education has to be thought out and in doing so employ the most modern means of imparting knowledge. It is only by this method can our children be made competent to serve our country well. New tools and technique for the dissemination of knowledge are required. Audio-visual equipment for education is the only means at our disposal to achieve this object.

Visual education is a system of imparting knowledge and instruction through sight and sound. This is not new. Teachers have always felt the need of an equipment capable of illustrating their lessons. The blackboard has served through ages towards this end, recently aided by maps, charts, diagrams, picture cards, models etc., but all these have not been completely satisfactory.

The great progress in the film technique and development of the 16 mm projector opened a new era for the teachers, and now they can bring the big wide outside world inside the small area of the classroom instead of satisfying themselves by taking their students to museums, zoos, and places of historical importance. Films have become a means of living illustration, for they are capable of illustrating a subject more vividly than any other medium and they show the movements, growth and various developments as they happen. The expert knowledge and experience of any one subject can be made available to different schools simultaneously. Films as audio-visual aids have far wider functions to perform than only instructional. Such films provide that mental and spiritual stimulation which is necessary for accumulating wider knowledge.

WAR TIME EXPERIMENT

As far back as 1917 attempts were made to study the problem in England by the National Council of Public Morals but it was only in 1925 that the first authoritative report “The Cinema in Education” was published. A comprehensive study of the film in education was undertaken by the Commission on educational and cultural films set up in 1929 by the British Institute of Adult Education and the Association of Scientific Workers. Its report was published in 1932 under the title of “The Film In National Life”. But nothing happened till in World War II millions of army, navy and air-force men were trained through audio-visual methods to learn in a few weeks what ordinarily would have required months of arduous training.

This dynamic war-time experiment provided an irrefutable evidence of the potentialities of the film in education and has shown how many of our most pressing problems can be solved through this medium within a short time.

The educational films are to be used as illustrations within the course of a lesson in the classroom and as a supplement to the usual text in education. Teachers must shed their false fear that the film will replace them. Not all! The film is an extra tool which needs the teacher as much as the ordinary textbook.

A WARNING AND AN APPEAL

The Ministry of Education has constituted its own Board to look after this branch but it must be most active and realistic to be quick and effective. Closer contact with provincial teaching bodies and private organizations engaged in this task will yield quicker and better results. No doubt private enterprise will ultimately play the most important role in taking up the production, distribution and exhibition of such films but since it is a process more costly and complicated than other methods of education, active cooperation and supervision by the Government in one form or the other are necessary. It is also important for the State to see that this type of film is not misused for propaganda by interested parties and persons and that the profit motive does not reign supreme. There can’t be profits in imparting education except the education itself.

I hope the new policy of the Government of India will give a boost for a steadily expanding use of films for education, and film makers will be able to embark on production programmes with proper guidance. But I must sound a note of warning to the producers that cannot be taken to see that such films possess unity of purpose and are free from irrelevant matter. Teaching films should appeal more to the intellect and less to the emotions. These have to be simple and straight forward and should not prejudice the strain on the pupil. The most important of all is that no educational film should be attempted without close co-operation between the teaching world and the producers. A bold step is required and I would urge the Government to give up present lukewarm attitude in this respect. The Government should allow considerations of finance stringency to hold them up for a longer time than may be absolute necessary the implementation of audio-visual education programme for building up a free and democratically.

Woes & Echoes

EXPLANATION

"We have gone through the columns of "Woes & Echoes" of your December '48 issue and are really sorry for the misrepresentation which r. S.M. Pandit does under the heading "Surprise".

"As a matter of fact, the Burma Censors had passed the order to delete the said line from the picture "Sajan", and to our knowledge, no exhibitor or the distributor can do anything against such orders. Your said writer Mr. Pandit is therefore wrongly said that we had compromised with the Passengers and allowed the said line to be deleted."

Kapurchand (Burma) Ltd., ANGOON.

OLD MAN'S PET:

"Recently I went to see director shrab Modi's "Mera Munna", starring Motilal and Nayantara. To my fortune, the picture is as worthless as its title. The etude is nothing but an ugly combination of a few snaps taken up randomly. My sincere piece of advice to our director Modi Sahab would be to quit the film world while the going is good."

LUCKNOW. Puran Chandra Pandey.

ALRIGHT, BE LAZY!

"You are perfectly right in criticizing the Bengalees—"They eat too much, sleep too long, work too little and talk too much". But do they think too much?

"You have called the Bengalees as enterprising thinkers. It is entirely wrong and prejudiced conception. In the struggle of freedom for India, Bengal's contribution is unique and unparalleled. Bengal has produced luminaries of the greatest thinkers for all ages and she is not barren.

"The pioneers in the realm of thoughts and ideas are naturally lazy the matters of the world."

Santosh Kumar Mukerji, ALLAHABAD.

TO WAKE UP THE SLEEPING!

"This is with reference to the statement of Mr. Krishna Gopal Chatterjee of Dhanbad and your answer published in the January issue of "filmindia".

"At the very outset I challenge the statement of Mr. Chatterjee. If 90% of the Bengalees were clerks then, probably, not a single non-Bengali would have been employed as a clerk in any office in India. The question as it is, with due respect to Mr. Chatterjee, is a silly one and it has provoked all the more a silly reply.

"For you Mr. Patel, I respect you much and as such I have been shocked by your statement. Can you justify yourself when you attach the stigma to the Bengal race that they are lazy and unenterprising? Your answer has an "informative" strain and that's where I object. The information is a misleading one. History even staggers to make the statement that you have flung at us as a race.

"I don't think you are as ignorant about Bengalees as your answer shows. But if you are you can enquire from any true Bengali regarding his race. He would be too glad to let you know the amazing enterprising capacities the Bengalees are capable of and the outcome of the same. And most probably you will know why they had been the step-children of the British.

"If your I. Q. is recorded, you might be declared a genius. That is precisely the reason, which makes one think, as to how you could be provoked to give such an incorrect reply."

LUCKNOW. B. K. Ghosh.

IMPROVING CHANDULAL?

"In your January issue it is reported that Sardar Chandulal Shah stated at the recent meeting at Ranjit Studios that he and his other producer colleagues were neither yogis or sadhus nor men of high ideals and principles, and that they like to enjoy life and needed colour for it.

"Well, we do not expect our clever producers to be yogis or sadhus, but we certainly expect them to be men of ideals and principles, or otherwise how do they claim to be capable of producing sensible pictures? Is not the Sardar aware that these pictures are made not for the producer folk alone to see, but for the common man who likes to have some good, and at the same time not vulgar, entertainment in return for his hard earned money? It would also have been better if the Sardar had explained in what sense the words "enjoy life" and "colour" were used by him.

"You were very correct when you said that it would have been much better if the Sardar had written his speech and read it. At least let him

HULLO, CENSORS!

"The other day I had the misfortune of witnessing Mangal’s much talked of film “Jivacha Sakha” at a local Minerva. The story has either continuity nor entertaining capacity excepting good photography and sound recording. Many objectionable scenes such as attempt of rape, inhuman threats of vengeance, juvenile romance etc. were shown; Mr. Patel, in spite of our continuous efforts and the Censors’ strenuous steps to wipe off such moralizing scenes, one wonders how such pictures are still being permitted to poison the innocent and young minds. This is running riot to packed houses widely pub- lized. Will the Censor authorities check and scissor them off if not violently?"

D. Natarajan.

NONE, OLD BOY!

"The speech delivered by Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel at the recent meet- ing of the film magnates in the presence of Bombay’s Home Minister is very interesting. In his speech he is reported to have said (Filmin- dia Jan. 1949); “The film industry is the only medium through which the vast ignorant masses can be educated. If I were the minister of education, I would bring the map of India on the top of world maps by opening theatres in every street and showing numerous educational pictures”. I do not understand why we should have theatres in every street for showing educational pictures. Can we not do so with the existing ones? Again I wonder whether we have to wait till our producers become the ministers. Al- though we have entered the second year of independence, things have not improved on the film front. Any hopes, Mr. Patel?"

K. N. Rao.

PROVINCIAL AUTONOMY!

"You will be wonderstruck to note (with regret) that an Hon’ble Minister, (Shri D. K. Mehta) C. P. & Berar, performed the opening ceremony of an old cinema house with the new name of “Bharat” (previously known as Minerva) with the vulgar and slanderous picture “JUGNXU” which was banned by the Hon’ble Home Minister of Bombay Presidency. Here in C. P. we have no Baburao Patel who can save us from the devil-dancing of Mr. Shaust at Hussain Rizvi in the picture. Does it mean that Ministers of different provinces in India see a picture with different angles or does the standard of morality vary from province to province?"

NAGPUR C. P., Gyani Prasad.

THANKS!

“I hope that you generally do not visit Tamil pictures; so much the better for you. You will not only save the hard earned money but avoid untold physical and mental tortures.

“Even if you are in the habit of visiting these Tamil pictures occa-
Raj Kapoor seems to be so persuasive in romance that Rehana doesn’t seem to mind so much in “Sunhere Din” produced by Jagat Pictures.

Sationally, please, for heaven’s sake, do not go even a mile near the two recent ‘damations’, “Demon Land” & “Mohini” which are pictures worthy to be seen only by aborigines of forgotten days.”

S. C. Sivananjappa.
SANGENAHALLY.

TOO BAD!

“Recently I was in Bombay where I saw “On an Island with You”, at the Metro theatre which is still considered the best theatre in India. But I am very sorry to say that its urinals are very few in number so much so that one has to wait in a long queue for his chance. I had to return disappointed due to great rush at the urinals as the interval was very short.”

BHIWANI. Rajesh N. Saxena.

WHY PUNISH MY SON?

“I don’t know whether you have a son. I sincerely wish you have one for we require a little Patel in South India. Please teach him Tamil and Malayalam and send him over here to save South Indian film-goers from complete annihilation of their aesthetic sense by South Indian producers.”

KOTTAYAM. S. Ramachandran

COURTESY OPINIONS

“I read in the papers that the Governor of West Bengal saw the Hindi version of Gemini’s “Chandralekha” and gave his verdict praising the film. I can’t understand why our politicians should not stick to their own field instead of encroaching upon other fields which are totally strange to them. Film criticism is a specialised job and it requires brains, experience and honesty and unfortunately this country has got only one critic (It is needless for me to mention his name here). Personally I get thril I when I read film reviews only in “filmindia”.”

TANJORE. Mrs. William Moses.

PAYING FOR THE ROOF!

“ ‘Mayfair’ is the best English picture house in Lucknow, despite the fact that its roof gave way only a few months ago while a picture was being screened and quite a good number of the people in the dress circle were injured. The management may be excused on that count for reasons of the accident being unforeseen but that it should resort to moral greed, is really shameful. I recently ‘Hamlet’ was being screened there and you can well imagine a rush that was expected specially from the student community. For this the management enhanced admission rates and thus earned quite a lot. This has now become a practice with these owners of picture houses, to enhance the rates when there is a long or an extraordinary picture, while they never care to vice-versa in case of short and the rate pictures. Is this not highly picable and should not the government do something to stop it?”

LUCKNOW. K. Dwivedi.

GRATITUDE

“With an English picture I am the trailer of “Grihasthi”, about 7 ft., and I dare say that it constituted the poorest recommendation for a picture. The most repulsive element in it was the vulgar song “Mor wali chhori”, sung in a car by the ugly ‘beauties’ making all sorts of unbecoming gestures as the car passed through the streets! I thanked the stars for that trailer which saved me from the torture that 3 hours of such ‘entertainment’ would have brought me!”

NEW DELHI. Omesh Chandra W.

DAMN DISGUSTING!

“The owners and managers of cinema theatres in Mysore City do not seem to understand the importance of starting the shows at scheduled time. Almost all the theatres commence the film at least 15 minutes after the scheduled time. The higher class audience, though disgusted with this nuisance, somehow tolerates it but the lower class crowds lose their patience and begin all sorts of indecent shoutings and hootings.

“There is another grave injustice which cannot be tolerated. The tickets issued in almost all the theatres are more than the actual number of seats. More than 20 to 30 extra tickets are issued in each class. The management shifts and arranges the try to provide for these people. Isn’t this all disgusting?”

55, Sir Pherozeshah Mehta Rd. Fort, BOMBAY.
Consistency is not a virtue of Indians and the film censors who are all good, patriotic Indians cannot be accused of being guilty of this virtue.

One should not therefore be surprised that what the censors consider objectionable in one picture is tolerable in another and what is liked in a third picture is cut from the fourth one.

Yes, Home Minister Morarji Desai, with his characteristic enthusiasm and sincerity, has set up a production code to provide guidance both to the producers and the censors. But the censors seem to know the least about the code which the Home Minister has given them.

With the Production Code kept on the shelf out of sight, the present censorship of films has become an amusing sport for the censors under the bald blessings of Mr. A. Aiyar, their hard-worked chairman.

But what is sport to the censors is death to the producers. Censorship in Bombay has become another Aesop's fable in which throwing stones into a pond was fun for the boys but death to the frogs.

Filmindia did agitate for censorship but for intelligent censorship and not for this frog-and-stone game that is going on at present. Our wise and intelligent Home Minister has set the ball rolling by setting up a code of production but surely, we cannot expect a busy man like him to interpret the code from day to day and censor pictures himself. This work has to be done by the members of the Censor Board but the way they are doing it presents credit neither to their own intelligence and imagination nor to the sincerity and enthusiasm of our Home Minister.

Let us take the recent case of "Sanwariya" a picture produced by Filmistan Ltd. The Bombay Censors bound two songs objectionable in this picture and ordered them to be removed. But when the producers wanted to know why, so as to avoid similar mistakes in future, the censors could not put any reasons on paper.

The producers, of course, were told in whispers that the songs were considered hybrid because they contained some colloquial though harmless words of the English language.

This new objection, which is entirely outside the scope of the present Production Code, completely staggered the producers and after a fruitless appeal to the Home Minister, they got two new songs composed and shot. But once again when the Censors examined the new songs, one of them was cut out. And once again without any reasons on paper.

This frog-and-stone game of whispering censors is not a fair and democratic way of censoring pictures, and we expect it least from people working under a fair and sincere man like our Home Minister.

We are not pleading for any mercy to be shown to our producers as none of them deserve any mercy seeing the quality and contents of their pictures. But it is the fundamental right of every citizen in a free state to know the charges against him before he is condemned. The Censors can't cut off scenes and songs from a picture without giving their reasons for doing so. Censorship cannot be blind and arbitrary but must be wise and instructive.

There is no sense in the producers making the same mistakes again and again and that is what is going to happen if we have silent censors who do not tell us why they find certain things objectionable. Our pictures cannot improve in quality and contents if the Censor Board does not become an institution of guidance and instruction in the discharge of its functions.

The present frog-and-stone game will merely prove a vindictive waste of time if we do not progress and our pictures become better. Pictures can only improve if the producers are told from day to day what is wrong with them and why. And it must not be said in whispers. Printed directives must be issued from time to time if new interpretations are sought in the terms of the present Production Code. That is the only way censorship can be enforced in a democratic country. There is no other alternative. And unless a democratic and intelligent method of censorship is adopted, the present amusing spectacle of censorship shuttling between two extremes is likely to prove a death dealing game to the "frogs" of the industry.

There is nothing in the present code which stops producers from using English words in Hindustani songs but if the Censors do not like this hybrid combination they should frankly say so and not whisper about it into the ears of the victims.
India is an excellent example of the part played by RCA Sound Film Equipment in raising a nation's cultural and entertainment standards. More Indian films are recorded with RCA equipment than with all other makes combined. The majority of studios in India are RCA equipped...commercial, educational and government.

Recently the Information Films Service of the Indian Ministry of Information purchased three RCA Recording Systems to produce documentary films and newsreels. Most of India's cinemas are equipped with RCA sound-reproducing systems...assurance of high quality entertainment. Every studio and cinema in India is within easy reach of experienced RCA-trained servicemen—ready to give efficient service quickly on sound film equipment.

RCA is the greatest name in motion picture equipment because RCA continues to bring better sound recording and sound reproduction to ever greater audiences.
Though there was nothing intelligent about the two original songs of "Sanwariya" there was nothing objectionable in them either for the Censors to hound out the songs with studied perseverance.

In direct contrast to the fanatic censoring of songs "Sanwariya", we see the disgusting spectacle of indissolubility and indifference in the censoring of "Ghar Ki Zat", a picture produced by Murli Movietone.

In this picture, without any rhyme or reason, the producer has used Mahatma Gandhi’s dead body and his mortal to illustrate a song sung by some school children and their teacher. The song itself has nothing whatever to do with the main story of the picture and ahatmaji’s physical remains are completely out of place.

By misusing the newsreel shots of a great death to illustrate a silly song, isn’t the producer selling the dead body of our national saint ticket by ticket? If this is not hybrid grafting into a story what else is? If this isn’t desecration of a sacred memory what else is? If is is not insulting the physical remains of our nation’s father what else does?

Is Bapuji’s dead body to be paraded before millions through different pictures for selling tickets for a timid producer? Is Bapuji’s sacred memory to be turned to a box-office argument?

We can understand a newsreel of Mahatmaji’s funeral being shown in cinemas after his death. There is pathos and sanctity attached to such showings. But to cut the great death into little bits and graft them on putrid commercial pictures for making cheap money is decidedly a filthy and sacrilegious act on the part of a film producer.

And to do this with the consent of our national Censors is perhaps the most unholy crime in the life of a free nation.

Why are Rajajis, Panditjis and Morarjis shedding ceremonial tears on the hallowed memory of our national saint if they cannot even protect the sanctity of his death by stopping this mercenary exploitation of his last remains in this filthy and disgraceful manner?

Let us have fewer ceremonial prayers and more honesty and national pride in our glorious heritage which is symbolised in the immortal struggle and the peaceful remains of our national saint.

If our censors have developed some national pride as free citizens of India and children of the Father of our nation, let them not help to cut his sacred memory into little box-office tickets to increase the bank balance of some mercenary producer.

These two illustrations of the two extreme ends of our present censorship demand that the present frog-and-stone game must stop and more intelligent and democratic censorship enforced.

We are sure our appeal will not fall on deaf ears.
Remember before you buy that not in quality but in show and get up only foreign products may appear richer than our indigenous makes. This external deficiency in Indian products will however be made up soon with the rise of the allied industries in Free India.

MODI SOAP WORKS, MODINAGAR, U. P. licensing freebooters!

In response to our comments about the misuse of complimentary tickets by the producers, distributors and exhibitors (Bombay Calling, Nov. '48 Number), the government of Bombay have issued a draft notification dated the 25th January 1949 under Section 7 of the Bombay Entertainment Duty Act of 1923, which states that:

1. No proprietor of an entertainment shall issue more than five per cent of the tickets or ten tickets whichever is less for any class of seats for an entertainment's complimentary tickets and every proprietor issuing any such tickets shall submit to the officer presided over under Section 10 of the Act within ten days from the date of the performance of the entertainment, a return of such tickets in form "E". Such percentage and number of tickets shall be inclusive of the number of complimentary tickets claimed under any lease for the time being in force in respect of the place where the entertainment is held.

2. Every complimentary ticket issued by a proprietor of an entertainment shall have shown thereon the serial number of the ticket, the name and address of the holder of the ticket and the class of seat and the show and date for which it is available.

3. No person shall be admitted to, nor shall any person enter, any place where an entertainment is held or the purpose of witnessing such entertainment unless he is the holder of a ticket for which payment has been made or of a complimentary ticket permitted to be issued under these rules.

The form "E" calls from the exhibitors details of admission rates; number of tickets issued at each rate; number of complimentary tickets issued for each class of seats; the ratio in percentage of complimentary tickets to the actual sales; and the name, place and date of performance.

While we compliment the Government of Bombay on their quick action to check their racket of complimentary tickets, we must frankly state that we are not at all satisfied with the present proposed measure which, say the least, is half-hearted.

Even the proposed amendment is rather unhappily worded.

1. The word "ticket" in the proposed amendment can be construed as an admission permit for any number of persons. It should therefore be specifically mentioned that a ticket shall not provide admission for more than one person. This will stop the practice of issuing single complimentary ticket for 2 or 4 persons as is at present.

2. The proposed amendment does not specify whether percentage of complimentary seats permitted should be a percentage of the actual seats sold for a certain class in a certain show or a percentage of the usual seating capacity of a certain class irrespective of the actual sale of tickets for a particular show.

3. The form "E" should also insist on the exhibitors mentioning the particular show for which complimentary tickets are issued. At present only the overall daily report is required which gives the exhibitor a lot of scope for dirty work.

Apart from these technical flaws in the proposed restrictions, we do not at all approve of the 5 per cent or 10 seats per class rule which in our opinion is too generous a license for freebooting.

Assuming an average capacity of 700 seats per theatre for the 60 theatres in Greater Bombay, we have a total of 12,000 seats. 5% of these work out at 2,106 free seats per day per show, i.e., 48,300 free seats for the usual 23 shows of a week. The admission prices range from 5 annas to Rs. 3.10 per person. Calculating a minimum average cost of Rs. 1.4 per seat, the total loss in collections would be Rs. 60,375, which means a loss of over Rs. 20,000 in Entertainment Tax.

a single week only in the city of Bombay. That is a loss in revenue of Rs. 80,000 per month or Rs. 9,00,000 per year in Entertainment Tax in Greater Bombay alone. It is not difficult to calculate the annual pro-crential loss on this basis—and even the huge loss in re-teue all over the country in over 2000 cinemas.

We want to ask our Revenue Minister as to how he ifies this generosity to the freebooters entailing such huge loss in state revenue while the Finance Minister xing every thing from the cap to the shoe to make life of millions more miserable every day.

When people have to pay some tax or other even on ood which they primarily need for living why should ions of freebooters be provided with free entertain-every week?

It is, to say the least, very unfair that the necessities mions should be taxed heavily while thousands uld be given free entertainment.

In our opinion this racket of complimentary tick-be completely stopped. If film producers, distri-ers and exhibitors wish to provide free entertainment their friends, relations and lackeys, let them be made ay at least the Entertainment Tax on each free ticket issue so that the State does not lose any revenue and essed of being unfair.

II. “HINDU DOMINION” INDEED!

Though our best internationalist Pandit Jawaharlal Viru keeps shouting himself hoarse from his Prime ister’s pulpit that India is a secular state and not a Dominion, somehow his voice does not seem to reach the imperial ears of the British newsreel ducers.

To most of them India is still a “Hindu Dominion” ich the white boys lost because of the perverse policy he present Labour Government in Britain. A recent scel of the Gaumont British Pictures repeatedly ded India as a “Hindu Dominion” completely forget-the basic fact that there are still 40 million Muslims India not to mention Christians, Jews, Parsis and s.

At another time, describing the Operation Kashmir, Gaumont British newsreel commentator actually said, and Nehru poured in troops to save the Hindu min-Kashmir”.

How does all this sound in a secular state? What Churchillian school of politicians failed to do, the ont British newsreel department is probably tryto rectify. We admire the bull-dog tenacity of the ish people to hang on to their imperial traditions—the face of reverses but surely not at the expense of istorical truth that India is basically a secular state.

Any newsreel that is designed to give news to miltns all over the world must primarily contain truth.
truthful news becomes so much propaganda and one iders whether the Gaumont British Pictures are stog to do some dirty anti-Indian propaganda to re-colonial imperialism.

The Indian film censors who prick their ears at silly harmless words in film songs certainly could not been so deaf as to allow the Gaumont British Pices to describe India as a “Hindu Dominion” repealy in spite of the fact that India is a secular State.

But how can one expect intelligent censorship from people who allow Sita to be described as King Rama-chandra’s sister in an Indian newsreel produced by the Films Division of the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting of the Government of India?

If Sita can be Ram’s sister in defiance of the historical fact that she was his wife, why can’t India be a “Hindu Dominion” and Pandit Nehru send troops to ave the “Hindu minority”?

Probably, when Bombay goes completely dry, our censors will become more sober. That is one argument for prohibition anyway.

WHAT PRICE SCANDAL?

The Vigilance Branch of the Bombay C.I.D. arrested on 1st March 1949, two persons, Mrs. Shanti Bhorsikadam and Mr. Mohanlal Radhakison on a charge of “living on the earnings of prostitution of another person”.

This “another person”, as the report states, turned out to be no other than a film actress called Veena Kohli who is alleged to have been supplied by the accused to a bogus customer for the purpose of prostitution for a sum of Rs. 500/.

The Vigilance Branch in this connection is reported to have received complaints from many respectful residents of Malabar Hill that many film actresses were ARRYING on prostitution in a clandestine manner and thus vitiating the entire locality.

This is not the first instance of its kind where a film actress is alleged to have been supplied for the purpose of prostitution. There are quite a few more similar cases involving film actresses pending in the police courts of Greater Bombay. In another suit, a so-called film actress, Madame Kishori stands charged with alleged murder. The disgusting case of adultery between film actress Gita Nizami and Director Vedi has caused not a little sensation, the way it has been publicized in bold and catchy headlines by our film rags all over the country. The drunken brawl of film actresses Protima Dasgupta and Beenu Para with film actor Himalayawalla at the Ritz Hotel in Bombay made thousands of people wonder about the way in which film folks live.

The very fact that cases like these continue to disgrace whatever little vestige of reputation that is left to the credit of the Indian film industry with an increasing frequency and that procurers, pimps and their fellow-professionals can manage to thrive on the flesh of film actresses (both the genuine and the pseudo variety), tells its own tale.

As so often pointed out in these columns in the past, it is not by talking tall about “morality clubs” in the Producers’ Association and conniving at the evil from within that this scandal parade on our film front can be effectively checked but only when the movie mauls become conscious of the loss of their prestige which they need so badly in these days of our freedom to negotiate with the Government over different industrial problems.
No progressive industry in the world can afford to tolerage such disgusting scandals if it is ever to secure the patronage of the people and the government.

If the producers are not prepared to debar those convicted and sentenced for such serious offences as prostitution, rape, adultery and the like from working in film industry, it is time for the filmgoers to openlycott those films where such persons appear on theen. For, supporting such artistes is like nursingsocial crime.

even a section of Hollywood showmen is reported to have demanded a halt to the scandalous escapades of some movie stars after the indignation having reached fever-pitch with the arrest of Robert Mitchum for drug addiction.

One group of theatre-owners in America is said to have threatened to boycott all films that feature players who indulge in off-the-screen indiscretions and scandals.

And some of the recent raids of the Vigilance Branch Bombay have not only brought the scandals of a notorious section of the film industry to light, but given enough indication of the gravity of the situation which must not be ignored.

Let each one of this notorious fraternity in the film industry be made to pay the price of their growing disregard and violation of even the most elementary code of man decency and conduct in public before more pros and pimps succeed in invading the film trade to rip a rich harvest through star flesh which seems to be a greater lure and fascination for some of the sex-mongers than the common variety obtained in the brothel districts.

In the meantime the Criminal Investigation Department of the Bombay Police would do well to comb out the entire Shivaji Park area which has now become a stable of vice and gambling with little film artists turning their homes into brothels and film actors inditing and gambling till the earliest hours of the morning.

If the film producers, many of whom are perhaps not always as prepared to check this evil by boycotting bad girls and boys, let the Police Department at least cleanse the Aboute stable from time to time.

We must have some more decency to enjoy our hard-won freedom.

"NATH" AND "SWAMY" ON THE SCREEN :

Of all the idiotic things that appear in the Indian films the staggering exhibition of a Hindu wife always addressing her husband as "Nath" or "Swamy" is about the most disgusting.

In all these long years which I have spent on this planet visiting thousands of Hindu homes, some of them run on the most orthodox principles of the traditional Hindu life, I have not yet come across one married woman of any age, between 13 and 75, who has ever addressed her husband either as "Nath" or "Swamy" as Indian film producers would have us believe. Nor have I found in the religious scriptures of the Hindus any injunction to the Hindu wife to address her husband as "Nath" or "Swamy." And as a Hindu I have read all the important religious scriptures and hundreds of other semi-religious books of the Hindus.

And yet step into any Indian cinema showing a story of orthodox Hindu life and you will hear the cow-like Hindu wife calling her husband "Nath" or "Swamy" over a hundred times within two hours. It is a marvel how the husband, who like every man is heir to the proverbial brute, never turns round and strikes the woman even once for calling him such names which have no sanction either in society or in religion.

The three 'Ds' of story writing—Dave, Dwivedi and Daryani—and Muslim directors like Kardar, Yusuf and Mehboob are perhaps the most responsible persons in perpetrating this outrage on Hinduism, picture after picture, unconscious of the historical fact that neither Hindu society nor Hindu religion ever demands this form of address from a wife to her husband.

If there is one Hindu woman in India who addresses her husband in this manner she must be shot dead as a crazy woman. Never did a Hindu wife call her husband "Nath" or "Swamy" in India's long history nor is she doing now. But film producers keep telling us that the Hindu wife does "abuse" her husband in that manner and yet they claim to mirror the realities of Hindu social life in their so-called social pictures.

It is high time that some of our film writers and producers study contemporary Hindu social life as it actually exists in the country before they inflict on us such monstrous distortions created by their own imagination.

The Hindu woman who calls her husband "Nath" or "Swamy" is merely a myth of pedantic literature and as such has no place on the screen which is supposed to be a mirror of real life.

Let the screen writers and producers therefore kill these words once for all and rid the screen of a ridiculous anomaly which is neither Hindu nor Indian.

YOU'LL HARDLY BELIEVE —

That in the scramble for securing the Liberty Cinema, Manu's magic box at Marine Lines, Producer Mehboob got the better of Producer V. Shantaram with the result that "Andaz" pushed "Apna Desh" out of the hiden date. And yet V. Shantaram shouts that the year 19 belongs to him.

That though Manu’s magic box is name ‘Liberty’, has still the stink of the British boot. The way guests are asked to come in a lounge suit for the inauguration of the cinema. That is why perhaps Minister Morarji Desai could not be invited.

That Editor Baburao Patel refused to attend the inaugural show saying that he did not possess a lounge suit. Editor Patel, of course, doesn’t change the costume as frequently as V. Shantaram.

That V. Shantaram checked up the list of guests and made sure that no ministers were attending before they agreed to make an appearance in a lounge suit. The iru jacket would have made a bad mascot for Manu’s magic box.

That Keki Modi, the theatre multimillionaire, has turned from America, we are told, with a bag full of species from Hollywood. Hope it is not a bag of peaches! What a great national service anyway! And for returning! We would have missed him so much.

That brother Sohrab Modi seems to have become a secretive guy after his marriage. His “Mera Munna” skit at the Minerva for a week and crept out quietly, did no one even knew about it.

That Sohrab seems to have lost all interest in picture production these days the way he is seen taking Mehatab round the race course and establishing his reputation as a great sportsman. That is how Chandulal Shah also began and now his workers are waiting for the bonus promised three years ago.

That the theatre multi-millionaire Keki Modi has purchased some race horses in his wife’s name to keep Mrs. Modi some compulsory weight reducing exercise round the race course. Racing is such a strenuous exercise both for the horses and the horse-owners that perilous weight becomes so much water in no time.

That Keki Modi is very generous that way and sees every one running about till they run out of sight. That is why we don’t see any producers at the Central udos these days. That little Dewan probably exercises the producers too much till they become too slim in purs and physique.

That the latest landlady amongst film stars is the air-old Geeta Bali who is reported to have purchased a house at Versova. That is a long distance for the softened Kedar Sharma to go for a mere rehearsal.

That another one that is planning and designing a little palace of her own is Ranjana. And they say that 10 income-tax officers are working overtime!

That the news of the month is that little Nargis is waday allowed to go out alone for parties. When in folklets met her alone at Kamini Kaushal’s birthday party the other night, they all fell on their knees and raved for Jaddan Bai’s long life.

That even Suraiya was seen alone recently without her pan-chewing nanny. Times are improving and the irls too! It is such a relief to see overgrown girls going about without apron strings.

That even Munnawar Sultana has a mother who hails Indian pictures but not the money that comes from them. Strangely enough, Munnawar’s sister, Suraiya Sultan, also gets a large income from films without making a single screen appearance. Some girls are lucky.

That Bombay is definitely going to be a cleaner city from April seeing that Pandit Indra, Seth Chandulal’s Marwari bard, has signed up with South India’s Vasan for two years. Well, Madras won’t be worse than it is already. Can’t we send some more to Madras?

That with the departure of Pandit Indra, Sardar Chandulal won’t have anyone to hear all the diplomatic abuse the generous Sardar showers daily on Editor Patel’s head. Why not invite the Editor himself to hear the music directly once in a while?

That Sardar Chandulal need not feel so hopeless about the situation as Pandit Indra has left behind his brother and his son-in-law still working in the Ranjit Studios. These boys can officiate during the absence of Panditji and Chandulal can still exercise his lungs.

That following the Soviet principles, the M. & T. (Makhkhan & Toast) have prepared a five-year plan for producing a dozen great hits. The great hits of the last year were “Delhi Darwaza” and “Chungroo” both pictures which never travelled outside the covers of “Filmindia”.

That while politicians and Congressmen are fast forgetting Gandhiji, the film producers have suddenly started showing great regard and affection for the father of our nation. Like his ashes, which were distributed all over the world, the producers are cutting out bits from his funeral and grafting them to their pictures. Gandhiji has always been good business to film producers and he deserves this for calling films an evil.

That Bapsey Savava does not seem to have liked “Khidki” because her old friend Morarji Desai seems to have liked it. Shy is now searching for a house without a window so that what she shouts inside can’t be heard even by Morarji unless, of course, some little girl goes and reports it to him. In that case busy Bapsey won’t mind apologising all over again.

That the best way to punish Bapsey for her strong views on pictures and other things is to appoint her on the Censor Board. That is four hours work every morning and after a year of Indian pictures Bapsey won’t mind leaving the world in peace.

That Vijoo Bhatt has at last passed on his monopoly of Ramayana to Prem Adib the celluloid Ram of India and thus given a fresh lease to our long torture which we thought had ended with the inglorious failure of “Ram Baan”.

That Chunibhai Desai of Supreme has suddenly developed a concern for Islam the way he has made new prints of his old junk “Ghazi Salahuddin” for release in Pakistan. Now Chunibhai will be made the next mayor of Karachi and given another dancing “hoor” as a tease for his old age.

That quite a few pictures are changing their names and complexion these days to suit the Islamic climate of the Garden of Allah. The latest to be rechristened is reported to be “Chandrashekhar”. It is called ‘Mir Kasim’ and with this name it expects a goodwill passport to Pakistan. Who says that our film producers don’t know business?
Filmistan Ltd. an enviable producers of li

"Actress" is the story of a stage actress who wishes to raise the social stature of her profession by discipline and correct behaviour. Meena plays a role and the tears come to her eyes for only the pathos of plight.

Rehana, who plays the sister of the stage actress, is being given college education. She falls in love with Prem Adib, the hero when they sing a song on the radio.

Rehana can't be made to stick to the college and much against the wishes of her sister, she rushes to the stage and this time in a uniform to avoid detection.
Shehnai' and they have now her entertainer in Shehnai has always been a story of sighs and tears. And though love bears Rehana's life with loving impunity, it stays long enough to turn into sighs and tears which move the audience.

Love always needs an angle to give love a dark cloud of disappointment. Meena, the girl, also falls in love doing so love goes ting aims from the bed.

MOHINI GUL (Kuala Lumpur)
What is a damsel called respectively at the follow-ges: 13, 24 and 34?
That depends on what is in her lap. If she has toy then call her a daughter; if a man, call her a wife; if a baby call her a mother. The ages are immaterial.
VASUMATI R. VARMA (Cannanore)
Shai, I am not a beauty. But I can attract men.
is the reason?
It is a colour symphony—your green age and their green desires.
DHAYA RAO (Tenali)
What, in your view, is the significance of the appearance of the recent comet?
A South Indian astrologer told me that Gandhi ji became a comet and inspected the whole world from the top. I was amused at this fantastic imagination which only an Indian can be accused.

F. J. A. SOMJEE (Bombay)
When does darkness appeal?
When you wish to cover conscience with nature’s blanket and lull it to sleep.
M. K. NEELAKANTA RAO (Mysore)
Are beds the last place to look for comfort?
Wherever the body lies is a bed, comfort is the colour you take from the mind. Millions sleep more comfortably on street pavements than many do in their royal beds.
Do the dead find rest?
The poor and unknown do not. the great dead. Even Lady Mountbatten, an old and dear friend, disturbs the resting spirit of Gandhi ji every time she goes to Rajghat. Even in paying homage, the living disturb the dead.

V. PRAKASH (New Delhi)
What is celibacy?
Realizing old mistakes and stopping new ones.
What do you wish when you hear Karan Dewan sing?
As I never wish ill to anyone else, I wish myself dead. Karan Dewan’s music is the most cruel act of neighbourhood.
What role does the dopatta play in Indian pictures?
It can be thrown on the eyes of the censors whenever it is intended to reveal what should be concealed.

Mrs. P. K. SINHA (Lucknow)
Which is the most religious place for Hindus in India?
Their own homes, where the prayer and the lullaby can be sung together in the warmth of the home fires.
A. V. NARASIMHAN (Hyderabad Dn.)
Is the earth’s centre of gravity at: the Kremlin, the White House or No. 10 Downing Street?
The Kremlin, from which is trickling the lava that is changing the colour of our earth. Watch out for the final explosion.
MOHAN R.S. (Bombay)
Does Dilip Kumar sing himself?
Probably in the ears of his heroines but we can’t hear the words, though we sometimes see music in their eyes.
A. S. NAIDU (Secunderabad Dn.)
The poor man having many children trembles when he hears the approach of important festivals like Diwali, Pongal, etc., once in a year. What does the rich man think about it?

To the rich a festival is an opportunity to turn his money into crackers and disturb the neighbourhood. That is the only sound of money the poor hear.

I am told that “Jugnu” has now been passed for exhibition by the Bombay Government. What are the reasons for lifting the ban?

2,500 feet of film went out with the ban and the picture failed at the box-office.

What is the motive in producing pictures like “Apna Desh”, “Message of Mahatma Gandhi”, etc.?

One of the motives is cashing the people’s patriotism.

To learn more about the film industry it is not advisable that top ranking officials should go through “filmindia” every month?

They do and they know more about our film industry than our producers do. For instance producers like Shantiaram and Chandulal Shah never read “filmindia”—at least they never admit doing so.

MAYA MUKERJEA (Delhi)
Is there any film actress who thinks in pleasant terms of you?

Baby Tabassum. She is in love with me.

MISS ANIMA CHATTERJEE (Bankura)
Do old men sing?

Yes, while bathing. Hot water makes them musical and hot words make them dance.

What is a perfect family quarrel?

When words fill the stomachs and meals go begging.

What alarms a husband most?

A beautiful wife and a handsome friend.

C. K. ADVANI (Bombay)
Who rules the world: God or Satan?

God rules it but Satan runs it.

Differentiate a Congressite from a Socialist?

One has the bone, the other is barking for it. Both have the same pedigree.

D. NATARAJAN (Poona)
Why is it called a ‘spinster’?

Because ‘it’ missed the bus when the bones had good upholstery.

JAGDISH KUMAR (Naini Tal)
Should I bank on your intelligence?

You spend on it and I’ll do the banking.

IHAR SHAHANI (Bombay)
Is there any man who has mastered several tongues and has become a linguist?

Bombay’s Prime Minister, B. G. Kher, speaks fluently in many languages. And that is the man’s trouble. What he promises in one language, he tries to fulfil in another.

H. S. VENKATA Rao (Mysore)
Why is the Nizam non-violent now?

He has been maniaced.

Why do our college youths like Hollywood pictures?

There is more to see in them—often a symptom of love and legs. Indian legs are wrapped in ditional bandages.

Why are sportsmen broadminded?

Where did you get that? If you knew half things that pass off as “sportsmanship” you would love to remain a grocer.

What is married happiness?

A pre-marital ambition and post-marital age.

My father scolds my youngest brother often. We should he do.

Ask your brother to use ear plugs. They which give you on the aeroplane are very effective.

P. B. MADHAV Rao (Masulipatnam)
What do you think of ‘culture’?

A useful word these days to collect young and be friendly with them.

ONKAR NATH (Simla)
Why did Kamini Kaushal’s husband allow her to join the film industry?

Kamini is too smart and vivacious to be buried in a kitchen and be lost to the world. Her career was a wise decision of her husband.

ISHVAR V. MAHBUBANI (Bombay)
Can you give your impressions on marriage in U.S.A.?

Honey, money and alimony.

What is your opinion, as an impartial critic, at an average free Indian?

A somnambulist walking in the dark daven freedom grooping for food.

Do Indian actresses carry their babies with them when they go to the studios for work?

They leave them behind in charge of their bands who make good baby sitters.

If, according to you, beauty is an endless dream the blind, what is it to you?

An evergreen provocation.

Can a wife open her husband’s letters?

My wife does—over 16,000 every month.

Coin, clothes and costume—do they make a man happy?

They make her a coquette and a coquette in a court to be happy.

R. C. GARGA (Meerut)
Blush is characteristic of women, what is the characteristic of men?

Bluff.

GEORGE K. JOHN (Trivandrum)
Between an ill-tempered woman and an angry tiger whom do you fear more?
that.

G. S. SREENIVASA RAO (Bezwada)
Mr. Patel, can you lend your brains?
I sell it by bits. No lending business, after what Shakespeare said about borrowing and lending.

RUBY CHOUDHURI (Bankura)
Why does an ideal always remain away from man?
An ideal is like the rabbit that always runs ahead of the hound.

MISS NIRMALA G. ALIM (Bombay)
Is love a man’s habit or is it only a sentiment?
Love is a man’s argument, a woman’s illusion and a poet’s theme.

R. M. UPADHYAYA (Bombay)
I have never seen Jairaj with a happy smiling face.
Is he an opium addict?
No, he is worried about getting building materials for the tiny house he wants to build at Khar after 20 years of struggle in films. It is the Liberty cinema that has given him that look.
There are so many ‘isms’ existing in this world of today. Which one are you following?
Individualism.

M. RUKMINAMMA (Chittoor)
What a funny name—Himalayawala!
And what funny things he does too!
What is Santoshi’s lucky number?
Rehana, the aggregate of Santoshi’s talent in direction.
What has Winayak left behind?
A story for V. Shantaram to tell people.
How can nudism be made popular?
It is popular already but not legal.
What does Sulochana Chatterjee’s fatness indicate?
Success and sumptuous meals.
What is the message of “Andhon ki Duniya”?
It is better to be blind than use the eyes to see this picture.
Why does not Chandulal Shah dye his hair?
He thinks it has platinum and hopes to borrow on it some day.
My husband does not believe in kissing. What shall
I do?
Go to your doctor and ask him to treat you for halitosis.
If lawyers are debarred from politics, what will happen?
We shall have less talk and more work.
What is King’s English?
The English which our King doesn’t speak.
When does marriage become a public affair?
When the bugs from the bed travel to the neigh-bour’s chair.
Joachim Alva has become the Sheriff of Bombay.
What do you want to become?

I want to remain the critic. I wish Joachim becomes the Mayor and the Prime Minister. It is better to have a friend in these uncomfortable posts than yourself.

How to hold a slippery husband?

Let him run around the course. Like a tired horse he will ultimately return to the stable. Women lose their husbands in trying to hold them.

LAI SETHI (New Delhi)

Do you think freedom has improved the lot of the iron man?

Of course it has. Now he dies as a citizen of a free country be it from starvation, pestilence or prohibition. Isn’t that better than death under the British boot?

CHAYYA (Agra)

in India, when is the government going to provide television sets?

We need meal tickets by millions. Television is food for the overfed.

What is Shantaram doing nowadays?

Arrogating the year 1949 to himself.

ANTIL RATILAL BHATT (Kandivili)

Where would you like to be born in your next birth:
or Yankeeland?

I am like the traditional Hindu wife, praying or the same husband through seven births.

WAMITAR GUPTA (Bombay)

What is the definition of a kiss?

It is a whispering conspiracy between two pairs of lips.

KUMAR BOSE (Kankhal)

Who acts well among Nargis, Suraiya, Kamini Kauand Nigar Sultana?

Kamini is a coquette, Nargis a tragedienne and Suraiya is merely a crooner.

RAHMAN (Melvisharam)

That makes some old men often stare at young

Old age often looks at youth for sympathy and energy.

What is the difference between knowledge and wis-

Wisdom is inherited, knowledge is acquired.

What is wealth without health? Prosperity for the doctor.

My grandma says: Who goes to cinema goes to do-hell). What do you say?

Grandma has lived too long.

R. BAKHUR (New Delhi)

a Negro nation how is beauty measured?

Probably by the shine and shape just as you in the case of a black shoe.

TOR DAVID (Poona)

lost of the Sindhi girls seem to be very fond of.

Yes, till their parents buy motor cars. Wait a year more!

What has happened to film actress Sheela?

She is preparing Rama Shukul for prohibition.

MISS JAI DEVI (Hyderabad Dn.)

Why do lovers prefer moonlight for their honey-

In the moonbeams are the dewdrops of romance which while they cool the furnace yet feed the flame.

JAWAHIR S. THANVI (Jodhpur)

Who is the gentleman who has the honour of being called your “guru”?

Orphans have no “gurus” (teachers). Life is their book and poverty their incentive.

There is a strong rumour that Gope is trying a slimming course?

He will lose business and that will be too bad seeing that only recently he got married.

BABU THANVI (Jodhpur)

When you visited U.S.A last time did you go to Reno the ‘home of divorce and gambling’?

I did and saw some pretty women with the ugly divorce look in their eyes and a crowd of crazy men gambling their lives away. It is a town where our white-capped ministers will die with their eyes bulging.

What is your boiling point?

My mother-in-law.

What do you think of Khwaja Ahmed Abbas?

A journalist with a hoarse pen.

T. K. R. Nair (New Delhi)

Why do girls marry men they don’t love?

In a conventional world, love is still a black-market commodity for which both men and women have to pay heavily. And all haven’t the hearts to pay.

IMAM KHAN (Madanapalle)

You might have seen many men with bald heads but have you seen a woman with a bald head? What will you do if you see a woman with a bald head?

I shall commit suicide and so will Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru. It is too shocking a sight for aesthetic souls.

R. N. IYER (Channapatna)

Why is it the ideal wife is always somebody else’s?

And another he always wanted to marry.

Why is it that our so-called rising generation does not at all like to rise early in the morning?

Whatever human beings may do, a bed likes its seven hours’ load daily to keep itself in condition.

When a bed has waited long into the night, like a loyal wife, it is reluctant to throw out its weight early morning.

D. WILLIAM MOSES (Tanjore)

Mr. Patel, will you please appoint me as the trea-urer of the ‘Baburao Patel Relief Fund’?

You are welcome to the post because no one has yet sent a copper piece.

M. N. SRINIVASAN (Bangalore)
What is political ambition?
Organize workers and expect them not to be Communists.

SHABHA SHAH (Bombay)
What is 'middle age'?
The stage at which the feet are set to the future while the mind is hitched to the past.

GURSHARN SINGH (Nabha)
Do stars really affect one's life and fate?
Between the astrologers and the producers and their stars in heaven and on earth, our lot is not very happy.

VYAS R. NADGOUDA (Dharwar)
What is an election?
Mass suicide in which stupid crowds elect for their own funeral a few crazy guys as pall bearers.

V. N. MARGABANDU (Madras)
Why don't you think of Russia as an ideal state?
An ideal state does not interfere with the lives of other people.

A. M. K. SUNDARAN (Madras)
How popular are you?
I am spotted even in the cloakrooms of our cinemas—a wrong place to blush.

P. SAMBASIVA RAO (Waltair)
What makes a woman international?
Flying as Nehru's sister and reading written speeches.

V. M. BALACHANDRAN (Quilandi)
Whose handwriting is better: yours or mine?
Mine, because people bury what I write.

K. KRISHNAMURTHY NAIDU (Madanapalle)
What is the virtue of the rich?
Loyalty to their creed of capitalism.

MISS GOURROO KUSHALPA (Mysore)
Tell me what a woman's best hobby can be?
If she turns her hubby into a hobby, life will be one long romance.

PRITI PAUL SINGH (Sindia)
How will you define diplomacy?
Deep, low and messy.

U. A. PONNAPA (Mysore)
Though in reality lovers do not meet in jungles very often, why do lovers in movies meet there?
The talkies need silent spots to do good recording and lovers carry their romantic Bali all the way to the jungles and vomit it there. And yet we get the stink alright, so why worry.

SHEIKH NURUDDIN (Madras)
Passion is likened to a flame. Why?
It burns both the wick and the wicked.

---

Nigar is becoming more and more popular ever. Once again she leads in "Bikre Moti", a social film of Great India Pictures.

LALIT S. BOOCH (Bombay)
Whose Sardar does "Sardar" Chandulal Shree Ranjit claim to be?
He is the Sardar of film producers who produce "Jugnu", "Bhool", etc. A doubtful hero.
May I know what is your definition of religion?
Religion is the human conscience confine code book which people open to read quotas others.

A. N. NARAYANA RAO (Mysore)
Are there any Freemasons in the film industry?
Most of them are masons alright but not in the type you mean.
What is whirlwind romance?
An Aly-Rita roundabout.
What does a sly wink of the left eye mean?
Nothing, if it doesn't get a response from right one.
What is a sight of shame for men and Gods?
A woman in rags of costume and character.
When one falls in love with a fiery and belligerent girl, can he be happy?
If he is a baker by profession, fire won't sweep him.
Can one repeat an emotion?
Emotion is a constant flame of the heart, not a spark of the brain to repeat at inter — //
What is fashion and what is dandyism?

The white cap is fashion in the streets but dandyism in the ministerial circles.

What is the significance of Mahatma Gandhi having assassinated by a Hindu and that too a Maharashtrian?

A criminal has no community, no religion and no province. He is Satan’s son and as such a world citizen.

What is the function of criticism?

To destroy self-complacency and provoke new thought.

What are the ways of winning the heart of a woman?

Hearts are won with hearts. To win one you have to take one. It is an even chance.

Civilized society feels instinctively that manners are more important than morals. Why?

Good manners are a part of good morals. One compliments the other.

Is there any charm in a premature surrender?

It doesn’t give victory its glow of vindictive satisfaction.

Sin is a thing that writes itself across a man’s face.

Not on some of our white-capped faces with the oil of hypocrisy spread on them.

Does destiny send us heralds?

The bomb was the herald of the bullets that killed our saint but ears plugged with power politics could not hear even the blast of destiny and thus failed to protect Gandhi.

Do you like to be on a lonely island with a “sweet thing”?

Don’t tempt me with such questions. I am reading religious books these days.

Why does the world condemn some books as immoral?

The books which the world calls immoral are often the books that mirror the world’s shame.

How do you recognise a fool?

A fool introduces himself and doesn’t leave the world in doubt too long.

What are races?

Horses running with shoes of silver to feed the jockeys and the trainers.

When do beggars’ dreams always come true?

Always in sleep.

When the moon is almost gone, how do the lovers?

With the last moonbeams goes the final vestige of restraint and darkness soon lends realism to romance.

Can a beggar disguise himself as a prince?

The disguise will be successful only if the other beggars don’t spot him. Princes, of course, won’t as they don’t know what beggars look like.

Which is the land of your dreams?

This and here! But I guess my dreams are bad for it would be unpatriotic to call the land any names.

Is there anything special about a medico’s romance?

It ought to be aseptic at least if not actually smelling of disinfectants.

Have you ever walked in your sleep?

I don’t have to. My wife sleeps in the same room.

Which is the land of plenty in this world?

America! They have plenty to eat and plenty to burn.

What is political blackmail?

Organizing labour and threatening strikes.

Do you know anything about women?

Not much beyond the fact that they say one thing and mean another.

Nothing is real in this world?

Pain is, the way it enlightens both the rich and the poor.

Who is the dearest girl in the world?

The nearest and most willing.

How to kill a man politically?

It is not my game. Ask the other Patel.

When does a man slap a beautiful woman?

When the tongue shoots through the teeth and lips and stings a man.

What is the best saga of violence?

Bhagavad Gita. It destroyed a great race of warriors with the rhythm of poetry and punctuated by philosophy.

What do you know of politics?

That my bread is embittered and sleep disturbed. Isn’t that enough knowledge of politics?

What is the role of a moustache in kissing?

Well-trimmed, it might help to brush the lips before the impact.

What is social consciousness?

A virtue you expect in others.

When a woman speaks with the velocity of a mail train, what on earth can stop her?

The sight of your back. That is the time to take a brisk walk.

When does one suffer from an acute sense of security?

When luxury dulls the edge of imagination and the intoxication of the present clouds the vision for the future.

You like a man of spirit?

Not in these days of prohibition! Minister Morarji will send me to jail.

Some women have such a way of looking at men—

That men give a last look and die without a struggle. Where did you find these women?

When walls do come crumbling down, how to protect one’s self?

Put your back against them and smile. The smile may make the walls nervous.

Why is it that some old husbands having young wives are as blind as bats?

Passion gives a cataract to an aged eye and veils its vision.

Is the modern man bloody?

Hell! And how? He sheds blood. drinks blood and gives blood.

Is aiding and abetting a girl in her marriage a time in the eyes of law?

Oh no! Marriage is a licensed institution and the law doesn’t mind the litter it brings home so long as the girl you are aiding is not a minor.

Where are wives very scarce?

In Sindh, where the women are overemployed and the men unemployed.

Why were barbers surgeons in olden days?

Because surgery was a fine profession which required specialists. Now quite a few surgeons are barbers.

Sir C. V. Raman is of the opinion that newspapers, nemas and printing are the inventions of the devil. Is it correct?

Then as a scientist himself, Raman must be a devil too.

Are you happy because you are not a politician?

I am happy I am not a politician which, of course, doesn’t mean that I am happy otherwise.

SARANGPANEE (Nagpur)

What is the difference between ‘Swarga’ and ‘Jannat’?

In “Swarga” you meet Sadhus with bowls, while in “Jannat” you find “hoors” with sherbet.

KRISHNA PUROHIT (Kishangarh)

Ladies are more interested in critics than in politicians. Why?

Are they? Please send me their names.

G. SUDHARMA (Bombay)

Would you sum up your likes and dislikes in America?

I like the American people but dislike their politicians.

What do the Americans appreciate in us the most?

The beautiful saris of our women.

R. D. SANDHU (Agra)

Can you please tell me something about Gulab and Gope, my two favourite tomatoes?

Both are versatile and talented. Gulab has built a lovely new house recently while Gope has taken a charming woman for a wife.

G. RAJAGOPAL (Bombay)

Who brought the dowry system to our land?

War, which killed our young men through ages leaving behind a crowd of women, thereby disturbing the law of supply and demand.

Kr. RAJENDRA SINGH (Agra)

How much capital is approximately required to produce a picture?

One much boosted star, nine greedy distributors, one gambling producer, one stupid director and one idiotic story. That gives you an average Indian picture.

How will the film industry be affected by your death?

Death affects neither the dead nor the living, for life is an eternal current which instantly fills every void.

B. K. GHOSH (Lucknow)

When did you first begin to like girls?

In the cradle, when they gave me a doll with blue eyes and a pink frock to play with and I have been looking out for a blue-eyed belle all my life. Girls are introduced pretty early to the boys and in such an attractive manner too.

How many good men are there in this world?

I am one but no one knows about it.

What’s your idea about the insurance agents?

Social workers with thick skins.

R. B. SHRIRATTI (Dharwar)

Why don’t you wear a khadi dress like V. Shanta-ram?

Shantaram has changed his dress to suit the present political weather. When the Congress was in prison, this very man produced “Dr. Kotnis” without showing the common decency of mentioning the Congress throughout his picture though the story was based on the Medical Mission sent to China by the Indian National Congress. When the Congress achieved freedom and came into power and Shantaram took his “Dr. Kotnis” to America, he added a title to the picture acknowledging the Congress. It is such men that give our national dress a bad smell. And yet, Shantaram is Minister Morarji’s pet citizen and censor. I don’t believe in these weather-cock tactics of ceremonial costumes in the presence of political leaders. If Shantaram would imbibe even a fraction of Morarji’s honesty, sincerity and patriotism, we would have a better citizen than a producer. If he has learnt something from Minister Morarji so far, he should give an apology to our nation for disowning the Congress in “Dr. Kotnis”. But an apology needs manhood, humility and greatness, which qualities can only be proved by actually giving an apology and not by silence.

Here is one more of Suraiya in “Lekh”, a social theme of Liberty Art Productions.

KEDAR MANDIRA (Dehra Dun)
Have you ever wept in loneliness?
Men always weep in solitude as their tears move none. Women need a gallery for their tears which are called pearls by mad poets.

M. MOHSIN (Lucknow)
Does a man really fall in love?
Only in love stories and poems.

K. SHAKUNTALA (Mysore)
If Pandit Nehru is the heart and soul of India today, then what is Vallabhbhai Patel?
Brain and brawn.
Why did God create flowers?
To give the world His definition of gentle beauty and polite fragrance.
Most of the world’s beautiful faces have empty heads. Why?
If every flower had fragrance, the world would have become a great garden.

BISMIH PATHAN (Ahmedabad)
Have you ever known a producer getting nightmares after reading the review of his own picture in “filmindia”? One must at least sleep to get a nightmare. Our producers hardly sleep during the night.
Where is Russia?
All over the world, in prison and underground, entrenched in hungry stomachs and fanatic minds.

MISS VEENA RAM BOSE (Hardwar)
What is the address of Nargis?
Chateau Marine, Marine Drive, Bombay.

S. KRISHNANANT (Bombay)
Do you think that the Kashmiri Muslims will vote for India?
That is my prayer.

MADHUKANT R. DESAI (Bombay)
You criticise rotten Indian films but how do you account for the bad stuff we are getting these days from M.G.M.?
Who told you that M.G.M. always produces good pictures? For one good picture M.G.M. usually gives fifty rotten ones.

H. S. RAJAGOPAL RAO (Madras)
Man worries even if he has everything he needs to keep him from worry. Why?
Worry is a creature of the mind that lives on imagination. And there is no why about the humm.

DESI BHUSHAN JAIN (Delhi)
Can you say something about astrology?
The art of looking at stars in heaven and digging some gold from the earth.
What does romance mean to a widow?
Spring after a spell of winter.

P. C. SIDDALINGA RAO (Bangalore)
Are you in favour of offering animal sacrifice to God?

With a tax on chicken and mutton, all the birds and animals I can get I offer to myself and leave only flowers for God.

What is the difference between a king and a peasant in the grave where both are reduced to the same dust. A king rises from his grave and enters the book of history. The peasant merely throws some man dust into the womb of Mother Earth.

Mrs. SHAKUNTALA K. DESAI (Bombay)
Why is it a fashion in clubs and drawing room these days to discuss politics, English pictures, G.B.S and Baburao Patel of “filmindia”?

What an odd menu for an appetizer!
Is the Bombay Ministry composed of Morarji and Kher only?
They are the most photogenic and also the most talkative.

MOHD. ANWER BAIG (Karachi)
Do you think that bulging eyes and too prominent teeth like Suraiya’s spoil an artiste’s beauty?
But one needs some basic beauty to be at all spoiled by other features.

D. N. VISHWESWARIAH (Bangalore)
Is India a “spiritual country”?
Very much so, with one child in every five being a spirit before its first birth anniversary.
What is prohibition?
A grand funeral of the teetotallers with drum kards as pall bearers.

S. S. RANE (Bombay)
Do you think that the present rationing quota of cloth is sufficient for every adult? Tell me what can we do with ten yards?
You can cover three dead bodies with it.

K. G. MATHUR (Ghaziabad)
I loved, laboured and now lost. What should I do now?
ntaz Shanti has evidently a sad role to play in “Aahuti” — “Anokhi Qurban” produced by Sansar Movietone.

Begin the cycle all over again. One day you will lose yourself and feel that you have won.

h. CHAKRAVORTHY (Jorhat)
What is the relationship between the policeman and thief?
A comradeship of hostile interests.
Has Nargis got any extra qualification?
She has got her mother and two brothers who make the most out of her.

S. HYACINTH TORPY (Hyderabad Dn.)
If you can’t marry the person you passionately love, at other alternative is there left for you to do?
Being a Bohemian is an alternative which is not strictly moral.

MANIAN (Trichinopoly)
Why does the Defence department of India contain Sikhs?
We still labour under the delusion that the Sikhs are the best soldiers in India. It is an old British fairy tale which the Sikhs still believe.

V. MARATHE (Akola)
Do rich people beg and if so in what manner?
They ask God for more riches, long life and more children. They want their riches to get a longer run.

S. NARAYAN (Madras)
Do you think the Nizam is as innocent as he pretends to be?
The Nizam is too old in the tooth to be innocent. No one believes in the Nizam’s innocence.
If women claim equality with men, why should men surrender their seats in the busses to them?
Women never ask for those seats. Men give them because they want to be noticed for their chivalry. At best it is a selfish gesture.

SURESH (Jodhpur)
They say, filmindia is a boon to the country!
It is and I am a part of that country.

SURESH GUPTA (Jaipur)
As a medical student may I ask you as to what should be the chief aim of a medical man?
Pain is a prayer to God and a doctor must answer it if the divine purpose of his profession is to be fulfilled.

E. KRISHNAMURTHY (Bangalore)
What is the secret behind most of the pictures produced by Filmistan Ltd., succeeding at the box office?
They are produced for mass entertainment and the masses like them.

A. MUHYI KHAN (Allahabad)
What do you think of the sweet air hostesses of Bombay?
Air hostesses are saccharine sweeties good only for the diabetics.
One of my friends says you are an aristocrat. Are you one sir?
Oh, sure! I believe in that Urdu poet who said: “Ho faqirimen basar andaz shahana rahe”.

K. T. RAMACHAR (Waltair)
What exactly is your bank balance?
Rs. 3,012–. I have bought an Irish sweepstake ticket though.
What is your opinion about Andhras in general?
A rowdy people who talk too much, demand rights and often forget responsibilities.

DAYA KRISHAN AZAD (Jammu Tawi)
Is pickpocketing an art?
Till a policeman objects to it.

WAZIR CHAND CHOPRA (New Delhi)
Have you ever seen a Punjabi rot? If so, what is your opinion?
I saw a good Punjabi picture once, “Kurmai”.
The rot set in after that.

SUDARSHAN KUMAR (New Delhi)
Where does old age begin?
In bed.
Can reading be called work?
It is work for students and journalists.

What do you mean by “Quislings”? People who allow themselves to be hired for dubbing foreign pictures in Hindustani and thus help the foreigners to rob a poor country. Isn’t producer-director Shantaram fast losing his capital? Losing? He has left it behind in Poona in safe-keeping with Syed Fateh Lal. What has Shantaram to do with art these days?

G. L. PUSHPA (Bolarum Dn.)

Define Nehru’s government? A band of honest patriots presiding over a crowd of dishonest workers and leading a nation of 370 million undisciplined people.

N. NAGARKAR (Mangalore)

Why don’t you come down to the south? And see “Demon Land”?

Why does Vijayalakshmi Pandit insist on wearing sleeveless blouses even during cold weather in Europe? It is probably a concession to the cloth shortage in India.

What is your opinion about Pandit Nehru’s oft repeated threats of resignation of his office as the Prime Minister of India? I call it blackmail. A man who has dedicated his life to the service of his people has no right to threaten.

A. K. TAJI (Ambarnath)

Which are three front rank producers through whom we can expect pictures of high standard?

Kishore Sahu, Raj Kapoor and J. K. Nanda. But expectations often abort.

Will you please tell us about the journey of the motion man’s money from the booking office to the various sections, i.e., cinema proprietor, distributor, producer, etc.?

33 1/3% of your admission price—and sometimes more—goes to the Government as Entertainment Tax. From the rest usually 50% is taken by the cinema owner. After deducting the cinema owner’s share, the distributor takes 20% and hands over the rest to the producer. The producer therefore gets about 26% of your original admission price provided he doesn’t have to pay anything more in royalties, interest and black money to some financier.

What percentage of our film producers are able to adjust according to the changed political atmosphere of our country?

All acted well on the 26th of November last. They prostrated before Minister Morarji Desai.

RASTUJA (Guntakal)

What made Shantaram produce a Tamil picture?

To save the South Indians from Vasan’s tortures.

RAMANJUN (Trichur)

What is an actor without ego?

An egg without a shell.

Raj Kapoor and Rehana make a new team of lovers in “Sunhere Din”, produced by Jagat Pictures.

With such a wide circulation of “filmindia” in foreign countries, don’t you think that your reviews of our films as “stupid”, “boring”, “waste of celluloid”, etc. will create an altogether bad impression upon the minds of foreign readers about the Indian film industry in general?

In fact, many daily papers and periodicals in America and other foreign countries regularly reproduce what I write every month. To quote an instance, even the headlines on the reviews were recently reproduced by the Magazine Digest (Feb. 49, page 94). A bad thing must be called bad. To call it otherwise would be hypocrisy. The Indian film industry is bad and it can make only a bad impression both in India and overseas.

Aggarwal Hits Government For Their Apathy!

expects A Miracle With Educational Film!

(By, Our Special Correspondent)

It was in New Delhi and in totally unexpected circles that I heard stories of the articles on educational films written in “filmindia” by Mr. Goverdhandas Aggarwal, Managing Director of the National Education and Information Films Ltd. Knowing my association with “filmindia” a couple of now-unemployed princes with more money than intelligence wondered whether they could secure some shares of Mr. Aggarwal’s company and probably win a smile from Sir Vallabhbhai Patel for doing some national work in educating the masses whom they had only robbed so far. Not being an under-writer of C.P. I was amused for a while at the sudden awakening amongst our inces and touched by their kind filial attitude for our masses but when one of the secretaries whispered to me that his “Highness” was interested in merely investing money to best advantage, I refused myself the privilege of further amusement. Apart from these princes fishing for more profits, I was surprised at the keen interest shown by half-a-dozen educationists who considered Mr. Aggarwal’s articles provocative of new thought in a new field of national activity. Some of them asked me a number of questions to which I thought Mr. Aggarwal would have answered since he has taken up the none-too-easy responsibility of educating our people on deluxe lines with strips of celluloid from all over the world.

A “LOVELY” GUY!

A visiting card of “filmindia” is always a good admission ticket to the exclusive chambers of the busiest industrialist in town. It brought a big smile of welcome to Mr. Aggarwal’s young and chunky face behind a large desk in National House and pushing his papers aside he asked the conventional question: What can I do for you, sir?”

Nothing at all for me. It is all or you I replied. “Lovely” said Mr. Aggarwal, I wondered that was “lovely” about it.

“Mr. Aggarwal,” I said, “the editor wants me to ask you a few questions regarding your articles and your scheme of educational films”.

“Lovely”! said Mr. Aggarwal again. And I wondered again.

“What exactly is an educational film, Mr. Aggarwal?”—that is how I began the serious part of the talk and expected another “lovely” to fall out from Mr. Aggarwal’s smiling lips.

An educational film educates in the true sense of the word “education”. By acquiring merely the ability to read and write one does not necessarily get real education. Our present educational system has so far succeeded in merely creating a large crowd of glorified clerks who forget all their academic training in the very first year of their working career”. Mr. Aggarwal paused for breath and fiddled with his pencil. He resumed again: “In a free country the social, moral and intellectual stature of its people must be the anxious care of all patriots and educationists. This needs an all-round education not with quickly evaporating values but with firm and permanent mental impressions which must last a lifetime to provide guidance to a man. Books can train the mind to a certain point, but the average man can rarely retain any permanent impressions from books alone. To him must be given visual aid to fix in his mind permanently what he has been reading. That is where an educational film comes in—to emphasize with visual aid the instruction contained in a book. If the eyes see what the mind reads, the instruction goes deeper into the subconscious regions of the human mind and stays there for a lifetime. Don’t you think so?”

“Lovely”! I said. Mr. Aggarwal sounded like a fanatic missionary of education for a moment.

ANIMATED TEACHING:

“But do you think Mr. Aggarwal, that these films will some day replace books and teachers?”

“Not at all”, Mr. Aggarwal replied with impatience. “The educational film provides the teacher with one more progressive instrument of education. It helps him to illustrate his verbal teachings and give concrete visions to feed the imagination of his students. It lends animation to the dull and lifeless routine of our schoolrooms and thus sustains the interest of all students.

Raja Saheb of Chichli, H. H. Raja Saheb of Udaipur (C.P.) and Mr. Goverdhandas Aggarwal, partners of Tribhuvan Productions at the Bombay Races.
The educational film also saves time in imparting information. Take for instance the film, "Life of Emile Zola"! Within two hours any student can know the spirit, the purpose and the details of a great biography through this film. In ordinary course a student would have to read several books for months together to get a correct appreciation of the man and his work. Doesn't this save time in education?

"It does", I said.

"Lovely!" (Now, how did that come in at this moment?) Mr. Aggarwal continued: "The educational film cuts down space and makes the world fit in into a small classroom. The teacher can tell the story of the Atomic Bomb without taking his students all the way to America. He can vividly portray its power of destruction by showing pictures of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. He can turn his classroom into a museum of knowledge on all earthly subjects and unfold the world before the thirsty eyes of his students in one endless panorama of curiosity and instruction and thus supplement the descriptions in his text books by vivid illustrations. The educational film is actually a boon to the progressive teacher as he can at any moment open a thousand little tins of knowledge and bring the entire world with its latest research and events to the feet of the curious student. Can anything else do all this?"

"No!" I said.

"Lovely!" (Again!) Questions were out of the question now. Mr. Aggarwal had warmed up and I didn't like to disturb him. "Our statesmen talk too much and get exhausted too soon to put all their talk into action. They give us lectures on civic behaviour, national discipline, trade honesty, food growing, health and hygiene and what not. But mere words, however convincing, cannot create concrete images in the listeners' minds. People must see things to believe them. All these lectures and sermons must be illustrated by visual demonstrations which show how contemporary life is being lived in other modern countries. Then and then alone will the words take shape in action in the lives of millions. And all this can be done only by the educational films. There is no other alternative in the whole wide world. Is there?"

DEMOCRACY OF MUSCLES?

"No" I said.

"Lovely!" (By now I had realized that "lovely" meant "o.k." and Mr. Aggarwal uses it as a sort of a breather). "Democracy! Adult franchise!" said Mr. Aggarwal. These are words that will mean nothing without true education. There can be no true democracy in our country with an illiterate electorate. We have today 85% of our population illiterate. Are we to give these people adult franchise and ask them to govern us knowing fully well that they are themselves rank illiterates? The rule of the illiterates is no democracy. What is an adult? A person who has reached maturity! In a human being it must be both maturity of the mind and the body. Unless it is so how can a human being be different from the animal? But the present proposal of adult franchise gives a vote only to the physically mature seeing that 85% of our people are illiterate and mentally immature. Age and muscle are to be the attributes of our future voters why not give the right of franchise to goats, bullocks, donkeys and other animals? This age franchise which is contemplated by our national government will sound the death-knell of our newly got freedom and our future dreams of democracy.

"Our most urgent problem is to teach these illiterate masses to read, write and realize first before we award them with the right to vote and decide the destiny of our nation. The present conception of adult franchise is like giving a burning torch to a monkey and permitting it to set fire to a whole country.

"But it is no easy task to educate 350 millions. It is impossible to do so in our present schoolrooms with their conventional curriculum of teaching. But it can be done with the help of the educational films—and not necessarily in school rooms but in open fields and right on the door steps of our villages where our millions live. Our people can be taught to read and write if necessary and those who are too old to learn the routine alphabet of education can still be educated in a truer sense in civic responsibilities, self discipline, agriculture, and million other aspects of national life—all this within the shortest time and in a language the people can understand. Don't you think so?"

NO SYMPATHY EVEN?

"Yes", I said.

"Lovely!" said Mr. Aggarwal emphatically. "Nothing in the world that affects the lives of millions can be done without State support. But no one is asking the Government for monetary support. It is no secret that the Government has no money and all glorious pre-freedom promises are waiting to be fulfilled.

"But sympathy, which is a charitable sentiment of the human mind and free in addition, is also being denied to people who are preparing to do pioneering in this field and risk their funds and prestige. No one is going to make a fortune in the field of educational films. But that should not stop national-minded people from entering this field. After all money is not the only reward of labour.

"In a country beset by poverty, famine, pestilence and ignorance the greatest return to the pioneer in this field must be the quiet satisfaction of having brought happiness and enlightenment to millions as a result of his labour. Don't you think so?"

"Yes, of course, but Mr. Aggarwal, how do you expect the Government to express their sympathy in concrete terms, seeing that a monetary subsidy is out of the question present?"

"The sympathy of the Government is a great moral support in any enterprise" said Mr. Aggarwal. "The Government should insist on due importance being given to visual education in schools and colleges and make their grants to such institutions conditional to this aspect of education. This will automatically stimulate interest in visual education and within a few years a large number of our educational institutions will be actively engaged in showing the educational film as an all-important supplement to the usual text-books."

EIGHT ANNAS A MONTH?

"And let me assure you that it not at all going to be as expensive as ignorant people imagine this visual education to be. With eight annas a month per student, any school or college can arrange as many as eight educational shows a month for its students. That is not much of a penalty for the incomparable benefit gained. Is it?"

"No, but —"

"No, buts!" cut in Mr. Aggarwal. "Even parents would willingly pay eight annas per month more for their child once they realize the lasting benefits of visual education. All that is needed is a realization on the part of the Government of the stern necessity of introducing visual education in our educational institutions to build up a great nation of free people."

"Do you expect the Government to produce such films, Mr. Aggarwal?"

"Not at all!" Mr. Aggarwal replied. "Such films must be produced by private enterprise to obtain a detached and versatile approach to the subject, as state-produced films are often likely to contain propaganda which cannot be completely divorced from the ruling politics. There should be no politics in education. Don't you think so?"

"Yes" I said.

"Lovely!" (Once again!) said Mr. Aggarwal.

"But where can you get so many films and how will you distribute them?".

FIELD VANS IN VILLAGES

"The world is already full of educational films on every subject under the sun and the work of educating our people need not be delayed a day longer than necessary" said Mr. Aggarwal. "Besides, films treating our peculiar problems and suitable to the genius of our people are already being produced in the country and this production activity can be multiplied as the demand increases.

"These films can be distributed to all the educational institutions by establishing urban, district and provincial libraries stocked with constantly changing subjects. Institutions which can afford their own projection equipment can hire these films at small rentals and return them after use.

"For those schools without equipment, fully equipped field vans with a portable library of subjects can be used charging small hires per show. The charges must necessarily be the minimum to make the scheme of mass education a success.

"The Government should appoint provincial and central advisory councils to guide the producers of educational films and prescribe subjects for schools and colleges.

"There should be no import duties on projectors and other equipment used in Schools. For, all the masses cannot be educated in schools alone. Open air shows in villages will have to be given at minimum prices to educate our masses."

"Doesn't all this sound too idealistic, Mr. Aggarwal, in such a vast country like ours?"

"It does. But then did we ever expect our freedom so soon? Did we ever expect that Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel would paint the map of India in one colour? Well, miracles happen in this ancient land of miracles. Why not one more?"

"Lovely" I said that and ran out before Mr. Aggarwal repeated it.

Abbas Writes A “Progressive” Story of “Actress”!

Filmistan Gives Another Frivolous Entertainer!

Even “progressive” writers like waja Ahmed Abbas have to live d pay their grocers regularly and are therefore not surprised at the progressive” stuff given by little abas in “Actress”. We are, however, grateful to him for sparing us big blush by making his hero rush the toilet room when a dozen teee college girls threaten to strip n in a train compartment.

This picture of Filmistan is on par th their “Shehnai” in quality and intents. It has songs, dances and uplift mainly intended for the masses.

It is a story of two sisters—one a large actress and the other a college d. The actress, realizing the social stigma attached to her profession, is anxious to give her little ter a good education and get her married to some respectable man in od society. The younger one, however, likes the stage.

Now comes Prem Adib, with a ost voice which we are told is divinely musical. Both the sisters fall in love with him but he loves the younger one while enjoying the patronage of the older sister. This creates the usual heartburnings and misunderstandings till the climax is reached in which the little sister jumps into the sea and is taken for dead; a motor accident takes away the hero’s eyesight temporarily and the actress-sister gives a suicide act.

Of course, the little one comes back alive, the hero’s eyesight is restored and the big one never takes any poison but taking a progressive view of things gives her little sister away to the big boy. That ends it.

As Abbas has written the story we must accept it as “progressive” because he knows more about this fascinating word than we do. But it seems so easy to do this sort of “progressive” writing that even we could have done it in our inspired moments.

COLOURLESS DIRECTION

The production values are as usual—careful in parts and negligent sometimes. The songs are attractively tuned and pretty frivolously worded. We greatly admired the discipline of the spectators who walk out of the theatre quietly every time they see a dance or hear a song. Each theatre sequence has only one item for which a large crowd comes every time presumably from different parts of the town. And the same audience dresses differently for the respectable shows of the elder sister in contrast with the cheap showmanship of the younger one.

Yes, we noticed this change in costumes but we wish some spectators in the front rows had also worn different faces to lend more realism to the idea.

The direction of Najam Naqi is as colourless as his own face.

Meena looks too heavy as “Ragini”, the actress. Bar her nasal Punjabi, she gives a pretty good performance. Rehana dances well as “Kanini” but fails miserably with tears in her eyes. Her hair-do is a silly scream which neither helps her face nor soothes the eyes of the filmgoers. Whoever thought of it must be an idiot.

Prem Adib should never remove his shirt to expose his ugly, deform ed and manly physique. It is punishment enough to see his face in a hero’s role without adding this additional insult to an old injury. This boy doesn’t do much in this picture as an actor, David is getting boring with the pimpling complexion which he invariably gives to his roles these days.

Well, “Actress” is a “progressive” picture because Abbas wrote it and presents frivolous entertainment for the masses because Filmistan produced it.

“pugree” becomes a popular entertainer!

dixit gives a great performance!

producer p. n. arora deserves congratulations for giving us a picture which is at once entertaining and instructive. taking a topical theme of the present housing shortage and the inevitable “pugree” racket practised throughout the country, arora has emphasized in “pugree” quite a few home-truths about this all important national problem, with gentle sarcasm punctuated by some natural humour.

tramp and philosopher

seth kalidas, described as a money-maniac, makes life at home unbearable both to his wife and his daughter, roopa. the wife lives with her own parents while roopa lives in her college hostel. that leaves seth kalidas’s city mansion unoccupied whenever kalidas goes to mussoorie for a change of climate.

during his absence from bombay, ramu cha cha, a tramp, philosopher and friend, enters the city mansion of seth kalidas by the backdoor and enjoys the luxury of the untenant ed house, sharing it with his dog chic-koo.

this is evidently ramu cha cha’s peculiar solution to the problem of housing shortage because when seth kalidas returns to bombay, ramu cha cha moves out to mussoorie to occupy the other bungalow.

ramu, of course, a neat and conscientious type and whenever he is in occupation of either of the two houses, he considers himself as a housekeeper and works for his board and lodging by looking after the house and not allowing even his dog to spoil or damage anything.

the story opens with ramu cha cha’s annual occupation of seth kalidas’s house in bombay. he enters the house through the backyard and through a fan light and soon makes himself comfortable in seth kalidas’s expensive clothes and lights one of the seth’s expensive cigars to soothe his nerves. ramu makes full use of the over-full larder and manages to avoid detection whenever the bhaya watchman makes his routine inspection visit.

but this city season of ramu cha cha was destined to be eventful. he soon collects basant, an unemployed architect who has been thrown out of his humble digging by the manager of seth kalidas, and accepts him as a ward and guest in the house.

they are, however, surprised when roopa one day visits her father’s house to collect her clothes. not knowing who she is, they take her for another unfortunate soul and extend their hospitality to her. roopa, intrigued at the idea, plays her part without revealing her true identity and soon becomes an active member of ramu cha cha’s temporary household.

more people come in when jaggu, a friend of basant, arrives in the city with his wife, their child and his little sister and cannot find any place to live in. this entire family moves in to live under ramu cha cha’s patronage in seth kalidas’s house.

trouble begins when seth kalidas suddenly returns to bombay in search of his daughter who is reported missing. but roopa meets him on the way and prepares him to play the role of a helpless tramp and join ramu cha cha’s hospitality kitchen. much against his will seth kalidas agrees to do so. roopa later brings her mother also on the scene.

with this crowd in hand, the writer gives a number of gags which while being extremely entertaining also become philosophically instructive. in the end, seth kalidas is cured of his money-mania, basant takes roopa as his wife and ramu cha cha moves on to mussoorie without knowing that one of his erstwhile guests was the very man who owned the bungalows.
Dixit, with his brilliant performance, makes “Pugree” a rare entertainer.

Dixit, with his brilliant performance, makes “Pugree” a rare entertainer.

It is a novel type of a story which though thin in places is yet sufficiently enterprising to deserve special praise.

TECHNICALLY POOR

Technically the picture is a bit poor, the photography being indifferent and the recording of dialogue pretty careless. Even the back projection work is very clumsily done. Quite a few songs are tuned attractively but the words are not very happy. In the first half we find a few unnecessary songs and dances, probably to give Shashikala an extra break. The Shashikala appearances, however, prove a drag on an otherwise bright story. The dialogue is good and with a bit more of imagination the screenplay could have been packed with more situations.

Anant Thakur’s direction must be rated as good and enterprising considering the fact that this is his maiden effort.

DIXIT BRILLIANT

From the players, Dixit, our fat and philosophic comedian, swallows the entire crowd of artistes by his brilliant performance as Ramu Cha-cha. He lives the role and the way he does it, the others look amateurish. Dixit is at once great and brilliant.

Kamini Kaushal struggles bravely before this mountain of an actor and wins second honours in the role of Roopa. Gope is completely outclas-
OUR REVIEW

Suraiya Fails To Draw Crowds In “Gajre”
Motilal Gives An Intelligent Portrayal!

Those idiots who believe that Suraiya is the only mascot of box-office success should visit the theatre where “Gajre” is running and count the occupied seats which is a much easier job than counting the vacant ones.

With Suraiya singing as many songs as one woman can and throwing her clumsy weight about in gliding movements, hardly any one in the audience gets interested enough to sit through “Gajre” which has become one long marathon of killing boredom.

And Geeta Nizami with her peeping moustache and sagging figure adds to the boredom by giving us some hybrid dances which we have seen so often on the screen.

If these two women—or shall we call them stars?—could not attract enough people to fill a show, one wonders by what stretch of imagination can the producers think that any particular star is a box-office guarantee?

The miserable failure of “Gajre” should provide one more warning to the Suraiya-crazy producers who think that their success is guaranteed by securing Suraiya or some other star.

AN IMPOTENT THEME

The story is both silly and thin. Mohan, an army doctor, returns to his father’s place on home leave and is lovingly received by his brother Sohan and their ward Asha.

Asha loves Sohan and Sohan loves Asha but both nurse their love without the other knowing. Mohan is a good and gentle guy and he also loves Asha but secretly. This secrecy of love is the general theme of the story which is full of suppressions and frustrations. It is an impotent theme with impotency sublimated as a virtue.

For no earthly purpose, social or dramatic, a singing girl is introduced in Tara. She sees Mohan and gives up her bad profession and starts worshipping him till she dies from sheer exhaustion of devotion.

The game of mental suppression goes on for quite a while punctuated by Asha’s songs and Tara’s dances till one day Mohan discovers the mutual love between Asha and Sohan. Handing over one to the other Mohan visits the grave of Tara who had died sublimating her love for him and then goes back to war. That ends it.

The only relief in the picture is its end which takes an agonizingly long time to arrive. But when it does, every one feels tremendously relieved. The end is thus the most popular part of the picture.

MOTILAL’S GREAT WORK

The music of the picture is pleasant and classical but against the background of very poor situations, the songs fail to appeal. Photography is beautiful in parts though inclined to be a shade more shadowy than necessary. Too many shadows make the frustrative theme almost morbid. The technical direction is quite good but the thinness of the story material hardly gives the director any opportunity to show his skill in emotional situations.

From the players Motilal gives a superb performance in the stoic role of Mohan. Motilal’s performance is almost on par with Noel Coward’s work in “The Scoundrel”. Motilal is so seasoned an artiste that we are sure that the director had hardly anything to do with this excellent portrayal.

Suraiya plays Asha and makes an awful mess of things with her frequent music and clumsy gliding. Her bulging eyes and none-too-graceful figure contribute substantially to her idiotic performance.

The other girl, Geeta Nizami, seems to be suffering from glandular deformity the way she reveals a peeping moustache over the upper lip. With this superfluous growth and the odd faces she makes, Geeta Nizami becomes a disgusting sight on the screen, even though she gives a couple of hybrid dances with plenty of unnecessary eye work. Her dialogue reminds us of the Punjab we so badly want to forget.

Sankatha does his part pretty well as the hero’s father and seems to have forgotten his old stagy dictation.

And yet in spite of Motilal’s unforgettable performance, “Gajre” remains a terrifically boring picture which makes one look away from the screen more often than at it.

Cuckoo, easily the most graceful dancer we have today, lends charm and rhythm to “Singaar” a social story of Haldia-Nanda Productions directed by J. K. Nanda.

OUR REVIEW

"Ghar Ki Izzat" Is Trash Supreme!

Idiotic and Boring Picture of Daryani

This is another of those idiotic stories with reactionary contents which we see so often on the Indian screen. Murli Movietone's "Ghar Ki Izzat" is trash supreme and it is a pity that an educated and experienced writer like Mr. K. S. Daryani has dished out this absurd and idiotic stuff.

OLD, OLD MESS
The story opens with Chaman (Gope) ironing the suits and saris of the family as the poor son-in-law of the rich family of Seth Chunilal (Dixit). Chaman does this work with an idiotic song and is soon interrupted by his wife Radhika (Manorama), his father-in-law and his mother-in-law (Gulab) who plays the tiresome old shrew of the family.

After a flimsy quarrel, Radhika's sleeping self-respect is suddenly hurt and taking her husband she walks out of the house to live on their own by sweat and labour. They take up insurance canvassing jointly and are soon shown as doing well.

The contrast to this rich life is shown by the introduction of another family of two brothers and a sister—all dreadfully poor. The big brother, Moti (Jeevan) is unemployed, the little brother Gulab is schooling while Roopa, (Mumtaz Shanti) the sister, is a teacher in a school.

After singing an unnecessary song with some national sentiment—the producer illustrating this song needlessly with Gandhiji's funeral shots—Roopa, taking her cue from Subbuluxmi of the South, decides to sing and dance to turn her little school into a high school.

Thus taking society's licence to romp about with ticket books in the hand bag and a good cause as an excuse, Roopa meets her waiting lover in Chandra, the son of Seth Chunilal.

The usual stage scene with a silly song and an unnecessary dance make Roopa a great social worker and when she asks the audience to loosen their purse strings for a good cause, they completely misunderstand the cause and taking Roopa for a professional dancer throw coin and currency on the stage.

All this, however, brings Chandra to Roopa's house and Roopa soon forgets everything about the high school and begins cooking with Chandra. After the usual sentimental stuff and traditional obstacles, Roopa and Chandra are married and Roopa is brought to Seth Chunilal's house as the daughter-in-law of the family.

Now Chandra's mother (Gulab) goes into action and making Roopa the time-honoured target fires the usual crackers. Chandra, portrayed as a successful lawyer, can't even defend his own wife and ultimately when he finds his wife yielding to the whims of his mother, he walks out of the house to drink and gamble. Overnight he becomes a drunkard and Roopa takes to bed.

Radhika, the sister, now gets moving according to plan—and after the usual tussle all are brought to their senses and love and harmony are restored in the family.

The story has neither purpose nor intelligence. Daryani wants us to believe that a clever, self-supporting young lawyer allows his beloved wife to be unreasonably tortured by his own uneducated mother to a point of desperation which makes him a gambler and drunkard. We have yet to see young drunkards and gamblers turning a new leaf suddenly after a minute's lecture by their sisters.

WASTE OF GOOD ARTISTES!

It is a pity that a set of good artistes is wasted on such worthless story material. Ram Daryani's technique of direction has now become obso- lete. Not once does he show any intelligence or imagination in his work. Both sound and photography are indifferent. The music is dreadfully poor throughout and one wonders when the temptation of repeating that tune: "Ghar ghar men divali" from "Kismet" on the sight of Mumtaz Shanti will disappear from the screen. The dialogue is unnecessarily stagy and fails to appeal.

Mumtaz Shanti gives her usual good performance as Roopa and gives a small but graceful dance in addition. Manorama walks about furiously throughout the picture and Gope keeps her company rolling around. With his thick eyebrows and overgrown top, Dilip Kumar looks like a little bear escaped from the zoo. He gives the same stereotyped performance as usual.

Dixit is the most natural of the whole lot in his portrayal of Seth Chunilal.

To sum it up, the picture is a boring trash with not a moment of relief. It can neither entertain the filmgoer nor pay the film exhibitor.
A poor Prabhat picture is perhaps greater shock to film-goers than a bad Ranjit picture. The Prabhatists are still conscious of art, though Prabhat has not given any artistic picture recently, and they like to look at a Prabhat picture with an extra critical eye in search of some art which they do not find in pictures produced by Bombay film folks.

In this respect "Aparadhi", Prabhat’s latest social picture, is a sore disappointment. In fact, the entire picture, from the story script to its creen presentation, is a poor amateurish effort.

A STUD BULL’S JEALOUSY

In the first half of the picture, we see a clumsy athlete chasing a girl like a stud bull and ultimately landing her into a marriage with him. No sooner he begins his married life a revolutionary patriot takes shelter in his home as a refugee from law. This man makes the athlete unreasonably jealous and he suspects his wife of an affair with his revolutionary friend.

The second half of the picture is one long episode of sadism and presents quite a few morbid situations in which the young wife is ill-treated while pregnant and driven to take shelter in her blind father’s home. Later the athletic stud bull steals her child and attempts to betray his best friend for whose head a price of Rs. 5,000/- is offered.

After a bit of shooting and underground activities, the revolutionary patriot is arrested—with heard and all—and the misunderstanding in the athlete’s gymnastic mind is removed. It ends well.

BANKRUPT DIRECTION

The theme is mainly that of blind jealousy on the part of a none-too-intelligent husband but to strike a topical note the other man is made a revolutionary. The story is very thin and the screenplay is remarkably poor with the result that the whole affair becomes awfully boring.

The photography is pretty good but the sound recording is very poor. The music is typically Maharashtrian being conventional and lacking in pep and rhythm. Not a single tune appears. The direction is disarmingly poor in imagination. The attempt to illustrate songs with Zulus dancing is to say the least absurd and ridiculous. Why had this director to resort to the Zulus when the story was essentially Indian? Couldn’t he have found our own aboriginal races to stage a dance? There are many crazy things in the picture which only contribute to prove the utter intellectual bankruptcy of the director.

VERSATILE MADHUBALA

The only silver lining to a long dark cloud of boredom is the sparkling personality of Madhubala. Whenever this girl appears on the screen she brings relief to the audience. In the heroine’s role she beats everyone else hollow—though she has not much to beat—and gives a versatile performance with sighs and smiles.

Ram Singh plays the athletic stud bull and not even in a single shot does he betray any pretensions for screen acting. The man plays the idiot all along and looks one every inch. Pran looks quite like Achhutrao Patwardhan in his revolutionary patriot’s role and as such gives a pretty intelligent performance.

The picture fails to appeal because of a poor story and poorer direction.

AT HOME AND ABROAD

ROWDY JEWS
Berlin, February 21.
The British picture, “Oliver Twist”, provoked hundreds of Jewish demonstrators to stone armed German police outside the Juribel cinema in the British sector of Berlin on the 21st February. Their temper was aroused, it seems, because the film contained anti-Semitic propaganda. When the screening of the film was temporarily suspended the demonstrators sang Israeli national anthem.

PROFITABLE PICKPOCKETING
Calcutta, February 16.
With deficit budgets and the ever-increasing spiral of taxation, pickpockets in Calcutta will soon have to bear the burden of an enhanced entertainment Tax.

At the forthcoming session of the Bengal Legislative Assembly, an amendig bill seeking the enforcement of the existing Amusement Tax on cinema tickets is to be introduced. At this rate, the Government will make more profits out of the film industry than the film people themselves.

NEW FISH
Hollywood, February 16.
Hollywood star, Esther Williams, a mermaid of Indian film fans, is expecting her first baby sometime in August.

PRAYING FOR ACTION
Madras, February 10.
Mr. T. S. Ramanujam and Mr. K. Natesa Naicker, met Mr. K. K. Menon, Secretary, Development Department, on behalf of the South Indian Cinema Employees’ Association on Wednesday, the 9th February. They urged him to take early steps to see that the award given by the Industrial Tribunal in respect of service conditions of cinema employees in the city was implemented. It seems to be a case of more wards and no rewards actually.

MICE DERBY
Hollywood, always notorious for its outlandish approach to life, has gone to get itself interested in white mice racing.

This white mice racing is the test craze at Hollywood parties. They are run on the same lines as the horses and some of them are named after famous male and female stars. Thousands of dollars change hands on the result of the little events.

We saw a mice-Derby when Minister Morarji Desai attended the producers’ meeting in November last. And the mice-Derby was also won by Chandulal Shah.

GOOD BUSINESS!
Madras, February 16.
Reviewing the administration of the Madras Entertainments Tax Act 1939, for the year 1947-1948, the Government of Madras were satisfied with the collection of the tax and its administration. There was no legal or administrative difficulty nor was the assistance of the Police Department sought for.

Some of the salient features are as follows:—The total number of entertainments held during the year under review was 3,93,759. 675 entertainments were exempted under Section 8 (1) and 24 under Section 8 (2) of the Madras Entertainments Tax Act.

Revenue realised during the year was Rs. 72,72,404; in cash and cheques, Rs. 1,42,739 in the form of stamps. The balance at the end of the year was Rs. 53,309 of which Rs. 46,885 was subsequently collected.

1,061 offences were compounded. Prosecutions were launched in 94 cases. Other cases were pending at the end of the year. The Commercial Tax officers received 45 appeals and one revision petition during the year and two appeals were pending at the beginning of the year.

The increase in revenue as compared to the previous year is attributed to the increase in the rates of tax from January 1948, stray entertainments and exhibition of popular films.

NATURAL DEATH!
New York, February 15.
Miss Patricia Ryan, a well-known radio actress who had played the lead in a radio play “Valentine for Sofia” was found dead in her apartment on the night of the 14th February.

According to the Police, the death seems to have been due to natural causes.

FAST WORK!
Hollywood, February 15.
Hollywood star, Jeanne Crain is expecting another visit from the stork. She is already the mother of a twenty-two month old son, Paul Brinkman Junior, though Jeanne herself is hardly 21. Is she by any chance multiplying on the Indian scale?

Hubby Paul should answer that!

TEACHING YANKEES:
Washington, February 16.
The Indian Information office in Washington is reported to be fast creating an interest in the American masses for Indian documentary films under Mr. Frederick De Mello.

Twelve television groups transmit regularly nineteen documentary films which deal mostly with cultural subjects. There is also a demand for films depicting modern developments in India and it is up to the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting to supply the necessary films.

ANTI-INDIAN AGAIN!
New York, February 24.
Indian students in New York picketed the Rialto Cinema in Times Square in protest against the showing of that slanderous film “India Speaks” on Thursday the 24th February.

The film had a two weeks' run during which time the students approached the authorities to withdraw the film from circulation. But one listened. So Mrs. Shankuntala Jagannathan and Miss Maria Mathew distributed protest pamphlets in front of the cinema, where gauze posters showing nude women being “sacrificed” to Buddha were exhibited.

This particular film “India Speaks” is already ten years old and there must be some special reason for reviving a rotten film now to vilify India.

What is the Indian Embassy in Washington doing?

BANNED AND CANNED!
Istanbul, March 4.
“Confidential Agent,” a Warn Brothers' picture has been banned by the Turkish Government, because the Spanish Ambassador said that the picture threw too favourable a light on the Spanish Republicans in the Civil War.

During a debate in the Gran National Assembly, Dr. Kurtulu demanded that the film should be withdrawn from the screen in Turkey. He said that Graham Greene, the author of the story, was “a well-known left wing writer,” and Messrs. Warner Brothers were “notorious for the production of left-wing propaganda films.” The sentence “I am a soldier of the world,” spoken by Charles Boyer as well as the complete scene where Charles Boyer urges the Republican workers to go on strike in order to cut Franco coal supplies were considered objectionable.

Can't the Indian Ambassador in America act similarly in case of “India Speaks”?

PANICKY AMERICANS
Four people were reported killed when a mob in Quito, Ecuador attacked a radio station which had terrorised them by reports of an invasion of the earth by creatures from Mars.

The report of the attack was relayed from Guayaquil, Ecuador and broadcast from New York, and the announcer called the pre-war radio play by producer-actor Orson Welles which had caused thousands of New Yorkers to flee from their homes.
rape from the H. G. Wellsian monsters.

CUT DOWN WITH CONSENT

Madras, February 11.
Answering a question by Mr. T. Puttapiraman in the Legislative Assembly, Mr. T. S. Aminshilingam, the Education Minister of Madras, stated that the South Indian Film Chamber of Commerce and the board of Film Censors were informally consulted before the order restricting the length of feature films be exhibited of each performance 13,000 feet was issued.

According to the Education Ministry, the general orders were that a film should not exceed three hours. The length of the main picture was limited to 13,000 feet and an educational film of 2,000 feet has to be shown with it. If there was a picture, say on the life of Mahatma Gandhi, which exceeded the prescribed time limit, the Government were agree to grant an exemption.

ROYAL PHOTOGRAPHIC SOCIETY

The 94th annual exhibition of the Royal Photographic Society will be held at 16 Princes Gate, London, S. W. 7, from the 9th September till the 26th October 1949.

Selling Tea for Planters

Calcutta, March 7.
The Ministry of Commerce is planning a documentary film on “drink more tea” with the help of the Indian Tea Market Expansion Board, perhaps to teach the Indians to drink more tea and find a ready market for Indian-grown tea.

The shooting of the film will start in a month’s time beginning with the actual tea gardens.

TAIL TALK

Madras, March 6.
At a meeting of the Cine Technicians’ Association of South India, Mr. T. Aminshilingam Chettiar, Minister for Education appealed to the film producers to make useful documentary films for use in schools.

Said Mr. Aminshilingam, “I want members of the profession from the lowest actor to the highest technician to have the strength, courage and self-respect to refuse to take part in any film or show which may be degrading to themselves or to others.” He also stressed the fact that this could be done only if the film folks drew up a high code of honour to guide them in their work.

Dealing with documentaries, he said that Government would purchase films up to Rs. 10,000 for use in schools and the scheme would start functioning from next year.

Producers have heard such sermons before. What they require is a law to enforce a code of production.

PROSECUTE THEM

Ahmedabad, February 26.
A ceiling fan in the 3rd class of the Pratap Talkies, Ahmedabad, dropped down seriously injuring a Muslim boy, Sabir Badruddin. The boy is stated to be in a precarious condition in a city hospital.

The theatre owner must be prosecuted for this and so must the Electrical Inspector who is supposed to check up the theatre fittings at regular intervals. The parents of the injured boy must demand heavy damages from the theatre owner due to whose negligence this accident has taken place.

ALL BLACK

Bombay, March 6.
Film star Rehana had a stroke of bad luck on the night of 25th February. Thieves broke into her house at Amritagarh, Kurla Road, Andheri, and are reported to have decamped with Rs. 10,000—cash and jewellery worth Rs. 10,000. It is a black deed on a black night.

It is reported that director Sontoshi took Rehana to the Police station immediately and lodged a complaint.

Thieves seem to have become more efficient than the income-tax officers these days the way they know where all the gold dust is stored by the stars.
MY HOME IS YOURS TOO!

'A copy of the September 1948 issue of your magazine came into my hands by rather a circuitous route recently. I found it extremely interesting and must congratulate you on producing a magazine which is highly amusing in parts and highly frank in others.

That your criticisms should be accurate is evident if they are to give any value in shaping the development of India's film techniques. In protecting India's film industry against what I consider to be insidious Western influences, India common with other Oriental countries has a culture of its own which we in the Western hemisphere know only too little as you point out in one part of this issue. Film India and films showing this culture at its best uninfluenced by Western ideas would receive a welcome as did Ram Gopal's presentation of dancing (try poor musical accompaniment!)

as you see many of your sentiments are reflected by some of us British people, and in particular I am wholeheartedly with your criticism of Korda's 'Baghdad-kahor'. I would however hasten to add that most people here realized that this film was not technically correct and was purely entertaining fantasy.

"But this was not my purpose of writing to you. It is because of your statement at the bottom of the right column of p. 25 that I can quite honestly say that the vast majority, not all you will note, of British people are neither sour nor regretful about India's independence. We regard it as a logical step in India's development and one which people like yourselves deserve. We know what freedom means and hope for friendly cooperation with all free peoples including Indians. I agree that one might not get this impression from the actions of our politicians or our countrymen who were previously in your country, and I would implore you not to judge us all by their standards. We in Britain know the arrogance of some of our colonial people and dis-like them for it as much as you must have done.

I regard it as unfortunate that you adopt your sour attitude towards us and share it with your readers, but I must agree that you people have good reason to be so. However if you are going to treat all of us as enemies, I can assure you that I am going to do my best to show Indians that Britons are not like what you have come to know us.

"You, Sir, are welcome to make my home a second home if ever you come here to England."

HULLO, BADAHI!

"Recently I went to a local cinema to see an old favourite picture. Before the actual picture began we were shown the Indian News Review, a Government of India round up of Indian news. As I guess, this programme was meant for the information of the masses but the commentary was so strictly in Hindi that I wondered whether this was produced for the sake of our Munshis, Pants, Tandons and Kathijus, instead of the teeming millions who understand only simple Hindustani. The titles were also in the Nagari script, thereby keeping millions of people from knowing what was being shown. It is not a state secret that the present Government is against Urdu but isn't it in the interest of the nation to use Hindustani both in the Nagari and Persian scripts? By using only the Devnagri script our Government is keeping millions of Indians in the dark and making them foreigners to their own language. Why not follow our beloved Bapuji and give us simple Hindustani, as it was written and spoken before 15th August, 1947, in both the Nagari and Persian scripts? It is no use talking of following the ideals of Gandhiji when some of his most faithful followers like Mr. Munshi and Govind Vallabhai Pant want Hindi, a language understood by hardly 10% of the Hindustani speaking millions, as the lingua franca of India.

"As for this Indian News Review, it would be a mercy of mercy if the Government stop producing the same. The technicians, the directors and the editors of this department of the Government of India are utterly incapable of doing anything intelligent. It is a waste of precious celluloid in these days of film shortage to produce films so dull..."
and insipid backed by a commentary fit to be understood only by Pandits and not by any other person who claims to understand Hindustani. As it is we get fed up of seeing so many senseless pictures.

I NEED SYMPATHY

"After seeing the filthy stuff called "Ram Ban" I had nothing but sympathetic appreciation of your capacity for sitting through such a rotten film to the end and also looking through Monier's and Valmiki's RAMAYANA and writing such well informed and thoroughly irrefutable criticism of the film.

"If this has deprived you of Simplex advertisement as you say in your March issue it speaks volumes for the producer's mentality and the effectiveness of your piercing criticism. So long as producers or distributors exhibit such tender skin and touchiness to your criticisms there is still hope. Though it is indeed a pity that after your crusade for so many years against worthless films made by money hungry magnates, still there is no appreciable improvement in the quality of film producers and consequently in their films, yet it is a hopeful pointer that producers attach so much importance to your criticism and cover before it. I said I had sympathetic appreciation for your efforts.

"I have told you why I appreciate. The sympathy is due to your having to see such rotten films day in and day out and spend your time in writing reviews on them."

OUR SHAME OVERSEAS

"Unfortunately for most of us overseas your reviews of some pictures reach us long after these pictures have been released for general screening here. The picture "Jugnu" was given a tremendous amount of publicity here before it was released. It was shown simultaneously in two leading theatres for about two weeks to packed houses. When I saw it I did not like it in the least but I could not voice my opinion as I did not feel sure. When I saw your review I was very glad to note that you had the same objections as I had regarding this picture.

"The natives of this place, the Malays, are very fond of Hindustani pictures. Very often one finds that the audience in a theatre is 60% non-Indians. If such pictures are shown to these people they will have a very poor opinion of our colleges and educational institutions. I earnestly hope that you will succeed in getting the pictures censored before they are sent overseas. These pictures do a lot of harm to us by slandering our college life at home."

NAGPUR NUISANCE

"Practically in each and every cinema theatre of the Nagpur C. E. except the newly overhauled Bha Cinema, not a single new reel produced by our newly constituted Film Division is shown before the commencement of a show. Exactly at the scheduled time, the cinemas start rolling out the main feature when a good crowd of 3rd and 2nd class audience is still struggling to get tickets.

"It may here be suggested that if the practice of exhibiting new
SLEEPING CENSORS!

Nowadays our South Indian producers are producing pictures like "Mohini", "Demonland", "Magic Horse", "Chandralekha" and "Balaraju". These pictures are full of miracles, stunts and absurdities, but they are "box office hits". The public is not in a position to understand, why the Madras Censor Board is allowing to exhibit such pictures. Can't the Madras Censor Board, consisting of 24 intelligent, and veritable personalities, ban such stupid stunt pictures, and save the people's money?" ELURU. G. Ramjogi.

PITY AND DISGRACE!

"On 30th January when the entire world was paying homage to the sacred memory of the Father of our nation, all business was suspended in the Bangalore City area, including all the theatres. But the cantonment area had a different story to tell. All the picture houses were open and business was in full swing. The theatre owners must take the responsibility for thus destroying the solemn significance of the day. It is a great pity that the very people who flaunt their patriotism so ostentatiously, could not give up their business even for one day, in memory of revered Bapu." T. Somasundara Rao. BANGALORE CITY.

SELF-IMPOSED TORTURE!

"In the Lakshmi Talkies at Sambalpur the chairs inside have been placed so closely that one finds great difficulty in passing through the rows. The hall is not sound-proof and has been built so imperfectly that the sound keeps echoing inside and hence nothing is audible.

"Again if you put your feet below the chair then the mosquitoes do not allow you to witness the picture comfortably, and if you place your feet on the back of the chair in front of you then the man in front turns and looks at you with an angry stare.

"Is not the saying 'Do ghantaki qaid aur chaar ana ru mana' true?" Harishankar Mahapatra. SAMBALPUR.

"RAM BAAN"

"I have not failed so far to read any of your film reviews but none has made such a deep impression on me as your review of "Ram Baan" in the February issue of 'filmindia'. I had never even imagined that our producers and writers, and Hindus at that, could be so mean and callous and deliberately distort even our sacred scriptures to suit their commercial needs. Alas! how does their conscience allow them to adopt means, foul beyond words, to achieve their ends?

"With his blood boiling at such shameful deeds of persons, who we regret have to admit, are flesh of our flesh, how can any critic help using the language that is the only one understood by the so-called producers, who, in fact, are worse than the worst criminals. As a matter of fact, no word is too strong to condemn the vandalism of the producers, who do not even leave the Gods in peace! I am, therefore, extremely surprised to know that Minister Morarji should call you a critic who "uses very strong language always."

"As mere banning of "Ram Baan" will be just a flea-bite to Vijoo and Mohanal Dave, they should be given such a deterrent punishment as to drive away others even from contemplating similar misadventures with our great epics."

A. V. Narasimhan. HYDERABAD.

CENSORS AGAIN!

"If you want to know to what depths our motion pictures have dropped during all these years I would suggest you to see "Chand Ki Chandni" a picture produced by I.A.P. Patel and directed by Dwarka Khosla and which has been released at four prominent theatres in Delhi.

"Believe me Mr. Patel that it is a criminal waste of celluloid which we so urgently need to educate our masses and which is in very short supply.

"The picture opens with a suggestive Madhokian song by Rehana who moves her hips and rolls her eyes in a suggestive manner. In short the whole theme revolves round Rehana who is becoming a headache for decent people. The picture at best is a slap on the very face of our Censors who are reported to be more vigilant these days." NEW DELHI. M. P. Bhatia.

DIWAKAR'S HEADACHE!

"Last month I saw quite a long 'short' entitled "Police Action in Hyderabad", which was screened along with a regular show at a local cinema. After seeing this 'short' I wondered why our Government had not banned such a stupid film. In this film we are first shown two pictures of the Nizam and Kasim Razvi. Then follow dull sequences or rather takings of a couple of our tanks firing in the air (as if they were engaged in a mock battle) and quite a few of our men lying on their stomachs vainly trying to spot the Razakars and the Nizam's forces. Not one scene of actual fighting is shown in this film, probably because it was entitled "Police Action."

"The next scene is an army man pulling out a mine near the gates of Hyderabad. The triumphant entry of our troops into the State capital marks the following scene. Then we..."

are shown quite a few Razakars who were taken prisoners. Most of them old men fit to be grandfathers of Kasim Razvi. Imagine these old people looting trains, creating disorder and in short threatening to disturb the communal equilibrium of India!

"Was the Razakar organization made up of old men? Did our army invade Hyderabad to fire shots in the air? Our army's glorious march into Hyderabad to end the reign of terror could have been filmed and kept as a record of national importance if the job has been entrusted to some one who knew how to click a camera. This film should be banned immediately if our Government has any sense of dignity and if it cares to protect the glorious tradition of the Indian Army."

LET US PRAY!

"I am one among those who gladly welcomed your review of "Ram Baan". It was really interesting for me to go through your comments in detail and I cannot but congratulate you for your frank, fearless and humourous criticism which is fully justified.

"It is hoped that such constructive criticism will be taken to heart in the quarters concerned and will ensure that the future pictures will be completely shorn of all imperfections."

BOMBAY. P. V. N. Sivamy.

REMINDER FROM BEHIND:

"The proprietor of the Tower Talkies, Tanjore has constructed another theatre called "The New Tower" at a cost of approximately Rs. 3 lakhs. Though the cost seems to be rather high, the amenities provided therein are too poor. For example, the seven-anna-seats are so closely fixed that the knee of the man at the back kicks the back of the man in front."

V. Rajagopalan.

NEGAPATAM.

WELL, MORARJIBHAI?

"The other day I went to see "Nai Reet" of India Film Corporation. Its advertisement cries thus: "Rights of women vindicated in India Film Corporation's progressive picture "Nai Reet"." But to my astonishment it turned out to be just the contrary. The 'hero' turns his faithful wife out of his home, with his parents looking on silently, only because she has got no modern education, and brings in her place another woman who can speak English.

"This is absolutely ridiculous especially when the first wife is shown as an ideal one. Later both the couples are granted divorce, goodness knows how and why. And the man who is crazy about possessing an English-educated wife, once the wife of a principal, marries her asking his first wife to go away. This pattern of life is indeed strange to us. What are the members of the Censor Board doing under the supervision of Shri Morarji Desai? Is it right that a woman should be turned out of her home only because she does not know English?"

PICTURES IN MAKING

INDUSTAN CHITRA (Bombay)
Kishore Sahu's ambitious production, "Sawan-Aya-Re", has been completed and is now in the editing room. Not used to resting, the ever-ardent Kishore is busy getting the script for "Rim Jhim" ready. Rhim Jhim" stars the petite Ran lal opposite Kishore Sahu.

ATIONAL THEATRES (Bombay)
"Hul Chul", their maiden picture, produced by K. Asif and directed by S. K. Ojha from a screenplay by Shabnam has made good progress. The picture stars Nargis and Dilip Kumar. The supporting cast is led by Shrien with Nasir and Yakub. Said is directing the music.

ALDIA NANDA PRODUCTIONS (Bombay)
It is difficult to find a more conscientious director than Mr. J. K. anda the way he has been working "Singaar". Film fans will have something to wait for if some of the opinions we have heard about this picture are true. Director J. K. anda is now putting all his brawn and brain to make "Mehfil" another attractive picture.

AGAT PICTURES (Bombay)
A host of good artistes seems to be the main attraction in "Sunhere Din", their second picture now on the sets. Some of the artistes are Lehana, Nigar Sultana and Raj Kapoor. "Sunhere Din" is being directed by Satish Nigam and the music is tuned by Jnan Dutt. The third one planned is called "Shair".

ULISTAN LTD. (Bombay)
Their picture "Actress" has created a new record in the box-office collections at Calcutta by collecting over Rs. 1,00,000 in four weeks. In Bombay, where it is running at the Novelty, it is also doing well. Three more pictures, "Shabnam", directed by Bihhuti Mitra, "Samarhi", directed by Ramesh Saigal and "Sargam" directed by Santosh are making good progress at the studios.

MADHUJAR PICTURES (Bombay)
"Bazaar", directed by K. Amarnath, is reported to be doing record business in Lucknow and has been accorded a warm reception in Bombay by sensible filmgoers. The paper work for the next picture has already started.

SANSA MOVETONE LTD. (Patna)
"Aahuti", or "Anokhi Qurbani", their social picture, produced by L. Shanker and directed by Kul Bhusan, starring Mumtaz Shanti and Sapru and supported by Ranjit Kumari, Prem Kant and of course, Cuckoo, is now ready. The music is by D. C. Dutt. With Mumtaz Shanti in the lead, one can at least expect a few graceful dances, if nothing else.

HIMALAYA PICTURES (Bombay)
While "Nazraana" their maiden production, starring Kamini Kaushal, Geeta Bali and Kanu Roy is progressing at the Modern Studios, Andheri under the direction of Jagdish Pant, Producer Gopal Singh Nepali and music director C. Ramchandra are busy with their forthcoming pictures, "Naaz" and "Naz qat". Lt. Col. Drona Shumshere Jung Bahadur Rana, the man behind this concern, has disposed off the distribution rights of all the three pictures for Delhi, U.P., East Punjab and Bombay.

KAMAL KUNJ CHITRA (Bombay)
This new concern is making headway with "Amar Kahani", starring Suraiva, Jairaj and Ranjana completed and the paper work of the next picture in hand. We congratulate Producer S. Ranjai on his speedy work.

AKASH CHITRA (Bombay)
With a good picture like "Lal Dupatta" to his credit, Producer K. B. Lall is optimistic about "Angrai" starring the vivacious Madhubala. The next one is called "Haste Aansu" and will go to the sets shortly.

It was a grand party Mr. Sood gave on his wife's (Kamini Kaushal) birthday. Here are some guests: (Left to right) Mrs. Karanji, Mrs. Kishore Sahu, Kamini Kaushal, Mrs. Sushila Rani Patel and Mrs. Ashok Kumar.

JUSTICE PICTURES (Bombay)
Producer Jamnadas Parakh has completed “Hamari Kisnet,” a thriller, directed by the stunt-director Nari Ghadiiali, featuring Agha, Prakash and Shanta Patel in the leading roles.

VARIETY PICTURES (Bombay)
They chose Seth Kundandas Re-wachand of Wassiamull Assomull & Co., instead of the usual Congress minister to perform the “muhurt” ceremony of “La Jawab” on the 7th March. The picture is being produced by Ashalata and directed by J. P. Advani. Once again, Rehana features as the heroine and of course, hubby Anil Biswas is giving the music for his wife’s picture.

ASPI PRODUCTIONS (Bombay)
Director Aspi Irani is already halfway through his maiden production, “Sipahiya” featuring Madhubala and Yakub with Agha, Altaf, Husn Banoo and the popular dancer Cuckoo.

SUPER PICTURES (Bombay)
Yet another new concern of this name has already completed a stunt picture under the direction of Nari Ghadiiali, named “Billi”, featuring Nadia with John Cowas in the lead, supported by Shaikh, Manchi, Azim etc.

NEW LIGHT FILMS (Bombay)
Their maiden picture “Maang” written and directed by Saghir Osman, featuring Romola, Wasti, Amar, Mubarak etc., is expected to be ready for release soon. Ghulam Mohamed is reported to have given lilting music.

KULDIP PICTURES LTD. (Bombay)
“Chunnariya”, their maiden picture was released last month at Bombay at five theatres. They now expect to release “Lachhi”, a picture in Punjabi, in North India, while “Naach” starring Suraia, Shyam, Wasti etc., will go to the sets this month. Husnialal and Bhagatram will direct its music.

GREAT ORIENT PICTURES (Calcutta)
“Azadi-ke-Baad” produced by S. C. Shah and directed by D. K. Chatterjee is now in the editing room and proprietor B. N. Bahl is busy selecting the cast for “Bey Watan”, the forthcoming picture in which he promises to introduce some new faces. The first picture, according to the producer, will be a memorable production—let us hope so! It features Ashit Baran, Mira Misra, Tandon etc. K. P. Sen is in charge of music while Pinaki who worked once in the Udayshankar a sincere artiste like Mumtaz, director Wali could do a lot to make an emotional picture.

SADIQ PRODUCTIONS (Bombay)

Floated by director M. Sadiq, this new concern is producing “Sabak”, its maiden picture, directed by M. Sadiq, starring Munawar Sultana with Chandra Mohan. Om Prakash, Jiloo Bai and G. Jagirdar. Asim Bazidpuri wrote the story and dialogue, Shakil Badayuni the lyrics and Shyam Sunder is entrusted with the music.

LIBERTY ART PRODUCTIONS (Bombay)

Their maiden production “Lekh” starring Suraiya, Motilal and Sitara with Ishu Jagirdar, Chamanpuri, Anand Pal and Suraiya Chowdhary is now complete. Directed by G. Rakesh, the picture has 14 songs of which 6 are sung by the melodious-voiced Suraiya. Mulgaonkar and Shripad have been responsible for the audiography and the Mistri Brothers—Fali and Jal—for the photography. The producers expect “Lekh” to be a great box-office hit, counting upon the performances of Suraiya and Motilal.

SHREE RANJIT MOVIE-TONE CO. (Bombay)

Of the three pictures, reported to be under shooting last month “Bhool Bhoolaiyan” is now complete.

GREAT INDIA PICTURES (Bombay)

Their musical picture “Bikhre Moti” directed by S. M. Yusuf and featuring Nigar Sultana, Jayant, Mumtaz and Sheri is halfway through. The music is given by Chulam Mohamed and, according to director Yusuf, distributors from various territories are making stupendous offers to secure the rights.

POPULAR INDIA PRODUCTIONS LTD. (Bombay)

Jawahir Lal Chaturvedi is producing “Ma-Ka-Dil”, and like all new producers has a hopeful outlook and claims that such a great subject has never been attempted before on the Indian screen. The story is written by Chaturbhuj Doshi to whose credit stand several Ranjit pictures, while the cast led by Paro includes Ulhas, Sharda, Kuldip, Mirza Musharaf etc. The picture will be directed by S. M. Yusuf. The ‘muhurt’ was performed last month at the Deccan Studios, Poona.

BENGAL NATIONAL STUDIOS (Calcutta)

“Ek Aurat”, their maiden picture, produced and directed by S. D. Narang and starring Geeta Shree, Narang, Hiratal, Sundar, Smriti etc, is awaiting release. Their next is “Lottery”, starring Kaushalya and Sunder, directed by G. Singh, and yet one more, also produced and directed by S. D. Narang, called “Nai Bhabi”, starring Kaushalya, Amarnath, Sunder and Maya Banerjee is also ready for release.

ROOPKALA NIKETAN (Calcutta)

“Bapune-Kaha-Tha” described as a picture dealing with India’s fight for independence is being produced by Producer Nandalal Jalal and directed by K. K. Varma, with Mira Misra, Shrutindra, Praditdhar, Paresh Banerjee and Pahari Sanyal in the principal cast.

FAMOUS PICTURES (Bombay)

With the success of “Pyar ki Jeet”, director D. D. Kashyap, is reported to have made “Bari Bahan” another box-office proposition for Producer Baburao Pai. The picture stars Suraia and Rehman with Geeta Bali and Ulhas in the supporting cast. Another, “Hamari Manzil”, featuring Prem Adib, Nirupa Roy and the versatile Yashodhara Katju and directed by O. P. Dutt is more than half completed.

Culture Centre at Almora has composed the dances.

IDEAL FILMS DISTRIBUTORS (Bombay)

This new distributing concern floated by A. C. Patel of Messrs Patel Brothers, dealers in films and cinema machinery, has started business with the distribution of K. B. Lal’s “Lal Dupatta” and is also controlling the rights of Akash Chitra’s forthcoming pictures “Angrai” and “Haste Aansu.”

SUPER TEAM FEDERAL PRODUCTIONS (Bombay)

“Meri Kahani”, their maiden picture, reported to be in the fins for several months, is scheduled for release at the local Super after “Usha Haran”. Directed by Keki Mistry, it features Munawar Sultana and Surendra in the leading roles. Meanwhile, the songs for the second picture are recorded and work on the sets is expected to start shortly.

One Way Friendship!

Since the "cease-fire" in Kashmir, Pakistan is at war with us. May God bless Pakistan!

The Government of India are very anxious to main- and promote the most cordial relations between the dominions to enable the Kashmir problem to be solved in an atmosphere of amity thus removing the last vestiges of friction between the sister dominions.

With a view to supplement their sincere desire, the Government of India have issued strict directives to the Producers Association, the publishers and the film producers not to use the words "propaganda against the other dominion but on the other hand contribute to the improvement of the present inter-dominion relations between the two dominions.

The press and the film producers, always sympathetic to the wishes of our government, are observing these new directives in deed and spirit.

But it takes two to maintain cordial relations and one needs a new friendship. If one man offers his hand the other man twists it causing agonising pain, how can a new friendship be ever formed?

That is precisely what is happening beyond the borders of the Indian Union—at least in the film field.

In East Pakistan, the film censors have ordered that films containing the Indian Dominion flag and national slogans shall not be shown in Pakistan. In an effort to promote the Bengali Motion Picture Association of Calcutta, the East Bengal Board of Censors has said, "it would be inadvisable in the interests of both the producers and the distributors of films to allow such films to shown in Pakistan".

This order from East Pakistan has come three months after the inter-dominion conference held in New Delhi agreeing to maintain inter-dominion friendship and cordiality.

Neither India nor Pakistan objects to the display of Union Jack in Gaumont British newsreels from week to week, in spite of the fact that we have been under the British boot for 200 years. With freedom we have forged the past and acquired the grace of tolerance and living Great Britain as a sister dominion, we have taught ourselves to consider the Union Jack as a friendly symbol of a friendly nation.

If Pakistan can tolerate the Union Jack, is it too much to expect her to permit the Indian National Flag to be shown on the screen in Pakistan, to promote inter-dominion cordiality for which the Indian Union leaders are struggling day and night and in doing so expect the press and the film producers to co-operate with them sincerely?

Can friendship be a one-way traffic?

It is not exactly a state secret that Indian films are not popular in Pakistan. In Lahore and Karachi many interested people are carrying on a continuous crusade against Indian films labelling them as "propaganda of Indian culture, language and way of life containing a threat to Islam and Muslim culture". Indian pictures have been held responsible for "corrupting the purity of the Urdu language which is a vital force for Islamic culture in Pakistan".

Do friends, new or old, talk in these words?

When "Shaheed", Filmistan's picture with a national theme, reached Pakistan, the press in Lahore described it as an anti-Pakistani film and demanded banning the picture completely from being shown in Pakistan. Some even wanted the print of "Shaheed" to be burnt in the streets.

Does this contribute to the intended inter-dominion friendship and cordiality?

Before the partition of India, the film trade in the Punjab was almost exclusively controlled by the Hindus. Today the Hindus who owned theatres, studios and distribution offices in Lahore cannot return to Pakistan. Their business organizations are being run and managed by Muslim nominees. And now? There are 19 cinema theatres in Lahore, out of which 17 were once owned by the Hindus. And today?

Pakistan People's Theatres have been performing a stage-play in Karachi called "Pakistan" which vividly depicts the burning problem of Muslim India before partition as the producers themselves describe this play. It is hardly necessary to describe its hot contents. Now Ahmed Tejani, the producer and Fikhrey, the director, are busy turning this stage play into a film to cover the most distant towns in Pakistan and thus spread the fire of the "burning problem" all over Pakistan.

The Diamond Films of Lahore, with Akhtar as the production chief, has advertised a picture called "Ghaddar Nizam". The title itself shows that the Nizam of Hyderabad will be portrayed as a traitor in this picture. Traitor to whom? And isn't the Nizam a national of the Indian Union?
When did you last examine your stock of spare parts? The lack of a vital spare may put your equipment out of action and keep your cinema closed. Don't let this happen to you!

We hold a large stock of spares for immediate delivery—parts vitally necessary to keep your show running are always available.
Some time back a theatre in Quetta, showing 'Leela', produced by Filmistan Ltd., was burnt down because a picture contained a scene in which an old Hindu man recites some religious verses in Hindi from a religious book.

“Chandrashekhar”, a picture produced by Pioneer Pictures of Calcutta, had to be rechristened “Mir Kasim” in a number of deletions made by the censors, before going Pakistan.

Are all these acts of friendship and cordiality?

On the other hand, the Indian film producers realize that the exhibition trade in Pakistan had come to a near halt because of the sudden stoppage of film products in Lahore and to keep the Pakistan nationals in good humour with entertainment, rushed their films to different theatres in Pakistan often risking their investments because sometimes the very lives of their representatives. Try to keep the Pakistan theatres going with all odds against them.

While in India film producers have not contributed a pie to the Red Cross, in Karachi, the proceeds of the shows of two very popular pictures, “Mela” and “Heer” were donated to the Pakistan Red Cross Fund.

When Pakistan produced her first two pictures “Saathi” and “Heer” last month, both these pictures were eagerly acquired by Indians for distribution in India, their boycott nor discrimination was even thought of by Indians while taking these pictures, the collections of which must ultimately go to Pakistan.

Realizing the volatile temper of the masses in Pakistan many Indian producers have from time to time shot separate scenes for their Pakistan copies to suit the atmosphere prevalent in Pakistan, so that the feelings of the Pakistan nationals are not unnecessarily hurt and any inter-dominion conflict created.

Quite a few Muslim producers in India display Islamic flags and propagate Islamic culture in their pictures but neither the people nor the Indian censors object to this nor show even the slightest resentment against their Muslim producers.

When Qaid-e-Azam Jinnah died, thousands of Pakistan flags were displayed from Muslim homes in the cities and villages of India, but not one incident of resentment by the Hindus occurred throughout India.

Isn't all this an evidence of our sincerity to maintain friendship and cordiality between India and Pakistan?

Isn't our hand continuously stretched for a responsive clasp of friendship towards Pakistan? We keep stretching our friendly hand forward because our government want us to do so but let it not shrivel up in that position always waiting for the friendly response from Pakistan.

Let Pakistan remember that friendship is a mutual bond which needs sincerity and affection on both sides. May God bless Pakistan!

DEFENCE OF FILM "RAZAKARS"

The Indian film people have such a bad reputation that any unclaimed crime or sin can be placed at their door and no extra emphasis will be needed to persuade the world of their guilt. This unenviable reputation is all the achievement of the Indian film industry during 5 years of its struggle to survive.

It is not therefore surprising for Mr. C. A. Kapadia of Bombay to believe that the vandalism of the idols and sculptures of Ellora, which he found smeared with red paint, was the work of some film producer who ad visited the Ellora caves to take outdoor locations or some picture.

Mr. Kapadia was given this information "on inquiry. Whatever the source of Mr. Kapadia’s “inquiry”, it did not require a second look into the affair to believe we charge against the Indian film people, with their horrific reputation accumulated during so many years of film making.

But we do not think that any film producer was responsible for this vandalism. The Ellora Caves are directly under the control of the Nizam’s Archaeological Department and a state watchman lives very near the Caves, under the rules of this department, which used to be very strict and arbitrary, no producer can enter the caves and “shoot” them for a picture without obtaining a written permission from the Archaeological Department after paying heavy fees which are assessed on daily work. Whenever such a permission is granted, an officer of the department visits Ellora daily and in case of any vandalism, the producer has no chance to get out of the Hyderabad State with his men and equipment.

Mr. Kapadia is not expected to know the technical side of film making and we do not blame him for placing the crime at the door of a film producer. Oil paint is never used in film work. In the studios, sets are painted with water paint. Oil paint, besides being unsuitable, is an expensive item and film producers, who are deep in debts, if they could afford to purchase it would rather use it for their bed rooms than for their sets. Besides, oil paint has a gloss which reflects light and as such becomes useless for photographic purposes. Additionally red oil paint would be completely useless as red has not a fully actinic value in black and white photography even with a panchromatic film.

After this, the only presumption would be that the film producer, who indulged in this disgraceful vandalism according to Mr. Kapadia’s “inquiry”, carried pots of red paint either from Bombay or from Aurangabad—miles away into the jungles of Ellora, merely to smear the idols with red paint. That is rather presumptuous, considering the cost of paint and the waste of time—both items which a film producer cannot afford to waste either on outdoor locations or on indoor sets with a large troupe of people to feed every minute.

No, sir, our film people, bad as they are, are not guilty on this occasion.

Our inquiries have, however, revealed an altogether different story. We were reliably informed that the Ellora Caves were used as camping grounds by the Razakars and in quite a few caves a lot of ammunition was stored. Even the old temple of Shiva, a little distance away and opposite the main Caves, was used for this purpose. In the big courtyard facing Kailas the Razakars were regularly drilled from day to day and some of the idols were turned into targets to give shooting practice to the Razakars. Is it not likely that red paint which is always used for bull’s-eye on a target could have been smeared on the idols to provide a better aim to the fanatic Razakars?

The fanaticism of the Razakars, which has now become past history in Hyderabad, may have goaded the desperate bigots to be vandals of our art and heritage. And with the whole State of Hyderabad at their disposal.

This seems to be a pyramid proposition. She is Mohana in “Patanga” produced by Varma Films.

SOUNDRELS UNDERSTAND LAWS!

Of all the different racketeers in this country living off their wits, the film exhibitors ("cinemawallas", as they are called in India) take the salute for their ingenuity in fleecing their patrons without even providing them with minimum amenities in lieu of the admission prices.

While there are very few good showmen in the country, the majority of the exhibitors can only be described as first class scoundrels who would not lose a single opportunity to rob their patrons without feeling the slightest pricking of conscience.

Trade morality is completely missing in such people. They have turned their theatres into little mints often operated under the most inhuman and filthy conditions. All the money these exhibitors earn these days goes into their pockets, but not back into the theatres for improvements.

Every one knows that these scoundrels, without any education or business morality, have made tons of money during the war. With the shortage of theatres in the country, profits still continue to pour in even after the war.

Producers pay black market money to these scoundrels to run their pictures from week to week. Patrons pay impossible prices to see rotten pictures under filthy conditions. And yet with all this money the greedy scoundrels are never satisfied.

There are theatre-owners who switch off their air-conditioning plants to save electric bills and do not show even the ordinary decency to switch on the fans when requested. There are others who keep rabid dogs as managers to bite their patrons at the least provocation and thus add insult to the helpless injury of having to spend hours in filthy environments.

But the latest racket of greed is the procedure which many exhibitors all over the country adopt when playing popular pictures like "Hamlet", "Rattan", "Shehnai", "Dard", "Pyar-ki-Jeet", etc.

Many exhibitors suddenly increase their admission prices while showing such popular pictures and revert to the old prices immediately their runs are over. To say the least this procedure is both dirty and caddish.

As it is 95% of the pictures which filmgoers get are usually rotten and they have to pay pretty high prices for this rotten stuff all the year round. Once in a while they get a popular picture which they like to see with some enthusiasm. To make these people pay increased admission prices is nothing short of an outrage on a crowd of loyal filmgoers who keep rotten theatres, rotten films, rascals and scoundrels going round the year.

If admission prices are to be increased according to the popularity of a picture, then exhibitors should refund ticket money when a picture flops and fails to become popular. Isn't that a fair exchange?

But scoundrels believe in one way traffic in fleecing. Our exhibitors are not known for being good showmen with principles in their trade dealings, a smile for their patrons, comfort in their theatres and courtesy at their doors.

It is, however, high time that some sort of governmental control is necessary in our theatre trade if the theatre is ever to become an extension of our present schoolroom.

We suggest that theatres should be classified in three categories: urban, suburban and rural and their classes of seats and prices of admission standardized throughout the country.

Apart from this standardization, our present theatres need plenty of improvements from the viewpoint of health and hygiene of millions who rush to our theatres every day.

The Government would do well to appoint a small committee to investigate our theatre trade thoroughly and frame strict rules to make our theatres a useful social and national entity.

The scoundrels who run some of our theatres can understand only laws and not sermons, however, wise and well meant.

er the country and discover in consequence half-hearted measures tackling many a problem deserving a more brough and imaginative treatment.

Let us take the case of the gramophone records of songs—some of which sell by thousands all over the country. Quite a few of these records play songs that the censors have cut out from the pictures on grounds of vulgarity and indecency.

If the records have been deleted from the pictures on ground that their words are vulgar and indecent, it is right to let these words be sung and echoed through the gramophone records all over the country from All di Radio and from thousands of homes and restaurants.

And yet it is being done every day. The Gramophone Company which monopolizes all film records in the country never bothers about any ban by the censors to whether a song is cut or retained. H.M.V. records are sold all over the country with their musical load of vulgarity and indecency.

To quote only one instance: the song “More jobana dekho ubhar” in “Mun-ki-Jeet”, produced by Shalimar Pictures was cut off from the picture by the censors on grounds of obscenity. But the H.M.V. records of the same song can still be heard not only from a thousand restaurants in different towns but from the official broad-casting station of the Government. Can inconsistency be more complete?

If a song is considered to be obscene in a picture, does it cease to be so in a gramophone record which is sold in thousands and played again and again at all possible places?

Is it therefore too much to expect from the authorities some consistency in their ethical approach to the problem of censoring?

The censors can certainly ask the film producer to withdraw any gramophone record from circulation once a song has been deleted from a picture on grounds of obscenity. They can, likewise, inform the different I.R. stations of the excision of such a song to stop it from regaling millions with its vulgar melody.

On the other hand, under the present law (Section 32 of the Indian Penal Code), the Gramophone Company and its directors and branch managers can be prosecuted for selling and putting into circulation film records the songs of which have been found obscene by an official and competent body of censors.

It is high time that we adopt consistency as one of our national virtues and learn to do things with greater vigilance and thoroughness.

FAME, FEMALE AND FORTUNE?

“If you want to earn thousands a month, move about cars and in company of beautiful stars—join the film industry” runs an advertisement in a North Indian periodical. The advertiser is evidently in a hurry because he says further: “Write to us today. Tomorrow may be too late!” And now comes the catch: “Send us your best photograph with height, weight and other particulars and a small registration fee of Rs. 25/- and we will take your case further.”

Isn’t that very rosy? A car, a film star and thousands to spend every month! A blind man once prayed to God for one eye. God was in a good mood and He gave him two. Here is a man in this divine mood, offering to millions the ambition of millions just for a small sum of Rs. 25/-.

Which college boy can miss this chance in a million? So several units of Rs. 25/- pour into a post-box address in Delhi, a town where there is not a single film studio, and on some mysterious register the names of young men swell a waiting list of aspirants to fame, females and fortunes.

Little do these youngsters know that film stars are not made through mail-order methods. A visit to any of the film studios in Bombay will reveal a crowd of hundreds waiting outside with a hope to get a glimpse of the work inside. It is not at all easy to get film work. We have hardly 350 persons in the Indian film industry earning over a thousand rupees a month—which means one person for every million of our population.

It is therefore a chance in a million to get into the films and earn a thousand rupees a month—leave alone fame, females and fortunes.

The men who run such spurious employment agencies are downright criminals who are out to fleece money from unaware and inexperienced youngsters. There is not a single employment agency in India today which can get a film job for any recruit.

Recruiting in the film trade is entirely done through personal introductions and scouting by the producers themselves. Producers themselves go scouting for the girls and expect the boys to be introduced by the distributors. That is how most of the talent has arrived in the film industry—and not one person has so far come through any employment agency.

The registration fee which such employment agencies take from innocent enthusiasts is therefore sheer daylight robbery and the Government must step in and stop this racket immediately.

In the meantime young men whose day dreams swell of celluloid glamour would do well to remember that there is no easy way to success in films and long before they earn a pennu out of films they have to pay Rs. 25/- as the price of their dream.

APPEAL TO GENERAL CARIPPA!

Every day we read different government advertisements persuading people to join the Army, or the Navy or the R.I.A.F. These advertisements commend these national services as careers for our young men.

Then we have our new Commander-in-Chief, General Carappa, telling us with confidence that the Indian Army is no longer composed of mercenaries, as in the old British days, but that every little soldier is a patriot prepared to lay down his life for his country.

All this and more, dinned into our ears from different quarters, naturally makes us happy at the thought that our future soldier is going to be a pillar of the nation.

But the film producers laugh away these statements of General Cariappa and others by caricaturing the Indian soldier in a malicious and grotesque manner. Indian film producers don’t respect any one and they don’t care two hoots about what General Cariappa has to do with our future army.

The Indian film producers don’t believe in the Indian Army having any traditions or for that matter any character. Had they done so we would not have seen the disgusting spectacle of a single army man breaking lines, causing two suicides and generally behaving in an undignified and anti-social manner, as Mekhoo, the army man left the army, does in “Mela”, a picture produced by Wadia Movietone.

In another picture, “Chaman”, the soldier is once again ridiculed in the most vile manner imaginable and even Jemadar V. Sagar Walters Avarat of Transit Camp, Jammu writes to us about this picture: “Being a soldier myself, I cannot tolerate our producers slandering us”, we are inclined to sympathize with him and other members of our fighting forces who have given our country peace and prestige.

All General Cariappa’s tall talk is going to be turned to naught if pictures like “Mela” and “Chaman” portraying vulgar caricatures of our army personnel are allowed to be screened in towns and 7,00,000 villages of our country with impunity.

If the General hasn’t enough intelligence and imagination to realize that the triple appeal of the film, to the eye, the ear and the heart, makes the film a terrific medium of propaganda amongst illiterate villagers—the very men who are going to be our General’s future soldiers—the earlier he transfers his responsibilities to another the better for our nation.

We cannot allow the soldier, who gives his life for his country to bring peace and happiness to millions, to be grossly ridiculed and insulted by a film producer who merely wants to make some easy money by caricaturing the soldier and creating some cheap laughter.

The least that the Government can do is to appoint an army representative on their different censor boards to safeguard the prestige and reputation of our national services from the onslaughts of the none-too-patriotic film producers.

Is this too much to ask on behalf of our soldiers who are silent through discipline?

YOU’LL HARDLY BELIEVE—

That “gentle” James keeps goading the producers to boycott “filmindia” at every IMPPA meeting with the result that some of the producers are now resigning from the I.M.P.P.A. How long can human beings stand such organized cruelty?

That producers advertise in “filmindia” not because they love Baburao Patel and feel like paying his doctor’s bills but because they can sell their pictures quickly and get a world-wide readership interested in their product. “Filmindia” happens to be good business for a wise producer.

That like “gentle” James the other Parsis in the industry are also becoming self-righteous these days. The Parsi journalists and producers seem to have got hold of the wrong end of our freedom the way we find them noisy and aggressive these days. Can’t this thumb-nail minority keep peace and sink or sail with the others in the country? Since when have these Parsis started looking after India?

That another one-eyed doe of Parsi journalism is also angry with Editor Patel because he condemned Paul Zils’ three slanderous films: “Child”, “Mother” and “Community” and the Government listened to him by stopping their circulation.

That some other buccaneers of Parsi journalism have also jumped into the fray to back up the one-eyed doe forgetting that with one eye one can see only one side of a picture—the a la Zils side. And since when have Parsis become guardians of Indian culture? Perhaps they came into this country before Baburao Patel, the Hindu, did!

That Sardar Chandulal Shah spoke in Hindustani, of course with Kathiawari words and accent, whilst opening the Liberty Cinema and exhorted the producers to produce pictures worthy of the Liberty. Which means that Ranjit pictures will never been shown at the Liberty.

That Sardar Chandulal Shah can never excuse Chandramohan for dying on a Saturday—a race day. But the next day was also a race day and Chandramohan was too much in a hurry to wait till Monday to enable the Sardar to attend his funeral.
Coming M. SADIQ'S

CHAR DIN

AT THE BEST PICTURE HOUSE IN YOUR TOWN
That almost every artiste, producer and journalist visited Chandramohan's funeral but none from Ranjit seen. Is every one in Ranjit a horse lover?

That when V. Shantaram, brother of V. Kashinath and brother of V. Avadhoot heard of old Chandramohan’s sudden death he felt like a sculptor whose model had been suddenly broken. Had Chandramohan known he would have postponed the event.

That times are fast changing the way Director Deithe Bose garlanded his carpenters and setting coolies in he celebrated the silver jubilee of his latest picture “Kavi”. And Sardar Chandulal Shah would not let the workers even to garland our popular Homeister. But then Chandulal Shah is not Deithe Bose!

That quite a few sensitive people intend committing suicide after seeing V. Shantaram’s “Apna Desh”. They don’t feel like living any longer in a rotten country in seeing what they saw. Two more pictures like this V. Shantaram will have solved our population problem.

That in “Apna Desh”, V. Shantaram has found at one Hindu woman, in the whole of India, who after being raped in Pakistan, becomes a traitor to her own country and smuggles arms and ammunition to Pakistan. Her parents would not accept her after the rape. And we still believe that India is a land of Seetas and Birus who would immolate themselves rather than sell our home and country.

That according to V. Shantaram’s “Apna Desh”, Muslims in India are stabbing their nation in the back by smuggling arms and ammunition to Pakistan. Boxes of musical instruments. And the Government is to be secular and love one and all.

That all of the communities, a bearded Bohra is causing smuggling of guns to Pakistan so that the guns may be used against us from the other side. And we always thought that the Bohras were a quiet, god-fearing community.

That according to V. Shantaram’s “Apna Desh”, there are very few honest and patriotic police officers in police force—the majority being corrupt. We had always thought that the other way round. Any way corrected.

That all the incidents in “Apna Desh” must be acted as true because we are told that the story of the picture was retouched by no less a person than Mr. Morarji Desai, the Home Minister to the Government of India. That, however, shows that the Home Minister doesn’t think much of our Hindu women and their culture and traditions.

That with Jane Wyman acting the deaf and dumb scene in “Johnny Belinda” and getting an Oscar for the same picture in India with deaf and dumb heroines! Come on Kedar Sharma! Here is your opportunity for Geeta Bali! That will at least save us from some rotten dialogue and disgusting songs.

That Uday Shankar, the dancing clown of India, got frozen reception in London and neither Arthur Rank nor Alexander Korda would see either Shankar or Amla Nandini. So “Kalpana” remained in tins without a buyer.

That when “filmindia” wanted to know the experience and qualifications of the members of the Censor Board, S. A. Ayer, its chairman, is reported to have asked his members to keep mum. Ayer’s qualifications, however, are known—a matriculate of an Indian university and a graduate of the I.N.A. “university”.

That if the members of the Censor Board are ashamed of their qualifications—the way they hide them under the bushel—why should Ministry Morarji Desai rub them in by saying that there is more culture and education on his Censor Board than in the entire film industry?

That film producers deeply appreciate Minister Morarji’s democratic gesture in appointing V. Shantaram as a censor and to keep the great producer free for censorship, the film producers do not insist on his attendance at their meetings these days. Anyway “Apna Desh” had a smooth passage.

That Income-tax Officer Jadhav is searching these days for a picture in which Badshah Begum, Suraiya’s nanny, has starred as the heroine, because he is reported to have found her receiving a star salary. We wish him luck!

That Minister Morarji Desai saw the pleasant side of Communism when the charming Alia Sayadiants sat next to him at a censors trial of a Soviet picture teaching guerrilla warfare. The little one does it better than daddy!

“Read this book, before you leave this world!” That is how Baburao Patel’s book “Grey Dust” is being advertised. Had this announcement come a month earlier, we would not have lost Chandramohan.

That producer-director Santoshi is now fed up of making money for others. He is, therefore, starting his own production company and wants to make a beginning with 200 girls. It is girls that Santoshi wants to produce not pictures!

That according to Censor Dhurandhar, Kishore Sahlu’s “Sawan Aya Re” is the best Indian picture he has seen. Censor Dhurandhar, of course, thinks that this good picture is a result of strict censorship. But “Sawan Aya Re” was scheduled for production long before Dhurandhar became a censor. Censors should know that it takes almost a year to produce a picture and put it before them.

That during the month Sushila Rani Patel was seen visiting the Vishwanath’s Temple in Benares, flowers in hand—probably doing penance for her husband’s sins. It is a strange sight to see an educated lady on a pilgrimage. Hindu women will never improve, it seems.

That “Makhkhan” is reported to have gone out of M. & T. and leaving behind the hard “Toast” which Naresh is again trying to soften with his own butter this time. Now Tewari will produce a hundred pictures a year.

Engaged? That boy can’t be so steady. He has already two kids in the cradle.

What kind of a woman is a rarity?

Every woman is a rare piece. You can never find two of the same kind.

Does jealousy make a woman silly?

It makes her a devil and devils are not silly.

What is the advantage of taking loans from Kabuli money-lenders?

You can smell them from a distance and dodge in time.

What is the method to keep Nehru in good humour?

Nehru is essentially an aesthete and needs good company to be in good humour.

Is it not wrong to style Rajaji as “His Brahmanical Majesty” as some papers are doing?

His name is Chakravarty and he rules over a bigger kingdom than Asoka.

Why is New York the dirtiest city?

New York is not but New Delhi is these days.

If heroes are allowed to select heroines, what will happen?

We might have three heroines in one picture.

Why does Veera look like being in a trance always?

That long nose of hers gives her a sleepy look. But watch her on the race-course. She is all alert at her post collecting tips wholesale.

Should the heroine be always an extra at the start?

Oh no! Those who jump into the eye at first sight jump to stardom straightway.

What is the talk of Bombay City now?

Minister Morarji Desai! He spices every meal and takes the spirit out of every glass.

What would have happened if Ahmed Abbas had been tall?

We would have had a better loser and better sportsman. A little height gives you a better view of life and things.

Gulab and Gohar were contemporaries during silent days. Now we see only one on the screen, what happened to the other?

Gohar made a fortune in partnership with Chandulal Shah and bought cars, palaces and race horses and kicked off art and work. Gulab is still an artiste, working for a decent living and after over 20 years of hard work she has now built a lit house at Khar. And that house is not mortgage.

What is the future of Khan Brothers?

Dead men have only a past. These brave brothers died on 15th August 1947.

What is the burning problem of the day?

To extinguish the fire in the burning pit of stomach.

What does Zafrullah Khan mean by saying the Hyderabad situation continues to deteriorate?

He is right the way the old miser’s gold is being checked up and controlled these days.

AHMEDULLAH KHAN (Hyderabad Dn.)
What is disease?

Price of poverty and penalty of pleasures.

R. R. DAS (Thavaram)
I heard that there is no fresh milk supply in Bombay’s restaurants?

But there is plenty of it running over our newspapers since Babu Rajendran Prasad visited Bombay.

H. M. L. UBEROI (Naini Tal)
What does a blind man see in his dreams?

A blind man’s world should be one long dream with no night and day, no rainbow of colours or any frustrations of greed and ambition. It is a long night to the onlooker but to the blind dark is eternal daylight.

VASANT S. OAK (Bombay)
Prem Adib is ugly, Al Nasir is colourless; then how are you?

I am not a film actor selling my face. How do you like my pen?

MISS T. PAI (Bombay)
Recently I noticed that Veera has a pretty good-looking driver for her Citroen car. Do you think it necessary for a film star to have an aesthetic sense even in the choice of a driver?

That is not her chauffeur. That is her husband Mohsin Abdulla. Veera has not arrived as a star yet to be able to employ a chauffeur.

Why are priests still flourishing when each one of them pray for himself?

The first man who gave us God became a priest and in doing so acquired invisible assets which will pay him dividends through eternity.

You are an outstanding film critic but not even an ordinary actor?

Ordinary actors rush to the screen for applause.
Who has made millions in the film industry as a producer?

No one counts any one's millions but Chandulal Shah brags about having made tons of money.
Money by tons, mind you!

If I say Suraiya is the most beautiful and talented actress of the screen, what would you think of me?
A bad judge of beauty and talent.

SOSHANAND SAHU (Janshedpur)
How do you analyse the woman's mind?
It is a synthesis of confusion.

L. S. JAYADEV (Bangalore)
How do you feel when people compare you with George Bernard Shaw?
I miss the bluff, the beard and the bank balance.

MISS VINODINI CHOUDHARY (Bombay)
What is the difference between Nayantara and Sneaprabha Pradhan?
They have the same friend—Ahmed Abbas.
Azadi ke rah par must be a rotten picture because the ministers and governors have praised it?
I suspect as much.

L. S. RAMAKRISHNA REDDY (Madanapalle)
What are crocodile tears?

Tears which women shed to defame crocodiles.

Why are modern wedding rings lighter than the old ones?

Because part of the gold is given to the government to save the married life of drunkards.

What vital role can a sovereign India, with the mantle of leadership of Asia falling on her shoulders, play in maintaining international security?

This business of Asian leadership is all tall talk. Let us watch our new frontiers before we promise security to anyone else.

JAYANT KR. MOHAPATRO (Patna)
Why are poor people ashamed of their poverty?

They don’t like to embarrass the rich by exhibiting their poverty.

Why don’t Communists believe in God?

Because in God’s world millions die of starvation.

Can social distance be effectively eliminated in India?

It has not yet been eliminated in Russia after 32 years of Communism.

Why are people in love generally unreasonable?

Love is a selfish sentiment. Its tyranny is often irksome.

P. E. JACOB (Kottayam)
Does the so-called ‘pure love’ exist in this world?

Yes! You find it only in the wagging tail of a dog.

BHAWANI SHANKER (New Delhi)
What do you think about Nigar? Isn’t she smart?
And how? Nigar is a little dynamo throwing out sparks every second.
People say that persons with long noses are always rich?

Then Veera must be having millions.
Why has your wife left teaching?
She has not because I am learning these days.

K. SHAKUNTALA (Hubli)
What is the difference between a pilot and a ground engineer?

A pilot is a ground engineer seven thousand feet above sea level.

Why do we worship cows and not buffaloes though both serve the purpose of providing milk?

When cows climbed the altars of worship, buffaloes were unknown. Worship is a hoary sentiment and cows are ancient milk pots.

MURALI D. KAKOTY (Dibrugarh)
Please define dream and drama?

A dream is the drama of sleeping hours while a drama is the dream of waking hours.

OM MALHOTRA (Ferozepore)
To which sex does God belong?
If God had sex, heaven would have been crowded with pimps, priests and politicians.

BOBBY FERNANDEZ (Sawantwadi)
What do you think of Gandhiji’s goat? Will anybody kill the same?

Gandhiji’s goat, Nirmala, went to heaven a week in advance of Gandhiji. She knew more about Gandhiji’s programme than some of our white-capped goats.

What would happen if animals became as intelligent as human beings?

They would ask for a U.N.O. of their own.

How is human milk measured?

By the smile on the baby’s face.

C. M. BHATT (Hyderabad Dn.)
It seems that Pandit Nehru handles not only the reins of his government but occasionally the reins of a horse too. What is your opinion?

His government is like the horse he rides—an exaggerated Dalmatian with spots all over.

MISS U. PAI (Bombay)
Is too much ambition bad?

Too much of anything is bad including the lectures of our politicians.

Is death the only solution of man’s woes and miseries?

According to the Hindu philosophy death is merely a resting period after which the human being begins the cycle of miseries all over again.

In the event of the World War III what would you advise young women to do?

Go to war and die so that we have less cradles and fewer people to feed.

If one desires to master three languages which will you suggest?

Gujarati for money, Hindustani for politics and English for knowledge.

V. K. FAZLUR RAHMAN (Bangalore)

How does Kishore Sahu feel when he sees the cover page of February “filmindia”?

He believes what he sees and his people wonder.

What sort of dress does Suraiya wear when she is at home?

An old sari of Badshah Begum. That Badshah Begum is her old nanny who also signs film contracts without film work.

Has a dark-skinned girl any chance of attaining stardom?

The camera needs a good mould and not a good colour.

What is a girl without figure?

A bamboo blowpipe.

What has happened to S. Mukherjee, the one-time ambition of many a producer?

He is the producer-partner of Filmistan and is responsible for all its productions.

YUSUF MOHAMED SOLMAN (Port Louis, Mauritius)

Did you wear your dhotie during your sojourn in the United States of America?

I did so in my room but the American dhobie called it a man’s saree. After that description, I didn’t like my sex to be misunderstood in public.

What foot do you put first on the floor when you wake up in the morning?

The right one and then proceed to do the wrong things whole day.

MAHARAJ KRISHAN (New Delhi)

What makes women so fond of chillies?

Chillies probably give an extra sting to their tongues.

K. S. SANKARA NARAYANAN (New Delhi)

Would you advocate the use of lipstick by all housewives?

If Indian housewives take to lipsticks, clubs would be deserted and husbands would become more domestic.

GANDHI CHOITHI R. (Patna)

What are your ideas about divorce in India?

There is some chance of marital happiness on a virgin bed but none on a divorced one which is strewn with inhibitions of the past. Mental harmony is the bedrock of every marriage and sensitive minds do not fancy taking history to bed.

What must be the property of Mr. Chandulal Shah?

Will he give me some monthly help?

He will, if you grow two more legs and run for him on the race course. He owns race horses, a fleet of motor cars, palaces and what not.

MISS KALA RIJHSINGHANI (Bombay)

Why is it that when we see tragedy on the Indian screen, we are rather inclined to laugh than cry?

Because when you look behind, you see the dead hero sitting in the box receiving curious smiles.

NARESH CHANDAR (Delhi)

My career is going to be journalism. Please give me some advice?

Write what you feel and forget what you hear. And you will arrive.

What purpose does lipstick serve?

It holds the kiss together.

YOGESH CHANDRA WHIG (New Delhi)

Can you give me one good reason of Pandit Indra’s popularity as a screen writer?

I shall give you two: Chandulal Shah and Vasan.

What has Gandhian philosophy taught you?

To die with “Ram nam” on your lips when the bullets arrive.

If V. Shantaram is a good friend of yours why has he stopped advertising his pictures in “filmindia”?

Shantaram doesn’t read “filmindia” and he always likes to read his own advertisement.
D. WILLIAM MOSES (Tanjore)

What do you think of the present activities of the socialist leader, J. P. Narain?

He is the Hamlet of Indian politics in the 'to be or not to be' frame of mind.

P. NANJUNDIAH (Anantapur)

If woman is the 'queen' of the kitchen, then what should man be?

King in the dining room if he wants the queen to continue in the kitchen. Women like to cook only if men eat.

What is the difference between a weeping man and a weeping woman?

A weeping man destroys while a weeping woman builds.

R. VENUGOPAL REDDY (Madras)

Oscar Wilde says, "The book of life begins with a man and a woman in a garden." Where does it end?

It ends in the bed with new editions of the book.

IKRAM U. KHAN (Saugor)

Can you give me some idea of what a producer does in the "muhurat" ceremony of a picture?

He passes the hat around and collects from the distributors.

I suggest a change in Ranjit's old trade mark—instead of the horse, there should be a donkey and let our Sardar Chandulal Shah replace that long unfamiliar man riding over it.' How do you like this?

That might bring luck. Gamblers should try all sorts of mascots.

SAMUEL HANNOCK (Bombay)

If I say something absurd to my wife she begins to cry. Why?

For marrying in haste.

ARJAN L. MAHTANI (Bombay)

What are your impressions of American customs and habits?

Americans have no customs and habits. They have fashions and foibles.

Describe an average American?

A good hearted person worried about the next week-end holiday.

OMESH CHANDRA WHIG (New Delhi)

What are flowers for?

To decorate gods, gardens and guardian politicians.

C. T. PRABHAKARA MENON (Bombay)

What is economy?

Creating a surplus from a deficit.

Is the Atom Bomb a dangerous thing?

The hands that drop it are dangerous. The Atom Bomb is a harmless thing in the hands of good men.

SAVAK NARAYAN (Allahabad)

Why is it that a Russian citizen is not told what is democracy?

That would be adding butter to the Communist bread and Russia can't afford it.

A. N. NARAYANA RAO (Mysore)

What is a pale face?

It is a Red Indian's description of a white man's face which is becoming more pale every day with the fear of other pale faces carrying the hammer and sickle.

When do mistakes become sins?

When apologies do not follow in the wake of mistakes.

What are screen doctors?

Extras with barber's bags.

Why is Dixit out of news these days?

He is in bed with heart trouble. Why not write him a nice letter to cheer him up? His address is M. J. Dixit, 750 Parsi Colony, Dadar, Bombay.

Who are the best killers of music in our films?

The Ranjit gang of desperadoes. They murmur music and kill emotions so often in their picture.

When does the secret about a film star's age become clearly known?

When theatre men wait for the crowds to never come.

Are witty women attractive to men?

Only if her witty remarks punctuate his good humour.

When do all the dreams of a angler come true?

When he sees the fish in the frying pan.

What is the biggest mistake of film distributors?

Gambling on the stars that never bring to bacon home.

When does failure mean bankruptcy?

When the debts are small and the creditors afford to be vindictive.

If God is all-pervading, why not we worship him in our own hearts instead of doing so in churches, mosques or temples?

Hearts become temples of God only when the mind is lit up with knowledge. Temples, mosques and churches are built for the ignorant masses to practise the self-hypnosis of mass prayers.

Which is a feather in a film producer's cap?

Box office success is the cap and a good review of his picture in "filmindia" is the feather. Sometimes he wears the feather without the cap.

Is there anything else of importance in this world except gold?

The way of getting it and its use afterwards.

A kind heart was always my undoing. What is your experience?

My heart has my whole life mortgaged to other and I often wonder whether I shall carry over some liabilities to the next birth.

What is all this pomp and pageantry in these days?
f freedom and democracy?

Freedom is our new baby and every new birth is ushered with pomp and pageantry.

What is a flower without fragrance?

An evidence of nature's meanness.

What is the smoke screen for a woman pursued byurdy male eyes?

A hefty six-footer with a social permit to enter the bedroom.

When are women at war?

Always! Women are children of conflict—inside, outside and beyond.

We are men of peace?

Indeed! We send millions to their peaceful rates at regular intervals.

A. V. NARASIMHAN (Hyderabad Dn.)

When does a virtue become a vice?

When the ramrod of law pushes it down your throat.

Do you belong to the well-to-do poor class?

You have said it. Just enough with a pinch of shortage to make life an interesting struggle.

Are we to ask questions only to emphasize your intelligence?

If you guarantee my bread, I don't have to tax my brain.

MISS KRANTI MATHUR (Jodhpur)

People say that philosophers are half mad?

While philosophers think that people are completely mad.

M. S. VENKATANARANAPP A (Mysore)

What do you think of these goodwill missions, specially the recent one to Ethiopia?

Waste of time and money! They didn't bring back even a photograph of the Negus.

Do you think that our girls have got any dress sense?

May not be in Mysore but come to Bombay once and watch the girls matching even their smiles with their beautiful saris. Of course, the saris are always more beautiful than the girls but the dress sense is there nevertheless.

SHIVRAM (Bombay)

What was the last interesting thing you saw in America?

Tears in the eyes of my American friends while wishing me good bye. Those tears proved that all human beings still belong to one large family of God despite the different skins they wear.

MISS D. CELESTIAL (Bombay)

In later years I wish to be a good housewife and also to walk in the footsteps of Florence Nightingale. Can you suggest some ways and means whereby I can attain that goal?

Tell me in confidence what you are doing now and I shall tell you whether you are going to end as a nightingale or begin with Florence.

Paro and Sharda make a new team in "Ma-ka-Dil", a social story of Popular India Productions.

When can a girl rest assured that her 'lover' is indeed a true lover? Please note 'lover', not husband!

Noted! And please note that no man is born by instinct and temperament, to be a true lover in the sense you mean, except in myths and novels.

JAGDISH (Jodhpur)

I want to present you with a pair of shoes, will you send Rs. 25 for it?

No, thanks! The producers give me a free supply.

R. J. DESAI (Hubli)

When do you think Mr. William Dieterle will pay a return visit to you?

He is bound to do it some day. His life won't be complete unless he sees India.

KABAL SINGH (Taiping, Malaya)

What is the difference between a bachelor's life and a married life?

In a bachelor's life there are many photographs and one hope. In a married life, there is only 'she' and many regrets.

S. CHAKRABARTY (Ajmer)

India: what can it give to the world?

The philosophy of starving without struggling.

KUMARI S. R. SINHA (Lucknow)

Does beauty consist in features or complexion or both?

Features decide the mould, complexion lends colour. Together you get a technicolour effect.
A. PUSHPAVATI (Hyderabad Dn.)
Can I be your paying guest for a few days please?
Good Hindus have not started taking paying guests yet. Hospitality is a religion with the Hindus and one can't cash on religion.

UMESH AGARWAL (Lucknow)
I wish you were the Home Minister of Bombay. How do you like the idea?
I don't like it. I like to see Minister Morarji in the post. He is doing very well and we are paying him very little for all the work he does.

BIKRAM SINGH (Dehra Dun)
Are you a friend of the princes or the paupers?
I dislike both as members of the same lazy family. I like workers—rich and poor.
Could you candidly say, Mr. Patel, of all the New Year greetings you received from Indian producers, how many struck you as genuine?
No one in the film industry sends me greetings. But my readers wish me a happy New Year every day and I actually feel happy after the wishes.
What's your prophesy about the Kashmir issue after the cease-fire?
It is snowing in Kashmir. You must give the gunpowder some time to dry.

D. SATYANARAYANA RAO (Anantapur)
"Criticism is the art of the devil". Do you accept it?
No! The executioner in jail who hangs criminals is not called a murderer. Then why should a critic who does his duty conscientiously be called a devil?

GURSHARN SINGH (Nabha)
What is a smile to a politician?
A short punctuation to his dirty designs.

SHALIMA (Mercara)
Is divorce a disease in America?
They use it as a cure for marriage.

ARVIND DEVIDAS (Bombay)
Is Dinkerrao Desai brother of Morarji Desai?
Only a professional brother! Both are politicians.

MRS. ARUNIYATI (Belgaum)
Are you also one of those men who stare at girls and women in the streets?
I like to look at beautiful women. I have no time to stare and embarrass them.
Can you tell me when our ministers will stop lecturing and laying foundation stones?
Stop crowding round them and they will return to their desks, sadder but wiser.

K. G. MATHUR (Ghaziabad)
How to get rid of Kamini Kaushal from my dream?
Ask for her husband's photograph and keep it near your bed.

A. RAGHAVAN (Anantapur)
If Santoshi and Kedar Sharma were to direct a picture jointly what can we expect?
An Indian version of the Parisian Folies-Ber gere.
What is yellow journalism?
Journalism discovered by jaundiced eyes.
What is the age of "Baby" Nurjehan?
She is three babies old.

J. PATEL (Sambalpur)
How far is humour indispensable to life?
Selling it is indispensable to mine.
Why do our universities betray an overpowering passion for distributing doctorates to the leaders?
They are probably finishing their stock of old junk before they begin with a new series in free India.

P. M. RAUKA (Ajmer)
Why does Chandulal Shah want colour in his old age?
To give his grey hair a box-office look.

MISS MOHINI G. A. (Bombay)
Do you favour nudist colonies near Juhu beach?
Juhu is already crowded. Let us not add to the crowds.

G. SAMSON TATA (Bombay)
Now that V. Shantaram, brother of V. Kashinath in turn brother of V. Avadhoot, is on the Censor Board would you dare any picture of your own?
I won't and that is why many producers seen to have become grocers again.

MARRIS NELSON (Agra)
In what thing India leads the world?
Growing babies!

SUDARSHAN D. GUPTA (New Delhi)
Have you any English friend?
Hundreds! But as friends they cease to have a specific nationality.

R. KRISHNA (Bombay)
Do you approve of the rebuilding of the Somnath Temple with such huge funds when at present there are already innumerable temples in India and thousands of Gods?
Ours is a peculiarly "secular" State in which the State looks after mosques, temples and churches; all new public projects are inaugurated with Hindu religious ceremonies and ministers are garlanded as little gods of freedom. In rebuilding Somnath, Vallabhbhai Patel probably wants to pay back the Moghul invaders for their repeated and vindictive vandalism of the ancient temple. At thrice the rate, the mosque which Aurangzeb built on the site of the ancient temple of Vishwanath in Benares will have to be shifted to rebuild the ancient Hindu glory.

JOSE P. THEKINIATH (Trichur)
Do you publish your magazine for gain or fo
I would like to slaughter those cows that play the traffic policemen in busy streets.

SUSHIL C. JAIN (Delhi)
Why are drunkards generally disliked?
They lose their sense of humour too soon.
What is the best way to win an election?
The next one will be won with millions shouting "Mahatma Gandhi Ki Jai".
What qualifications are required to become an ambassador?
Let us first finish our stock of refugees from home before we think of training new ambassadors who can rub shoulders with their foreign rivals in the field of international politics.

A. B. NATESAN (Chittoor)
You praise and condemn women in the same breath. Aren't you a funny guy?
It is a funny creature I have to describe. She is at once good and bad.
Mr. Patel, can you please name your successor?
Why are you so anxious for my exit? Are you, by any chance, thinking of producing pictures?

A. B. MENDON (Bombay)
Is it true that the celebrated Raj Kapoor is of foreign descent?
Yes! He comes from Peshawar which is now in a foreign country.

LASH NATH RAIZADA (New Delhi)
Why is Bombay cheaper than Delhi?

According to statisticians, Bombay is the most expensive city in the world today, even more expensive than the ever-notorious Hollywood.

VAIDYA (Sholapur)
What sort of superstition rules in film industry of India?

The superstition that if one type of story clicks at the box-office, fifty more of the same type will also do the same. Repeating stories, songs and stars to woo success is the worst superstition in our film industry.

LASH NATH (Lashkar)
Why has God no place in the future constituted of India?

We have a secular and peculiar state.

Why do you always keep yourself in the background of social functions?

I am a modest man and hate crowds.

ESH KUMAR (New Delhi)
What is pain?

A reminder of God.

Were you ever a terrorist?

Always! I terrorise the film producers by spraying ink on them. At least that is how they describe me.

Did Muslim artistes and producers go to Pakistan refugees?

They go as bankers. Muslim artistes and producers in India are very rich folks.

PARKASH (New Delhi)
Will Asia be able to check the Communist menace?

There is no Asia left now, except India and Pakistan, where red is not in fashion.

RAM SHAHANI (Bombay)
What is this place called heaven?

To the Muslims it is a "mehfil" of "hoors" and "sherbet"; to the Hindus it is a "Kumbhmela" of saints and sadhus; to the Westerners it is an empty first class compartment with plenty of room for all.

S. BHANU (Kapur)
Mr. Patel, as you offer Rs. 100/- for the best set of stories, I have an idea of offering Rs. 100/- for the first answer in your "Editor's Mail". Would you accept?

My address is: "Azad", Oomer Park, Warden Road, Bombay and the postman knows me personally.

ETADEVI (Tellicherry)
Which is the most pleasing trait in Shri Morarji saib's character?

His impulsive sincerity!

V. JAGANNADHAM (Nidadavol)
What particular use is the U.N.O. which has hardly power to enforce its sanctions?

The human being is a funny creature. He needs noise for all his acts. He䥥eans when he first slips into this world. He plays a band when he takes a woman to bed and needs music when going to the grave, as if the dead can hear. He uses tom toms for war and music for his prayers. Can he therefore escape a noisy carnivals while pretending to forge peace?

K. G. HIRANI (Lucknow)
Why is it that in the parties and functions arranged at the Government Houses only rich persons are invited?

We have a people's government in which people are the hosts and therefore rich men must be the guests. The hosts can't be the guests at their own parties. Can they?

M. VASUDEVAN NAIR (Pathiyara)
What must have passed in Adam's mind when he first set eyes on Eve?

He didn't know what to do with her and let her take the initiative. Since then Eve has been running the show.

H. V. R. Iyengar recently described Andamans as "a paradise on earth". Any comments?

We should send Iyengar there for his angelic innocence. He deserves a paradise.

K. SYED ISMAIL AMANULLAH (Mangalore)
How far are the Muslim artistes being followed by our ministers?

They are spinning yarn and yarns.

MISS M. NAIDKARNI (Bombay)
Why, do you think, women are working in the offices nowadays?

To win their grocer's smile.

BULO T. HARIJANAGY (Thana)
What became of Seth Dalmia's one world campaign?

They say it ended with an American wife.

MISS KAMAL (Bombay)
Does virtue satisfy man?

It would, had it been in fashion.

MANAK LAL PANWAR (Jodhpur)
Morarji is always praised to the skies by you. Are you afraid of him?

Morarji believes in love and non-violence and carries a big stick to emphasize his principles. An ordinary man would be tempted to use that stick! Morarji doesn't have to, because people reciprocate his love.

MRS. M. BRIGGS (Anantapur)
Which is the best use to which a rotten egg can be put?

Take it to the nearest political meeting.

How to make husbands speak the truth?

Don't try. If husbands speak the truth, marital beds will become graveyards of romance.

SHAIK HUSSAIN (Bellary)
Who are all the artistes that migrated to Pakistan?
Ragini, Khurshid, Nur Jehan, Neena, Shamim and Suvarnalata. The rest returned quickly.

ASHVINI KUMAR BHATTACHARYEE (New Delhi)
Is there any institution in India where people can learn cinematography?
None! You must start in India as an apprentice and go up the hard way.

JASHABHAI S. PATEL (Mbale, Uganda)
Film exhibitors of this country spoil the good name of India by importing rotten and vulgar pictures. Why doesn't our popular government ban the export of such filthy pictures?
Our popular government is too popular to be sensible and efficient.

PREM KAPOOR (Kanpur)
Troubles of man began with woman. Dare you deny it?
And what about the woman's troubles? How did they begin?

JAGDISH PRASAD JAIN (Meerut)
Is God impertinent?
Oh no! He is polite and indifferent.
I want to see you in Bombay. Where shall I meet you?
Don't bother. I shall meet you in Meerut when I come there next.

S. N. SURI (Mysore)
What is love with sight?
Married love.

S. N. SYED BUDEN (Trichinopoly)
How should we remove the colour bar: by legislation or by propaganda?
We have no colour bar. We have caste walls which can be destroyed only by educating the masses. Law can't remove old prejudices while propaganda is always suspected.

S. SARASWATI (Madras)
V. Shantaram has advertised 1949 as his own year with three pictures, "Apna Desh", "Shivshakti" and "Dahez". Is there none else to share it.

I think all others will get the year 1949. Shantaram seeing the choice of his subjects, "Desh" is no longer a secret. To arrogate the you yourself, Shantaram must not go back to something which has come on the screen so many times before.

B. L. MANDANA (Jaipur)
What makes one a leader?
A million dumb followers!

VASHU K. MAHTANI (Bombay)
Have you done anything knowing that it would make you unpopular?
What else have I been doing all these years?
Are you shy in the company of women?
Very! And to prove it I sit right in the midst of them.

MRS. SEVERIN FERNANDEZ (Bombay)
Do you support prohibition as a state policy?
As a law abiding citizen I accept prohibition but I think it is a waste of time and state revenues.
What is the food that dead men eat?
The great dead live on their fame while we save the little ones from their diet of dust.

K. G. THINGALAYA (Bombay)
When you eat meat do you think it is wrong?
Man is an omnivorous creature and can live on leafy vegetables like a goat. Even the meat that we drink is a meat product. So if milk is a meat product, it can't be wrong.

JAWAHIR S. THANVI (Jodhpur)
At the age of 20 what was the aim of your life?
To take a steady job and support my family. That is still my aim.

KALI SADHAN GHOSH (Bankura)
Acharya Bhave has said that "Congressmen are...
One plus one makes one. After marriage several.

S. S. N. RAO (Jamshedpur)
How far is our government democratic?

A government becomes more democratic as the people get more disciplined and responsible. With rebels and roudies prowling, democracy would be a social crime.

NIRMAL (Rewa)
Are there no women worshippers in any temple of the world?

In India, every home has become a temple because women worship their husbands. Not that even have become gods.

ABBAS N. MERCHANT (Nasik)
What would happen if Pakistan invented the Atom Bomb?

We would have Liaqat Ali Khan as our prime minister and Zafarulla as the foreign minister.

The following prizes are awarded every month for questions which are considered interesting or elicit interesting replies in the "Editor's Mail".

1st Prize: Rs. 100/-; 2nd Prize: Rs. 60/-; 3rd Prize: Rs. 50/-; 4th Prize: Rs. 40/-; 5th Prize: Rs. 30/-; and 20 Consolation Prizes of Rs. 10/- each.

A reader can ask as many questions as he likes. Questions should be neatly written or typed if possible. Unless the letters are signed, they won’t be considered.

In awarding prizes the Editor’s decision shall be final and absolutely binding and no correspondence will be entertained.

The names of the prize-winners will be announced in “Filmindia” every month and the prize money will be remitted by Money Order.

PRIZE WINNERS FOR MAY

1st Prize: Rs. 100/- to H. S. Venkata Rao (Mysore); 2nd Prize: Rs. 60/- to Mrs. M. Rukmini (Anantapur); 3rd Prize: Rs. 50/- to Miss Agnes Fernandez (Bombay); 4th Prize: Rs. 40/- to Om Malhotra (Ferozepore); and 5th Prize: Rs. 30/- to Miss T. Pai (Bombay) and 20 consolation prizes of Rs. 10/- each to the following:—VirSingh A. Khalsa (Ajmer); Miss Indra G. A. (Bombay); A. Viswanathan (Coonoor); H. M. L. Uberoi (Naini Tal); S. The late Mr. V. H. Desai still lives on the screen in “Roshni”, a social story produced by Standard Pictures.

selling their old sacrifices”. Do the Congressmen realize it?

They do but business is brisk and there is no time for philosophic contemplation.

THAKU T. ADWANI (Bombay)
Can’t you, Mr. Patel, exhort Seth Chandulal Shah to keep away from film production instead of producing such rotten and filthy pictures like his latest “Mitti ke Khiloune”?

Chandulal Shah does not read “filmindia” and it is difficult to teach a man who boasts of his “ingles” being better than his Hindustani.

T. P. JHUNJHUNWALA (Kanpur)
Would you like your children to be critics?

I would but they stand before the mirror and flatter my work in bed. How can such people be critics? A critic begins with himself first.

POORAN CHANDRA (Lucknow)
In which country of the world are leaders most respected?

In India! Our leaders can get away with anything. We are a nation of idol worshippers who see gods in stones.

JAYANTILAL RATILAL BHATT (Kandivali)
What will happen if you and Sardar Patel exchange posts for one month?

The Sardar will get more advertisements but will bring down the sales of “filmindia”. I shall make a lesser mess of his post than he will make of mine.

“Andaz” Draws Crowds At Liberty!
Dilip Kumar Gives His Greatest Performance!

Whenever Indian producers try to portray sophistication in their pictures they always end by being clumsy and unconvincing. Somehow Indian artists when they try to ape Western sophisticated ways of life, they always look more funny than convincing. The assumption that fancy costumes, horse riding, perfumes, ball-room dancing and birthday parties make up for all the sophistication required in motion pictures is entirely wrong. All these are, of course, so many outward symbols of sophistication but then sophistication being an essentially mental attitude it has to be mainly expressed in an intellectual manner and with the necessary poise and personality to be completely effective. Merely dressing the dummies for monkey tricks like horse-riding and ball-room dancing cannot lend sophistication to a story.

Seen from this view point, not one character in “Andaz” succeeds in convincing us. And it is a pity that director Mehboob, who is known for vividly portraying some rare realism of life in the past, should have this time stooped to give us a story in an artificial environment entirely inconsistent with the realities of contemporary life in India. The social life which Mehboob portrays in “Andaz” is perhaps found in a few city homes but the people who live this life are in such a small minority that their life and deeds can hardly provide a theme for millions in the country. A social theme is the one which presents the problems of the masses to the masses and suggests an optimistic solution of them. The gambols of a few Westernized monkeys can hardly make a story for 350 million Indians. “Andaz” is, therefore, a story of the few for the few.

TALE OF HUMAN HEARTS!

Basically, the story of “Andaz” has some deep human values. Neena, a rich man’s only daughter, is saved from a riding accident by Dilip, a young man, whose origin remains a mystery till the end. He is born in the picture on a horse back and we know nothing about his home, his parents, his occupation or his social standing till the end. The only parent of his that we see is the horse which bears his weight in the introductory sequence.

Neena feels grateful and accepts Dilip as a life-long friend. Dilip misunderstands gratitude and falls in love with Neena. When Neena’s father dies, according to the dramatic schedule, Neena gives half her wealth to Dilip and asks him to manage the rest. Dilip considers this as further evidence of her love for him.

Now, Rajan, another young fellow, returns from England—goodness knows after doing what! We are told that Rajan and Neena love each other since childhood and have been waiting for each other many years. It is the ideal love that waits till eternity.

Rajan and Neena are soon married but on the marriage day Dilip wants to pack off. In a little exchange of thoughts Neena is shocked to discover that Dilip loves her very deeply. To keep the story going, Dilip, of course, chooses to stay a little longer and continue with the management of the business.

Neena goes to Simla, away from home and away from Dilip’s love. Neena loves her husband and proves this by presenting him with a child, an orthodox act for a sophisticated girl. She doesn’t want to return to the city and very soon the fretting of Rajan turns into suspicion. Love now suffers an eclipse of doubt and matters soon rush to a climax when Rajan returns with Neena to their home town. Dilip becomes aggressive in his love and Rajan becomes more suspicious and quarrelsome till at last Neena empties her revolver into Dilip’s chest when he tries to enforce his affection on her.

Neena is now tried for murder and of all people Rajan accuses her of disloyalty. Neena is sentenced to transportation for life and not till then does Rajan discover, through a letter written by Dilip and hidden in a toy, that Neena loved only Rajan and no one else. There is remorse, of course, and a mad rush to the jail gates. It ends there.

A CONFUSED THEME

Mehboob probably wants to tell us that our young girls should not have male friends as such friendships are often misunderstood and prove tragic in the long run. Or does Mehboob consider friendship between a man and a woman as a symbol of Western sophistication?

This is rather an extreme view of relationship between a man and a woman. Friendship is essentially a human virtue and to deny it to our young girls is rather a strange order. Is it necessary that all friendships between men and women should end in sex relationship? Aren’t there men who look upon their women friends as pals or sisters? Haven’t we in India the ceremony of ‘Raksha Bandhan’ which ties strangers into a bond of brotherhood and gives a Muslim brother to a Hindu sister?

Or does Mehboob want our married girls to disown all previous friends because her husband is unreasonably suspicious and jealous? Does he want our married girls to withdraw themselves from society and isolate themselves at the feet of their husbands? Whatever Mehboob wants to tell us, he fails to convince us in “Andaz” one way or other.

MEHBOOB BRINGS TEARS

As a motion picture, “Andaz” is an attractive piece of cinematographic art. Faredoon Irani excels himself in capturing some very beautiful outdoor scenery. The music of the picture is not quite happy. Mehboob has somehow stumbled through the sophisticated sequences of the picture and the first half of the picture drags a bit. In the latter half, where the human drama takes a pathetic turn, Mehboob vindicates his reputation as a good director and gives some extremely emotional work, in which Nargis reaches new heights. In the pathetic sequences, Mehboob succeeds in moving the audience to tears.

SUPERB TRAGEDIENNE!

From the players, Nargis gives an eloquent performance as a superb tragedienne when sighs and tears begin to punctuate the drama. This girl is great when she has to say it with tears.

Dilip Kumar improves beyond recognition under Mehboob’s direction. He casts off his usual manerisms and becomes versatile in the role of Dilip, the frustrated lover. The way he portrays his struggle of suppressed emotions is a fine piece of histrionic art. This is easily Dilip Kumar’s greatest performance so far. And yet we wish someone gives the traditional Muslim crop to his “goonda” hair running riot over his face.

Raj Kapoor plays a role that suits his personality. He lives it almost with his carefree abandon and emphatic gestures. In parts, he over-dramatizes his actions but that is what Raj Kapoor actually is in life.

Cuckoo plays a sympathetic role as Sheela. For an Anglo-Indian girl, she speaks her dialogue too well at times and quite indifferently sometimes. Her movements are as graceful as her dances. She is a future hope for a good role.

And yet after all and said, done “Andaz” is an attractive picture, the second half of which is good enough to make one forget the first half.

“Nai Reet” Deserves To Be Banned!

Censors Wink At Anti-Social Picture!

“Nai Reet” produced by India Film Corporation is not at all a happy picture as it provokes none-too-sympathetic thoughts and preaches a revolutionary mode of life completely alien to our culture and traditions.

Wrongly assuming protection under the Bombay Hindu Divorce Act of 1917, the picture propagates divorce amongst the Hindus as the easiest escape from emotionally unhappy marriages and actually forces two divorces to substantiate this viewpoint in the picture.

This, however, is an entirely wrong and illegal interpretation of the Bombay Hindu Divorce Act of 1917 which has absolutely no provision in it for obtaining a divorce if one of the parties to the divorce is merely in love with another woman on grounds of her being an educated woman. The laws of our country have not yet started taking notice of love tangles and emotional affairs in the lives of our people.

The Bombay Hindu Divorce Act of 1917 provides for a divorce on six grounds: impotency at the time of marriage; lunacy for seven years; leprosy for seven years; desertion for four years; death or disappearance for seven years and adultery with a concubine or with the opposite sex or prostitution.

None of these legal grounds are found in “Nai Reet” where the hero, Kamlakant, divorces his wife Bindu and the other woman Jwala gets a divorce from her professor-husband, Dr. Rai. The only reason given for these two divorces is that Kamlakant falls in love with Jwala, the professor’s wife, who is an educated woman and she reciprocates his love. Having met an educated woman, Kamlakant begins to dislike his own uneducated wife, with a child, even though she is shown as the usual ideal Hindu woman.

DISTORTION OF SOCIAL VALUES

Do the producers mean to tell us that an ideal Hindu wife, and the mother of a child at that, should be punished with a divorce for all her virtues merely because she hasn’t got some smattering of the English language?

If we are to accept this teaching as a guidance for our future life, the earlier we forget all age-old Hindu traditions the better for us.

All throughout the picture, Bindu, the ideal Hindu wife, is shown as a paragon of domestic virtues worshipping her husband and not doing a single act that would hurt him even indirectly. The hero, Kamlakant, is a graduate of science, who gives his new bride a child and then goes to the city to prosecute higher studies. This man of education falls in love with his professor’s young wife. The professor is shown as an old man devoted to science and has a young wife in Jwala who, though she possesses a good character, is still shown as missing sexual intimacy with her learned husband. But nowhere is it shown that her husband is either impotent or indifferent. On the other hand whenever he goes to her bedroom, Jwala, sort of freezes him with her cold indifference which compels the gentle professor to retire from the room. This educated woman, who must have married the elderly professor of her own free will, falls in love with Kamlakant, the younger man, when he appears on the scene.

TRAVESTY OF JUSTICE

Kamlakant and Jwala love each other in a chaste manner as is emphasized in the picture till both are free from their previous marital commitments.

After a lot of emotional drama, punctuated by the helpless pathos of Bindu, the ideal Hindu wife, we are suddenly told that both the divorces were granted by the same court, thus giving a license to Kamlakant and Jwala to marry after driving Bindu out of the house unceremoniously without her child.

If as new citizens of a free State, we are going to grant divorces on such flimsy grounds, the entire fibre of our ancient social order is going to be poisoned very soon.

Ranjit Kumari makes “Aahuti” or “Anokhi Qurbani” an attractive picture.
Shyam is fast becoming a top-liner amongst our male leads. Here he is doing something to that book, in "Char Din", a social story of Rattan Pictures.

The Bombay Hindu Divorce Act of 1917 is intended to give relief to the helpless and distressed. It is a negative legislation to be used in extreme cases. But even this law does not provide a divorce for the illicit love affairs of educated married people.

Doesn't this picture, therefore, defeat the true and social spirit of the Divorce Act apart from it preaching a disgusting anti-social approach to the sacred institution of Hindu marriage?

APPEAL TO HOME MINISTER!

If this picture is allowed to encourage illicit love tangles between married persons resulting in a demoralization of our ancient social code, we are soon going to inherit the material-minded Western way of life where marital life is often identified with canine mating.

Our Home Minister, Mr. Morarji R. Desai once told us that there is more culture and education on his Censor Board than in the entire film industry. If the censoring of this picture is an evidence of the culture and education of the members of his Censor Board, we regret to state that the evidence is far from being convincing.

Minister Morarji Desai should see this picture himself and tell us why this picture is not bannedstraight-away if we are to accept his numerous professions about Hindu culture and sanctity of married life as a sincere expression of his genuine convictions.

ABETTING CRIME!

Apart from the disgustingly anti-social story, the production values of the picture are terrifically poor. The music is not at all attractive nor is the dialogue.

From the players, Sulochana Chatterjee gives a pretty good performance in the sympathetic role of "Bindu", the ideal Hindu wife. Rajendra is quite good as "Anokhe" while Geeta Bali, though she blows out her nostrils too many times like a race horse after a strenuous race, acquits herself creditably as "Jwala". Krishna Kant is disappointing both in work and looks.

"Nai Reet", is a disgusting, anti-social picture and as such deserves to be banned by the censors all over India. The exhibitor who shows this picture can himself be accused of abetting anti-social activities.
OUR REVIEW

"Bazaar" Becomes A Good Entertainer!

Familiar Story Well Produced!

Quite a few stage stories from Hollywood have been used for making "Bazaar" an attractive entertainment. Amarnath always shoots his pictures carefully and "Bazaar" has therefore become also a technically pleasant picture, soothing to the eye and the ear.

The story is the familiar stage triangle which we have seen on the screen so often. An impeccable poet, Parwana, runs away from home in company with his pal Jagu to join a theatrical company. On the way they come across a gipsy camp and Jagu succeeds in picking up Koel, a gipsy dancer, as his sweetheart.

Parwana and Jagu soon cross swords with Khanna of Khanna Theatres whose main attraction is Bijli, a beautiful and temperamental dancer. Bijli is attracted by Parwana's poetry and physique and we soon see Parwana, Jagu and Koel working in Khanna Theatres.

Parwana and Bijli begin to love each other and Khanna doesn't like the look of things being himself in love with Bijli. Things soon reach a slow-down stage and Bijli walks out of Khanna Theatres arm-in-arm with Parwana and his stooges. The new team tries to start its own theatre business but the love-stricken Khanna becomes vindictive and with his influence and money hounds them out from place to place till Parwana and Bijli are ruined and heartbroken. In a desperate attempt to save Parwana's poetic soul, Bijli, sacrificing her love for him, compromises matters with Khanna who helps to put Parwana on the stage once again. But, Parwana needs more than mere success to feel happy and very soon he returns heartbroken to his parental home, a saddler but wiser man.

Now Parwana dedicates himself to national service and we soon come to the climax in which Khanna realizing the intensity of Bijli's love for Parwana gracefully gives her up and all rush to a public meeting for their individual professions and confessions. Evidently any place seems to be good enough for the Punjabis to vomit their love and a large crowd does not deter Bijli from vomiting her love for Parwana on a public platform. It ends well.

WELL PRODUCED PICTURE

The story is commonplace but the framing of the picture is beautiful in parts. The songs are attractively tuned. The photography is also excellent in parts and quite pleasant generally. Amarnath's direction is good as usual, with the exception of the odd sequence in which Nigar sings a sad song through a number of public streets after leaving Khanna's home. That is rather an odd adventure in musical singing.

Nigar plays "Bijli" pretty smartly and gives a good performance throughout. Shyam plays Parwana, the poet, rather indifferently and lacks the dreamy and distant look which is usually associated with poets. Badri Prasad does a nice little role as a national poet. Yaqub's "Khanna" fails to convince. Yaqub has now started repeating himself and gets boring in consequence. Gope does his usual bit as Jagu with Moghul putting in a couple of attractive dances.

There is plenty to entertain in "Bazaar" though there is nothing to remember. The picture has a pretty fast tempo and does not bore. It is a good entertainer with attractive music and pleasant photography.

In "Chandni Raat", a social story of Taj Mahal Pictures directed by Mr. Ahsan, Naseem gives a fine emotional portrayal.

"Grahasti" Slanders Education.
A Disgusting And Boring Picture Of Hindu Life!

The way idiotic pictures like "Grahasti" draw crowds one cannot help feeling that even after 35 years of film production in India, the average picturegoer has not developed any taste for art, technique, story or music in films and he still desires nothing better than the old reactionary stories depicting the most disgraceful aspects of society wherein education, culture and progress are wrongly and ruthlessly slandered, and which provide cheap songs like those heard at "Ramlilas" and "Tamashas" and buffoonery performed by circus clowns.

As if one Mohanal Dave had not been enough, the film industry has now discovered his literary twin Prabhulal Dwivedi, a Gujarati playwright, whose several stage plays have largely contributed to the almost total extinction of the Gujarati Stage. This author's strength lies in painting the darkest picture of the educated young people in society and in glorifying the fast vanishing orthodoxy in which even the worst specimen of humanity must be, to his wife, her supreme lord and master and her in-laws her gods and deities in whose worship the wife must sacrifice herself—body, mind and soul.

In the synopsis of the story the author tells us: "Whosoever you are, in whatever walk of life you may be, this is surely your story. Find yourself in it!" The fact is that the various types of human beings portrayed in "Grahasti" are impossible to find anywhere in any society—both good and bad. It is an insult to society to say that it is so faithfully represented in the picture.

PERVERSE VIEW OF EDUCATION

The picture starts with Kamal (Masood) with his newly-wed wife Mohana, (Kuldeep) a girl of his own choice, coming to his village home with a widowed mother Shanta (Lalita Pawar) to her husband's family in a manner unheard of anywhere in the world—singing and dancing like a street girl. That is Prabhulal Dwivedi's conception of an educated girl with a university degree! She is likewise welcomed in the family by her sister-in-law, a village virgin, who dances before her brother and brother's wife with gestures becoming a street dancer and singing a song to teach the wife how to love and win the love of her husband. This again, is Prabhulal Dwivedi's conception of a Hindu village virgin brought up in the traditions of a "Grahasta"—a decent, orthodox, respectable family! One always wonders in what God-forsaken corner of the world have these writers found such people whose like no one ever sees anywhere except in the films produced from their stories.

Mohana, being an educated girl and a graduate at that, must, according to the Dwivedi notions, hate the village home and her in-laws and Kamal, as he had married an educated wife, must bid good-bye to all love and regard for his mother and sister and become a hen-pecked husband. The couple returns to Bombay after a two days' stay in the village.

In Bombay, Kamal is living in a flat in the same building in which Sunder (Yakub) and Geeta (Sulochna Chatterjee) another married couple coming from the same village, occupy another flat and there is yet another tenant, Mufatulal (Mirza Musharraf) a crook living by his wits—all from the same village. Sunder is an insurance agent and his wife Geeta is the ideal Hindu cow with all the noblest feminine virtues combined in her to perfection since she had the good luck to escape college
RCA salutes these artists, producers, and film companies for the honor paid them by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences:

JANE WYMAN, for the best performance by an actress, in "JOHNNY BELINDA" (Warner Brothers)

CLAIRE TREVOR, for the best performance by a supporting actress, in "KEY LARGO" (Warner Brothers)

WALTER HUSTON, for the best performance by a supporting actor, in "TREASURE OF SIERRA MADRE" (Warner Brothers)

JOHN HUSTON, for the best direction of the year, in "TREASURE OF SIERRA MADRE" (Warner Brothers)

JERRY WALD (Warner Brothers) for the outstanding achievement in production

WALT DISNEY, for the best two-reel short subject, "SEAL ISLAND".

UNION GENERAL CINEMATIC GRAFIQUE, for the best foreign picture, "MONSIEUR VINCENT".

All of these award-winning pictures were recorded on RCA Sound System. The leading film studios all over the world, and 90 per cent of the studios in India are RCA-equipped. The world's leading motion picture theatres, too, depend upon RCA Sound Systems for the best in sound reproduction.

Says B. D. Nadkarni, Managing Director of Warner Brothers, Bombay: "Naturally we are proud. RCA recording equipment undoubtedly played its part in this achievement."
duration and a university degree. Mohana, of course, having missed that luck, is a frivolous, pleasure-seeking, reckless, self-centered and disdainful woman without love, affection, good manners or even a single quality of a housewife.

Mohana’s reckless waste of her husband’s modest earnings soon lands him into debts. Kamal’s mother and sister who arrive in Bombay to stay with the couple are ill-treated. Humiliated, insulted and Sharda is even slapped by Mohana, so that they soon leave Kamal’s house in sorrow and disgust. A lucky motor accident, however, instalts the mother and laughter comfortably in the house of Kumar (Pran) a rich bachelor who is incidentally, Kamal’s employer. For no earthly reason whatever, Kumar’s heart gets suddenly affected with brotherly affection for Sharda with much warmer feelings for Sharda. So a match between Kumar and Sharda is quickly arranged.

Meanwhile, Mohana, having misappropriated part of Kamal’s office cash for paying for a motor car, Kamal gets into trouble. He loses his job and is threatened with criminal action, which makes him seriously ill. The unrepenting Mohana, however, not caring for anything, enjoys life with her friends and gets badly hurt in an accident which destroys her own car. And then lo! In a jiffy, wisdom dawns on Mohana who repents for her folly and suddenly develops love for her husband and regard and affection for her mother and sister-in-law. And in a minute the clouds disappear and after due apologies all around everyone is reconciled.

What can a man with the slightest understanding of films and a taste for pictures, say of this junk—a disgusting hotchpotch of absurdities and impossibilities—from the first to the last scene? In a country which cannot boast of more than 12 per cent literacy it is no wonder that people still like seeing education being ridiculed and slandered in such a perverse manner. All this, however, makes the work of the educationists more difficult.

DISGUSTING AND BORING

The production values of the picture are crude and erratic. The music is unmusical. Among the artists, Yakub, who contrary to his usual practice plays a sympathetic role this time, easily beats the others with his carefree, happy-go-lucky portrayal of an insurance agent. He, however, becomes boring at places with his too frequent slogan, “Khush raho pyare.” Lalita Pawar also gives a good performance as the old mother. Sulochana Chatterji, as the ideal housewife, also does her bit. The rest are, well just the rest.

To sum it all. "Grahasti" is at once boring and disgusting apart from the theme being an inexcusable slander on educated women and education in general. If pictures like this are allowed to run without any check, education is certainly not going to be a very popular item of our national life.
"I am to say Maulana Sahib has been taking interest in the venture sponsored by the National Education & Information Films Ltd and will continue to take interest in it as its full significance and advantages to Education are quite obvious."

Private Secretary to the Hon’ble Minister for Education. Govt. of India

"There is little doubt that the imparting of education and the dissemination of useful information to the people of the rural areas in order to make them worthy citizens of India can be more effectively done through the medium of films.

I believe that rather than the written or spoken word, educational films will prove more effective in bringing about an increased awareness of the tasks lying ahead of us and of the necessity to work for the raising of the standard of life of the people so that we can build up a strong and prosperous India as soon as possible.

I wish the National Education and Information Films Ltd., every success in their undertaking."

FRIENDLY GESTURE
Madras, March 19.

After the recent Inter-Dominion agreement between India and Pakistan, concluded at New Delhi on the 24th December 1948 to foster better relations between the two Dominions, the Government of Madras have instructed the Provincial Board of Film Censors not to certify any film or film which contains harmful propaganda against the sister dominion. The other provincial governments would now issue similar directives so that films become only vehicles of entertainment which we need sadly in the country today.

STUDENTS TEACHING NOW
Cambridge (Massachusetts).
March 16.

A group of 54 students of Harvard University and a few girls of Radcliffe College have produced a 3000 feet silent film called, "The Touch of the Times" to show Hollywood what type of pictures they should really produce.

The company christened Ivy Films, was founded by 22-year old William A. Alden of Wellesley. It took two years. 1400 dollars and literally blood which the students sold at 25 dollars a pint to buy the film. During the production, they had to dodge Boston policemen and spend three nights in a subway car to ‘shoot’ one scene. The film is reported to be a “comic fantasy” with a single swift kiss in the entire length of the film.

Said Mr. Alden, “So much trash is coming out of Hollywood these days that if a few artistic films could be made, may be people would demand a change.”

Hollywood’s misrepresentation of American and other life is too well-known and the students deserve congratulations on their new enterprise. We wonder if some spirited Indian students will do something like this to improve the quality of Indian pictures which is fast deteriorating.

But that is hoping too much. Indian students had no guts even to protest against “Jugnu”, which slandered college life in India.

SAMPLE OF FRIENDSHIP?
Calcutta, March 21.

The East Pakistan censors have banned the exhibition of the Indian Dominion Flag and national slogans in Indian films imported into Pakistan.

Intimating this to the Bengal Motion Picture Association of Calcutta, the East Bengal Board of Censors expressed the opinion that, “for the present it would be inadvisable in the interests of both producers and distributors of films, to allow such films to be shown in Pakistan”.

Mr. Santosh Kumar Basu, India’s Deputy High Commissioner at Dacca, is taking up the matter with the East Bengal authorities.

BETTER SHOWMANSHIP REQUIRED
Lucknow, March 17.

Several persons were injured when the police opened fire on a cinema crowd at Agra on Tuesday, the 15th March.

It is stated that the projector failed during a show and the annoyed audience tore down the screen and damaged the furniture. The police used “lathi” at first to disperse the crowd and later opened fire to control the unruly crowd.

Forty-seven persons were arrested on the spot and the injured were admitted to the hospital.

OLD ORDER CONTINUES!
Calcutta, March 19.

The following members have been elected to the West Bengal Board of Film Censors and will hold office from March 1949 for one year. They are: 1. The Commissioner of Police, Calcutta (ex-officio), President; 2. The Director of Publicity, West Bengal (ex-officio); 3. The Secretary to the Government of West Bengal, Home Department (ex-officio); 4. The Secretary to the Government of West Bengal (ex-officio); 5. An officer to be nominated by the Area Commander, Bengal, Bihar and Orissa Area; 6. Shri I. A. Hafisjee; 7. nominee of Corporation of Calcutta; 8. The Hon. Mrs. S. K. Sinha; 9. Shri Jnananjjan Niyogi; 10. Mr. J. R. Walker, M.L.A.; 11. Shri Lakshminivas Birla and 12. Shri Satya Charan Law. The Deputy Commissioner of Police Headquarters, Calcutta, is ex-officio Secretary of the Board.

That is a funny crowd of persons to censor films under a white-cap government. Out of 12 members there are 5 officials and with the exception of I. A. Hafisjee, not one from the remaining can claim any experience of film censoring.

Considering that film censorship is a vital phase of our national life, one wonders why Premier B. C. Roy could not have got a more representative crowd on his Censor Board.

By the way, Hafisjee is an M.G.M. man and his position is bound to be a bit awkward whatever M.G.M. pictures are being censored.

With tantalizing defiance Madhubala invites Jairaj to do his worst—or is it best?—in "Singaar", a social story of Haldia-Nanda Productions.

SCRAMBLE FOR STORY

Calcutta, March 17.

Before Justice J. P. Mitter of the Calcutta High Court, Shambhu Nath trick succeeded in obtaining an injunction against Kanan Devi, the well-known actress, restraining her from producing and distributing a film based on “Chandranath”, a novel written by the late Sarat Chandra chatterjee.

It seems that the rights of this novel were previously acquired by B. N. Streeter of New Theatres at they were relinquished in favour of Shambhu Nath.

Kanan had to pay the costs of the suit.

ONE MORE PERHAPS!

Madras, March 11.

Presiding at the first anniversary of the Film Fans’ Association on Wednesday, the 9th March, Mr. M. Haktavatsalam, Public Works Minister stressed the need for raising the standard of films, the provision of more amenities and conveniences in public in theatres and to encourage more people to learn Hindustani in order to take “our legitimate share in the administration of our country” in the years to come.

The object of this Association is to create “a miniature public” which will criticise fearlessly all films produced in the province. We have previously heard of several other Associations talking tall at anniversary celebrations but bad pictures continue to be exhibited all the same.

A CRADLE DESIGNER!

Hollywood star, Diana Lynn, got married to John Lindsay, a wealthy young architect of Los Angeles.

An architect is the right man to marry to build a home.

BONFIRE!

Bombay, March 29.

A fire broke out in the film storage department of the Famous Cine Laboratories, Haines Road, Mahalaxmi, Bombay, on Tuesday the 29th March, causing damage to the extent of Rs. 1,50,000.

It is reported that some of the film producers and distributors were warned about the room being unsafe for storage of films and they had therefore removed the stocks. Only some films belonging to the R.K.O. and the Indian Film Circuit were stored there. One of the pictures which was destroyed was “Joan of Arc”.

Film fires have become such a regular feature of the film industry that no one seems to bother about them any more. So long as some celluloid junk is destroyed, without any toll of human lives, it is o.k. with us.

A WEEK’S RELIEF!

Nagpur, April 8.

All cinemas in the C.P. and Berar province remained closed for a week beginning from Friday, the 1st of April to Thursday, the 7th April, as a protest against the enhancement of Entertainment Tax to 50% on cinema tickets.

STRONG MAN ACT!
James Mason, popularly known as the strong man of the screen and his wife, Pamela, became parents to a baby girl.

VICTOR’S VICTORY!
Film actor, Victor Mc Laglen, an old-timer, at last made Mrs. Margaret Pumphrey his wife. Before Mrs. Margaret became Mrs. Mc Laglen, she was a long-time family friend.

NO MORE CROONING!
Dick Haymes, popular singer of the screen, has separated from Joanne Dru.
Joanne Dru, however, is busy working in “Red River” and seems to have got over the shock already.

ARTIE’S QUEUE!
Much-in-the-news novelist, Kathleen Winsor, the sixth wife of band leader Artie Shaw, won a Reno decree.
Kathleen had used for divorce a few months ago on grounds of cruelty.

“MAD” GUY!
Barbara Ford was granted a divorce from film actor, Robert Walker.
This was on the grounds that Barbara was sent home to her parents after five weeks of marriage. Meanwhile, Bob is undergoing treatment at the Menninger Psychiatric Clinic while Barbara is working ten hours a day in “She wore a yellow ribbon”.

AT LAST!
After many postponements, Hollywood star, Wanda Hendrix and Audie Murphy became man and wife.

NO MORE FOOLING!
Joseph Cawthorn, well-known stage and screen comedian died in his home in Beverley Hills, at the age of 81. One of his best known roles in films was in “Naughty Marietta”. Starting his career at the age of four, he worked for over seventy years and appeared in more than 50 pictures during his Hollywood screen career.

INSURING POACHING!
Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, has proposed the setting up of a body to be called The World Economic Corporation with a capital of $1,000,000,000 to be used for guaranteeing U.S. investors against loss through nationalization and confiscation of their capital invested in foreign countries.

 Said Eric, “This corporation will not guarantee investments against losses incurred in the ordinary course of business because I want investments abroad to be developed with business acumen and enterprise. And it will not guarantee a return on investments.

What about our silver-haired “Erik”? BLOWN OFF!
Dacca, March 19.
The roof of a local cinema house collapsed, on Friday the 18th March, injuring 8 persons.
The collapse of the roof, is reported to be due to the storm which blew over Dacca. The injured people were discharged from the hospital after first-aid.

But who is paying for the broken skulls?

HULLO, MORARJI!
Calcutta, March 11.
In spite of strong protests from film producers, exhibitors and distributors, the Bengal Legislative Assembly passed the Finance Minister’s Bill to enhance the Entertainment Tax on the 5th March.
The enhanced rates of the entertainment tax on cinema tickets as passed by the House are as follows:
—Tickets priced at more than 3 annas and not more than Rs. 1/- will be taxed at 25% of their prices;
Tickets priced at more than Rs. 1/- and not more than Rs. 3/- at the rate of 50% and tickets priced at more than Rs. 3/- at the rate of 75%.
The complimentary tickets will be taxed at the same enhanced rates as priced tickets of corresponding classes.

Why does not Minister Morarji Desai tax complimentary tickets?

ASK STALIN!
Under a new agreement between England and Russia regarding the exchange of their films, England is to send 11 films to Soviet Russia in exchange for 11 Soviet films. Which means that for every British film shown in Russia, one Russian film will be shown in England.
The Russian films will be seen in England alright but will the English films be ever shown in Russia? And who will check up behind the Iron Curtain?

BRITISH FILM SCORE:

Hollywood, April 3.

At the recent annual voting of the Academy of Motion Pictures Arts and Sciences in Hollywood, Sir Laurence Olivier won laurels as the “best actor of the year” for his performance in “Hamlet”, and Jane Wyman as the “best actress of the year”, for her performance in “Johnny Belinda”.

The best film of the year was “Hamlet”, produced by Sir Laurence Olivier. “Hamlet” also received three minor prizes—for black and white art direction, for black and white set direction and for black and white costume design.

Mr. J. Arthur Rank’s film, “The Red Shoes” won an Oscar for “the best picture for a colour production” and the prize for “the best musical score of any domestic or foreign picture.

A LION AT REST:

Chandramohan

Bombay, April 2.

Chandramohan, the great character actor of Indian films, died of heart failure at his residence, Bilkha House, in Bombay, at 10-15 A.M. on Saturday 2nd April 1949.

Blessed with a dynamic personality, a pair of unique eyes and a remarkable talent for acting and direction, Chandramohan easily reached the top of his career without the help of any producer or director. His versatile personality as a superb character-actor lent caste to many an ambitious director who, after a single great performance by Chandramohan, was himself recognized as a filmcraftsmen.

Born on the 21th July 1906 at Narsinghpur in the Central Provinces, Chandramohan Watal belonged to a cultured family of Kashmiri Pundits. After a good education, he took up work with a film distributing firm in Delhi and during one of his business tours was picked up by the Prabhat Film Company of Poona to star in their picture, “Amrit Manthan”.

Syed Fateh Lal, the great artist of Prabhat, was so much fascinated by Chandramohan’s unique eyes that he would sit for hours looking at them wondering how they would be received on the screen.

With his very first picture, Chandramohan arrived and was soon hailed as the greatest character-actor of the Indian screen. After “Amrit Manthan”, he worked in numerous pictures. Some of his big hits being: “Dharmatma”, “Amar Jyoti”, “Pukar”, “Draupadi”, “Shaheen” and “Shakuntala”.

Leonine in bearing and noble in character, Chandramohan was recognized as a great friend and sportsman to whom all rushed in their hour of need.

Never again will this great actor be replaced. For, the lambs of the day can never reach the stature of the lion that died.

May his soul rest in peace!

MISUSED:

Moscow, April 7.

It is reported that the “Children of the Earth”, an Indian picture directed by K. Ahmed Abbas, had its preview in Moscow on the night of 5th April at the Soviet Ministry of Cinematography. It was, of course, a private showing to the Soviet officials.

The Soviet evening newspaper “Vecherniaia Moskva” said the film “shows the hard and hopeless life of the Indian peasant”.

Thus the Indian Government unwittingly provided to the Soviets one more argument for Communism in India.

Why can’t we scrutinize our films from all angles before letting them go out of the country?

giving us a memorable documentary on the life of the noblest son of India.

“The only flaw in an otherwise excellent film was the scene when the Mountbattens were shown twice, mourning at the cremation ceremony. Having known for centuries the crocodile tears which the Britisher sheds for others, there was no necessity to show the close-ups of the Mountbattens twice when only mid-shots of most of our leaders were shown only once. This scene reminded me of the past when there was undue respect for the Britisher. Tarmed the ‘most popular Viceroy’, Mountbatten gave “the unkindest cut of all”, a cut which paralysed the Con-its best foot forward, in the above direction, a trend which unfortunately is so greatly needed but so little thought of in India. The U.S.A. has set a welcome precedent by honouring its film artistes with the coveted “Oscar”. Every year the Academy Awards are distributed to the best actor, the best actress and even the best supporting stars, of the year. The sterling contribution to the success of such films by the persons behind the screen is also taken into account. For their technical contribution they are honoured with Awards for “Best Photography”, “Best Sound Recording”, Best Direction” and so on.

“The IMPPA should take a tip and see that this wholesome system be introduced. This will not only spell the advent of healthy competition among our stars but also a keener appreciation of art.”

ASK SHUKLA!

“Do you know that cinema is going to be a costly affair in C.P. & Berar with effect from the beginning of the new year? What a fertile brain the C.P. recruit Sardari Lal Sharma of Room 51, Council House, New Delhi, 26, 5'-9", has worked on the amateur stage winning several prizes. He can also sing.

"Just now three theatres are under construction and it passes our imagination how they get hold of steel and cement, while it is denied to the na-side builders of dwelling houses. There is a Congress Government power here, and I don’t understand why they are keeping quiet about this. Surely there seems to be some wire-pulling behind all this. Recently Sardar Patel praised the Mysore Government, but I doubt whether they deserve all the praise. Let us hope that the new theatres will be utilized for some immediate serving purpose rather than for exhibiting filthy pictures.”

SURGICAL REMINDER!

“A fortnight ago, after a very long wait, I had the pleasure of seeing a film entitled ‘Indian’ on the Indian screen. It was Famous pictures’ lyrical short entitled "Bakki Amar Kahani" which was screened along with "Pyar ki Jeeet" the local Prabhat. The background song was absolutely first rate, the writer having used his brains in singing out all the important incidents from the life of Bapuji in a poetic lyrical manner. The idea of recognizing artistes for the Mahatma’s role is an excellent one. It speaks volumes for those who were responsible for this idea and our hats off to Baburao Pai, the Famous chief, for progress into accepting, against all its pledges and principles, the unfortunate division of our motherland. It will enhance the beauty of the film if that scene is shown only once without undue emphasis. Will Mr. Baburao Pai oblige?”

won freedom, or a part of the policy of inflation?"

INDEED!

I saw an R.K.O. picture at a morning show in the local "Ganesha Talkies" which is a newly-built theatre without the least notion of acoustics of shutting out light. The perfunctory light all round made the screen dim and whatever sound emanated got lost in all directions leaving nothing to reach the ears of the dear film fans. It was more like a silent picture and that too with a shy screen. It was a picture featuring Ginger Rogers and I came as if I had eaten raw ginger. This not robbing the hard-earned money of our poor film fans?"

SORE. A.N. Narayana Rao.

AND YET:

"Your esteemed magazine was perhaps the only paper which launched a vigorous campaign against the construction of cinema houses and luxurious buildings in these difficult days when thousands of people are passing the bitter winter nights without roof over their heads. Housing these teeming millions who have been cruelly and wantonly chased out of their hearth and home by political gangsters is the prime need of the present day.

"It is gratifying to note that your spoken but candid pleadings did not go in vain. A few days ago Prime Minister, Pandit Nehru clearly stated in the Dominion Parliament that the Central and Provincial Governments would follow the policy of discouraging the indiscriminate use of cement and other materials for cinema "palaces" and luxury buildings."

KASGANJ (U.P.)

MAKING HAY:

"I read with interest your article in March 1949 issue of "filmindia" under the caption "Suraiya, a risky packet. I think this should serve as an eye opener to our young and greedy film stars who for a few pieces of gold are not only becoming cheaper with the masses but are also losing the appeal of their art.

"Surely no one can portray different roles successfully in a number of pictures at the same time. Don't you think it's high time we should also introduce some system of star rationing on the lines of Hollywood?"

NEW DELHI. M. P. Bhatia.

NOT MONEY BUT ART?

"It was with great expectations and a joy absolutely new that I went to see 'Vellinakshatram' (Malayalam), the maiden production of Messrs. Udaya Studios, Alleppey, but regret to say that I was rewarded with nothing but sheer boredom and disappointment.

"It is really a pity that the picture produced in our own studio, in our own tongue and played by our own people could not reach the standard of even the second-rate Tamil pictures!"

"Strangely enough the picture is directed by a German! The producers have apparently failed in the selection of the artists. They are trying to reap a big profit with a small investment.

"Kerala lacks nothing that is needed for film production. Nevertheless, her film industry is not going to flourish until and unless monied people come in and do something worthwhile."

KOTTAYAM. P. H. Jacob.

IT IS:

"In many theatres in Madras and other towns at the end of the picture when the National flag is flashed on the screen for a few seconds most of the spectators in the upper classes who are the so-called educated gentlemen get out of the hall, without standing in attention as a mark of respect. Is it not dis-repectful on their part to do so?"

KAKINADA. V. M. Venkataraman.

PUBLICITY, EH?

"Can't something be done to check the uncivilized way of throwing money on the screen during an attractive song or dance? It is beyond any shadow of doubt that this is all pre-arranged by those interested in giving more publicity to the pictures. They depute their agents inside the cinema halls particularly in the lower class for this purpose with the sole object of whipping up enthusiasm for the picture among the general public. But those concerned are living in a fool's paradise if they think that the public is more attracted by such tactics. On the other hand a large number of people becomes disgusted as the songs cannot be enjoyed fully with such interruptions.

"The owners of the cinemas in which such exhibitions are given also owe some responsibility in the matter as without their consent such things can never happen. They should turn out such persons from the auditorium immediately."

"Shabnam" starring Kamini Kaushal and Dilip Kumar promises to be an exciting picture, the way both these popular lovers of the screen have been transferring romance to celluloid under the direction of S. Mitra. Director Ramesh Saigal seems bent on making "Samadhi" not only an emotional epic but an artistic presentation, seeing that every little shot is planned and executed carefully.

Rehana, the heartache of the masses, is back on the sets again under old master Santoshi who has named his new picture "Sargam".

Still another picture on the sets is under Najam Naqvi's competent direction and he is probably looking over old race cards to find it a name.

NATIONAL ED. & INF. FILMS LTD. (Bombay)

It is difficult to stop Mr. Governdas Aggarwal from going ahead with his country-wide plans to produce and distribute short educational objects for schools and colleges. The prospects of the National Education & Informations Films Ltd, which will be issued in the near future, offers a unique opportunity to small and big investors to toss their capital with profit and yet serve our country with badly needed mass education.

HINDUSTAN CHITRA (Bombay)

Believe it or not but the members of the Censor Board in Bombay have declared Kishore Sahu’s "Sawan Aaya Re" to be the best picture they have so far seen. And they see all the pictures coming to the screen. It is difficult to say whether they fell in love with Ramola or liked Kishore Sahu but the fact remains that "Sawan Aaya Re" won the unanimous approval of the censors who have been troublesome lately.

Kishore doesn’t want Ramola to go out of sight, so he has pulled her again in "Rhim Jhim" and is working her all over again under the direction of Ramesh Gupta and Susil Sahu. That is the other Sahu, likely to trouble us some day.

HALDIA NANDA PRODUCTIONS (Bombay)

Director Jai Kishen Xanda is quiet which means that "Singaar" is ready for release. Featuring the unaviodable Suraiya and the charming Madhubala, "Singaar" is reported to have become a rare treat for discriminating filmgoers. Nanda’s next is "Mehfil", the story of which even Pandit Indra thinks to be exceptionally good.

NATIONAL THEATRES (Bombay)

It is not easy to stop Producer K. Asif once he gets going. Taking Dilip Kumar and Nargis and throwing in Sitara and Yaqub, this go-getter of a producer has almost completed "Hulchul" which is bound to create a sensation under S. K. Ojha’s direction. Sajjad’s music is already on the lips of many and "Hulchul" is likely to be a musical success in addition.

Asif is moving about in a mysterious manner these days and one wonders whether he is getting into a mood for his next, a story on Bhagat Singh, the martyr of freedom.

MANSAROVER PICTURES (Bombay)

Under the personal supervision of our leading lyricist, D. N. Madhok, "Khamosh Sepahi", the heartrending story of the unknown warrier, is fast progressing. Starring Nigar and Gope the picture promises to become not only a classic presentation of our freedom’s struggle but also an eloquent tribute to the millions who gave their lives silently so that others may live in peace and harmony. Ram Kamani wields the megaphone and is reported to have done a good job of it.

HIMALAYA PICTURES (Bombay)

Director Jagdish Pant is giving the final touches to "Nazraana", starring Kamini Kaushal, Geeta Bali and Kanu Roy.

AKASH CHITRA (Bombay)

Though his picture is named “Angrai”, Producer-director K. R. Lall is certainly not relaxing in his efforts to make this new one a great hit. With Madhubala reaching new emotional heights “Angrai” promises to be another milestone in good direction and presentation.

Lall’s next is “Hanste Aansu”, a paradoxical theme with a pathetic background.

ALLIED ART PRODUCTIONS (Bombay)

Music director Anil Biswas is training all his musical talent to make “Haar Singaar” a really good melody melodrama. Featuring Madhubala and Dilip Kumar, this picture is expected to be ready very soon.

RATIBBA PICTURES (Bombay)

Director Joglekar’s “Sakhar Paaka”, a hilarious comedy in Marathi, produced by Mira Pictures, is drawing huge crowds at the Majestic. A sincere and hardworking man like Joglekar needed this success badly.

SULDIP PICTURES (Bombay)

These producers have a Punjabi picture, “Lachhi” ready in tins but unless they release it we won’t know how cool it tastes. Their Hindustani social picture is called “Naach” and features Suraiya, Shyam and Wasti. Quite a bit of this picture has been shot.

JUSTICE PICTURES (Bombay)

Nari Ghadiali is at it again with another stunt called “Hamari Kismet” with Shanta Patel, Agha and others. We only hope that this “Kismet” business brings in luck to Producer Jammadas Parekh.

SUPER PICTURES (Bombay)

Nari Ghadiali is a wholesale merchant in stunts. He has another ready for thrills. It is called “Bilhi” and features no less a person than our old favourite Nadia who made Wadia a producer.

The next of this company is named “Sipaiya”.

FAMOUS PICTURES (Bombay)

“Bari Bahen”, a social story featuring Suraiya and Rehman, has been drawing crowds at the Imperial.

The one on the set is called “Hamari Manzil” and is directed by O. P. Dutt.

GREAT ORIENT PICTURES (Calcutta)

The very first subject of these producers is an ambitious affair called “Azadi ke Baal”. Let us hope it is not like “Apna Desh” which makes us ashamed of our country.

RATAN PICTURES (Bombay)

Producer-director M. Sadiq has at last completed “Char Din” featuring Suraiya, Shyam and Badriprasad. The picture took a pretty long time but then every Suraiya picture does. Only Sadiq did it earlier than others and is reported to have done it well too.

JAGAT PICTURES (Bombay)

Fed up with the junk several producers have been giving him, Lala Jagat Narain has himself taken to production seriously to meet the wishes of filmgoers.

His second picture, “Sunhere Din”, starring Rehana, Nigar and Raj Kapoor, is actually on the screen at three cinemas in Delhi and is taking both crowds and applause.

The one on the set is called “Shair”, a touching story of human emotions featuring the ever pretty Kamini Kaushal, Suraiya and Dev Anand. Chawla who is in charge of the megaphone has already made good progress with the picture.

NEW LIGHT FILMS (Bombay)

“Maang”, a social story featuring Ramola, Wasti and Mubarak is fast getting ready under the smart direction of Saghir Usmani.

SANSAR MOVIETONE (Patna)

Taking Munna Shanti and Sapru to lead a versatile cast, these people have just completed “Aahuti” or “Anokhi Qurbani” and hope to re-looking more charming than before Rehana makes “Sunhere Din” of Jagat Pictures, a picture of romance and entertainment.

Liberty Art Productions (Bombay)

With fourteen songs and six dance numbers, all of which going through the censors without a casualty, “Lekh”, a social story, featuring Suraiya and Sitara, is now ready for release. It is a musical with Suraiya crooning six good tunes.

Oriental Pictures (Bombay)

“Thees”, an emotional theme, of which we have been hearing so much, is reported to have been completed at last by Messrs. Kedar Sharma and M. C. Varma. The picture introduces a new artiste, Kawal Mehra, in the male lead.

Varma Films (Bombay)

Under the able direction of Mr. H. S. Rawat, “Patanga”, the maiden effort of these producers, is fast nearing completion. It features the irresistible Nigar with Yaqub, Shyam and Gope paying her court.

Popular India Productions (Bombay)

Producer Ishwarlal Sharma has made an excellent choice in entrusting his maiden picture, “Ma-ka-Dil”, to Director S. M. Yusuf. The story is written by Chaturbhuj Doshi and features Paro, Ullhas, Jaswant and Mirza Musharaff.

P. J. Film Unit (Bombay)

P. Jairaj, our popular artiste, has taken the plunge at last. He has become a producer and has called his first baby, “Poonam”, a beautiful name for a thrilling story written by Bismil Peshawari. It is a romance of the moon and the ocean punctuated by human sighs and smiles. The cast is led by Nargis and Jairaj and supported by seasoned artistes like Bharat Bhushan, David and K. N. Singh. Let us wish Jai all luck. He will need it.

Goel Cine Corporation (Bombay)

New-comers into motion picture production, these people have named their maiden picture as “Ankhen”.

It is a social story featuring Nalini Jaywant, Yashodhara Katju, Yaqub and Bharat Bhushan.

All India Pictures (Bombay)

Quick in the wake of his success with “Pugree”, Producer P. N. Arora has begun the shooting of another social story called “Paras”. The picture is directed by Anant Thakur and features Kamini Kaushal and Sulochana Chatterjee. The music is by Ghulam Mahomed while the screenplay is written by no less a person than Producer M. Sadiq.

The world rights of this picture have already been sold to National Finance Corporation of India, Delhi.

Madhuban (Bombay)

Under the experienced direction of K. Amarnath, the maiden picture of this company, “Surajmukhi”, featuring Rehana, Shyam and others, is already on the sets. Husnalal and Bhagatram are responsible for the attractive musical score.

Super Pictures (Bombay)

Tired of turning out sausages under orders, Director Aspi has himself become a producer now and has planned a picture that will be both popular and provocative. It is called “Sipahiya” and features Madhubala, Yaqub and Husna Bano. The music is by C. Ramachandra and some of the lyrics are written by Hazrat Arzu Lucknawi, which means songs with a soul.

Devika Rani gives a hand to an old friend, Jairaj, by setting the cameras rolling for “Poonam”. Here they are on the Muhurat day: left to right: Mr. Baburao Patel, Mrs. Devika Rani Roerich, Jairaj, Nargis and Mr. Svatoslav Roerich.

People's Government, Indeed!

peaking on the Railways (Transport of Goods) dment Bill in the Indian Parliament on the 23rd of 1949, Mr. K. Santhanam, Minister of State for ways and Transport, stated that famine conditions in Gujarat and other national exigencies necessitated the nation of control and priority for booking of goods.

Mr. Santhanam frankly admitted that there was a serious scarcity of wagons for the transport of goods, and all wagons available on the B.B. & C.I. Railways were diverted to transport food.

little earlier Mr. Jairamdas Doulatram, our Food Fer, had stated that though as many as 800 wagons promised to one province to transport materials for 6000 wells only ten wagons could be supplied. Both these admissions of inefficiency came on top reports that there was a severe famine in Gujarat where thousands of cattle were dying for want of water, and hundreds of human beings were dying out of food.

While men and cattle tossed about and died in an of hunger and Gujaratis girls ran about the town lect funds for famine relief. Suraiya, the film actress, paid Rs. 5715/- to the B.B. & C.I. Railway and from Mr. Rees, the Deputy Traffic Superintendent, a special saloon to go to Delhi and Ajmer with a of twelve persons including courtiers, jesters, fans and the usual paraphernalia of film actresses.

This film actress had worked hard for two years and 1 lakhs of rupees and needed a holiday de luxe. Mr. Rees gave her a special saloon for 8 days from June 23rd to June 30th in the month of June 1949. She was.B. & C.I. Railway, has no wagons to take food to the dying, gave her a special saloon for a holiday de luxe. She was only 2 days off. And the B.B. & C.I. Railway, has no wagons to take food to the dying, gave her a special saloon for a holiday de luxe. She was only 2 days off. And the B.B. & C.I. Railway, has no wagons to take food to the dying, gave her a special saloon for a holiday de luxe.

What the hell did Mr. Rees care what Mr. Santhanam had said about the shortage of wagons in the Parliament? And why should he worry Mr. Jairamdas' problem of carrying food to the stricken?

And what did Mr. Rees care if the wrong types of wagons were used for the transport of food? Here was a young film actress like Suraiya asking for a royal holiday after two years of hard work and could any nice man refuse a nice girl?

Surely not! Mr. Rees would have been more than right in doing so before 15th August 1947, when the British rulers wanted the railways to pay back as much money as possible and as quickly as possible.

But since that fateful day for the British, times have changed a lot in India. Railways have a different function to perform now besides carrying American tourists, governors and film actresses in special saloons. They cannot sell their rolling stock to the highest bidder these days and cause unnecessary traffic congestion with millions all over the country waiting anxiously for their next meal.

Railways have a greater social purpose to fulfil these days rather than merely meet the demands of luxury travel.

The Congress ministers have sworn to run this government for the people—to feed them, to clothe them and to find them work. Every day the different ministers are giving us new promises on the different assembly floors. The Food and the Transport Ministers are complaining of wagon shortage in the Indian Parliament while millions are starving all over the country.

And yet, Mr. Rees could find a special saloon for a film actress to give her a holiday de luxe for 8 full days. Had food been dumped into that saloon and rushed to Gujarat, a couple of hundred human lives would have been saved.

But this film actress had to be given her holiday in a saloon. First class travel, commonly available in the country, was not good enough for her, is this a people's government—by the people and for the people? If this is it, we shout and say DAMN IT.

Another Tax Racket!

Running a province needs as much efficiency and intelligence as running a business does if solvency of the organization is the aim in view.

Unfortunately almost all our provinces present us with an insolvent's budget from year to year and beg, borrow or steal money from us under one pretext or other to balance these budgets. One of the causes of our increasing misfortunes is the utter lack of intelligence, imagination and efficiency in some of our so-called popular ministers and their ministries.

Some of these ministers have no previous administrative experience either in running a government or a

IN SOUND PROJECTION
FOR WESTREX-EQUIPPED
CINEMAS!

Here are three of the reasons why theatres equipped with the Westrex MASTER have the finest sound reproduction that modern science has achieved.

1. THE NEW AMPLIFIER SYSTEMS

   With outputs ranging from 40 to 150 watts, saturating with sound a theatre of any size, the new Westrex MASTER amplifier systems include a completely new feature—a separate driver amplifier section embodied in the power amplifier chassis which can be removed and replaced within one minute in case of failure, making for smoother, trouble-free shows. All high-voltage electrolytic condensers are of the plug-in type, permitting immediate replacement if necessary.

2. IMPROVED R2 SOUNDHEAD

   Incorporates all the advantages of the original R2 Soundhead introduced in 1945, including Hydro Flutter Suppressor (illustrated) which is now common to all Westrex sound systems, and the Electro-Tension Governor, plus the new plug-in pre-amplifier for instant rectification of breakdowns.

3. NEW WESTERN ELECTRIC SPEAKER SYSTEMS

   Supplied in combinations to suit each individual theatre, with all the latest improvements of Western Electric engineering genius. Give an illusion of "presence" never before attained in sound projection.

ness organization. These mediocrities who hardly earned three-figure incomes per month for themselves are now asked to collect and disburse efficiently official revenues running into several crores. With toxism as their only certificate of recommendation have taken upon themselves the non-too-easy task from provincial administration with its thousand and one and economic problems. Basking in the glow of or, these mediocrities often strike pseudo-moralistic self-righteous attitudes towards problems that need critical wisdom and experience to be solved satisfully. It is therefore no wonder that our provincial services are in an awful mess these days.

Let us take a small instance in the film field to ilstrate our argument.

It is now well known that we are paying an entertainment tax on all our entertainments varying from 25% to 50% according to the whim of the different provincial provinces. Another tax varying from 25% to 50% is collected on film booklets sold in theatres.

In Bombay, the entertainment tax on shows is cold by the Bombay Municipality while the tax on the booklets is collected by the Supervisor, Bombay tainment Duty Act, whose office is at the Old Cus-House, half-a-mile away and out of sight of the Municipalities.

These two tax collecting centres work independently of each other and one doesn’t know what the other is doing, and yet both collect a tax on entertainment from the same exhibitors in town.

The collection of tax on the admission tickets is seen story by itself which we hope to tell some day. The shorter story about the film booklets usually the tax of four annas including the tax of one anna on each to persons, Capt. O’Gorman and his assistant Joseph, are responsible for the collection of the tax booklets. They haven’t a third person. Their jurisdiction is Greater Bombay which has over six cinemas an average capacity of 700 seats. They accept an or’s certificate as proof of an exhibitor’s honesty.

he comes to pay the tax on the sale of the booklets.

This is assumed from the same exhibitor and his or else are honest and on this presumption the tax is collected. How many exhibitors are really honest is a ion best left unanswered. And how many of their ors can be honest is a matter for speculation. But must admire the naivete with which the tax-collecting officers accept the statements of the exhibitors as proofs of honesty. This naivete must be taken as an evidence of the Ram Rajya that is to come.

Here are some statistics which the Revenue Ministry Government may study with profit to the provin-cexchequer.

The 60 cinemas in Greater Bombay play an average 80 shows per week and over a million (10 lakhs) the admission tickets to these shows. The average n filmgoer is mad about music and likes to buy a booklet to get the words of the songs he likes.

But it will be an exaggeration to say that all the n filmgoers buy film booklets. We shall therefore a downright pessimistic view of things and state only 10% of the total filmgoers buy the film book-while 90% remember the words after the first hearing, like the poets in the court of Raja Bhoj, and walk out singing the songs.

But 10% of a million is a hundred thousand persions a week, which means a sale of 1,000,000 film booklets per week at 1380 shows in 60 theatres which again means a tax revenue of Rs. 6250/- per week at one anna tax per booklet. That comes to Rs. 25000/- tax collections per month.

But the actual amount paid to the Supervisor at the Old Custom House is reported to be hardly Rs. 1000 per month, of course backed by auditors’ certificates and exhibitors’ honesty etc. How come? (That’s American).

Are we losing Rs. 24000/- per month or even more in taxes? Some one must answer this question.

Though our Congress ministers do not like suggestions and criticisms, in public interest we take the liberty of giving a few suggestions to collect these taxes.

a) There should be a joint department for collecting both the taxes on the tickets and the booklets.

b) There should be at least three inspectors for checking up the sales of the tickets and the booklets at different theatres and the duty zones of these inspectors should be changed every month. These inspectors should be on duty from 1 P.M. to 12 midnight every day.

c) Prior to the printing of the booklet, the producer or distributor should be made to apply for a permission from the tax-collecting authorities stating the exact number of booklets intended to be printed, their proposed disbursement to the different provinces from time to time, the name of the printer etc. For every new edition of the booklet, fresh permission should be obtained every time. This should be a formal permit to obtain correct statistics.

b) After the printing of the booklets, the printer should be made to submit a return to the tax collecting authorities stating the number of copies of a booklet printed and delivered to the producer or the distributor.

c) All exhibitors should also be made to submit returns to the authorities showing the total number of booklets received and their sales from day to day. These to day sales can be submitted in a statement every month.
These statements should be countersigned by the inspectors as correct before the tax is accepted.

f) Two statistical clerks keeping statistics of all different returns under different picture heads should be appointed to check up the accuracy of the tax payments by the exhibitors.

g) Heavy penalties, such as fines, suspension of exhibition licenses and jail in recurring cases should be prescribed for any attempt to defraud the Government of the tax.

We are even willing to help the government to prepare the required statistical registers on efficiency lines if the government are not too keen on maintaining their lofty all-knowing demeanour and are prepared to accept suggestions from a private organization.

In any case, we cannot afford to keep on losing precious revenue which can be collected with a little more watchfulness and departmental efficiency.

Just as present this tax payment on film booklets has the bad complexion of a racket which has become quite paying to the exhibitors, the producers and the distributors. And the racket must be stopped immediately.
Mr. Vasan, Proprietor of Gemini Studios and Producer-Director of "CHANDRALEKHA" says:

"We installed our RCA PM-38C Recorder in 1941 and added an RCA PM-45 Recorder in 1947. For years I had been playing with the idea of producing a picture on a vast scale—and now, in CHANDRALEKHA, I have seen my dream come true."

I can honestly say that I feel the success of CHANDRALEKHA has been due not only to the enormous effort and loyalty given by our staff, but also to the unfailing service of our RCA Recording system.

SY NURSERIES OF ENTERTAINMENT!

During the discussion in the Indian Parliament on Cinematograph Amendment Bill the other day, the House is reported to have accepted Mr. B. N. Munshi's amendment permitting mothers to take children now three to picture houses. No one worried about Mahabir's Tyagi's opposition to this amendment.

It is worth finding out how many members of the Indian Parliament who voted in favour of taking the children under three years to our cinemas know the real conditions under which millions see motion pictures these days. Some of the seasoned politicians at the helm of our affairs often take a snobbish delight in saying that they don't like pictures and they have never seen one during their lifetime. This type of bragging, at the least, is an idiotic approach to life—an approach that shuts out from their life the most modern medium of instruction and entertainment.

It is hardly necessary to emphasize here the dynamism role which the film plays in the life of a nation in entertaining and educating millions. It is but proper that those elected by the people should know everything about a medium that affects the lives of millions from day to day, if, as elected representatives, they are anxious to serve the people truly and sincerely. There is an intellectual advantage scored when these politicians are aware of the problems of the people they have never seen a single picture. Such a gesture merely provides a proof of an utterly outdated and orthodox approach to life entirely unsuitable to modern progress and politics.

Had some of the members of the Indian Parliament been regular filmgoers, they would not have so ridiculously voted for an amendment that gives a statutory privilege to millions of little tots to get into our theatres and start their own opera of screams and screeches in competition with the music of the films.

We are years away yet from the creche which is provided for the little ones in several foreign countries. We are also years away from the ideal environments which are necessary for good entertainment. Our theatres are still mostly cattle sheds with the stink of the lavatories pervading them. There are a thousand other pinpricks which filmgoers bravely suffer in cinemas to get some entertainment as the only reaction from the day's work in these days of prohibition in anti-everything laws.

Why add to the lot of these long suffering people none-too-soothing music of the angry tiny tot who does all good manners in the hot and unhealthy conditions found in our theatres?

Admitting that India has more fertile beds than ever, is it necessary to carry their product to the cinema and advertise the same by screams and screeches?

What about the others who pay for their entertainment and expect, if nothing more, at least some silence in a talkie theatre?

Do those members of the Parliament who voted for this stupid amendment know that a single little piper in bad temper, probably due to its mother's milk shortage, can ruin the entertainment of a thousand film-goers by its own non-stop performance given in simultaneous rivalry with the main show? A child of poverty and malnutrition is often a little devil of nerves and India has millions of them sprinkled all over the country. Can't these little ones be made to wait till an age when they can bear their misfortunes with less noisy protest? Is it necessary to give a license to these cradle cryers and usher them unceremoniously into places of public amusement and ruin the entertainment of others? What sort of a secular democracy is this in which a few weeping brats are permitted to irritate thousands who pay for their admissions to get entertainment and in addition pay an entertainment tax to the government?

Isn't the Government supposed to do something for the tax payers in return for the tax they pay? Can't we have special "Brat shows" on Sunday mornings where Mumtaz Shanti is surprised at something in "Aahuti", a social theme of Sansar Movietone.
all the little pipers can have the freedom to become town-criers if they like?

Munavalli’s amendment to the Cinematograph Amendment Bill must be scrapped unless the Government are prepared to lose a lot of revenue in entertainment tax as fewer people are likely to visit our cinemas with these little brats turning our picture houses into noisy nurseries.

RED RAG TO THE WHITE BULLS!

We have always said that our National Flag should not be shown in cinema theatres where it is always respected the least by a motley crowd of filmgoers who primarily come to pay their respects to their favourite film stars and get some entertainment in the bargain.

It is a common sight to see Indian and foreign filmgoers rushing to the doors no sooner they see the end of the main programme. All that these filmgoers possibly present to the National Flag is a view of their backs and behinds struggling to get out of the auditorium as quickly as possible.

But where it hurts the most is when we find in a cinema, like the Metro in Bombay, a crowd of Continental Jews walking out with lofty contempt at the sight of our National Flag. When a spirited young Indian boy recently stood erect in respect to the flag right in the way of half-a-dozen Continental Jews, (because of his seat being at the end of a row) he was quickly boxed in the stomach by one of the Jews and the boy doubled up with pain. Some one heard one of the Jews muttering: “What the hell are these idiots standing for an idiotic thing like that?” By the time some public spirited members of the audience realized what had happened, the Jews were out of sight.

This rude and vulgar behaviour of these Continental Jews is rather surprising seeing that the Jews themselves fought valiantly for two years to create their own national flag in Israel.

Men who can give their lives to create a new national flag should certainly know how to respect the flag of another nation—a nation that has given these Jews shelter and protection in their greatest hour of need when they had neither a home nor a nationality.

The Indian National Flag is also a reward of a 200-year old life-and-death struggle against British Imperialism. It has a longer tradition of suffering and sacrifice than the year-old flag of Israel and the Jews, whose wisdom is proverbial, should be the last people, on earth to insult India’s National Flag.

It is a pity that in the intoxication of their newly created nationalism as free citizens of Israel, the Continental Jews in India should so quickly become ungrateful and bite the very hand that fed them at a time when they came to India after the Nemesis of their past had hounded them out of their homes.

We still hope that the proverbial wisdom of the Jews will rescue them from this newly acquired racial arrogance but in the meantime we would appeal to the government to stop displaying the national flag in the cinema theatres and not provide an opportunity to the foreigners to insult it.
If our white guests in India keep insulting our flag in this manner, it is quite likely that some of their black posts may take serious offence some day and there might be murders in our cinemas where we all go for entertainment.

Why can’t we reserve our sacred flag for national occasions to pay it proper respect in the usual ceremonial manner? Is it necessary to hand it over to the film exhibitors and turn it into a red rag to the white bulls of Europe?

MENACE TO PUBLIC HEALTH

As if the 50 and odd advertising slides which are usually shown in every cinema show have not been torture enough to filmgoers, some ingenious fellow has now put a running commentary with them and calls them his “talking” slides.

This commentary, which is the usual sales talk about a shoe being well made or a housewife liking a certain brand of butter, is evidently recorded on a film trip and run simultaneously with the slide on the projector. As soon as the sound track of one slide finishes, a new slide is flashed on the screen and within a second or two, its “talk” begins.

Appropriately enough this idiotic innovation of a “talking” slide has only come into existence in some of our third rate cinemas in the Play Houses area and has not yet affected the better class of cinema houses or the better class of audience. But to those who want to realize what a disgusting noise these “talking” slides make, it would be worth visiting one of these third rate cinemas to experience perhaps one of the most excruciating tortures that any cultured mind could ever go through.

It is no wonder that these cinemas have lost these days the patronage of the better classes of people who used to visit them in old times in spite of their situation in a bad locality.

No one is much worried about these third rate cinemas and the feelings of the crude masses who visit them but if this “talking” torture threatens to travel to the better class theatre in the town, then the Commissioner of Police will have to step in and stop this racket. These “talking” slides constitute the greatest menace to the human nerves and as such threaten to add to the mortality of the city.

We already have enough politicians and ministers talking every day without adding the extra torture of the “talking” slides to our lives.

VANISHING NEWSREELS OF INDIA!

For some mysterious reasons, the weekly issues of the Indian Newsreels which had recently made an appearance in some of our local cinemas, seem to have completely disappeared these days.

Has the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting stopped producing this stuff? Has Badami, the newsreel producer, been sent back to the industry from where he came? Has the last year’s budget of 33 lakhs been completely wasted? Has Ambalal Patel taken a big advance against his rent and thus crippled the production activities? If Sardar Vallabhbhai doesn’t travel about because of heart trouble why don’t the other minis-the province so well these days? Didn’t we hear even Dr. M. D. D. D. Gilder, M.D. (are the D’s too many?) speak in support of the new Congress doctor, Mhasker, and when Dr. D.D. did it from behind his big moustache, a little one in the crowds said “It speaks, mummy!” Isn’t that news big enough seeing that a very strong and silent man spoke the first time and on such a healthy subject as a bye-election?

Amritlal Seth, the famous Congress journalist, who once threatened to build a special town in Gandhiji’s memory, is involved in some unusual case which reminded the Magistrate of Oscar Wilde. Isn’t that news seeing that no one else but Amritlal had presented the very sword with which Samalkhan Gandhi, Commander-in-chief of the Gujarat guerrillas, conquered Junagadh? And Shamsheed Jung Samalkhan Gandhi, a nephew of the prophet of non-violence, conquering Junagadh with a naked sword in his left hand—isn’t that news too?

H. P. Mody squeezing himself into a “chooridar pyjama” to raise himself to the decorative pedestal of a provincial governor—isn’t that news? Dr. John Mathai’s visit to the Mint in Bombay to see how money is made—a knowledge he should have acquired before becoming our Finance Member—isn’t that news? Film actress Suraiya hiring a royal saloon for a holiday de luxe and throwing food waggons off the rails with millions staring—isn’t that news?

What more news does this fellow Badami want to go and shoot? Is he waiting for another Gandhiji to die to get some funeral shots? If he is waiting for that.

What type of news is the Ministry of Information ailing for? We had the Socialist Purshottam Tricummis beating the Congressman Mhasker by a street in a petty bye-election recently. Isn’t that news? We saw the local ministers shouting themselves hoarse and repeating the old promises to maintain Congress prestige in this bye-election. Isn’t that news? We have sent a military mission of overgrown school boys to U.S.A. to get a bang of the international armament race. Isn’t it news to see our school boys do something in a couple of months which the grey-haired Americans have been thinking about for twenty years?

Premier B. G. Kher struck a note of harmony with the Gaekwar by wearing the sherwani and the tight trousers to receive the salute of the old surrendering army of Baroda. Isn’t that news to see the gentle old Kher in a royal and martial dress? S. K. Patil, who resigned from a dozen posts to become the Mayor of Bombay, has been getting four receptions a day leaving him no time to do the Mayor’s work. Isn’t that unique popularity some news? Home Minister Morarji Desai has not attended a single wedding ceremony for two months and fought home with garlands. Isn’t that news of our most popular minister whose face is as much a feature of our daily newspaper as the paper itself? Isn’t it news to search for the lamp post under which Minister Morarji developed his peculiar vision with which he is ruling

CORDS OF VULGAR SONGS

It is indeed a pleasure to observe that long before a sleepy government decides to wake up and act, the gramophone Company has taken serious notice of our marks, in the last issue, regarding the circulation of cords of film songs banned by censors on grounds of igarity.

We understand that the Gramophone Company has put out notices to all the film producers under contract to them to inform the company immediately no sooner certain song is banned by the censors on grounds of igarity so that all gramophone records of the same be simultaneously withdrawn from sale.

This is no doubt a good gesture from a commercial concern which is ordinarily not expected to sacrifice its ofits so willingly, knowing that like all bad things, vulgar songs also sell more among the masses.

In fact, it was brought to our notice that whenever one complained about the words of any recorded song, whether film or general, the Gramophone Company has always withdrawn such records from circulation. Mr. H. Lall, the Bombay Manager of the Gramophone Co., described the policy of his firm as “to please all and as not to hurt any one”, and assured us that his company would never be a party in circulating wrong type of records knowingly.

While a private firm shows such anxiety to nurse the morals of our people, it is a pity that the ever unimaginative All India Radio, a government institution, continues to broadcast records the songs of which have been declared vulgar and objectionable and as such removed from the films by an official and competent body of censors.

Some records of these objectionable songs are still in circulation because of the vagaries of our censors who had originally passed these songs and later—sometimes two years later—suddenly found them objectionable and ordered their deletion from the original pictures. Though all such records, sold previously, cannot be recalled, at least the All India Radio is expected to display a little horse-sense by stopping the broadcasts of those songs which another government institution has declared as vulgar and objectionable.

If not in politics, at least in points of obvious morality and vulgarity let us have some consistency from our white-capped ministers.

YOU’LL HARDLY BELIEVE—

That of all people Sardar Chandulal Shah, the producers’ president, who had appointed Home Minister Morarji Desai as a “guide and guardian” of the film industry on the 26th of November last, is reported to have commandeered over 50 cars and buses from different producers and studios to help Socialist Purshottam Tricumdas win the recent bye-election against an official Congressman.

That with the cars naturally went the votes of the 3000 and odd Socialist-dominated film workers and gave Purshottam just the majority with which the Congressman was licked. All this shows that the film industry can change the fortunes of politicians if a strong-minded and influential person like Chandulal Shah can lead the workers.

That with Sardar Chandulal having been accepted as a new and, of course, rich comrade by the Socialists, that little matter of labour dispute, at present under Asoka Mehta’s arbitration, will now take the complexion that Chandulal wants. Let us, however, hope it doesn’t take Chandulal’s own complexion and turn the dawn into a dusk for the workers.

That with Sardar Chandulal Shah, the producers’ president, throwing his weight with the Socialists and winning a prestige election for them, Minister Morarji Desai is now naturally sacked from the post of “guide and guardian” of the film industry. Which means no more garlands for Morarji, from the film people at least!
The MITCHELL STUDIO MODEL “BNC” is a truly silent camera for sound photography. No blimp is required. It’s smooth, positive operation saves many costly hours of production time. Since the introduction of the “BNC” more and more major studios have made it standard equipment.
That this unexpected swing-over to Socialism by film producers was due, they say, to the promise given by the Socialists to scrap prohibition and censorship no sooner they step into power. That is a pointer to Minister Morarji Desai if he wants the film people to vote or Congress in the next election.

That now Ranjit stories will all be turned to Socialism with Asoka Mehta thinking of writing screen stories or Chandulal. Purshottam who is quite a good amateur poet, may also write songs for Chandulal.

That with the big Socialist bosses in Chandulal’s competent hands, little fellows like Thakur and Rohit have lost control of the Film Mazdoor Union and can’t be shocked if Chandulal is elected as the new president of the Workers’ Union.

That the only producer whose car did not rush to the relief of the Socialists was Chuni Lall of Filmistan. Only recently he had changed his party ticket and he didn’t fancy another change so quickly.

That Chandulal Shah, with his partner Miss Gohar acting as his secretary, was only last year sent as one of our official delegates to the Geneva Conference on freedom of news etc. We, however, admire the way these girls have cut off this old string that had tied them to the Congress.

That the film people had always liked the Socialists was evident from the big purse they had once given to Jayaprakash Narayan and Chandulal had contributed visibly to this purse under the persuasion of a sweet Gujarati girl who moves in both quarters—the Congress and the Socialists.

That these Socialist girls are marvellous salesmen. They take the halo of power from prominent congress ministers and with it make up the shortage of ideas in the Socialist Party. That is how probably the producer Kishore Sahu and film actress Kamini Kaushal were once talked into giving a special show for the benefit of the Socialist Party.

That with the Congress making so many mistakes, is no wonder to see people veering towards the Socialists. It is time the Congress surprises its rivals by turning socialist itself and the film people expect it to do by scrapping prohibition. Prohibition is the first ticle of heresy with the film folks.

That Minister Morarji Desai recently revealed a mily secret that he had studied under a municipal imp post. That explains Morarji’s peculiar approach to life. You know how these municipal lamps work—they make darkness more visible.

That in future film producers dare not use the municipal lamp posts for lovers to lean on and sing lovely songs. It is now a milestone in the graduation of ministers. Let us hope that the street dogs understand this reference and treat the lamp posts differently.

That multi-millionaire K. M. Modi, our theatre magnate, has returned all-wise from America. He is reading speeches all over the town these days and expecting a big congregation, he had the temerity to read a long boring speech recently at the Blavatsky Lodge in Bombay.

That contrary to his expectations, hardly 40 persons assembled at the Blavatsky Lodge, twenty-five out of whom were his own employees and the rest were publicity boys. Wouldn’t it have been less boring to pass the speech to the press straightaway instead of holding the Blavatsky floor for an hour unnecessarily?

That theatre and studio magnate K. M. Modi is so popular a man these days that he can hardly get good pictures for his two theatres, Minerva and Central, in Bombay and hardly any producer to shoot at his Central Studio—though of course all other theatres are in demand and all other studio floors in the city and suburbs are jammed with free-lance producers.

That with little Keki Modi talking tall these days, the big Sohrab is lying quiet with his “Munnas” and “Dawlats” not clicking at the box-office. That brings the family total of sound-stages to let to six. And the Government of India want Ambalal Patel to build new sound stages and waste some more building material unnecessarily.

That the Metro Cinema of Bombay still seems to imagine itself to be a part of America the way it shuns the newsreels produced by our Ministry of Information and Broadcasting. Rather than show these newsreels, the

A LIBERTY PICTURE RELEASE
That Minister Morarji should realize that the qualifications of his censors won't remain hidden by hiding them under his own bushel. Their work speaks for their competency and the very fact that Morarjibhai, himself, has to review pictures, after his censors have passed and permitted them to run, speaks volumes for his censors' qualifications. Recent instance: "Nai Reet".

That Censor Dr. D. G. Vyas, an eye-specialist, is these days treating his own eyes after seeing Indian pictures through the Production Code. He need not, however, waste time on further treatment. All he needs is a loan of Minister Morarji's spectacles. You simply can't see a wrong thing through them and if by chance you do you can easily convince yourself of the rightness of it by a few arguments.

That Mrs. Kellock, the most charming woman on our Censor Board, thinks that all her colleagues are "very intelligent", including, of course, the bald chairman. What a trustworthy English lady! We must have more like her on the Board. The Board will look better at least in a photograph.

That Mrs. Kellock thinks loudly that "Filmindia" is a "very good quality magazine" and is "getting wider and wider public". That is an opinion! How could she say that without consulting the bald chairman previously? This matter of departmental indiscipline must be investigated by Minister Morarji himself.

That management thrusts on us three trailers in one row. And they say India is a free nation.

That if the ministers travel less and talk less, we sure we'll have more newsreels. Because only at a risk can one turn out substantial work and making newsreels is not all talk and useless travel.

That seeing that Chandramohan died immediately after playing Ravan in "Ram Baan" Vijoo has decided not to risk another mythological monstrosity and jeopardize the life of another great character actor. Poor Chandramohan! He never fully recovered from the shock of having had to say "Main Koun? Ravan!" at slogan killed a lion.

That with the solitary exception of Diwan Bahadurji, the other members of the Bombay Board of Censors, do not know their own qualifications as all have been deposited with the Home Minister and perhaps their individualism and freedom. It is a pity that the old traditions of bureaucratic sycophancy are still being continued in a free India.

That censors who have no guts to talk for themselves without asking Papa Morarji are hardly qualified censor motion pictures and thus prescribe a code of morals to a whole province. Only those who with a backbone can preach to others.

That Minister Morarji Desai seems to have deprived 14 Censor Board members of their backbones (except of course Diwan Bahadur Kajij) and joined them in his own. That is, perhaps, why he always sits still as an old rheumatic.

Nayan Tara, one of our few educated actresses, stars in "Tara", a social story produced and directed by B. D. Pareenja.
With her picturesque cap, Paro makes an attractive gipsy. Add rhythm and grace to her make-up and you have a beautiful dancer.

Like all young lovers, Dilip Kumar wants to risk it but Kumini tries to pull him back.

When a gipsy goes wild, she says it is danger. Poor Kumini!
Kamini Kaushal looks more pretty and coy every day. She makes “Shabnam” a romantic poem.

Comrades in distress—on way to their motherland—away from strife and struggle! Do they reach it alive?

NATESAN (Chittoor)
Who is the next woman in the run for an Indian governor's post?

We still have Vijayalaxmi after she gets fed up with America. And there are Sucheta, Krishna and so on till we ultimately reach Rehana who sang the Gandhi song in “Khidki” and qualified herself. We are not short of talent for the governor's post.

Who is the leading money-earner among the film women in India?

Suraiya! She needs a special saloon to travel to Delhi in these days when every waggon is required for rushing food to famine areas. Who says that Muslims are not treated royally in India?

What is the difference between a scorpion sting and man’s tongue?

You can kill the scorpion and save yourself another sting.

I am told that some of the members of the Censor board are in close consultation with you. Is it true?

I don’t even know how they look except their chairman who is bald.

Are you not guilty of describing Shri Morarji Desai as ideal Home Minister in India?

He is, after Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel. Morarji is honest and incorruptible and that cannot be said of many.

Why are you still strutting about in western dress?

It is more comfortable than the Indian costume of “shercani-and chooridar pyjama”. The pyjama needs a Nawab's aristocratic idleness to pull it up and pull it out. I am a working journalist who has to turn time into a living.

How is it that you have such a wonderful memory to avoid repeating your replies in “filmindia”?

My wife is my memory box. Nothing is published unless she okays it.

MOHINI GUL (Kuala Lumpur, Malaya)
Big brother, are you ill again?

Yes, little one, I feel lonely.

I have written many stories in my spare time. Would you mind producing them for me?

I shall certainly do so in my spare time in the next birth.

SHWAR SANDILL (Rohtak)
Can a mad man love?

Love and lunacy are twin emotions.

K. C. BADRINARAYAN (Bolarum Dn.)
How to tickle a woman’s conscience?

Fill up her hand bag with hundred rupee notes and ask her to go out marketing. Her conscience jumps to the cheeks and becomes a blush.

BARUN BOSE (Ajmer)
Can Nehru swim well?

Yes, but he needs the Sardar to row him to the bank when he gets out of breath midstream.

J. S. SHARMA (Jodhpur)
What is a miracle? Have you ever seen a miracle being performed?

There is one happening before our eyes—a man painting the whole of India in a single paint from a single pot.

MRS. PISTA DEVI JAIPURIA (Kanpur)
What should be the attitude of a wife towards an obedient and loving husband?

down the husband to the level of a chaperon. An obedient husband is not worth having. Only prouling cats like such men.

MISS V. R. BAIJAL (Kotah)
If God wants to grant me a boon what should I ask for?

Ask for a man like Baburao Patel as your husband in the next birth. You won’t go to God again.

I find that your views about many pictures quite agree with mine. Does it mean that our tastes are quite the same?

See that? We are already agreeing in this birth!

How does a caress become sweet?

Every caress needs consent to take a sweet flavour.

Why do I feel bashful when I have to go before one who is a stranger to me?

I like you for that. A woman should always be modest. Modern girls make the strangers blush.

U. O. KHAN (Bombay)
How would you define a virgin?

Teenage at the keyhole of experience.

SARAL KUMAR (Saugor)
What is Chiang-Kai-Shek’s next move?

He will fly to America—his wife’s nursery.

NIRMAL (Rewa)
How is sorrow related to tears?

Not all sorrows melt into tears nor all signify sorrows. Don’t forget the crocodile and biped cousin with tearful eyes.

Is not the Congress leading us towards a heavy life time?

Oh yes, to a heaven of sadhus and mendicants who live on water and air!

KRISHNA CHANDRA PANDEY (Lucknow)
What is your idea about a young Punjabi woman girl?

I get ideas only after I see girls, not by theory.

MISS GANGA SANWAL (Lucknow)
The Madras government have announced a prize of Rs. 500, for the best picture of the year. What is your advice to the government of Bombay in this concern?

Not waste that money! Producers often spend five hundred in a night on whiskey.

GURBAX SINGH (Kasauli)
What is the difference between a kiss and a caress?

A kiss is a kiss denied.

R. S. KRISHNASWAMY (Madras)
What is the fun in Indian women wearing slacks?

To separate the legs which have been barren in a saree for centuries. The slacks give the wearer two distinct legs, one of which can be used to walk.

MISS MOHINI C. NAVANI (New Delhi)
Who should first break the ice on the wedding night, the husband or the wife?

Ice melts by itself on the bed of expectation.

SOMCHAND RATHOD (Bombay)
What is divorce to Al Nasir?

A new bed!

MRS. INDIRA DEVI (Kanpur)
What is the utility of a diplomatic smile?

In the assembly of the wise, it is a waste of muscular energy, unless the diplomat wants to look like his usually false teeth.

What is the next film in which Shantaram will appear himself?

“Shir Shakti”! He might play Vetal or be an eunuch in Jayashree.

What do you think when you see a lady toilet?

A lonely bed bug with nothing to bite!

What are the lessons of war of which the poltroon speaks so often?

That weapons of killing become obsolete fast and new weapons have to be invented.

Are you a good neighbour?
Till I am irritated.
What do the recent happenings in China and Burundi indicate?

That red has blotted out the purple and blue of old days.

R. SHUKLA (Kanpur)

Is there any lease and lend star in our film industry?

All are cash and carry propositions and the cash has to be black. White money hurts their eyes—too much glare.

TOJAH (Dibrugarh)

Men cannot have divorce where love abides. Was there no love between Kishore Sahu and Snehal Prabha? Khan to lead them to divorce?

It was lucky the mistake was rectified soon. Kishore is now a very happy man with a very devoted and charming wife.

SIOHAN DAS (Kancheepuram)

Please compare the dream of a college student with that of a beggar?

A beggar’s dream is penny-wide, the student’s is world-wide.

Is a woman’s smile contagious?

Only if it is young and genuine.

What is the difference between a curtain lecture and a pulpit oration?

The one is a show-down, the other is a show-off.

S S VIMALA RAJASABAI (Madras)

How far has the national government helped the Indian film industry?

The government has got the industry throttled and you can see its tongue hanging out.

N. NARAYANA RAO (Mysore)

What’s a girl in a bed of downy feathers?

A bird of passage!

What’s a life in a night club?

Churning of the day’s desires.

Do you often go to a picnic?

Not unless there is something to pick and neck.

When is it that a girl doesn’t look worse for wear?

When the cradle is still in the store.

When a hungry man steals bread is it a crime?

It should not be but it is because all our morality revolves round the bread and the bed.

What is a march past?

A provocation to our white-capped leaders to pull up the spine and stand straight.

What is a jungle mate?

A barbarian in bed!

What is the psychology of our people?

Elect wrong men to rule in a moment of sentiment and then settle down to grumble for years.

When does a person change his vote at the next election?

When you take away his sip and put a zip on his mouth.

What’s the difference between a doctor and an undertaker to a dying man?

The doctor gives a friendly warning of the undertaker’s business anxiety.

Is a psychiatrist needed for film stars?

Their conflicts are not emotional. They need only a gynecologist.

What is your opinion of the working class movement in our country?

It is a movement towards less work, less discipline, more money and more blackmail.

Does a director make studio life exciting?

Life in a film studio begins with a director and when he gets excited life naturally becomes exciting.

Can we beat inflation?

Yes, by beating our stomach till it stops eating!

Who is a good neighbour?

The one who doesn’t have a quarrelsome wife, mischievous brats, a gramophone, a radio, a dog, an old car, noisy friends and self-assertion.

Is the one we have now a lasting, enduring peace?

When did we ever have peace since the white man became civilized and the Arab embraced the Crescent?

Can a man have no emotion?

A man’s emotions are usually vapours of his pride.

The modern girl can’t live bent up in a cage?

She lives in a sort of a Christian hostel which is usually a cage with all the doors open and suitors waiting at the doors.

Are you a man of determination?

I am a man of temper and temper often has a sharp edge of determination.

What is your daily prayer these days?

Take me, take a million others but let Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel live another 20 years. The sigh of relief after his recent escape shook the country like an earthquake. Never did a nation need a man so badly as India needs the Sardar today.

T. R. G. SWAMY (Poona)

If you are between the devil and the deep sea, which would you prefer?

The devil! There is a chance of arguing with him.

How is the power of the press today?

It is in the hands of power politicians.

K. S. SANKARA NARAYANAN (New Delhi)

Do you mind telling us the object of your recent visit to Delhi?

I went to see the Kutub Minar. They told me that it was leaning towards Pakistan these days but I found it straight, held by the shadow of Ashoka’s pillar.
What impression did you carry back after visiting the capital of India in February?

I found our rulers unworthy of even inheriting beauty, leave alone creating it. I saw dirty shops even in the compound of the Council Hall.

What do you think of Master Tara Singh’s arrest?

His tongue needs some protection as his sword needs the scabbard.

Sardar Patel said that the Punjab is the brain and body of India. How far is this correct?

If he said so, he lied. The Sardar often uses tact in his speech and tact is not always truth. Don’t judge the Sardar by what he says. Judge him by what he does. The Sardar himself is not a Punjabi.

S. M. JOSHI (Bombay)
How many underground workers live in dreary caves as shown in “Aparadhi”?

What you saw in “Aparadhi” was nonsense. Our political workers don’t go to the caves when they go underground. Most of them have been found in other people’s bedrooms.

Is death the end of life?

Death is a ceremonial of eternity and an introduction to divinity. It is thus the beginning of a new life.

How many more gods will be added to this land of gods?

As long as there are Gods in this world, there will be gods.

By love and God, man usually means sex and success.

What is the difference between an ordinary smile and a dimpled smile?

The dimple adds sex to the smile.

What is your attitude towards people who put on caps?

Amused detachment? These people imagine that they make an impression on others but deceive themselves every time.

What can be colder than ice?

A cold shoulder.

In which holy river shall I wash away my sins?

In the one that flows through galvanised pipes but don’t use the soap which the film stars use. If water could wash off sins, tears would have made women angels on earth.

Who is the Jane Russell of the Indian screen?

That is a problem of mathematical measurements which Congress ministers won’t allow in these days.

Why does your garden lack a fountain?

In crowded cities like Bombay, fountains are fixed in bath rooms and not wasted in gardens.

Can you distinguish between praise and flattery?

When you pay two rupees and buy a copy of "Filmindia” it is genuine praise but when you get five rupees for a letter in the “Woes And Echoes” columns, that is sometimes flattery.

Will you come to my village to see the belles balancing three pots of water on their head?

I come from a village where belles carry three on the head, one on the left arm and a bucket in the right hand and yet keep a straight head over a figure which would make the soul of Ravivarma sigh all over again.

Don’t you wish to be your own posterity?

It is too late now having already contributed to the population of the country. Even in my profession I have become already an ancestor with hundreds of journalists taking their germ of life from my success.

Is Karan Dewan a woman-proof boy?

Yes. women leave him alone.

ANILA PERSHAD (Delhi)

I was nonplussed when my servant asked me how many people are there who really follow Mahatma Gandhi's teachings?

Good teachings are used for precept and not for practice. And how can you follow a dead leader when the living ones are kicking you about constantly?

MISS VINODINI CHAUDHARI (Bombay)

Define a friend, a cousin, a relative, a guest and an enemy and tell me whom do you like out of these?

I like a friend because he is such a rare entity in my life; I have no cousins and I fall back on my wife's stock—they are rotters; my nearest and only relative is my father—a book-corn like me; guests I like at the dining table to add relish to the tasteless food I am obliged to eat; enemies I have none though many flatter themselves by imagining themselves to be so.

K. LAL (New Delhi)

Do you dance or sing?

I do both but no one appreciates my talent except my wife.

Where is Dalsukh Pancholi of "Khazanchi" fame and what is his future programme?

He is in Bombay, a refugee who has left behind his fortune in Pakistan. Freedom made him orphan.

Have you ever seen a polite politician?

They are all polite till they get power. When they get power they patronize.

He can pick a blush or steal a kiss.

K. SHAKUNTALA (Hubli)

How can you compare a widower to a widow?

A widow is an empty scabbard, a widower naked sword.

Does beauty spell joy?

Not unless it is generous.

What does the term income-tax mean?

The game of 50% theft and 50% detection between two parties.

V. K. FAZLUR RAHMAN (Bangalore)

Another name for luck is Chandulal Shah. Do you agree?

No! Luck has a smiling, pleasant face.

How to kiss a girl who has protruding teeth?

Use the cheeks. They have no teeth.

Disappointment in love; what does it mean to man?

An incentive for another enterprise.

How much energy is used up in editing "filmindia"? Eight hours a day for 22 days!

What is your frank opinion about our newspaper? A huge waste of paper and ink with some rare exceptions.

NAROTTAM DAS (Kanpur)

Do you still enjoy an occasional bachelor evening?

When my wife goes on her seasonal pilgrimage to some Hindu shrine or other, I become a widow—not a bachelor.

H. SAVITRI BAI (Madanapalle)

Did Bapu need the immersion of his ‘asti’ in hundred rivers for his passage to heaven?

God sent Gandhiji to heaven. He was in charge of the gates for the day. He opened the suddenly and let our old saint in. Once he was the late comers rushed to collect the dust of his feet and sprinkled the way with the waters of a hundred rivers.

What should be one's qualifications to become a member of the board of film censors?

He must enjoy Minister Morarji's approval.

HAKUMAT RAI SOOD (New Delhi)

Those I taught ran amok and are now painting the town red with black ink.
Where is Suchaprabha these days?
Her pilot has grounded her.

H. S. RAJAGOPAL RAO (Madras)
Madras city is threatened with food shortage and water shortage. What next?
I visited Madras recently and found it to be a city of the living dead. Dead men don’t worry about shortages.
Sometimes dogs are more faithful than your own kith and kin. Why?
Not sometimes! Always!
“Harijan” was sold like hot cakes when Bapuji was alive and now it is rarely read. Why?
Papers are read because of the men who write them and not because of those who print them.

MISS G. A. MOHINI (Bombay)
What facial features should be changed, if at all this was possible?
Some of the faces under the white caps should be disfigured to bring them in harmony with the dirty minds inside.

MRS. ROMA NAG (Calcutta)
How would you define Indian philosophy?
Contemplation at 10,000 feet above sea level from where earthly things look too insignificant for human use. The pity is that even at that height one needs two meals a day and nowadays a pretty air-hostess.

O. P. MATTHEWS (Jallundur)
My wife is five feet tall, slender, supple and beautiful, a first class singer and housewife and sticks like a leech. What more should I expect from her?

Does she talk?

P. C. SIDDALINGA RAO (Bangalore)
What is the importance of Jallianwallah Bagh?

An episode of tyranny to be shouted as a slogan whenever power sprays its bullets on the people. Can we walk erect if we live on charity?

People are so shameless these days that to their stiff gait they add a frown or two if they don't get their share in time.

YOGESH CHANDRA WHIG (New Delhi)
When the audience starts snoring in a picture house, what does it signify?

A soothing picture.

D. K. GODBOLE (Nagpur)
In "Moroochi Maoshi" Acharya Atre acts himself. What is the necessity?

He probably fancies himself to be Orson Welles. I hope he doesn't play the "Maoshi" by any chance.

S. D. SHUKLA (Kanpur)
Need one be artistic while making love?

Love is a game of impatience. To be artistic you need time.

If, as you say, Stalin is the God in Russia, who is the Satan there?

Satan lives outside Russia as the first citizen of the democracies, as the Communists would have us believe.

What do you think of a student striving to pass his examination by copying?

It is a labour saving device as the present day examinations are not worth much anyway.

K. R. RAJAN (Bombay)
Why do Christian couples celebrate their silver wedding as if it is a great achievement?

To be together after 25 years of struggle and strife is a great achievement.

G. SANJIVA RAO (Bombay)
A girl in India prays for a good husband if not married. What does she pray for after marriage?

Still for a good husband! A good husband is the mirage of a woman's life.

DWARKA NATH BITHAR (New Delhi)
Who are pure vegetarians?

Bulls, goats and their kind.

MADAN LAL BEDI (Rampur)
Do you think that Kedar Sharma is satisfied with his present job?

How should one learn to bluff scientifically?

Become a journalist.

K. N. RAO (Bombay)
How long do you think the refugees will have to remain as 'refugees'?

Till they turn the local citizens out of their homes. Watch the Sindhis doing this.

MANOHANJAN DATTA (Bombay)
What does Protima Das Gupta think of herself when she wears slacks?

She thinks a lot of herself. But that is not important. Poor girl!

D. VASUDEVYA RAO (Hospet)
Do you agree with Nehru's desperate cry 'Produce or Perish'?

The way we are growing in numbers people seem to have heard produce and perish.

M. K. RAMANATH (Bangalore)
What is your frank verdict on Rita's love affair with Prince Aly Khan?

We must get Aly Khan's opinion. He shares the bed with her.

KHURSHEED BANU (Melvisharam)
Which is the most beautiful city in the U.S.A.?

San Francisco! It has both, climate and colour.

BULO T. HARISINGANEGY (Thana)
What do you think of the postman who being tempted away by the beautiful and attractive make up of "filmindia" does not take it to its right destination but keeps it with himself?

An aesthete! We have too many of them.

MRS. SANDHYA NAG (Shillong)
How to increase one's word power?

Read "filmindia" regularly. You will acquire a voltage that will keep people a mile away, of course, all cackling about you.

How did you earn your first money?

I didn't earn it. I stole it from my father's pocket.

MISS DAYA KUMARI BAJAL (Kotah)
Would you like to become a member of the Constituent Assembly?

No! I am not a dumb-waiter. I shall be thrown out of the party even before the first session. Congress bosses don't like critics.

KAMAL KISHORE MALANI (Jodhpur)
What is the most prevalent evil in America?

The dollar race! It keeps both the runners and the backers constantly sweating.
Do you approve of gambling?
   Oh, yes, if you have money to burn.

B. K. GHOSH (Lucknow)
What is your idea about the Islamic States?
   "Islam" means peace but an Islamic State means trouble.

M. VASUDEVAN NAIR (Calicut)
Why is Protima Das Gupta fond of posing with a cigarette tin in her hand?
   Protima takes all sorts of poses. She is a versatile artist. But that may not be a cigarette tin, it may as well be a collection box.
   When a girl blushes on seeing you, what conclusion would you draw?
   That she is a cradle-hunter. Run away unless you like to pay milk bills.
   What do you think of the present day students?
   Spineless rowdies poisoned by politics!

A. P. SURI (New Delhi)
For many years I had not seen Indian pictures. Since reading your "filmindia", I have started seeing Indian pictures. Why?
   You have become intellectual now and you probably go to verify my reviews.

A. S. NAIDU (Secunderabad Dn.)
Who is the king-maker at present in India?
   We don't make kings in India these days. We unmake them and our prize unmaker of kings is Poornima, sweet and sad, makes a good impression in "Thes", a social theme directed by Kidar Sharma for Oriental Pictures.

Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel, the bronze idol of lions.
Sardar Patel is called the iron man of India. I learn that he is a very sympathetic and kind man. Now your views please?
   Haven't you seen his little grandson on his leg? Well, only kind men are liked by little ones. Are our princes love him.

D. R. THAKKAR (Parel, Bombay)
When a student in Surat complained to Home Minister Morarji Desai about not getting enough kerosene for his studies, the minister is reported to have asked the student to go and study under the municipal lamp post because he himself had done so. Is this a story—the one between the minister and the lamp—and is it the right remedy for government's failure to supply kerosene?
   For the truth of the story ask the lamp post. There is no intelligence in the reply which is a nineteenth century prescription for a twentieth century grievance. It is like asking a man who complains about railway irregularities to go to Benares on foot because in old times people used to take a pilgrimage in this manner.

M. K. PANJWANI (Bombay)
Who, do you anticipate, would write the best obituary upon your death?
   Dead men don't read obituaries. The living do and their opinions don't move the dead.
   Are you the same Baburao Patel who directed a picture called "Maharani" featuring Padma Devi many years ago?
   There is only one Baburao Patel in India.

MRS. ACHLA KAPOOR (New Delhi)

Kishore Sahu Outclasses Other Directors!
“Sawan-Aya-Re” Presents Excellent Drama!

Kishore Sahu’s “Sawan-Aya-Re”, a school for directors—directors like Shantaram, Vijoo Bhatt, Kardar and Mebroob who hardly show any naivete in the emotional and artistic expression of a drama. If they call themselves true artists, by instinct and training, they should sit at Kishore Sahu’s feet for a year and at least learn to discriminate between their much boosted camera craftsmanship, which is at best crude and mechanical, and the subtle and sensitive expression of human emotions so badly needed to dramatize life and make it at once convincing and artistic.

“Sawan-Aya-Re” is a delicate and beautiful work of a fine and cultured mind. It is a great epic of emotions which only a well-educated Indian, acutely sensitive to his ancient heritage in culture and human values, can produce.

One wonders whether half the directors in our country would even understand the subtlety of Sahu’s art which has portrayed human emotions with such gentle and delicate nuances as to make the human drama at once fascinating and irresistible.

Whatever the box-office verdict of the masses who see our motion pictures, this picture must remain, for a long time to come, a glorious milestone in art and dramatic expression in the annals of film making in this country. Kishore Sahu has left the Bhatts, the Kardars and the Shantarams of the film industry far behind and he need not even look back to see their place in the race for prestige and distinction.

A MARRIAGE TANGLE

The main theme of the story is simple—in fact too simple. But when the writer-director’s genius punctuates the theme with innumerable subtleties, at once psychological and artistic, the story that emerges becomes a dynamic drama of human emotions.

The Mathurs, a well-to-do white collar family, come to Naini Tal with three grown-up daughters: Asha, Sudha and Rama. Asha doesn’t believe in marriage and to prove her belief she has already written a book against it. Sudha believes in fun and riches. Rama is good and expects her parents to do the needful. Lady Mathur starts a frantic search for three suitable would-be sons-in-law and in this Khanna, an old family friend, helps.

Anand, artist, idealist and gentleman, now meets the family and soon crosses swords with Asha on her none-too-convincing argument against marriage. When Sudha finds out the fact that in addition to being famous and talented, Anand was also very rich, she brushes up her teeth for a good bite.

In the meantime, Asha and Anand fall in love with each other but Asha turns Anand’s proposal to marry into a platonic friendship. Anand doesn’t protest but in his gentle way he decides to introduce Asha into the intimate cloisters of his heart and takes her to his village to meet his widowed mother.

The sequences here are beautifully conceived and portrayed in a refined manner worthy of the highest culture among the Hindus. In choice, gentle and unobtrusive dialogue, Anand’s mother takes the platonic edge off Asha’s love and the girl soon discovers herself ready for marriage. Anand, however, doesn’t even suspect anything about this change in Asha.

Sudha knows about it and she decides to clinch the affair quickly. While Asha lies dreaming on her bed, Sudha drops in at Anand’s studio and using all guile and guile, manages to spend a night in the studio alone with him.

The dawn brings the Nemesis with the Mathurs at the studio, fretting and furious.

MASTERLY CONCEPTION

With a callous calculation, Sudha announces Anand’s decision to marry. The Mathurs smile approval. Anand’s silence and stoicism in this sequence constitute a masterpiece of dramatic conception.

Sudha and Anand are married. It was a marriage between the two Poles—a wedding that brought neither the bodies nor the souls together. It was harmony stillborn—the superb stoicism of Anand on one side and the utter recklessness of Sudha on the other. His love for Asha was corroding Anand’s soul every moment and he soon took to bed—a wreck in love. His serious condition

Kishore Sahu's direction is superb. His deft handling of the psychological subtleties of the story is masterly and makes the picture one vivid emotional experience. The dialogue of the picture is an education in idiom and economy of words.

Not satisfied with writing the story and directing it, Kishore Sahu has played Anand, the hero of the story. This is a difficult role to play with its inherent design of culture, idealism and gentle stoicism. Kishore lives it to perfection and in complete harmony with his own conception of the role. His final pathetic moment brings tears to the eyes of the audience.

RAMOLA'S GREATEST ROLE!

Ramola supports Kishore wonderfully as Asha. This is easily the greatest performance Ramola has given in her long and versatile career as an artiste. Under Kishore's competent direction, her talent reaches new emotional heights and in the pathetic sequences Ramola wins the laurels with an ease that proclaims her as a great artiste.

David plays Khanna, a walking and talking role, with his characteristic ease. Sofia does her bit as Sudha but looks ridiculous when she starts prancing before a piano. That girl shouldn't lift her leg to dance.

Mohana, a new com'er, looks pretty and gives some nice comic actions as Rama, the youngest daughter of the family. Mohana, however, was wrapped too much seeing that she has things to reveal. Pratima Devi has a role that fits her like a glove. She does it beautifully and so does Gulab, the incomparable old lady of our screen!

We doubt whether we shall see another excellent picture like this during the year. Till then "Sawan-Aya-Re" must be considered as the best picture of 1949. It is a picture worth going a long way to see.

“Ziddi” is a silly story with a dial background and stuffed with so many handly coincidences to make a stupid, boring and inconsequential motion picture. There is nothing intelligent or intellectual in the story throughout its long length. One wonders whether the two creative Lateef’s (Mr. & Mrs.) have adopted the two common methods of our Lalls and Bhais of producing cheap motion pictures just for profits.

“Ziddi” is a stupid marriage tangled in which the younger son of an aristocratic family falls madly in love with a young, orphaned maid servant of the family and is prevented from marrying her.

In trying to elope with the girl, the boy is chased by his elder brother and a convenient accident throws the girl into the usually waiting river where the heroine as usual is rescued by strangers with all her things intact and the hero and every one around as usual think her to be dead.

In motion pictures they never search or wait for the corpses of the dead people as we do in life. The hero undertakes to do all the last part to the dead and when the river fills, strangers do the needful.

The heroine is as usual accepted without a question by another aristocratic family with of course a marriable daughter waiting for the dramatic opportunity to rush in a wedlock.

The time is now ripe with the hero and the heroine torn apart by a cruel convention world. The hero, of course, mopes for a while, not at all in the Majnu manner because a hero of Ismat Chughtai must have a progressive-minded hero like say—Shahid, and then agrees to marry the girl—strangely enough the very girl who had saved the heroine from drowning.

Coincidences now contract the field of the drama and with the marriage of the hero the fateful river is crossed again and all the characters are brought within the shooting range of one another.

After a dance, a fire and some pandemonium the seedy hero who has been carrying his bed of love in his tired eyes all this time, is brought face to face with his missing beloved.

Now the new bride gets going. She makes some passes at the hero, but the fellow having dropped his guard long ago, she gets disgusted and elopes with another man.

Arriving at the fateful river waiting patiently to receive another human body, the bride recovers her Hindu conscience suddenly and jumps into the river solving all the problems of Ismat Chughtai in a minute. The hero’s eyes suddenly brighten when he sees his beloved being cha- peroned by his brother and other members of the family. It ends well. In fact, damn too well!

Not once during its long length does the picture become either interesting or even tolerable.

TINNED MUSIC:
Josef Wirsching, the German cameraman who had once made a name at the Bombay Talkies, seems to be back in the saddle. His work in this picture is, however, far from satisfactory. Kamini Kaushal suffers the most at his hands. He didn’t seem to get a hang of her face till the last. Wirsching should see some other Indian pictures in which Kamini looks as pretty as a doll.

Prem Dhavan has given some good lyrics but Khemchand has cast them in his old Ranjit tunes, thereby making even the words look old. Shahid Lateef’s direction is still very amateurish and half-hearted.

VEERA’S SLEEPWALKING!
Kamini Kaushal who plays Asha, the pretty maid servant, does her usual bit, in spite of the director perhaps, and thus provides some relief in an otherwise boring picture.

Naval plays the a la Lionel Barrymore uncle, chair and frown, and does a good aping act. Dev Anand has a spineless role as the hero and he portrays it in a spineless manner. This boy’s approach to work, we guess, is getting shadowed by his easy success. What a pity to see some good material going to dogs so soon!

Veera plays the wife of the hero’s elder brother acted by her own husband, Mohsin. While Mohsin seems anxious to keep the false moustache on his upper lip—and he betrays this anxiety in his very first shot by pressing the moustache, Veera walks through the picture like a somnambulist on stilts. Veera has had enough trials so far and it is now only too obvious that she can’t act with the corner of her eye always on the camera. Mohsin is also equally camera conscious throughout the picture and both husband and wife, though actually so in life, failed to convince us as such on the screen—the couple of children shown being the only evidence of their intimacy and harmony in wedlock.

Indu gives quite a good dance in the picture as Chamki, the maid, but her passion for her young master has to be accepted as probably a progressive phase in love-making.

There is nothing in “Ziddi” to shout about. At best it is a very boring picture with an absurd story. Exhibitors are likely to lose heavily on this picture.

"Dawlat" - A Damn Idiotic Picture!

Picture Becomes Exhibitor’s Poison!

If there is still any doubt left regarding the fact that Producer Sohrob Modi has lost all interest in motion picture production, "Dawlat", is maiden attempt at comedy, would convince the most sceptical.

The unceremonious withdrawal of the film in the city within barely so weeks after its premiere in Bombay, shows that filmgoers, even from the lower classes have not been slow to realize the fact that he one-time successful director has very much become a back number these days.

For, apart from the utter failure of the picture at the box-office, Sohrob Modi is about the last person suited to handle a comedy considering Sohrob’s peculiar mental approach to his previous work.

Even Madhubala, with her fast ising popularity, could not save "Dawlat" from being one of the reattest flops of the season.

ALL ROUND IDIOTIC

Strangely enough, the story of his first comedy of Sohrob Modi comes from P. K. Atre, himself a producer-director of several such ops, who could have surely picurized it himself had he been sure of its box office possibilities.

Familiar and hackneyed, the story is more stupid and idiotic rather than satirical and humorous and not all the combined intelligence of Atre and Modi succeeds in creating a single entertaining situation worth the trouble.

It is all about the daughter of a wealthy maniac who does not allow any young man to enter his house for the fear of her catching the romantic flu though this she does not mind a so-called "Doctor of Mesmerism" hoodwinking him under the pretext of giving a sleep-treatment and taking advantage of the situation to make love to the girl!

In "Roshni", a Standard Picture, Sofia shows her curves to advantage.

While this maniac invites a wealthy jagirdar who is an utter simpleton to go ahead with his daughter, the girl’s mother has her own specimen ready in the form of a pseudo-pundit as the possible suitor for her daughter.

In the sorry jumble of complications which follow the three suitors vie with one another in acting idiotically to create the maximum boredom and disgust for the audience.

Barring two songs which provide some partial relief, the whole picture is a criminal waste of celluloid with everything from the story and direction down to acting being of a third class standard. Madhubala who plays the heroine, has been cast in a role where she has so little to do and she becomes a victim of Sohrob Modi’s crude and peculiar sense of comedy. Mahipal, as her favourite suitor, proves too wooden to impress whereas the antics of Eruch Tarapore literally make a mockery of a comedy role.

"Dawlat" is so damn idiotic that Sohrob Modi would do well to retire finally motion picture production and at least save us the pleasant memories of "Pukar" and "Sikandar" associated with his name.

"Dawlat" is nothing short of suicide for the exhibitor wherever he is located—in the most flourishing town or in the most distant village of India.

Usha Haran" Becomes Another Flop!

Idiotic Junk Insults Hindu Gods!

What the "Arabian Nights" is to Arab, the Hindu mythology is to the Hindu, an endless treasure of phantastic myths and legends, these days made more phantastical by the fertile but putrid imagination of our film producers. In mythology anything is served as good as at the masses.

Prakash's "Usha Haran" is one such story in which the gods and the mons, symbols of virtue and vice, mix up so badly that becomes difficult to separate one from the other.

This is a story from Shrimad Bhagat, the umpteenth of its kind in Hindu mythology designed to denk the power intoxication of mortals. This one is about Banasur, the King of Shonitpur who wins Lord Shiva's favour through his skill in playing the drum when Shiva dances.

Intoxicated by Lord Shiva's prowess to protect him, Banasur follows the footsteps of other crazy veterinarys and vanquishes everyone till he is none to conquer. In supreme intoxication of his might, Banasur is Lord Shiva for an enemy.

The gods seemed to have provided the instrument of deflating Banasur's pride in his own home and in keeping with the predestined design, Usha, Banasur's daughter, falls in love with Aniruddha, the grandson of Lord Krishna. It is a dream-come-true romance which soon leads to a war between Lord Krishna and Banasur, ending with Banasur losing all but his four arms from the thousand he had.

Banasur, of course, sees wisdom and apologizes to the two Lords, Krishna and Shiva, and gives Usha in marriage to Aniruddha.

TEWARI'S TANDAVA

The story has hardly any dramatic material to make even a slightly tolerable motion picture and the producers have resorted to the usual stunts and magic in an abortive effort to make the picture interesting.

The picture opens with the "Tandava" dance of Lord Shiva in which Anand Tewari, playing Lord Shiva, displays his unseemly legs and imartistic movements to such a disadvantage as to completely shatter to pieces the grand and beautiful conception of the "Tandava" we have had through centuries. Tewari's "Tandava" is like the clumsy performance we see on the streets by "Dombari" acrobats. Another equally impossible scene is the battle between Krishna and Banasur which is nothing but a hopeless mess of men, demons and gods who look all alike with chariots, swords and arrows.

The pot-bellied Ulhas plays Banasur as badly as he can. Anand Tewari provides a ridiculous caricature of Lord Shiva and in doing so brings down the Hindu altar to dust. In a secular state you can't advocate the cause of gods, however great they may be defamed. Arvind's "Lord Krishna" is another woeful tale while Aroon's "Aniruddha" remains a silly and idiotic portrayal throughout.

JUST JUNK

Ratnamala with her youth in the dusk of years, strangely enough plays Usha which symbolises the dawn. She does it as badly as she looks.

Jeevan gives a very revolting performance as the court jester whose wit and intelligence have been framed in a million instructive stories in Hindu mythology. Jeevan transforms the court jester into a buffoon.

The picture is an idiotic junk at best—poor all round with not a moment of relief. It flopped in Bombay and should flop all over the country.

“Sakharpuda” Entertains And Tickles Thought!

Baburao Pendharkar Lives His Role!

“Sakharpuda” is an entertaining Marathi picture punctuated by quite a few sighs and smiles and with a social theme which, had the picture been produced in Hindustani, would have become popular all over the country.

The story has a brilliant thematic beginning in a maternity hospital where two women, one the wife of poor and respectable school teacher and the other a well-known and popular songstress, are on the point of becoming mothers. The poor teacher who expects his wife to give him a son gets crestfallen when a daughter is born while sweetmeats are distributed when the singing prostitute gets a daughter.

In a poor country like India where respectable parents have still to pay dowries to get their daughters married, the sex of the child is an important consideration in the economic life of the people. Inversely, a prostitute, who has little use for a son, except as a dole-boy to run small errands for her patrons, prays for a daughter to keep the family profession running and guarantee her maintenance in old age.

It was no wonder therefore that the poor school teacher went home dejected with the weight of the future resting heavily on his slender shoulders while even the patrons of Mainabai welcomed a daughter in the house of their favourite singing prostitute in the hope that their own illicit pleasures would in years to come get a new incentive which would provide fresh edge to their lust.

The two girls, Rekha, the poor teacher’s daughter, and Ratan, the prostitute’s daughter, grow up simultaneously in entirely contrary social surroundings. Passing through the usual vicissitudes of poverty, Rekha becomes a graduate and working as a school teacher brings home her small salary as a little windfall to the family exchequer while Ratan graduates in her family arts of singing, dancing and beguiling under the vulturous guidance of her experienced mother.

While Rekha cannot permit herself the luxury of even thinking of marriage, burdened as the family was with the education and responsibility of two younger children, Ratan, because of the times around, aches for a respectable marriage in defiance of her family and professional traditions.

ON FLESH HUNT

At this stage is introduced Inamdar, a rich widower, with a little child in his home and a pimp in the town, shedding crocodile tears over his wife’s death and searching for a new flesh for an autumn bed of pleasure.

Bartakke, Inamdar’s pimp, soon locates both Rekha and Ratan. Mainabai, Ratan’s mother, because of the usual temptations agrees to surrender her daughter to Inamdar but Ratan, obsessed with the marriage idea, refuses to submit to the arrangement.

Inamdar, keen on deflowering Ratan for pleasure and marrying Rekha for the home, sets Bartakke working furiously on the poor old school teacher. The school teacher soon becomes a victim of blackmail and after passing through the usual heartrending situations, Rekha decides to make a sacrifice of her love for a poor, young photographer and marry Inamdar to improve the economic conditions of the family.

In the meantime, Inamdar has managed to ravish Ratan without her other's knowledge and the girl is ready pregnant when the climax the story is reached.

With the help of Deshmukh Master, a practical man of the world, the whole affair is satisfactorily solved by exposing Inamdar right at the time of his proposed marriage with Rekha and making him marry the pregnant Ratan instead. Rekha gets her poor, young photographer and everyone is happy at the end.

ROLE OF HIS LIFE

The story drags a bit before the interval due to a sketchy film script but travels fast enough afterwards. The production values are not outstanding, photography and sound recording being only tolerably good. The music is poor.

The direction of Vasant Joglekar is quite enterprising and his work is made comparatively easy by the inclusion in the cast of experienced artistes like Baburao Pendharkar, Damunna Malwankar and Sumati Gupte.

Baburao Pendharkar plays Inamdar, the sex-obsessed villain of the story, and he lives his role to the finger tips. In such roles he is at once the ideal and the standard and no one in the country can beat him.

Damunna Malwankar gives his usual polished performance as Deshmukh Master, the practical man of the world, who has seen enough of the different hypocrisies of contemporary life and has decided to debunk them whenever possible. He has a delightful little role and he portrays it perfectly.

Sumati Gupte plays Rekha, the heroine of the story, with her characteristic poise and dignity. Sumati has added a little weight to her face these days and in consequence lost a bit of her previous screen personality but her performance, nevertheless remains intelligent and appropriate.

Indumati looks fresh and attractive as Ratan but she makes such horrible mouth formations while speaking and singing that one likes to look away from the screen.

Indirabai Chitnis acquits herself superbly as Mainabai, the singing prostitute. She shows the vigour and the vindictiveness of a well-scarred prostitute.

In short, "Sakharpuda", in spite of its production defects, is a good picture which, while entertaining, also tickles the mind. And very few Indian pictures do that these days.

AT HOME AND ABROAD

BON VOYAGE!

Mr. Chuni Lall, Managing Director of Filmistan Ltd. and President of the Motion Picture Society of India, left for Europe, accompanied by Mrs. Chuni Lall, by the P.O. S.S. Canton which sailed from Bombay on the 29th April.

A large number of friends, film producers and other studio executives bid a touching farewell to Mr. Chuni Lall who is on a sick leave. I will be taking expert medical treatment in Switzerland during the next four months.

With the future of the Indian film industry on the official anvil these days Chuni Lall's absence from home is bound to be very keenly felt in the film industry which has a practically shaped and guided the versatile genius of this great magnate of India who has been the leader of all the official delegations on the different problems of the industry during the last 15 years.

Easily the busiest and most prolific film producer in the country today, Chuni Lall could yet find time to attend to the official and industrial aspects of film making in India and induce a none-too-desirable crowd of producers, distributors and exhibitors to present a united front in the industry's representations to the government.

Let us pray, in the interests of the industry which he has served so faithfully and sincerely all these years, for Chuni Lall's quick recovery and early return to India.

As friends we wish him a happy holiday, well earned through years of toil and struggle, and bon voyage to both Mr. & Mrs. Chuni Lall.

A FEATHER IN OUR CAP!

New Delhi, April 10.

The Indian Parliament passed the Cinematograph (Amendment) Bill. intended to restrict the exhibition of films not considered suitable for children and adolescents, on Saturday the 9th April. The House also accepted an amendment permitting mothers to take children below three to picture houses.

The present Bill provides for two kinds of certificates—A (Adult) certificate authorizing exhibition to adults only and a 'U' (Universal) certificate authorizing unrestricted exhibition of films. An adult is defined in the Bill as a person who has completed his 18th year. a doubtful definition, of course.

Moving the Bill to amend the Cinematograph Act, Mr. R. R. Diva-kar, Minister for Information, explained that under the provisions of the Bill the film censors would be able to restrict exhibition of horrific, sexy or crime films to adults only, thus preventing children under 18 from seeing them. The provincial governments had already been consulted and they had considered this measure necessary.

It is hardly necessary to emphasize here the undisputed fact that this new legislation protecting our young minds from crime and sexy films is entirely due to the ceaseless campaign against such pictures carried out by "filmindia" since 1938.

TOUGH NO MORE!

Hollywood, April 16.

Wallace Beery, the popular tough man of the screen, died at Hollywood on Friday 15th April at the age of 63.

Adventurous since childhood, Beery ran away from school to become an elephant trainer with the Ringling Circus. His love for acting soon found him working in Henry W. Savage's "Babes in Toyland" on Broadway. Financially broke, he joined the movies and one of his big pictures was "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" where he made a name as a comedian. Then came the "Min and Bill" series with Marie Dressler and Beery and Dressler became one of the most famous screen teams.

Beery was a skilled aviator and worked in the U.S. Naval Air Force Reserve. Though he was often typed as a tough guy in his later pictures, in private life he was kind and gentle, a good friend and devoted father to his adopted daughter Carol Ann.

A BEGINNING AT LAST!
Bombay, April 21.
Realizing the value of visual aids in education, the Government of Bombay have decided to spend Rs. 75,000 in three years on grants to non-government schools for the purchase of 16 mm film projectors. These projectors will be used for showing educational films circulated by the government and thus make life for school children more interesting and instructive.

We, however, hope it is not all Congress propaganda and tree planting exploits of the ministers that will be shown to the boys.

PRINCE ALY’S RELATIONS

With his marriage to Rita Hayworth, Prince Aly Khan will inherit a colourful family.

His brother-in-law, Rita’s brother of course, Vernon Cansino is a taxi-cab driver in Hollywood and sells hamburgers in spare time. Including tips he makes 60 dollars a week.

Rita’s father, Eduards, and uncle Jose, run dancing schools in Hollywood and teach Spanish dancing. Eduards Jnr., the younger brother of Rita, also used to drive a taxi-cab but now he teaches dancing.

Then Rita has numerous more uncles, aunts, cousins and nephews — dancers all — whom Prince Aly will inherit with a single “I do”.

Anyway Aly can certainly start a dancing troupe with his Spanish in-laws and give his Khojas something to see.

SLANDERING INDIANS!
New York, April 21.

B. V. Keskar recently stated the Indian Dominion Parliament in the slanderous film “India Jacks” had been withdrawn in New York following the government of India’s protest. And yet the said film is being exhibited in Chicago and is attracting large crowds there. It is not yet too late to protest if some one is still prepared to listen to Indian protest anywhere whether in Malaya, Burma, Pakistan, Ceylon, America or even Timbuktoo. What is Nehru’s sister doing in America?

BANNED IN BERLIN!
London, April 22.

Owing to strong protests and the Jewish demonstration against the showing of “Oliver Twist” in Berlin, the British Military Government in Germany have now banned “Oliver Twist”.

Poornima, a smart newcomer, plays a lively role in “Patanga”, a social theme of Varma Films.

HAPPY?

“Allow me to say a word about P. C. Purohit’s letter published in the “Woes & Echoes” column of ‘filmindia’ of January 1949 under the caption “Islam in Danger”. Simply because a few lines referring to Islam occur in a song and words Islam and Kom are uttered in the picture “Dard”, he counters the picture as one “containing nothing except seeds of communal trouble”. The relevant lines are: ‘Allah ke bandon ko majhdhar ka gham kyon ho’. ‘Islam ki kishi ko ham par laga dengae’. ‘I fail to see where is ‘communal trouble’ in them. If Islam is in danger it is only from within, i.e., from the Muslims themselves because of their deviation from the path. I think that is the way to interpret the lines in question. Because ‘at many places’ Mr. Purohit complains, there are words ‘Islam and Kom (caste)’ the picture contains ‘communal trouble’. Is that absurdity go further?”

KALI CHASHMA?

‘Nargis wept so much in Jaimini Iwan’s ‘Lahore’ to make the picture a hit but failed miserably along with the picture itself. Her eyesight must have weakened. Is it advisable to send her glasses?”

H. H. Naraial Das.

OUTSIDE!

The Odeon Cinema of this town, only theatre which plays foreign pictures, is hardly a theatre in the sense we usually understand. Its minimum charged seat costs Rs. 1.5/- because there is no other cinema showing foreign pictures.

‘Making money is alright but don’t you think we should get some amenities for our money? The system here is bad, the projector is faulty and one has to strain his eyes to see the picture. The seats are all third class.

Where should we stand Mr. Fei?”

K. Ghosh.

Woes & Echoes

I DO BUT—

“In the cinemas in this town, college students are given a concession rate but school students are not allowed to enjoy this concession. Is this fair and sensible? If all, the school students who have lesser buying power should be given the concession rates. Don’t you think so?”

Niranjan Bhatia.

FRANK BUT TRUE!

“I congratulate you for your frankness which is revealed in your last month’s editorial (filmindia March 1949). You have shown clearly how poor India’s money is wasted on such useless adventures. Illustrated Weekly’s “London Letter” clearly states that Uday Shankar could not cut much ice in U.K. also.

“I hope our directors and producers bear in mind constantly your valuable editorial whenever they think of sending any films abroad and wasting our nation’s wealth”.

WEEPY ENTERTAINMENT:

“There are two cinemas in Samhalkpur. Both of them are getting packed houses every day. Here at Samhalkpur leaving alone the adults even the lower primary students are addicted to smoking. Consequently one can hardly find any moment without a bidi or a cigarette being lighted during the short span inside the hall. Specially after the interval one would find innumerable stars glittering inside the hall in darkness. The place that time appears to be a veritable hell full of smoke. True to speak eyes smart and water due to the smoke.

“I appeal to the authorities to follow in the footsteps of the Bombay Government and put a ban on smoking inside the cinema halls.”

ORISSA.

Durgaprasad Pabane.

ALL FOR MONEY?

“Recently I went to ‘Minerva’ a local picture palace, to see a Bengali picture. There I found how one can be tortured in a non-violent way. The picture was simply a nonsensical hotch-potch.

“I have however to complain about a far more annoying thing and that is about the seats provided to the cine-goers. I paid Rs. 1.5/- and the seat that I was shown in was not even worth a garland of torn shoes round the necks of the selfish, greedy and vulgar million-

READ BY ALL!

I feel immensely glad to read letters submitted by some of the ministers to Filmindia, supporting Editorial article “National Sui-ce”. I had the impression that Filmindia was a popular magazine among the public. But when now March '49 issue, I had to resemble that impression and admit that as popular among our ministers it is not enough if Filmindia was the attention of only a few ministers but all the ministers of the nation should make it a habit to go through every issue and they ought to take every possible step to prove the film industry and make serve well the needs of the nation.”

WHY PATRONIZE?

The local ‘Gayathri Talkies’ which boasts of being the only thea in the city to possess a plastic screen and which is the only theatre where English pictures alone shown, also seems to vie with tier theatres in erecting twin seats also in issuing more tickets than the available accommodation on rush days and placing chairs in every possible space blockading all movement, especially during the interval when to go out and come back becomes the greatest ordeal.

“The sad plight of the film fans, huddled together like mangoes in a basket of hay, can very well be imagined when it is also known that there are no fans for the 8 as.

exploitation with capital E, this thea-

HIGHER PRICES!

“The poor man heaved a sigh of relief when the golden rays of freedom lighted up the domes and minarets of India after a long era of slavery and he dreamt of a future when he would get sufficient to eat and to wear. But all his high hopes have faded away and, to add insult to the injury, the people’s government have joined hands with the capitalists in the mass exploitation of our already poor people. A glaring example of this is found in Kanpur, where the Government have permitted the cinema owners to increase the third class admission prices from 1 ½ to 1 ½ per ticket.

“Only the local Elite Cinema shows the ‘Indian News Review’. Many other cinemas like Lighthouse, hind and have not so far felt the desirability of moving with the times.

“Indian News Review” is a worthy attempt of our Government to give news and although it is not as good as the foreign newsreels, it deserves fullest co-operation. If exhibitors are not co-operating I think the Government should make it compulsory.

CRIMINALS ALL!

“Yesterday I went to see “Bari Bahen” at the Imperial. It was about 6 o’clock and all Rs. 1½ tickets were sold out. But a man was standing a little away from the ticket window and selling Rs. 1½ tickets to my surprise I found that he possessed all the tickets for C and D rows of 18 seats each. Evidently he could never have got these tickets without the help of the management and dared to sell them openly without their co-operation. I wonder why such anti-social black-marketeering practices are going on in our theatres. Can something be done to check them?”

(Nothing can be done as long as idiots like you keep buying these blackmarket tickets. Ed.)

BAN “APNA DESH”?

“With the advent of freedom, some directors and producers seem to have achieved the freedom of producing bathes and flops. Mr. Shantaram, once a director and producer of India, appears to have been leading them at present. In his recent two pictures namely “Bhool” and “Apna Desh” he has taken the full advantage of the newly achieved blessing. He did not hesitate to glorify virgin motherhood in “Bhool” and thereby slandered the whole community of women in general and Indian women in particular. Not content with it, Shantaram has once again depicted an Indian woman in lurid colours in his new venture—“Apna Desh”. He has hurt the feelings of six million refugees in general and refugee women-folk in particular, by directing and producing “Apna Desh”. Even though our sisters and daughters have suffered terribly at the hands of Pakistani goondas, nevertheless not a single girl or woman has acted in the manner in which Shantaram has made his heroine act in “Apna Desh”. No refugee girl or woman would, nay could dare to think of betraying the land, which has given shelter, food, clothing and above all sympathetic treatment to her. I would prefer to commit suicide, rather than be a traitor.

“But Shantaram, of late, has become a business man, and what can we expect from one, who prefers gold and silver to art and culture? Shantaram should feel ashamed of having produced “Apna Desh”. I shall not allow the matter to rest there. I would appeal to my refugee brethren to boycott “Apna Desh” and agitate for an immediate ban.

M. D. Bhandarkar.”

In the “Red Paradise” of Stalin, the entertainment millions is ruled by two slogans: “The cinema is the most powerful weapon of propaganda” (Lenin) and “the cinema is the greatest means of mass agitation” (Stalin). These two slogans in gold lettering are displayed on the right and the left of the screen in one of Moscow’s biggest cinemas.

Mrs. Vijayalaxmi Pandit, our ex-ambassadress for Asia, of course, did not notice them because the slogans are in the Russian language and Madame was busy sharpening her embassy.

However, these significant slogans emphasize the fact that in Soviet Russia, entertainment or amusement is an integral part of the cinema and the film is basically an instrument of Communist propaganda and education. The Soviet film industry does not at all care for office receipts or popularity of films. Cinema tickets are priced very low and happen to be perhaps the cheapest commodity in Soviet Russia.

Whatever the masses may want for their entertainment, their desires are neither consulted nor catered for. Sexy, murder or mystery films are ever shown in Russia, nor are any glamorous musicals nor even any psychological dramas, so popular in other parts of the world.

Once in a while some one commits the “mistake” of introducing an entertainer, as in the case of “The Fun Goes to the East”, which told the story of a young agronomist going East—of course, Soviet East—and falling in love with a young naval officer during the journey. (You can’t do that in Soviet Russia without Stalin’s personal permission. They have a fixed rule and procedure for falling in love according to the Communist ideals.) The picture had many amusing situations and the dialogue was sharp and lively. It had the censors somehow (there are censors in Russia, spite of what Communists in India say) and came on the screen and drew large thrifty crowds.

But “Pravda”, Stalin’s official tomtom, declaring the film as empty-headed and frivolous and not the true type of Soviet woman, wrote: “The makers of the film have tried to aim at amusement simply for the sake of amusement and have clearly forgotten the noble educational tasks of Soviet art. The story of the film is stupid and petty, its humour forced and trivial, its moral conceptions dubious and unconvincingly presented.” After the picture was banned.

In Soviet Russia, you can’t produce a film merely for the sake of amusement, however innocent the amusement. Every film whatever the colour of its celluloid must have a Red tone.

In fact only four types of films are produced in Soviet Russia: Political, Biographical, Documentary and Scientific Informational films!

“The Russian Question”, a screen version of Konstantin Simonov’s play shows the constant persecution of a journalist in America who believes in cooperation with Russia as vital for world peace. Asked to go to Russia and write an anti-Soviet book which would bring him a fortune, he refuses and writes an “objective” book which makes him poor and penniless.

Another good instance of the “Political” films is the short film, “Christopher Columbus RedisCOVERs America”. It shows Columbus discovering an America of slums, of police attacking democratic meetings, of lynching of negroes, of labour strikes, of unemployment and racial hatred. The picture shows that Columbus, at first not believing the evidence of his own eyes, soon comes to the reluctant conclusion that America today was definitely not worth discovering. We are, fortunately, saved from Columbus’ open approval of Soviet Russia, as the only land worth discovering again and again.

The “Biographical” film mainly concentrates on popularizing famous Russians, of course Red Russians. Most of them are war heroes but quite often men of science, medicine, literature and arts also feature as themes for pictures. Strangely enough all these biographies never go beyond 1917 and the present day Russians seem to inherit a tradition only 32 years old. “Pirogov”, the story of a Russian surgeon, was a very popular recent film. The main aim of such films is to show Russian heroism or Soviet achievement in different spheres of life, thus promoting national pride and patriotism.

Then there is the “Documentary” film which mainly deals with the Soviet Union as a whole and the life and work of individual republics. One of the most successful films in this class was “A Day in the Life of the U.S.S.R.” which gave a pictorial summary of all happenings from the Baltic to the Black Sea and from Moscow to the Pacific. But easily the best film produced last year was “A Tale of the Siberian Land”, which in quality would probably surpass the best British or American the unshakeable law of all Soviet art!!!

To build up Communism in the world—

To build up Communism in the world—
the unshakeable law of all Soviet art!!!

To build up Communism in the world—
the unshakeable law of all Soviet art!!!

We are repeating this Soviet law thrice so that it may at last penetrate the bullet-proof skulls of Congress ministers. And these are official words of Bolshakov, the Soviet Minister of Cinematography.

And Ivan Bolshakov is not a minister indulging in pret-talk which our film minister gives us from port towns without knowing his subject. Bolshakov what he is talking.

And yet after this frank and brutal declaration that Soviet film must have a Red tone, the Government are allowing Soviet films to run in India.

Of course, the Government of India do not yet know thing about Bolshakov's creed or about the Red tone of films, in spite of our own embassy being in for more than two years, but we expect the facts to hit them at least now after reading article.

As recently, again at our instance (vide: our ed-ticle in November 1918 issue), the Government banned the following ten Soviet films as public exhibition being presumably propaganda:
"May Day Parade" (4,415 ft.); "In the World (1613 ft.); "Green Shores" (899 ft.); "Sukhumi in November" (856 ft.); "Autumn in Georgia" (386 ft.); "Wonderful Laboratory" (900 ft.); "Science & Technique No. 1" (900 ft.); "Young Guard" (20,000 ft.); "A Tale of Siberia" (10,322 ft.) and "She Defends
Her Country".

But these films have not yet been banned in the other provinces of India—thanks to the different idiotic concepts of provincial autonomy prevalent in different provinces.

But apart from these 10 banned films, there are numerous other Soviet films running in the country which are not banned by the authorities.

How can these films be allowed to run when Ivan
Bolshakov, the Soviet Minister, himself admits that all Soviet films contribute "to build up Communism in the world"? Is any further proof needed to classify these films as anti-national? Isn't Bolshakov's official confession even enough evidence?

Strange as it may sound, the Diamond Talkie Distributors of Bombay, a firm owned by a leading Marwari multi-millionaire of Bombay, distribute these Soviet films in India by extending their influence and financial support "to build up Communism in the world".

We also understand that another Marwari multimillionaire who owns a picture house in Delhi is at present negotiating with Vladimir Sayadiants of Soviet Film Distributors to build a chain of theatres throughout the country to show Soviet films. These delicate negotiations are reported to be handled by an erstwhile film star whose personal charm and introductions in higher political circles are reported to be proving effective in making the deal easier in the official quarters.

In the context of the present anti-national activities of the Communists in our country, the co-operation of these Marwari multi-millionaires with Soviet films is clearly an act of treachery against our country.

We stamp all these people as so many traitors to our country, and demand that their nefarious activities be stopped immediately if Communism is to be stopped from ruining the lives of millions of our god-fearing people.

It is hardly necessary to recount here the numerous anti-social and anti-national activities of the Communists in India nowadays. The different provincial governments are grappling with the Red menace as best as they can. But all such counter measures will prove only half effective unless all Soviet films are completely banned in the country forthwith.

To justify our argument for a total ban, let us quote the two Russian revolutionaries again:

Lenin: "The cinema is the most powerful weapon of propaganda".

Stalin: "The cinema is the greatest means of mass agitation".

If our Congress ministers cannot see the light after all this, then we richly deserve Communism. So help us, God!
Major Studios in India use Debric Cameras and Equipment for exacting sound-film requirements. This professional preference arises from Debric's technical contributions which continue to dominate motion-picture production. The greatest of these is the unusually compact Debric 'Super-

Parvo', dispensing with the unwieldy blimp, yet providing complete dependability on the sound stage. In the automatic printing of image and sound in a single operation, Debric leads again—with the "Matipo" Printer—as it did when it first entered the service of the Motion-Picture Industry.

DES IN PARIS AND ENGLAND!

In Paris, naked girls are allowed to dance and sing. You find them everywhere, in cabarets, in revues, in bars, restaurants, night clubs and in almost all the aristocratic Bohemian haunts of night life. The Parisian photos turn out over 50 million nude photographs annually—French cards as they are popularly known—for the rest of the world which cannot come to Paris. But this goes to them with nude and intimate grace which is the imagination of millions.

A stern moralist, like our Minister Morarji Desai, instance, would be mobbed by Parisian belles and bottled to death. And no one in Paris would call that order. According to Parisian standards of morality, such a figure would be considered a social service.

Even in the traditionally conservative England, complete nudity of the female figure was first allowed in 1935 at the Windmill Theatre. Since then nudity is permitted on the strict understanding that the general result of any nude exposition of the female figure should be artistic and not erotic. The lighting and posing must be in the best of taste and the girls themselves must not be allowed to move an inch. Statuesque nudity is therefore officially permitted in England of today.

England's supreme blue-pencil censor is the Earl of Clarendon. Every word that is delivered on the British stage, whether in crowded cities or in distant villages, has to be previously passed by this 71 year-old aristocrat. Lord Clarendon is the official censor of plays under the Theatre Act of 1843.

Lord Clarendon, apart from his imposing educational qualifications, was the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs, Chairman of Overseas Settlement Committee, Chairman of the B.B.C. and Governor-General and Commander-in-chief of the Union of South Africa. He belongs to various clubs, is a director of a bank and a keen theatregoer. He has travelled far and wide and knows contemporary life as a real man of the world ought to.

In Bombay we have a half-pasted chairman of censors with a meagre matriculation certificate, with scanty knowledge of Hindustani, brought up on the meagre rations of the provincial "idli" and "dossa" and trained to smile acquiescence to the wishes of his master. Our chairman of censors has not been a chairman of the B.B.C. nor a Governor-General nor a Commander-in-chief nor an Under-Secretary of State nor even a theatregoer. His main job seems to be the circulation of publicity blurbs glamourising ministers. It is a pity that an important phase in our career of freedom has to be in the charge of such a person, whose only qualification seems to be the benign blessings of Minister Morarji Desai.

How else can the past and present mess in censorship of our films be explained? Minister Morarji Desai is a stubborn man like all self-righteous persons and he can never convince himself—leave alone others doing so—that he can find a better man than his present chairman of the censor board.

But whatever Minister Morarji thinks, we think that his choice of a chairman for an all-important public body which prescribes moral standards to millions is ridiculous. Imagine S. A. Aiyar as the Lord Clarendon of Bombay! Surely, this appointment is not a very flattering advertisement of Morarjibhai's intelligence.

To come back to Lord Clarendon of England, the Earl has seven readers whose job it is to read all the plays, make a synopsis and point out the dubious points.

Man has become popular too fast to stay long on the scene. Here she is in "Char Din", produced and directed by M. Sadiq.

Producers submit the scripts for censorship a week before the rehearsals start and after the script has been read and passed finally, not a single word can be altered.

Who are these professional readers? Their chief is Henry Game M.V.O., O.B.E., a brother of Sir Philip. Henry has been the “Examiner of plays” since 1935, having been an Assistant-Examiner for six years previously. Next comes Geoffrey Dearmer of the B.B.C., writer himself, who has been in his present job for five years. Then comes Charles Heriot, a newspaper man (newspaper man, if you please!) who censors plays in London. Rev. A. E. Jones censors plays written in Yiddish. Yiddish plays are vetted by Miss Rollin while Zlassic plays go to Miss M. Macdonald. Each play is read by only one reader and the fee is one guinea per play. This fee goes to the reader and not to the Lord Chamberlain.

In addition to his professional readers, the Lord Chamberlain has an advisory council of distinguished actors and clergymen. He also rings up the Home Secretary or the Archbishop of Canterbury sometimes to get a high-level reaction to something in doubtful taste.

In 1948, 1151 plays were vetted. Of these only 13 were rejected, four because they dealt with perversions on grounds of “personal intrusion”—in other words it dealt with the life of a notorious criminal whose father-in-law objected to publicity.

Plays are banned for five main reasons: (1) gross immorality (2) blasphemy (3) insults to foreign countries and their leading representatives (4) pain to relatives of well-known people (5) perversion of the mores.

However, censorship in England is not hidebound. Every year it becomes increasingly broadminded. Censorship is keeping pace with the changes in public taste.

It was not long ago when Bernard Shaw first wrote “Mrs. Warren’s Profession” it was banned. Now that prostitution is discussed openly, the ban has been removed. Subjects like artificial insemination, which are freely discussed in newspapers these days, are nowadays permitted to be played on the stage.

Authors are told why their plays are banned and are given the opportunity to see Lord Clarendon and discuss the matter with him.

The theatre managements themselves hold very high views on the subject of censorship of plays. They consider censorship from Lord Chamberlain’s office to avoid various provincial and local censorship with the made morality codes and the resultant chaos in the trade.

That is how plays are censored in England today. Let us hope our own censors learn something about how censorship must be done in England.

One point which our censors must remember is that if the changes in public taste, censorship must become equally broadminded.

Our present Board of Film Censors, we are afraid, capable of realizing the wisdom of this principle.

PARROT TALK AND PROMISES:

During October last year—9 months ago—Mr. Morarji Desai, Bombay’s Home Minister, told us that the Government of India had finally decided to appoint an inquiry committee to go into all the present grievances of the Indian film industry with a view to centralize censorship and coordinate its social, technical and commercial factors to make our films a live factor in building up our future nation.

It was a glorious promise and we believed it coming as it did from the Home Minister who is known for his utter honesty and sincerity of purpose. Of course, he never mentioned the date by which this promise would be fulfilled. Politicians never commit themselves to dates. They always give undated promises so that they can renew them with convenience and comfortable conscience from day to day.

That is precisely what our Information Minister, Mr. R. R. Diwakar is doing these days. From every town, between Kashmir and Kanya Kumari, wherever he meets a film man, Minister Diwakar repeats Minister Morarji’s promise and gives us the usual parrot-talk about the inquiry committee to be appointed by the Government of India to solve all the problems of the Indian film industry in a day.

In New Delhi, the dirty capital of a free nation, no one seems to know anything about this proposed inquiry committee which has been in the newspapers for 9 months now—enough time for a human being to be born.

A Ratan Picture
In the meantime, all sorts of things are happening in the Indian film industry with the different provincial governments and provincial ministers nursing different sorts of provincial autonomy and pushing them down the throats vindictively with their ramrod of provincial pride.

One of their first hits below the belt is the arrogant use in entertainment tax in different provinces varying from 25% to 75%. In this also there is a chaotic agreement among the different provinces in the selfish exercise of their provincial autonomy. While one province reaches the ceiling with a 50% flat tax all the time, another imposes a spiral with the top landing at 75%. If we say that all this is idiotic it will be put too sweetly for there is more to it than the entertainment tax.

It is the headache of provincial censorship. While it has existed for years for wise, intelligent and national upholding of films, we have been given different proof booby-boards doing what they like with our pictures without the virtue of consistency or coordination, but therefore an unusual sight to find a film totally banned in Bombay getting a carte blanche in Bengal, laying with its load of vulgarity to large crowds, nearly all the provincial governments are in the same white uniform and subscribe to the Congress ideals and swear by the same saint, Mahatma Gandhi.

Now it sounds amusing? It would, very much only all this stupidity had not affected the economic stability of our film industry.

The Indian film industry is at present in an abyss of despair, sandwiched between this ruthless highwayman and the apathetic attitude of self-righteous and useless rulers.

We are almost sure of the negative results which proposed inquiry committee will ultimately yield ever it comes. Not one person in the present setup or even enough of the Indian film industry to set the ball rolling. Trade representatives whom the Government is taking on the proposed committee will change the complexion of an official fact-finding committee and it will look like a chamber of commerce crowd. Trade representatives will give evidence and not be the judge if the Government anxious to maintain the spirit and purpose of proposed committee. A bulky committee with seven representatives of the various trade interests ultimately become a clownish carnival of demagogues and at the end of the show the industry will be where it is today if not worse.

Whatever may be the ultimate shape of this inquiry committee, let us for heaven’s sake, have it now and immediately, to make at least an honest gesture towards solution of the numerous problems of our film industry. The meantime we do not want any more parrot-Minister Diwakar and more repetitions of the promises. Let Minister Diwakar talk less and do more.

ILLEGAL EXHIBITION OF SEX & LUST!

Over a thousand top-line members of the Bombay society recently had a good laugh at Minister Morarji Desai and his board of film censors when they were invited to a private show of “The Loves of Carmen”, the Columbia picture which has been banned by the Bombay Board of Film Censors on grounds of being unsuitable for public exhibition.

It was on Thursday, the 10th of March, at 8-30 p.m. to be accurate, that Mr. Habib Hussein, the boss of the Liberty Cinema invited over a thousand guests for a sly show of “The Loves of Carmen”, a banned picture and incidentally gave these guests a preview of the new theatre prior to its public opening.

Everyone naturally enjoyed this illicit show, partly because it was a banned picture and partly because it unfolds an erotic story of illicit love and sordid lust. Habib Hussein, as a follower of Aga Khan, had probably a special interest in the picture with Rita Hayworth, the new wife his future Imam, playing the leading role.

But quite a few guests wondered how a sly show with over a thousand guests could be called private. And they asked one another how a picture that had been banned by the official censors could be shown to such a large audience and yet remain “unsuitable for public exhibition”.

In America once a picture is banned not even a private showing to a small group of ten persons is permitted. If a theatre man is found taking the liberty of showing it even to ten persons, his theatre license is immediately revoked.

But in Minister Morarji’s kingdom no one seems to care either for the law or for the ban. It will be worth while knowing how much monetary benefit the local Columbia office got out of this special sly show. They had no business to deliver to an exhibitor in Bombay a copy of the picture that has been officially banned in the province.

And no one can blame Minister Morarji Desai for banning this picture, seeing what “Harrison’s Reports”, one of the most authoritative and independent trade weeklies in America, writes about “The Loves of Carmen”: “The theme of illicit love, murder and theft is sordid and its appeal is directed mainly to those who like their entertainment lusty and loaded with sex. There is nothing pleasant about the action, every one of the characters is unsympathetic, and the sex implications are vulgar and are presented without any subtlity” (vide: Aug. 21-1948 issue pp. 135).

When an eminent American critic, living in a country where moral standards are entirely different to those in our country, is so badly shocked with the filthy and lusty contents of “The Loves of Carmen”, it is not at all surprising that our censors banned the picture straightaway.

We congratulate the censors on their quick action in banning a dirty picture, but what use is the ban if the Habibs and the Husseins of the exhibition trade

It will be a good idea to seize all the copies of a film once it is finally banned by the Government and it will be a better idea if the exhibitor, who gives such films a license for six months.

Isn’t it a crime to show, even privately a picture that has been banned? We shall wait a while and see whether the Government takes action against the exhibitor whose exhibition license for six months.

That Warlis, people in Europe and America were clamouring for the newsreels. That is why we don’t see them in India. These greedy foreigners take all the prints.

That Balasaheb Kher, Bombay’s Premier, stayed at Badami and ordered Thana only as long as he wanted him for a newsreel of the social visit. No wonder the Warlis secure Badami’s co-operation again, won’t get the patronage of our Warli Premier in the future.

That Minister Morarji Desai stole the Premier’s lunch by walking six miles through pouring rain at Mahabaleshwar and depriving his poor “chopdar” of two meals. Pity, Badami had no previous intimation!

That Vithal Laxman, the poor ‘chopdar’, who had along expected Minister Morarji to invite him for lunch some day had a rude shock to see the Minister himself taking away a morsel from his mouth.

That Minister Morarji Desai ate so much at Vithal’s place—mango juice, vegetables, rice and what not—that he had to walk back six miles to digest the poor man’s hospitality.

That Minister Morarji’s baldpated publicity officer told us about the Minister’s raid on Vithal’s hospitality but forgot to tell us how many meals Vithal and his family missed in feeding his minister.

That with Minister Morarji Desai having finished his chopdar’s food and Premier Kher having swallowed the rations of the Warlis we have now finally established democracy in the Presidency with all the freedoms at our disposal. It is worth calling the other ministers for free food and doing the job thoroughly once for all.

That if all the chopdars in the Secretariat call the ministers for a meal a day by turns, we won’t have to pay anything to the ministers and their salaries can be paid to the chopdars instead.

That the Municipal Bhangis on strike were refused audience by the Governor and the ministers. If they had only invited these ministers for lunch, every thing would have been settled quickly and satisfactorily. A lunch like this provides work both to the Bhangi and the Publicity Director.

That Minister Morarji invited the exhibitors of Bombay and ordered them to stop blackmarketing in theatres within a month or he would requisition the theatres. After the meeting Bejon Bharucha is reported to have said: “Kewi gandi gheli wat kare eh. Taadi pidhi hashe”.

That the theatres would have to be requisitioned in any case as also the audience with the entertainment tax...

ing up constantly and the Government films threatening to scare away people.

That Habib Hussein, the faithful follower of the Khan, introduced the wife of his future Imam to friends and admirers by giving a sly show of “The ves of Carmen”. If Aly gets half of the stuff that ta delivered in the picture, his marriage is going to one long honeymoon.

That the Liberty Cinema has a significant name ing that its boss took the liberty of showing an rated film to a small gathering of 1,000 friends. That tre should be renamed “License Talkies”.

That by giving a sly show of “The Loves of Car-en”, little Habib Hussein proved to Minister Morarji, man with the big stick, that law is a ass.

That baldpated V. Kashinath brother of V. Shanta-m in turn brother of V. Avadhoot, has been visiting Strand Hotel these days—rather these nights—dress-like a bridegroom in a silk shirt and excessive Haz-Snow on the face. Is he again on a bride-hunt for fourth time?

That baldpated V. Kashinath is reported to have made a lot of progress during the absence of Negusired V. Shantaram at Panahala but owing to the rains chilly weather, the news has not disturbed the family at.

That the present chilly weather seems to be bringing people closer the way we find Dev Anand taking out usually chaperoned Suraiya alone to Actor Shyam’s party at Lentin Court.

That the Dev Anand—Suraiya visit shocked one of our sentimental Muslim directors so much that he put for a week pressing the different poses of the hari D in calendar to his bosom.

That whoever marries Suraiya stands to get over lakhs of rupees straightaway seeing that Suraiya keeps all the money with her without allowing her nanny and grannie even to look at it. That is a tip to Nasir. He can risk one more marriage.

That the three maidens of Marine Drive—Nargis, Sairiya and Madhubala—are all within the most popular furlong of the Drive and it is no wonder to see Al asir. Dev Anand. Asif and even that optimist Arora—parking there for fresh air. They don’t even mind the uimies and the grannies spitting on their cars. Such odd nature boys!

That millionaire Makkhanlal, who is also inside maiden’s zone, is reported to have cut off from M.
T. Ltd., backed up Nakshab and knocked out again produced a dozen pictures last year. People in maiden’s zone can do anything.

That even Kapurchand’s Keval who lives in the maiden’s zone often talks funny the way he thought that inspector Morarji didn’t know a thing about the exhibi-ion trade in Bombay. Keval is waiting for an invitation from the Home Minister to reveal a few things.

That song-writer Nakshab’s picture was inaugurated the Negus-haired V. Shantaram, with hair parted and for the occasion, with the result that the financier is ported to have run away and Nakshab is looking for other patron. The Shantaram touch!

That after “filmindia’s” review of “Sawan Aya Re” many a whiskered director seems to be anxious to get the size of Kishore Sahu’s shoes these days. That is just like Indians, running to worship, without realizing that the stuff is in the head and not in the feet.

That even Mohana, the girl with Jane Russell responsibilities, looks at Sahu with her moist bulging eyes these days. The look has made some new hair grow on Sahu’s bald head. If Mohana keeps looking that way for a month, Sahu won’t need a wig in the next picture.

That one of the grievances which producers want the Government’s inquiry committee to investigate is about the heroes asking for specific heroines or vice versa in their pictures such as: Suraiya wanting Dev
Anand; Yakub insisting on Sulochana Chatterjee; Dilip
Kumar asking for Kamini Kaushal, Geeta Bali wanting Kedar Sharma etc. The producers feel that this pairing upsets their financial budgets though it improves the quality of the love scenes.

That all the grievances of the industry are waiting on their toes since the last eight months because the Government of India have promised to deal with them only through the inquiry committee, though no one, including the Government, knows when the committee will be appointed.

That though all the grievances of the industry must wait till the committee is appointed, the Government don’t need the advice of the committee to increase entertainment tax and levy other impositions on the industry.

That at this rate there won’t be any grievances or any industry left to investigate by the time the inquiry committee is appointed and thus the Finance Department of the Government of India will automatically save all the expenses of the committee. That will be a great national service from Minister Dwakar.

That Director Mehboob is happy these days seeing that his “Andaz” collected as much as three lacs and sixty thousand rupees within nine weeks at the Liberty.
But Director Kardar thinks that the push-back chairs of the new cinema did the trick. Whatever the reason we are happy with Mehboob.

That Negus-haired V. Shantaram, brother of V.
Kashinath in turn brother of V. Avadhoot has got a bad attack of constipation these days due to “Andaz” takings at the Liberty.

That Javashree called the family doctor the other night when she heard Negus-haired V. Shantaram muttering in his sleep the words “Fazalbhoy”, “Apna Desh”, “Andaz”, “Muslims” etc. The doctor could not diagnose the new malady. It is a new disease in exhibition.

That in any case it was good that “Apna Desh” was not released at the Liberty. otherwise the takings of the push-back chairs would have convinced V. Shantaram that he had produced a great picture and his publicity bers would have gored us to death with their sickening stuff.

That K. Ahmed Abbas, the vest-pocket revolutionary of India, had gone to Malabar in search of elephants but returned disappointed as he could not find a match for his own tamed Tusker of Maharashtra. Sathe has some rare tusks. Why not try matching with a walrus!
Ashok Kumar, the idol of millions in the uniform which millions love to see. He is the I.N.A. soldier fighting for his country.

Kuldip plays the British spy and toys with guns and bullets.

NARAYAN (Anantapur)
Of what colour are your politics?

The main sail is still white but it is acquiring spots of pink and red these days seeing the white-capped gnavigators dredging up black mud instead of pearls.

If the period before 15th August 1947 can be called a period of struggle", what is it since that date?

Days and nights of struggle. In old times people could drink themselves to sleep. Now they toss about in bed.

A B AHMED (Lucknow)
How long will the love between Aly Khan and Rita Dutt last?

Both are going to an old bed with a new sheet. If the sheet wears well the marriage will last long.

ARU P. M. BAILEY (Mycrut)
Why does Dilip Kumar play tragic roles?

To convince the income-tax people that they can't collect from a man who dies so often for a living.

Adam was happy in the Garden of Eden. Why?

Because he didn't have to pay for Eve's dresses.

HIL PATHAN (Ahmedabad)
What kind of air do lovers breathe?

CO2 when lips are near and O2 when love is at arm's length.

What is the relation between history and politics?

History is the mold on past politics while politics is the seed of future history.

Is God a perfect artist?

Even If his imperfections are perfect. Look at man! Can any one else but the Lord create such a bundle of contradictions?

In what respect are we better than our ancestors?

We create quicker and kill quicker.

MATHUR (Ghaziabad)
In what respect is Miss Gohar related to Sardar Gohar Shah?

They are partners and she is still a “Miss”. That keeps the partnership going.

What will our military personnel feel on seeing a woman in a military dress in “Actress”?

They will feel like taking the “boy” for a ride and if they do there will be neither form nor uniform left.

Can you name a born saint?

Morari Desai! He sounds like one at least!

What is the hobby of Miss Gohar?

Chandulal Shah.

I have begun to love death since my failure in love.

What do you think of it?

I approve. Now pursue your new love and die once.

Can Miss Gohar be addressed a ‘Missus’ in private life?

Only when she gets married.

PARDAMAN SINGH (Ferozepore)
Can you define a sob?

A semicolon in a woman’s argument.

EHSAN U. KHAN (Raigarh)
What is a giggle?

The ripple of an empty brain. When is beauty sorry for its existence?

When it becomes a brute’s delight.

Rehana, one of our popular entertainers, appears in “Surajmukhi”, a social story of Madhuban.
SURESH NAKUL (New Delhi)
In what sphere do the rich and the poor differ?

In the sphere of square meals.
In whose memory did you start writing “filmindia”?

In loving memory of my poverty and starvation.
Delhi is too dangerous a city to be the capital?
Yes, it is too near the hostile frontier. Bombay should be the capital of Free India. It has a more uniform climate and is far away from prying eyes.
Why don’t you open a pan-bidi shop in Delhi? It will make you a millionaire in a few months!
I give you words to chew which you can neither spit out nor swallow easily. And who wants to become a millionaire?
T. C. CORNELIUS (Bombay)
What is the liability of a liar?
To gild his lies with the glitter of truth.

B. NANJUNDAIYA (Mysore)
Do you like to lead a peace mission to South Africa?
Peace is found on the target of a bullet and not carried on the mules of missionaries.
Is bald head a sign of wisdom?
I have doubts after meeting Aiyar, the Chairman of the Bombay Board of Film Censors.

P. M. SHAH (Ahmedabad)
Can you count the gifts of God to you?
He keeps the count, I draw on the account.
Co-education will ruin both sexes or uplift them?
If co-habitation has not ruined them yet why should co-education do so? Co-education, I think, is a good preliminary for the subsequent cohabitation.
How beneficial will it be if our ancestral methods of education are adopted these days?
We shall have to sit under a pipal tree before a guru on a deer skin and swallow with the ears what he spits out from his mouth. In the evenings we shall have to massage the guru’s legs and prepare his “bhang” thrice a day. Even Morarji’s lamp post and Maulana Abul Kalam’s candle are an improvement on this ancient method.

IRFAN AHMED (Lucknow)
Do women ever speak the truth?
In sleep about themselves and in temper about their husbands.

JAYANT KR. MOHAPATRO (Patna)
Why doesn’t Suraiya marry?
She is yet a kid and still sleeps between her mummy and granny.
Is Prithviraj Kapoor a musician?
What is he not? I see him even repairing musical instruments.
What would happen if mermaids were to appear in the present world?
Film producers would become sharks and turn the sea into a swimming pool.

Does God like the sound of bells?
No, but the devotees deafen their conscience with the din.
When can we expect to have milk bars?
When we convince the cows that we want to milk and not their meat.
What sort of an art is flattery?
It is an art of serving poison in the most digestible form.

JAGDISH PRASAD JAIN (Hapur)
Why has it become the custom these days that we go to the market to purchase things and husbands main at home?
That way you leave the argument in the shop and buy only what you have paid for.
What was the real aim of Lady and Pamela More batten in coming to India?
They came for some eggs, sugar and cloves which need no coupons in our country.
Did you ever get an opportunity to talk to Mahatma Gandhi?
I did but he asked me to quit the film industry and do something useful.
What is a misunderstanding?
Marriage is a miss understanding.
What is the use of employing women conductors in buses?
You can have the same passengers going round the circuit.
What are the ins and outs of a film actress?
When the ‘outs’ go in the ‘ins’ come out.
What do you think of Maulana Azad?
He is the man who likes to burn candles to light up his brain. That explains some of the holes pockets.
Why don’t you have a buffalo instead of a dog?
I have enough buffaloes in my office. I risk one more in my study.
What are the qualifications of our Prime Minister Pandit Nehru?
Fine fibre, sincerity of purpose, patriotism, delightful impatience.
Is Bombay a nice place?
Not these days, with empty bottles, empty machs and empty heads!
Are there capitalists in Russia too?
Oh, yes! There are rouble millionaires own houses and cars and get all the comforts on no Suraiya! Suraiya! Suraiya! What is that Mr. I do?
Name of a mascot which weak-kneed prance round their necks for luck.
What is the harm if anybody kisses a girl? Do you lose anything?
Only lipstick but her man loses his pride woman is rated according to the pride and pe of her man.

"GREY DUST"

Baburao Patel
EDITOR: filmindia
What does college education teach us today?
That there is lot to learn outside.
What is the value of a drop in the ocean?
It is a waste of a drop.
How should the intelligence of a woman be measured?
By the economy of words she uses.

C. D. MERCHANT (Bombay)
Now that Home Minister Morarji Desai has declared that racing will be stopped by 1953, what will you do with your money?
I shall bet on the Home Minister becoming the Prime Minister.
How many opening ceremonies have you performed?
I open a tin of cigarettes every day.

R. PARKASH GUPTA (Delhi)
Usually in how many pieces does a heart break?
In that picture "Pyar ki Jeet" it broke into a thousand pieces and Baburao Pat, its producer, ran away with 999 of them leaving one mealy piece for the critic.

C. M. AHORA (Lucknow)
What made Gope marry now in old age?
He is not old, he is only fat. He married to prove that.

AMULYA KUMAR SEN (Delhi)
Mrs. Vijaylakshmi Pandit during her period in office in Moscow as the Ambassador of India has any interview with Stalin. What was the matter?
That is why she went to America and saw man the very first day. We are now sending philosopher as our Ambassador to Moscow, wouldn't care if Stalin got drowned in the V.

CHANDRA PRABHA RAIZADA (New Delhi)
What is a sunshine budget?
Free sunshine, the rest moonshine.

MISS SAKINA S. A. KAYUM (Caledutta)
Do you like Australians?
I don't like people who admit others in community only after determining the exact percentage of the white man's blood in their veins. The white man's blood theory has sown the dragon teeth all over the world and from the furrow the teeth come echoing the mournful wails of lions of innocent people who have been mercilessly butchered to keep the blood percentage intact.

Why is it that no Hindus are appointed in responsible posts in Pakistan?
Pakistan is an Islamic state—not a secular like India where even traitors acquire a caste.

A. V. NARASIMHAN (Hyderabad Dn.)
Is grey hair a symptom of wisdom?
Then Chandulal Shah must be a Solomon.

RAM DAYAL SIKKA (Delhi Dn.)
Is it correct to say, "to trust in the world is to sit on sand"?
And yet the Pyramids have stood through thousands of years as sentinels of time.

M. VASUDEVAN NAIR (Puthiyara)
Did Devika Rani sing all her songs?
And how? They sounded like nursery rhymes.

S. BHAGWAN (Bikaner)
What public functions can a woman suitably form?
She can go to cinemas, do window-gazing, safety pins and mother-of-pearl buttons, see ob- servations and exhibit her own sarees, go for a walk and eat ice-cream and ultimately return tired with the day's exploits.

GUNVANTRAI B. DESAI (Navsari)
Why do people seeking leadership walk with sticks?
They acquire sticks only after they get power and leadership. In the beginning they carry olive-leaf in their mouth like the Biblical donkey.
Why do people sit on Marine Drive with bare of the sea?
They are afraid of being pushed in by others people, so they face the danger.

MISS NILIMA CHAKRABARTY (Ajmer)
Do you believe in idol worship?
If the idol is wrapped in a sari and is beautiful and intelligent! Not otherwise!

Beautiful Nigar gives a charming performance in "Khamsosh Sipahi", a social story directed by Ram Kamani for Mansarover Pictures.
KOPAL RAO (Udupi)

Do the members of the Bombay Censor Board undergo tests?

Perhaps a physical test of bowling before Minister Morarji Desai.

REMOND MIRANDA (Mangalore)

What is the difference between a tea-party and a cocktail party?

With our white-capped priests officiating, such parties have become merely tea and tomato affairs where cocks don’t crow and tails don’t wag any more.

What made Devika Rani marry a Russian artist?

Svetoslav Roerich is a nice fellow who guards his treasure very jealously.

Please be kind enough to tell me something about Siaiya. Why don’t you like her?

Siaiya is a serious, hard-working girl with a sincere approach to work and I do like her a lot for that. But I don’t care much for her as a screen artiste.

M. K. SUNDARAM (Madras)

Is it not funny to hear that a producer like Sardar Gandulal Shah is suffering from lack of finance?

His horses eat his money and his employees eat his promises.

What kind of colour does Chandulal Shah require to enjoy life?

Chandulal Shah is an ambitious man. He wants a rainbow.

Why did the film magnates prostrate before Minister Morarji Desai?

Not now. Recently they prostrated before Ashoka Mehta and won an election for the Socialists. It is always a story of frustrations and prostrations.

Do you visit God’s temples?

God has no temples. A temple is a prison which man builds to hold God in a place where he can rush easily to salvage his conscience.

M. BALACHANDRAN (Quilon)

Did you ever happen to be a misogynist?

Heavens, no! I have loved, teased and worshipped women all my life.

Which was the holiest of your pilgrimages?

The one that brought me back alive from America.

What was your outlook on mathematics as a student?

It was a side look at the paper of the student next to me.

M. GODBOLE (Poona)

How far do you like the idea of erecting statues of building ghats in memory of Mahatmaji?

Let them do what they like. Gandhiji is dead and out of their reach.

L. SATHY NARAYAN (Secunderabad Dn.)

When did spiritualism start?

When the first man died leaving behind his desires and his spirit came nosing for them again.

T. P. JHUNJHUNWALA (Kanpur)

What is a night without the moon and stars?

An opportunity without witnesses!

HARIHAR SHAW (Dumka)

What type of thought is colourful?

All thoughts have colour—the colour of desires. In fact, thought is but a colour of the mind.

What is the best hour to swim with a handsome girl?

Any time is an hour in handsome company.

Why does one bluff his wife?

The bluff is an appeal for peace and harmony.

What is divorce in India?

An unwanted luxury!

D. A. PADMANABHAN (Coimbatore)

Our Education Minister, in his address to the lady students of our college once, advised them to hurl anything, they could place their hands on, at the boy students who approached them for a chat. Does it sound good?

What about those boys who are good cricketers and never miss a catch? We don’t have many ministers with imagination.

B. S. S. RAO (Bombay)

Generally I used to visit the Metro every Saturday with my friend, a college girl, for the 3-30 show. Nowadays she compels me to attend the 9-30 show. How shall I act?

She is suggesting. It is time for you to become dangerous.

“Forgive and forget”. How do you differentiate between the two?

If you can forget, forgiving is unnecessary. Besides, “forgiving” is rather patronizing.

ASHALATA (Dehra Dun)

Who is more fond of Moti, you or your wife?

Moti is not a lap dog. He is a man’s pal.

I have seen my dad full of tears whenever I fell sick. Still people glorify only mother’s love. Why?

Because mothers turn their love into a daily blackmail and shout about it from the house-tops. All good fathers shed silent tears over their children’s misfortunes. A father’s love has a silent dignity which is so rarely found in mothers.

S. L. RAZDAN (Ahmedabad)

Define evolution?

A series of deaths from the protoplasm to the paradise.

MRS. M. A. PATEL (Surat)

Why is Pandit Nehru so popular with the British?

And yet Pandit Nehru has spent his best years in British prisons. And now they are taking this “man of straw”, as Churchill once described Pandit Nehru, to the Buckingham Palace.
MISS SUNDARI REDDY (Kurnool)

Why is Manorama so fat in spite of her swimming which is supposed to be her hobby?

She must be swallowing the water, perhaps!

As a rule I never appreciate anything in a man. Why?

It is a good rule which will give you a chance to make an exception when you marry. That will make your marriage a success.

A. C. M. EBRAHIM (Cochin)

What is a government without opposition?

An idiot’s delight.

JAGDISH BATRA (Lucknow)

“Money makes the mare go”. How far is this true?

That must be Chandulal’s Chakori.

MANOHAR LAL VAID (Amritsar)

Should women take part in politics?

What is Vijaylakshmi doing then?

CHAND BEHARI LAL (Delhi)

What is a whisper?

Often a scream of malice, rarely a sigh of respect.

If women become bus drivers?

The passengers must belong to the suicide squad.

M. ZIAULLAH KHAN (Bhopal)

Who is the probable political heir of Pandit Nehru?

Most of the other Nehrus are desk cockroaches. Nehru must yield place to Narayan and Jayaprasad Narayan would be the rightful heir.

SANTO H. AJWANI (Calcutta)

What is your honest opinion about Sheikh Abdullah?

Hamlet of Kashmir!

Have you ever seen a naked dance? I mean, plemently naked!

Oh yes, many times when my children three year olds and hated their bath.

Tell me something about a typical American?

A dollar dreamer—broke on Thursdays, during week ends.

MOHINDER SINGH (Nabha)

What is your opinion about the Indian Communists?

Intellectuals with right ideals but wrong piration.

C. G. MENOCKIE (Bangalore)

What is vanity in youth?

It is the mirror-complex which makes a man carry a comb in the upper pocket.

JUST IMAGINE them in ACTION!

AND IN FULL, LIFELIKE

GLOWING "COLOUR"

Recapture the thrills of those fascinating holiday scenes, in all their exhilarating movement . . . in glorious true-to-life COLOUR too! Kodachrome, the colour film made for amateurs, gives you all this at a cost comparable with that of ordinary photography. And for brilliant black-and-white moving outdoors or indoors, there’s nothing like Cine-Kodak film — fast, panchromatic, even lower priced.
K. KRISHNARAO (Dharwar)

What do you like more: Shri Rama deserting his for the sake of his people or the Duke of Windsor taking his people for the sake of his wife?

I prefer Windsor's courage to King Ramchandra's cowardice. It is more manly to be human than to arrogate to oneself exaggerated attributes.

Is silence always golden?

Not with the present white-capped ministers tying us up with new laws and new taxes every day. What does Minister Morarji mean by saying that he is neither a sadhu nor a yogi?

He probably wants to join the sinners' league. What must have been Gandhiji's first question to jini Naidu when they met way up?

How is Vallabhbhai getting along with Jawahar? And did you bring some juicy stories from Maniben?

Who is the greater map-maker of the two: Sardar or Jinnah?

A map-maker uses brush and paint, not knife and blood.

What does the Jinnah Hall in Bombay signify?

A death in the family!

Did you find anything special in Americans which Indians should try to learn?

Their genius in creating money which brings with it invention, industry, employment, food, entertainment etc.

JIVAN KALANJEE (Durban, S. Africa)

Why are we not getting any new films in South Africa these days?

The white Africans are not treating us well these days and we have stopped exporting films.

TOSH KUMAR MUKERJI (Allahabad)

Is life nothing but an empty dream?

How can it be empty with death in it?

What is the meaning of meeting in heaven?

Dying on earth.

ELJI (Jamshedpur)

What do American girls do when boys annoy them?

They tickle back and both laugh it out and forget it.

BD NARAIN MATHUR (Jaipur)

Why is it that a doctor does not attend his patient's funeral?

A patient's funeral is a censure of the doctor's ability. Criminals rarely return to their scenes of crime.

ADVANI (Bombay)

How to face a narrow-minded wife?

With smiles, garlands and flattery—same way as we face some of the Congress ministers in the country.

Why doesn't Asoka Mehta shave?

The beard at least gives him a face. If he shaves that off, only the nose will remain and Asoka will look more a bird than a man.

M. L. GOHIL (Nairobi)

How is it that Prithviraj is not on the screen these days?

He will soon come dancing the Tandav in a horse show of Shantanu.

RAMCHAND PANJWANI (Bombay)

How would you define embracing?

Four good arms in wrong arm-pits.

BISHAN SAHAI (Ghaziabad)

How old is a woman when she lights eighteen candles on her birthday cake?

In this tropical country of early marriages she can be two babies old.

D. P. KATYAL (New Delhi)

What should be the ratio between the population and the cinemas in India?

In America there is one cinema for every 8000. In India the present ratio is one cinema for every 1,50,000. An average good-sized theatre can accommodate over 15,000 persons a week. Calculating an average run of 4 weeks for a picture, we need at least 5,000 theatres, i.e. one theatre for every 60,000.

Nargis, a superb artiste, plays the lead in “Hulchul”, produced by Mr. K. Asif.
Define the term independent producer?
A man dependent on a heartless financier, erratic artistes, other people’s studios, borrowed costumes, hired musicians, blackmarket raw film, hired technicians and publicity on credit. Independent, indeed!

MISS NIRMALA G. A. (Bombay)
Do you think you will be sorry when you become an old man?
I am already a very old man—nearly 2000 years in age. If I live sufficiently long I hope to reach the good old age of 5000 at least.

MISS MOHINI GUL (Kuala Lumpur, Malaya)
What is a fairy tale?
That we are going to have Ram Rajya with empty bottles and dry throats.
Aren’t your children following in your footsteps?
Only too well, but I hope they arrive where I did.

A. P. SHUKLA (Rewa)
What is your song of life?
The dirge of a producer!

ISHWAR V. MAHBURANI (Bombay)
What is heart burning and what is its remedy?
Take a teaspoonful of Magnesium trisilicate with a tumbler of water. It is a good remedy for alkalizing your stomach contents.

P. P. DABHAL (Bombay)
What is the mystery about the walking stick of Minister Morarji Desai?
It is a luxury in sandalwood and when Pandit Nehru tried to smell the sandal only the wood hit his nose. Morarji has taken away even its fragrance from the sandalwood, then how can we expect him to keep any colour in our life?

A. S. NAIDU (Secunderabad Dn.)
Is there any caste system in America?
Caste in America is spelt “cash” and “colour”. A poor man is pushed away while the Negro is ostracized.
What is the problem of the present day housewives?
She has to stretch her smile between the wolf at the door and the one in the bed.
Why do some Muslims use more scents?
To kill the stink of perspiration. Their bathing schedule must be a “jumma-jumma” routine.

MRS. INDIRA DEVI (Kanpur)
Why is Pandit Nehru shown almost every Russian film at the Russian embassy?
Slow poisoning and gradual conversion perhaps!
Does child bearing ruin a woman’s figure?
It ruins the woman. She becomes kind and motherly—in spite of her sex and reputation.

MADDI RANGANAYAKULU (Bzewada)
Why is your heart sweet and words harsh?
I sell words and I have to make them hot crisp to sell them quickly.

H. NAGESHA RAO MANAY (Bangalore)
What must be the qualification of a man to make a girl with an M.A. degree?
He must be the bread-winner of the family.

JATINDER VIR PURI (Simla)
Which hill station is your summer resort?
A working journalist cannot afford a hill station every year. I use an air conditioner and turn my study into a Naini Tal.

R. C. BHARGAVA (Meerut)
What is the reality in this unreal world?
Hunger and its ruthless day and night routine.
Who is better placed in life: I or you?
You, sir! The man who can ask a question always better placed than the one who has to answer for a living.
Are you not afraid of the numerous curses shown on you daily by the film producers?
Our Hindu mythology says that only the curses of saints are effective and film producers are saints.

DARSHAN JIT SINGH (Dhampur)
What will happen to “filmindia” if you are napped and taken to Pakistan?
I will be safe in Pakistan as Pakistanis love to read “filmindia”.

BHAWANI SHANKAR (New Delhi)
Who has given the name Balam to Chandul, a black horse?
Pandit Indra, who seems to have become quite blind after holding Chandul in his eyes for you.

ROMESICHANDRA BABUBHAI (Nairobi)
Can a man love and learn together?
Love itself is an education in which the lessons are patience, devotion, sacrifice and understanding.

GOPAL CHANDRA BANERJEE (Barrackpore)
From morning till evening we talk of film arts and quote from your “filmindia”. Do you think we live gone astray?
Oh, no! You are on the Bible all right. Fix up.
When a lady offers a seat next to her what shall one do?
Take it. She may turn out to be young and pleasant.

SEETA DEVI (Tellicherry)
What made Nalini Jaywant come back to the screen?
Her grocer!
What do you mean by Kamini Kaushal having two made children?
She got them as a dowry from her husband. They are his previous commitments.

USHPAVATI (Secunderabad Dn.)
How long does a honeymoon last?
A lifetime if the honey continues to be like the moon, pleasant and silent.

SHIMY HINGORANI (Bombay)
What would you do if a girl flirts with you in a bus?
I would move with the bus—ahead to the terminus.

AMAR (Poona)
Is the dowry system found in the western countries?
Yes, among the rich! They call it settlement and the proverbial “blue” blood, on either side, usually draws the greatest amount of money.

Who says she has no right? She can call him names if she likes and millions of them do so in domestic quarrels.
Why is it that a dowry is not given by a boy’s ents to the girl’s parents?
That is precisely what is being done in some backward classes. When they get civilized they follow the other method.

HARBANS LAL SUDAN (Delhi)
It has become difficult to guess whether a sister is strolling with her brother, a lover with his beloved, or a husband with his wife in Delhi these days. How can you identify them?

Why worry about other people? It is vulgar to be curious. When you go about with some one, don’t take the person out under a wrong pretext.

M. APPA RAO (Madras)
Did you come across in America any instances of “fasts” and “fasts unto death” just like in India?

In America they eat unto death to keep food prices up.

MRS. TARA UPPAL (Ferozepore)
What do you think Chandulal Shah will do after 1953 when the government stops races in India?

He may go to Pakistan where they are preparing two new race courses, at Karachi and Lahore.

K. SHAKUNTALA (Hubli)
Why are the Congress ministers showing off so much these days?
Some men grow under responsibilities, while others only swell.
Who is respected more in society: a widow or a widower?
The youth of the former and the bank balance of the latter.

NAYO AKALI (Kanpur)

Should refugees remember their native province?
As long as they remember, they will remain refugees. When there is no going back, why remember a dreadful past and make the present unhappy?

SE P. THEKINATH (Trichur)

Why do Hindus refer to the horoscope while marrying?
Hindu marriages are made in heaven and it is but natural that they should see the map of heavens while forging the link below.

RamaChandran (Anantapur)
The other day Sardar Patel said that it may not be possible to hold elections in 1950. Why are they posting the elections like that indefinitely?
They have to count the crowds and that is some job with people adding more every minute. Stop adding and the counting will be easier.

S. William Moses (Tanjore)
If all the girls are given the privilege to choose their own husbands what will happen?
We shall have happier homes.

Shwanandan Bhatnagar (New Delhi)
Have you ever broadcast from any of the stations the All India Radio? If not, why not?
They don't pay enough and I have no time to waste nor any election to win.

Shwapati Sharma (Delhi Dun)
Why does Nargis with lakhs of rupees look thin and le?
This excellent artiste seems destined to go to an early grave. Work is killing her by inches. The goose is asked to lay too many eggs and too fast and one day the egg collectors will miss the goose. The greed of gold has killed many a great artiste! It is a pity.

JAKUR Prasad TulSyan (Kanpur)
What is “120”?
It is a section of the Indian Penal Code under which persons are hauled up for cheating others of their valuable property.
Mehtab is not seen on the screen nowadays. What wrong with her?
Sohrab Modi.
How can one win an American girl?
The American girl is the easiest girl to win if you marry her and listen to her the rest of your life. Of course, the dollar dole must be regular.

P. Sharma (Madras)
Even an old granary is seen shrinking from a bachelor.
Why?
The hungry look in his eyes reminds granary of grandpa with the Kruschen feeling.

Kuppuswamy (Trichinopoly)
What will be the result if all the beggars in India are politicians?
The best of our beggars are politicians and the result is obvious.

A. N. Dikshit (Etawah)
Has Vijay Bhatt stopped producing pictures for good?
No such luck yet!
Who is the best comedian?
Dixit! And he is tickling his destiny these days and trying to make it smile a little longer.

S. Aaron (Cannanore)
Are all girls meant only to marry? Can they not get on better as they are?
They can if they are only allowed to. But the boys often irritate them into getting married and thus begins the Adam and Eve story all over again.

S. P. Kaushik (Anhala)
What is a communist?
A capitalist who takes everything you have under the excuse that others must also live and then gives you a dole to sweat continuously till death stops further exploitation.

Kamal B. Sharma (Simla)
What is the Indian “yellow press”?
The press that doesn't join the official band of sycophants and plays “Jana nana gana” in the midst of “Fande maaram”.

Gurudev Singh (Patiala)
All the 24 hours Indians worship God. What has He done for them?
He has given them a saint like Gandhiji, a patriot like Nehru, a statesman like Sardar Vallabh bhai Patel and the privilege to starve and multiply in their own land of sunshine. What more do you expect God to do if people merely worship and don't work?

C. Abbas (Hyderabad Dun.)
I understand that in France love is a comedy, in England a tragedy, in Italy an opera and in Germany a melodrama. I want to know what it is in India?
A cradle song!

L. B. Mans (New Delhi)
When will Bombay become New York?
With Morarji Desai as the minister, it is soon going to be a Sahara making life itself a long mirage.
Who is more charming and attractive: Nargis or Kamini Kaushal?
I like Kamini. Nargis is still a child and has quite a few physical defects which detract from her femininity. Kamini is a nice, compact woman with plenty of verve.

S. P. Vasudev Rao (Bangalore)
Is the span of life given to man short or long?
The evil ones live too long.
What is “why”?
A red rag to the Congress bulls.

What is the Congress without Gandhiji?

A caravan of circus clowns, each trying to entertain his own way.

KRISHNA LAL ARORA (Mathura)

Should a blind man’s wife need paint?

Women paint their faces to flatter their mirrors and mirrors are not blind. They have two doting eyes.

S. MAGDUM HUSSAIN (Madanapalle)

Can destiny be altered by prayer?

No, but you can be better prepared to meet it with prayer on your lips.

Please name the prophet of Hinduism?

Hinduism is not a religion revealed by a prophet with a code book in hand. Hinduism is a philosophy of life which has come down through ages and taken wisdom from new thought through its eternal journey.

KAN N. BHAG (Grimsby, England)

What do the common people in India learn from their pictures?

Thieving, pickpocketing, drinking and other anti-social “arts” including gunrunning which the latest picture “Apna Desh” teases.

J. H. ABDUL AZEEZ (Madras)

You have wrongly stated that the Andhras are a set of rowdies. Please withdraw that!

Oh, get away! I have received numerous threatening letters only proving that at least those who threatened me are damn rowdies.

What has happened to the Aly Rita romance?

The romance has ended. Rita is now in an ancient bed with Aly.

B. ANANTA KRISHNAN (Anantapur)

When does an actress go a-begging?

When her pictures fail in a row, she stands in a queue.

Suppose the “Garden of Allah” (Pakistan) disintegrates? What will there be?

There will always be Islam, a greater state than all earthly states. A religion, that was preached by one man 1300 years ago and has over 220 million followers today, cannot disintegrate so easily.

KR. RAJENDRA SINGH (Agra)

Who is in danger: a Hindu in Pakistan or a Muslim in Hindustan?

See “Lahore”, a Jaimini Devan production and you will know how Hindus move about in Pakistan.

Can there be loafers among the rich?

A loafer must always be rich, otherwise how could he afford the time and money he wastes!

A. S. NARAYANAN (Madras)

Do the stars whom you criticise so impartially dare to see you eye to eye?

Most of them are my personal friends. They realize that I have an unhappy profession to follow.

and Zeb Qureishi—sisters in life—make Ranjit’s "Bhool Bhoolaiyan" an interesting picture.
SURESH CHANDAR (New Delhi)

What is your attitude towards Communists?

I like their basic philosophy but disapprove of their methods and dislike their allegiance to Moscow.

What do you think of the name of Gandhiji being exploited for all sorts of private advertisements?

When Gandhiji’s direct heirs, the Congress leaders, are using his name as a slogan for getting votes, how can the commercial people be stopped from cashing his name? We have only one saint for millions of sinners.

ARJUN RAJ MEHTA (Jodhpur)

Though I am no follower of Asoka Mehta, why do some of my friends call me by his name?

Have you got a convict’s beard and a hollow chest?

Between the Communists and the Socialists who shout the louder?

The Congressmen! They sing the ears of both.

Have you ever heard of the freedom to make a fool of oneself?

Don’t we see some of the Congress ministers enjoying this freedom?

D. N. VISWESWARIAH (Bangalore)

Is it true that you are fond of Mysoreans?

I have not met a single good-looking one yet. Wait till I meet one.

Sardar Patel never seems to wear the Gandhi cap. Why?

He has nothing to hide under it.

Why does Pandit Nehru discard the Gandhi cap when abroad?

Didn’t he say something about being a Roman in Rome? That is the trouble with our politicians! They become Romans too often and take us on a different trip every time.

MISS SUSHILA MUDLIAR (Nagpur)

Why is it assumed that to cook is below the dignity of men?

Only as long as a woman is around! Men cook pretty well and quickly when there is hunger in the stomach.

What will be the fate of the film industry if you retire from active service?

It won’t be worse than what it is today. When bad film producers die, new bad ones are born. In the film industry people don’t improve. They just die.

S. K. CHOPRA (New Delhi)

Will kissing be introduced on the Indian screen during this century?

There is a fair chance. Minister Morarji is 53 and there are still 51 years to go in the century, unless of course, Morarji, with his usual flair for doing all things himself, decides to inaugurate the next century himself.

Many ugly, obnoxious and undesirable faces which should not be there can be seen on the screen these days.

Why?

Lack of the faces and bad luck of the producers who pay for them. Stop paying for ugly faces and the producers will search for beautiful ones.

BRIJ DATT SHARMA (Tundla)

What is your pet dress?

Shirt and trousers—the minimum required law.

Is love a foolishness?

Yes, when it starts mocking at you from a cradle.

K. K. BAIJAL (Kotah)

Do you believe in the existence of God? If so, where?

On the ground that I am still living in the present of these film thugs.

N. RAJAGOPAL (Mysore)

Have the poor any pocket to contribute to the Gandhi Fund?

The only pocket the poor have is their stomach and that is empty most of the time.

Why do many Muslim producers produce Hindi films stories?

In India money has not yet been converted into Islam. It still professes the Hindu religion.

Do Americans love Indians?

If they are rich.

Isn’t life a dream?

A dream that walks from morning till evening in search of bread and butter.

What does art confess?

Its martyrdom at the hands of mercenaries and dals through ages.

Should one obey one’s conscience?

No! If you do so in these times you will probably be called an enemy of the state and put in jail. That is a bad place for a conscience.

Say something about R.S.S.?

Royal Society of Sufferers.

K. V. S. PRAKASA RAO (Ganapavaram)

What is your opinion about the present film industry?

Sincere but unintelligent and unimaginative. With the exception of a few, the rest of us are not qualified to do intelligent censorship.

MULKRAJ ANAND (Bombay)

Who are more god-fearing: Americans or Russians?

Americans are god-fearing. Russians are people of God.

S. C. SIVANANJAPPA (Sungenahally)

Do you charge anything for your autographed photo?

Rs. 5/- for an autographed photo posted at your door. Send the money by M.O.

S. NARAYANA RAO (Fort Cochin)

Though it has been officially denied, it is rumour.
etaji Subhash Chandra Bose is alive. What is your n about it?

When human beings die, they leave behind bad bodies. Has anyone seen Netaji’s dead body?

BOROOAH (Guwahati)
Why do makers of soaps, hair-oils, soaps etc., use as of actresses in their advertisements?
Cheap products are often sold with cheap arguments.

That state language do you advocate for India?

English for state purposes and Hindustani for contact with the masses.

NARAYAN N. PANWAR (Jodhpur)
Why doesn’t Suraiya go to Pakistan?

Why should she? People live where they get bread and what a bread this little one is getting!

SATEL (Mbale, Uganda)
What nationality should the Khoja community?

Many Indian Khojas have adopted Pakistan as their fatherland even though many of them still are in India for their bread. The African Khojas cannot do better. By religion and instinct all Muslims rightly belong to Pakistan and Khojas are Muslims first and last.

SUBRAHMANYESWARA RAO (Madras)
ally friend wants to be a son-in-law at least to an L. not for status but for getting a job somewhere?

In the field of jobs M.L.A’s are not so productive these days, most of them being party dumb bells. Some of the ministers are more fertile. They influence even commercial firms.

MADHWIN (Bombay)
Is there any personal hatred between you and the cap?

None, but I don’t like the misuse of a good symbol.

AVA CHANDRA PANDEYA (Lucknow)
What are cinegoers to do when the show-house proors do not pay any attention to their grievances?

In Pakistan they set fire to the cinemas but in India we can boycott them or do peaceful picketing.

TASKAR RAO (Pindi)
Is prayer necessary to win the love of God?

God is everloving but you need prayer to hypnotize yourself with His love and with it feel the living glow within yourself. Prayer is the conduit through which man can receive divine love.

VENKATA RAO (Mysore)
America is licking the shoes of India now. What

Looking at the shoes, you have got the face mixed up.

YAM SUNDER (Guntur)
Is there any book or magazine describing you in

There are over 400 different magazines and periodicals in the country which describe me in bits. Collect them and you will know what I am not.

K. BALACHANDAR (Bangalore)
Man has defied the world, committed murders and heroic acts, risking his life just to win a woman. But what has woman done for the sake of man?

She has gone to bed with a brute and made him the father of mankind.

Is it romantic to elope with a girl?

It is romantic all right but it is a terrific strain on the parse.

K. C. BADRINARAYAN (Bolarum)
How can one love a liar?

It is difficult to do so but if she is young and has curly hair, it is a bit easier.

A. R. SUDAN (Ferozepore)
Why can’t one be happy without virtue?

Of course, one can! Absence of vice is virtue. You don’t need to specialize in a particular virtue to be happy.

MISS M. KATHYAYINI (Madras)
H. G. Wells in his book entitled, “The shape of things to come”, says that there will be no such institution as marriage in the world that is to come some two thousand years hence. Don’t you agree with me if I say that such a world will be better in all respects than the present one?

Yes, we can then scrap these anti-bigamy laws thrust on us by the Congress ministers. But what does Wells say about labelling the brats?

Kamini Kaushal is reported to have been given an excellent role in “Paras”, a social story, produced by P. N. Arora and directed by Anant Thakur.

M. MARGABANDU (Madras)
When does a wife wish to die long after the death her husband?
She when has youth and has money to leave behind.

AKSHI KANHAIYALAL TANDON (Shahjahanpur)
Do the people of India deserve the Congress government?
Our people didn’t bargain for what they are getting now. They have been stabbed in the back by a power-crazy clique. If the idiots elect the same people again then they will richly deserve their future.

C. MOORJANI (Poona)
Of the following what are you: a Socialist, a Comnunist or a Congressman?
I am a Congressman who likes Socialists often and admires Communists, sometimes.

K. BHIDE (Bombay)
Inside the film studios are there any cases of rob-
by?
A few winks and smiles at the most. But no one bothers about this junk.
What is the difference between a professor and a director?
A professor opens old tins, the director fills up new ones.

SHEIKH MOIDEEN (Wadakkanehery)
Can a wife search her husband’s pockets?
One who does it is not worthy of being a good man’s wife.

A. DIKSHT (Balrampur)
Why didn’t India join the Atlantic Pact?
India has neither food nor money nor arms.
The only way India can join any pact is with the photographs of her present leaders and stories about her past glories. It is difficult to win an Atomic war with that stuff.

P. A. SUMUKHAN (Quilon)
Why can’t you reduce the price of “filmindia”?
And live on the mercy of film producers?

AN NATH CHIBER (Delhi)
Why are the people of India nowadays tired of our Minister’s speeches?
He sings the same lullaby forgetting that starving stomachs don’t sleep with songs.
If you happen to address a session of the U.N.O.,
what would you tell the members?
I would ask them to go back home and grow cabbages in their backyard. That would be something useful to at least for the dining table.

V. PRAHLAD (Secunderabad)
Why is it that so many qualifications are needed to come a clerk while nothing is needed to become a Minister?
The clerks make the ministers look clever and intelligent. We must therefore have well-qualified clerks.
What would Gandhiji have done if he had lived other 15 years?

He would have committed suicide by fasting unto death.

V. S. KAMATH (Bombay)
To which political party do you belong?
I am nowadays a disgusted member of the Congress.

T. N. SARKAR (New Delhi)
Whenever I catch the sight of any pretty dame, I get good feelings within me and I think it is love. What should I do?
The same thing used to happen to me till one day the dame turned round and married me. And now all dames pass without raising even my eyebrow.

UMESH C. AGARWAL (Lucknow)
What is the significance of tree planting by our so-called popular ministers?
They must do something besides talk. They probably want to turn the state into one big jungle.

Fraud That Is Entertainment!
By: Sushila Rani Patel

Seeing motion pictures in India needs the proverbial patience of Job. The theatre conditions are so bad and the annoyances so many that one always repents for being a fool, for the umpteenth time, and going to a theatre to see a picture which the daily newspapers scream out to be the best ever produced during the century.

These annoyances are strictly divided into two main divisions: those provided by the theatre owners and the rest by the motley crowd of filmgoers.

Irritated beyond endurance by the aggressive publicity of the producer when you consult your wife about seeing a picture, you get your first shock when you discover that your better half knows more about the picture than you do after reading all the advertisements. The neighbours have kept her well posted and she already knows a song or two having heard the gramophone records next door about a million times.

You fix upon a Sunday and knowing that Indian pictures draw large crowds, you rush out early morning to the cinema to buy tickets in advance. But however early you arrive, there is always a large crowd before you and you wonder whether all these blokes in the queue in front of you had slept there the previous night. Tickets sell out quickly and by the time your turn comes, the whole lot is sold out and you face only the closed box-office window. Just when you feel disgusted with it all, the cinema Pathan informs you in a kind manner that you can buy tickets in the blackmarket at the time of the show.

Having promised your wife the show of shows, you naturally do not like your lunch to be spoiled. The decision to go to the show, anyhow, is therefore finally taken.

Sharp at three o’clock, half-an-hour before the show, you arrive with your wife at the theatre and after a small wordy warfare with the hack victoriawalla you land safely on Mother Earth and look out for the other shark—the ticket blackmarketer. He is there as sure as the policeman who is supposed to stop his racket. The tickets cost you three times their original price but then a wife is a wife after all and worth all that.

You go to the auditorium entrance and there are many others before you so the gentle door-keeper pushes you back roughly and in doing so touches, of course accidentally, those parts of your wife’s body which are the privilege of your future baby. Like a man you naturally resent this as you don’t fancy a wrong man bringing a blush to milady’s face. After a small altercation with the door-keeper who orders you to get out of the crowd and go back home, you decide to forget it all and ultimately stumble into the dark auditorium in which already a number of slides advertising Gandhi shoes, Jawahar jackets and Vallabhbhai masalas are being shown.

DIGGING INTO THE SHADOW

As Indian theatres have long rows of seats the usher points out your seats with the anaemic flash of a torch and somehow after stepping on the toes of a few already sitting you arrive at your seats. Your wife has in the meantime felt a few digs in the dark from inquisitive people who are curious to find out whether the shadow crossing their horizon has some substance in it. She of course brushes them off and blushes in silence for fear that your manliness may again be offended.

You are in your seat now and suddenly you become aware of a stink pervading the auditorium. It is the open dirty lavatory immediately outside sighing out the smell of a thousand empty bladders. Out comes your handkerchief with a few drops from the lavender bottle which your father-in-law had presented to you at your wedding. But the lavatory has a stink which would make even Yardley, the perfumer, commit suicide in desperation.

It is hot now and you look up for the fan. You hear it alright being an eleven-year old noisy gadget but it is so high up in the heavens that it fails to strike you with its breeze. You are now sweating and annoyed and you look at your wife for being the cause of it all.

Just then, however, the censor certificate of the main picture flashes on the screen and you hear a thunder of claps from the lower classes and you wonder what was in the certificate that got the applause. Probably the clumsy and childish handwriting in which the blanks were filled in!

Now starts the picture and suddenly you feel a shoe digging into you at the back. The gentleman behind you is making himself more comfortable and you fail to understand why your posterior is needed as an accessory for the purpose. So you turn your head and stare at him.

The man behind explores her posterior and pinches her with the toes—of course, gently.
He, of course, doesn’t understand and says: “The picture is in front of you. Why are you looking back?” And you tell him sternly about his leathered toe and reluctantly he permits the limb to fall to the ground.

EXPLORING THE POSTERIOR

But you don’t know what your young and beautiful wife has been going through since she got into her seat. The man behind has been actually exploring her posterior and at times even gently pinching her with the toes and she is very angry and annoyed but is afraid to tell you. She doesn’t want a row in the theatre and the man behind knows it and feels considerably encouraged. At intervals your wife shifts her seat and passes her hand behind and you wonder why she is so restless and fidgety seeing that she was so anxious to come to the picture. You even ask her the reason but she says nothing.

Now the man next to you suddenly pushes out your arm from the common arm rest and settles down to see the picture. You look at the burly fellow and decide to be quiet but by now you have become so conscious of him that you forget the lavatory stink and suddenly realize that your burly neighbour has not had a bath for a week and is smelling like a dead rat. You tilt a bit towards your wife to avoid contact with this dirty fellow but the man behind you suddenly pulls you up and asks you to stop tilting and sit straight as by tilting you obstruct his vision. So you are once again too near the jumma-jumma bather with your right hand holding the kerchief to the nose all the time.

THE SIKH TURBAN

The heroine has now begun to sing a popular song but with her begins the chorus of a hundred more from the audience. The man next to you is actually stamping his feet to the rhythm of the song and at times repeating the refrain. He is a burly man and has a strong, hoarse voice which does not synchronise with the heroine’s music. But with his mouth open for music, you get a blast of his foul breath. Heavens! You tilt again towards your wife and again the man at the back asks you to sit straight.

Your wife is by now absorbed in the song but she cannot see the screen fully with a big Sikh turban obstructing her view. So she tilts a little towards her left hand neighbour and begins to take interest in the scene. The left hand neighbour happens to be a lonely bachelor who misunderstands your wife. He takes her tilt as an approach and “accidentally” pats your wife on the arm. She recoils with a shock and you ask what has happened. Of course, nothing! An Indian wife never wants a row.

A little later she again tilts to her side to avoid the Sikh turban and the man to her left again “misunderstands” and this time rubs his arm against hers. It is the common arm rest that allows it. Your wife has now a strange arm touching her arm and a couple of toes in her posterior constantly exploring.

“MAR DALA JANI”

Now a dance flashes on the screen. It is Cuckoo, the curve and hip-roll girl of the Indian screen and people start whistling and making many other significant noises which embarrass you more than your wife who knows how vulgar men are. Some one throws a few pice at the screen and the burly man to your right tilts on your side giving you another blast of his foul breath, and taking some small change throws it at Cuckoo saying “Mar dala jani”. You look at him inquiringly but he mistakes your curiosity as appreciation and gives you a heavy endeavoring slap on your thigh and says: “Kya acheha nachhi hai yar”. Your thigh now smart in appreciation.

As Cuckoo whirls around with rhythm on her feet and spring in her curves, almost the whole audience, except you and your wife, seems to sigh in chorus: “Hai!” “Hai!” “Mar Dala!” Even the Sikh turban in front gets excited and shuttles about and your wife is forced to move her head in sympathy with the turban. The man to her left misunderstands your wife’s movements as natural excitement and quite spontaneously puts his hand on your wife’s thigh. Your wife jumps suddenly and you pull up the man with “Seedha baitho na!” and he says: “Ha, ha, aur kaisa seedha baithega?” That ends Cuckoo’s dance and the Sikh’s turban is once again planted straight.

The big Sikh turban in front covers the screen completely and she dodges it from side to side.
like hell your poor wife stands by your side quietly—a target of a hundred idle eyes which seem to have seen a woman for the first time since they opened out on this world. It is all so irritating but you can’t stop people from seeing. Can you?

“PISTA KHAO, BEHEN!”

Well you are in again in good time to avoid stepping on any one’s toes but as you take your seats some one thrusts under your nose a tray full of pistas, badams and other nuts and you soon see a crowd of theatre vendors selling all sorts of things to the hungry and thirsty souls. You decide not to buy anything as the noise made by your neighbour cracking the pistas annoys you. You even look at him and he offers some pistas to you. You re-

“MARO, MARO SALEKO”

There is now a fighting scene on the screen and the hero is shown testing the frame and upholstery of the villain with a few well-aimed hits. That seems to excite every one and every one seems to shout “Maro, maro saleko!” Many in the audience get up and whistle but the man to your right gets excited and spits right and left and you use all your wits to save your dress from being painted red with the pan and betel juice. The man at your back gives you a few kicks mistaking you for the villain and your wife’s posterior receives more excited attention from the man behind her. The fight ends with your neighbour finally spitting on your trousers but you don’t discover this personal tragedy till you go out during the interval.

It is interval now and the lights reveal your neighbourhood of ill-dressed cut throats, pickpockets, labourers and scamps. It seems that you are the only middle-class guy in the upper class rows. Yes, labourers are being paid better these days than the white collar workers and the labourers now purchase better class tickets at the cinemas and attend the shows with filthy clothes and more filthy manners.

By now you are nauseated and you need a cigarette very badly. Congress ministers won’t let you smoke in the auditorium and you don’t feel like going out leaving your wife alone in that company. So you take your wife with you and as you stand in the gallery smoking fuse as gently as you can but then he goes a step further and stretching his hand across you offers some to your wife saying: “Lev behen, pista khao”. She doesn’t know what to do and looks at you appealingly and you save the embarrassing situation by nodding your permission to her to take them. With trembling hands she takes the pistas and your generous neighbour gives a handful more to her and she cooly says “bas”. And then the neighbour gives you a handful saying, “tum bhi khao yar” and you with all anxiety to terminate this excessive affection accept the pistas.

That establishes a brotherhood between you and your neighbour and you soon forget the pan stain on your trousers though it is difficult to run away from the different odours round about you. You wonder why theatre owners don’t insist on filmgoers taking a bath before a show and cleaning their teeth and wearing clean clothes and learning good manners. You feel that people who can afford to pay for those high-priced seats three or four times a week can as well meet your requirements.

“BACHCHEKO DOODH PILAO”
The lights go off now and once again you are seeing the picture. The villain has now got hold of the heroine and he is beating her almost mercilessly. That wakes up the tiny tots in the audience and from almost every female lap comes a scream of fear. The little ones are reminded of their domestic quarrels and start piping loudly till there is an almost unbearable din in the theatre. Now come shouts of protest from different quarters “bachcheko bahar le jao” and some even give helpful suggestions shouting “Doodh pilao”. You have no child of your own yet and you wonder why people have to expose these liabilities of their privacy to such public ridicule.

Now you are witnessing an emotional scene between the hero and the heroine and the high-flown dialogue seems to go over the heads of several people. The Sikh turban opposite your wife suddenly starts talking in Jullundari Punjabi to a little woman by his side and explaining the situation in loud and vivid words. The Sikh voice is so near you that you miss the screen one completely. But you can’t complain as in the dark that turban looks like perching on a broad wall.

PERPETUATING THE FRAUD!
In the midst of this emotional sequence comes the squad of interval hawkers collecting money and searching for glasses with torchlights. They bend and see everywhere, disturb a score of people and excavate one glass from the meshes of legs in the darkness. There is now the bill to pay with the coin jingling annoyingly on a china saucer and the flashlight lighting up the saucer at quick intervals. That emotional scene is completely ruined by now and so is your taste for the picture. Some one behind you now starts coughing violently and in doing so drowns the final climax of the story.

The picture ends as suddenly as it had begun—a favourite trick with Indian producers—and before the national flag is even flashed on the screen, your entire neighbourhood seems to be rushing for the exits, trampling on your toes and pushing you back into the seats every time you stand to respect your nation’s flag.

You return home angry and sulking and your wife is sore and blue in parts she would not like you to see. But when your neighbour asks you next day how you liked the picture you say with devilish delight: “It was wonderful. You must see it with your wife”.

And thus you help to perpetuate the fraud that entertainment is in India.
OUR REVIEW

Jaimini Dewan Deserves Congratulations!

"Lahore" Captures the Dread Of 1947 Riots!

We admire the courage and enterprise of Producer Jaimini Dewan in producing this picture which has succeeded in vividly portraying the read and the death that the city of Lahore is today—or was immediately after the August riots—to the inhabitants of India.

The picture "Lahore" is to that extent an unforgettable document which unfolds, in a sympathetic and yet in an unmistakable manner, the brutal fury that turned the cosmopolitan past of the Punjab's proudest city into a bloodstained shambles of communalism.

And because this picture succeeds in bringing home their shame to the perpetrators of human brotherhood, it has been summarily banned in Pakistan. The official ban only helps to prove the guilt of the people involved in this national tragedy and the truth of the theme presented by the producers of "Lahore".

While the other profit-conscious and censor-scared producers left this subject—the most human theme of the most inhuman episode in our nation's life—severely alone, pandering to the brutal passions of communal criminals, it is a heartening sight to see a small producer like Jaimini Dewan, taking courage in - two little hands and doing something which has not been done before. That is why he deserves our congratulations.

And is Jaimini Dewan justified in king up the bleeding memories of those dreadful days when communal bred was in a mad rush with religious fanaticism to tear open even the motherlyombs of the non-believers and to lust and religion on those children who were till yesterday so my sisters in a cosmopolitan brotherhood?

Yes, the grim and shameful story of the August riots must be told again and again and more vividly in has been done in "Lahore" to the Hindus, the Muslims and the Sikhs. till the children of those who perpetrated these outrages spit back their elders in utter disgust in doing so contribute to a new understanding in human relationship,

The memory of these tragic incidents must be kept green with its grim lesson and fear so that never again shall such inhuman episodes be enacted in the future career of the free people of India and Pakistan.

As long as "Lahore" remains banned in Pakistan, the guilt of her people shall remain self-confessed with an additional emphasis that the people of Pakistan are not even ashamed or repentant over the brutal acts of a dreadful past.

A ROMANTIC MUDDLE

As is usual with Indian producers, "Lahore" is also a muddle of romance and recent history. The first half is a tame romance which begins like that foreign picture "Over the Hill" with the son getting into the clutches of law for the crime of his father. This incident has also been used in another Indian picture "Mere Lal" which, incidentally, is almost a carbon copy of the foreign picture mentioned above.

The boy, Chaman, has, of course, a sweetheart in Lilo. Though the boy is not ultimately convicted, in a measly court scene of only four persons, the scandal of his father being a thief shakes his romance with Lilo and Chaman starts letting out his effeminate sighs and wails.

At this stage, the terror of August 1947 strikes and all the characters in the story are tossed about on the mad, blood red waves of communalism, each to his destiny. Very soon, however, we discover Chaman with his mother and Lilo's mother in a refugee camp in Amritsar while Lilo, the Hindu girl, is in a Muslim home in Lahore, the victim of a strange man's lust, veiled and caged in a different religion altogether. The only thing that belonged to her past were her tears which still had the purity of her mother's milk in them.

Shyam and Rehana say it with romance in "Surajmukhi", a social story produced by Madhuban.

SALMA PAYS THE DEBT

Lilo becomes a very pathetic character in this strange environment with chick curtains shutting out the world, with a caged parrot making diotic sounds and with a heavy-footed strange man darkening her face. Silent and speechless she resigns to her cruel fate, shedding Hindu tears in the tragic whirl of a Muslim life.

In refreshing contrast to the cruel fate of this girl is shown the good fortune of Salma, a Muslim maiden, who is rescued in Amritsar and escorted safe to Lahore by Chaman when he goes in search of Lilo.

Chaman, trembling with fear, expects Lahore and meets his brother serving there as a waiter in a Muslim hotel. Together they hit upon a plan to rescue Lilo. Dressing themselves as vegetable hawkers they contact Lilo but the girl, ever conscious of the sanctity which Hindus attach to the person of a woman, refuses to go with them at first but when seeing Chaman’s pitiable state she agrees ultimately to ask the censure of society. Salma, a devoted Muslim maiden, helps Lilo to escape from her cruel fate and the story ends happily with an emphasis on the duty of our men towards our ill-fated rescued women.

THE TRAGIC NARGIS

As a motion picture, “Lahore” has very poor production values photography particularly being very clumsy and primitive. Nargis suffers the most at the hands of the cameraman. The direction is poor and censored. The music which opens with classical strains of Hamir soon peters out as the picture progresses and gets into the usual rut of film music.

Nargis gives her usual good performance as Lilo, the Hindu maiden. When the story takes the pathetic turn and Nargis has to say it with tears at once comes into her own with a face that moves every one.

The usually insipid Karan has surprisingly done well in this picture as Chaman. If his brother slaps him a dozen times a day on either cheek, there is a chance of his face improving for the screen.

Om Prakash does very well as the prodigal son of the Hindu family.

To those who wish to live indirectly for a moment in those dark and dreadful days of rape and murder on the new frontiers of India, we recommend “Lahore” though it is a poor entertainer otherwise.

READERS' STORY GUIDE

“Bari Behen” is a very popular picture which is drawing crowds all over the country. It is a story of two sisters, Shama and Kiran, tossed about mercilessly by a cruel and selfish world. Producer D. D. Kashyap has produced and directed this picture and made it a document of terrific human appeal.

Ajit believes in seducing young girls for their sex and money. His is a game of profits without investment.

Dr. Shyam loves Shama with a heart so rare in this modern world.

Shama comes to the old experienced colonel of the army to get sympathy and advice.
It is the old colonel who bucks up Dr. Shyam when the first dark clouds of love threaten.

Shama, modest and selfless, sacrifices everything for her younger sister.

“Bari Behen” Draws Huge Crowds!
Picture Becomes A Mass Entertainer!

The only good reason why this picture has been produced is possibly the anxiety of the producer to open a small gold mine for the slum-geary exhibitors. “Bari Behen” is doing that job splendidly the way it is drawing the masses daily to the Imperial Cinema in the city to see the love-tangle of a couple of ugly girls thrown against a couple of nispid boys with a couple of fat persons thrown in for humorous punctuation.

The story is a concoction, pure and simple, with the usual box-office formula which does not strain one’s intelligence or imagination at any stage throughout the picture. It is a marvellous feat to find this writer-producer, Kashyap, doing a story at his lowest mass level continuously from the first foot to the last without even a single mistake of a lightning apse of intelligence. D. D. Kashyap deserves an Oscar of the Faqir Mohamed variety for this unique eat.

USUAL LOVE TANGLE
The plot is about two ugly sisters, Shama and Kiran. Shama, the elder one, takes up household work to give an education to Kiran, the younger one. While Shama slaves at her work in some far away hill station, Kiran, instead of studying, has fun with a scamp called Ajit.

Dr. Sham, the son of the family where Shama works, soon gets interested in Shama and begins to love her. He must be a poor student of anatomy to fall in love with a person like Shama.

In the city Ajit makes Kiran pregnant and runs away leaving her stranded. Kiran now arrives at her sister’s place and to avoid the shame of the whole affair, both the sisters leave suddenly for a strange place. Dr. Sham is heartbroken and like the usual she-man of the screen he sings a song about love and its guile.

MEDICAL DHOBIES
Kiran delivers the goods shortly and Shama supports Kiran and her child by working as a nurse with an idiot called Dr. Ramesh. The screen doctors provide a bad advertisement to our modern medicos. They carry a barber’s bag and look like dhobies wearing borrowed clothes. It is a pity that Indian directors do not realize the importance of these small characters in correctly portraying the atmosphere of a story.

Now it is Dr. Sham’s turn to fall ill. Like the she-man that he is, he suddenly starts shivering one day after bringing home his barber’s bag and from then onwards he keeps hovering between life and death for no apparent reason except to see the strange anatomical composition called Shama.

There is an old colonel with tender points in the story who now rushes to Shama and brings her back alive to the she-man hero. The climax is soon reached in which that soundrel, Ajit, is quickly put on the crucifix at the point of a gun and the she-man hero rushes from his shivering bed into the two outstretched anatomical parts of Shama. It ends well, with every one more than damn satisfied.

KASHYAP’S SECRET DESIRE
The picture has a couple of attractive songs one of which is rather lustily acted by Geeta Bali.

The picture accidentally reveals one of the personal suppressions of D. D. Kashyap when he brings in a tight-robed young fisherwoman rushing for medical aid to Dr. Sham. Working too near the World fishing village, it is not surprising to find this complex in Kashyap—otherwise it is difficult to explain the presence of a fisherwoman in the hills. But then Agri women also dress like that and perhaps Kashyap likes only the dress that gives an extra edge to the female form.

The picture is shot in an haphazard manner and seems to have been rushed through to keep the box-office date. The production values are therefore, naturally erratic. Music is good, a couple of tunes being definitely attractive. The less said about Kashyap’s direction the better. He has done better work before.

GEETA BEATS SURAIYA
Both the girls, Suraiya and Geeta Bali, are ugly but Suraiya is so carefully photographed—giving us a full face always—that she looks a bit pleasant especially with Geeta Bali providing the contrast.

In their work, however, Geeta Bali who plays Kiran leaves Suraiya, who plays Shama, far far behind. While Geeta acts, Suraiya merely makes faces. Geeta is certainly a more talented girl and she outclasses this Suraiya duckling completely.

Pran lives up to his natural face as Ajit while Rehman who plays Dr. Sham looks like a barber in wrong clothes. Ullhas looks a well-fed retired colonel of the army. An ayah in his household would have added more spice to the role. Retired colonels need people to help them about.

Well, the best part of “Bari Behen” is not in the picture but outside it, in the theatre and the street, where thousands clamour for tickets.

“Bari Behen” is a big box-office success whatever that may mean in India and exhibitors are destined to make money on this picture.

The REASON? The OCCASION?

Durga Khote, the renowned star of the Indian screen (and now of the stage too) weeps as she never before wept (weeps as no one else has wept or can weep) — as she will never again weep (the reason and the occasion cannot occur again) — it is more than the actual flood of tears — She is wailing — mourning over the END OF WORLD'S GREATEST MAN EVER (Of course, none other than MAHATMA GANDHI) with the entire world mourning over the death of the Mahatma.

The occasion was when she was required to play the role of 'BHARAT-MATA' in the Radio-Play 'BALIDAN' — the subject of the play being of course, the reaction to the most terrible tragedy ever in the entire history of humanity.

“Meri Kahani” is truly a story of stories—stories which have appeared on the screen before. In fact, the writer has taken so many incidents from different foreign and Indian stories that a long list of pictures will have to be given to trace each situation to its origin. It is enough to say that the writer has made quite good job of this story-pickpocketing, in the latter half of the picture, when the story takes a pathetic turn.

It is an age-old theme that is presented in “Meri Kahani” and had it not been for the good performances of Munnawar Sultana and Surendra, the picture would have probably failed to appeal.

Vinod, an army man from the aristocratic social class, is in love with Malati, the daughter of a poor villager. When Vinod returns home from his army service, his mother wants to get him married to Indira, a rich ward in their house and of the same class of society. Vinod, however, persuades his mother to agree to his marriage with Malati. Malati is shown as a misfit in the fashionable world of Vinod and Indira soon gets working to push the marriage on the rocks.

Making Vinod’s idiotic mother as an instrument of her vengeance, Indira soon succeeds in driving Malati out of the house leaving behind her infant daughter with Vinod.

In a convenient train accident, Malati is soon reported to be killed and Vinod becomes a love-sick “widower”. Malati meets a good Sama-ritan in Jagirdar (so rare these days), and she lives quietly under his protection.

Indira tries her best to get Vinod interested in her but the love sick “widower” clings to the memory of his first love.

Years roll by and the little infant of love, Nirmala, grows into a woman. She is also in love with Kishore, the son of Jagirdar. The threads of the story are thus pulled closer around the small world of Malati to reach the inevitable climax. Nirmala is married to Kishore and when she arrives at her husband’s home, she sees Malati accidentally and is drawn to her for the usual mysterious reasons.

After the usual mysterious illness of the daughter and the angelic healing powers of the mother, the writer lands Malati in a jail on a false charge of stealing. At this stage Vinod appears on the scene and the entire mystery is cleared and it all ends happily.

There is nothing in the story for the intellectual. It is the usual sob-story with the usual emotional situations between the mother and the daughter. But the masses like the

INCONGRUOUS MUSIC

The production values of the picture are quite good, photography recording being neither too bad nor too good. As all the songs have been written by Muslim writers, most of them have the "gazal" metre and tone with the typical Muslim philosophy which takes its sobs from the earth and its sighs from the stars and rolling them together sheds tears over the ever-tantalizing "jawani".

The music, of course, is made to suit the "gazal" metre with the result that Hindu characters seem to let out Muslim sighs in melody and music creating rather an incongruous atmosphere.

Keki Mistry does a pretty good job of the direction, specially in the latter half of the story.

MUNNAWAR'S BAD LUCK:

From the players, Munnavar Sultan, who plays Malati, gives a very fine performance in the emotional sequences during the latter half of the picture. As a romantic village belle, she looks like a spinster who has been waiting rather too long but once she becomes a mother she starts improving, till with more and more grey hair she begins to live her role with vivid emotion and pathos. Had she had a better artiste than Leila Kumari, an idiotic looking girl, to play her daughter, Munnavar Sultan would have easily given the greatest performance of her life.

Surendra gives an intelligent performance as Vinod. He sings a couple of songs with an emotion which gives the words a new meaning though the tunes given to him are too common. If Surendra gets similar roles, cast in the Frederic March age and mould, we are sure he will give some of the best portrayals ever seen on our screen.

SANOBAR?

Sanobar, whose name and looks make it difficult to identify her sex, plays Indira and because of the sari she wears we are compelled to accept her as a female character in the story. She is no good as an artiste and whenever she tries to do something her big nose runs away with the face and expressions together.

Ramesh Sinha is a fine artiste and in his portrayal of the father of Malati, he gives a highly sensitive and emotional performance punctuated by good diction and dignity. The rest are no good, including the anaemic-voiced Pratima Devi who has now become a major headache of the screen.

But for Surendra's and Munnawar Sultan's work, "Meri Kahani" would have failed to appeal. They have saved the picture and given it a popular complexion.

After the wedding, a lavish reception was held attended by thousands of guests.

In Bombay, the Ismaili Khojas gathered together to wish their prince and the new princess all happiness and prosperity in their new partnership in spite of the Roman Catholic Church declaring the marriage as a sinful alliance.

IS THAT ALL?

Los Angeles, May 25.

25 year old Sabu, Indian stable lad, is on his wits end as the charges brought against him by 23 year old British ballet dancer, Miss Brenda Marian Julica in a paternity suit.

Miss Julica named Sabu as the father of her daughter, Michaella, born in Dublin on September 12, 1948 and demanded 500 dollars a month to support the child. She stated that Sabu Dastagir (his full name) had accumulated a fortune of more than $3,50,000 and received $50,000 yearly from his film work. Julica also claimed another $1,000 from him which she had spent on her child since her birth.

Said the elephant boy, “I absolutely deny the charges which Julica makes. I am going to fight this thing with all my might. Of course I knew her once and we were friends. That’s all”.

RATHER CONSIDERATE
The Government of Madras have issued orders prohibiting smoking dance and cinema halls in the state province except Madras city. Ban on smoking in cinemas, however, will be extended to the Madras state later.

RED FILM BANNED!
The Government of Madras have followed in the footsteps of other U.P. and Bihar, banning the Russian film "She tends her country", "No Greater Love" (its English version) and "Madre Watan" (its Hindustani version), in the whole of the province.

HULLO, MORARIJ!
Cutack, May 21.
Mr. Ghosh, Superintendent of Police, Cutack, seems to realize the significance of the film in the field of education. With the co-operation of his officers, he is producing a film about traffic accidents, dacoity, robbery, etc. to train the police and the public in regard to their duties and responsibilities. The commentary will be in Oriya, Hindi and English.
The screenplay written by Mr. Ghosh is called "The glories of Orissa" which will incidentally show beauty spots of Orissa such as Pidagiri Caves, Bhubaneswar temple and the Jagannath Puri temple.

What about Morarji's boys?

AMATEUR SHOUTING:
London, May 29.
An interesting device which makes it possible with 8 mm films, is attracting the attention of amateur cine-enthusiasts at the British Industries Fair now showing in London and Birmingham.
A thin cellulose tape coated on one side with a powered iron compound is attached to the cinema projector. The tape is run through the projector at the same time as the film, and the help of a microphone, the person can record a sound commentary or dialogue or even music and say it back immediately. An interesting thing is that the recording is permanent while the tape can be erased in parts to correct errors. After the sound track has served its purpose it can be "washed" and used all over again for recording new sound.

So here's something to tickle amateur cine-enthusiasts and make them go hoarse talking and singing.

DEPORTING CHAPLIN!
U.S.A. Senator Cain has submitted a statement to the Senate Judiciary Committee saying that Charlie Chaplin be deported from U.S.A. because he sent a message to the French painter, Picasso, to head a committee of French artists to protest to the U.S. embassy in Paris against the Haus Eisler affair. Hans Eisler is the brother of Gerhard Eisler and a song writer and an alleged Communist. He had deportation proceedings against him.

CAUSE OF COMMUNISM:
Moscow, May 11.
Soviet writer Tatiana Tess in "Izvestia" has compared American and Russian films thus: "To stupefy and poison the consciousness of man, to show vice, murder and crime—the basest and darkest sides of human soul". The Russian films, however, show "a bright and noble world of great feelings. They have a high ideology and the lives of their fighting heroes are examples of service to the motherland, to the cause of Communism".

Don't miss the words, "to the cause of Communism"! No wonder the different provincial governments are banning some of the propaganda laden Russian films.

BLACK MUSIC?
Durban, May 30.
The South African Broadcasting Corporation has banned the broadcasting of the recordings of Paul Robeson's songs, one of the world's greatest singers, because he is a Negro.
The Broadcasting Corporation has to fall in with Dr. Malan's ideas of racial prejudice, even in the sphere of art.

ASKING AND ANSWERING:
Filmindia's chronic prize winner, A. N. Narayana Rao, broadcast a talk in Kanarese on Wednesday the 1st June on "The Art of Questioning" from the Akashvani Broadcasting station, Mysore.

It is said that the broadcasting authorities seeing his innumerable questions being answered from month to month in "filmindia" asked him to give a short talk in Kanarese which Narayana Rao willingly accepted.

What about a talk. "The Art of Answering", from the guy who attends to 16,000 letters every month?

It is a family situation with Durga Khote, Rehana and Yashodhara Katju from "Sarajmukhi" produced by Madhuban.

THE JEWS EXPLAIN!

With reference to the note which appeared in “Bombay Calling” in the June issue of “filmindia” under the caption, “Red Rag To the White Bulls”, the Central Jewish Board of Bombay has written to the editor as follows:

“The remarks of Judas in his section “Bombay Calling” under the heading “Red Rag To The White Bulls” in your issue of June 1949 has been brought to the notice of the Central Jewish Board of Bombay.

Apart from the great resentment felt by members of the Jewish Community, my Board considers it inconceivable that any Jew whether Continental or otherwise would stoop to behave in the manner alleged by “Judas”.

My Board would have treated the whole thing with disdain were it not that we feel that the attack of “Judas” on our Community has motives which go deeper than what is apparent on the surface.

I am therefore constrained to make the following observations:

At the outset, we venture to think that our feeling of resentment is shared by many other readers who are used to the high standard of your publication and are surprised at your giving space to an item like this in your columns.

Judas in his comment is opposed to India’s National Flag “being handed over to film exhibitors” and suggests that its display be reserved for ceremonial occasions. Surely this view point could have been communicated to the reader without a vituperative attack on a particular section of a certain community.

There are very few Continental Jews left in India, barely a total of 600 spread all over this vast subcontinent. Where has Judas acquired the ability to decide at a glance whether any particular cinema-goer—his “white bull”—is a Continental Jew, not an Italian, French, Greek or some other Continental gentile, or even a very much non-continental American for that matter? What proof has he got that the “crowd” he saw walk out of the Metro “with lofty contempt” at the sight of the national flag consisted of Continental Jews, or even contained any Continental Jews at all?

Judas is quite right when he mentions that “Jews should be the last people on earth to insult India’s National Flag”. But why must he follow up this sentence by the totally unwarranted statement that the Continental Jews had “become ungrateful” and were biting “the very hand that fed them”? Does your JUDAS wish to imply by the “Nemesis of their past” having “caught up with them”, that the Jews were “hounded out of their homes” because of their past record.

If anywhere in the columns of “filmindia” a similar statement appeared regarding Hindu refugees from Pakistan, who are not more guilty of being driven out than the Jews were in Europe, Filmindia would probably face a storm of indignation. Yet where a minority of a few hundred is concerned, truth seems to be a negligible commodity.

To the best of our knowledge there have been no disorders in any cinemas so far due to the National Flag being disregarded. Hence JUDAS’ remark about “one day there might be murders” is puerile unless it is meant as an incite for violence, something which is not in keeping with the n standard of FILMINDIA.

We cannot help feeling JUDAS would have thought it twice or thrice before making similar slanderous attack on other group of foreigners. Is it some purpose, some ulterior motive in striking at a small group of people who have suffered more than any other elsewhere at the hands of the “White Bulls”?

Whatever the answer to this question may be, there is an even more serious aspect. For argument’s sake let us assume that it was a Continental Jew whom JUDAS has in mind. What the hell are the idiots standing for an idiotic film like that?” What gives JUDAS the right of attacking a whole group of people for the bad behaviour of individuals? India’s National Government supported by all progress and enlightened elements in India and all over the world is trying to uproot this very evil of communism which your JUDAS is trying to propagate, this very habit of thinking in terms of communities inst individuals, this very act of arousing communal hatred for the alleged behaviour of one member of the community.

I state that the views expressed in "DAS" are not necessarily yours, however is not a question of us'. It is a question of editorial policy. It is the question whether your paper is to deal with matters pertinent with film-land only or whether it may be used for communal propaganda by your column— or should we say columnist—a flimsy pretext of some alleged incidents which are supposed to have occurred in the cinema after the show was over, without any connection to the film shown.

Hence we could not possibly be satisfied with any plea that JUDAS' views are not your own, and we are awaiting your explanation with interest. We reserve the right, however, to take any steps we may deem fit if a reply is unduly delayed and not satisfactory.

F. W. Pollack Secretary.

The Editor's reply to the letter above is as follows:

"I beg to acknowledge your letter of the 13th instant. I congratulate you on the amount of irritation and threat you have managed to cram into four typed pages.

The incident mentioned in "filmindia" was witnessed by me personally and the comments of "Judas" were written under my personal instructions. The responsibility is therefore entirely mine.

Whether I can spot Continental Jews or not is a matter that can be verified only by a public test. I have seen a lot of the world and met a number of people of different nationalities and also enjoy the privilege of having a number of Jewish friends. I have also studied the peculiar characteristics of many races and I have always thought that the Jews have more distinctive racial characteristics than others with the exception of the Negroid races. And yet I am not vain enough to think that my judgment is infallible.

Actually at the time of the incident at the Metro there were four Jewish gentlemen and two ladies. I had closely noticed this group during the interval as they stood near me in the lobby for smoking. If I see them again, I can easily identify the two ladies and a couple of men at least.

In my opinion the incident at the Metro was very unfortunate. Not only was this particular group of Jews in a hurry to leave the theatre but quite a large number of Indians and foreigners also rushed to the exits. This fact has also been mentioned in the article.

The article in question does not contain any malice against any particular race or community nor does it preach any racial hatred. It is a pure and simple comment on an unfortunate incident.

Instead of asking me for an explanation and thereby betraying a certain amount of aggressive inferiority-complex and some racial hyper-sensitiveness, you ought to have issued a general circular to your community and pointed out to its members, particularly to the foreign contingent, the virtue of respecting India's National Flag which, in common with others, belongs also to your community. That, in my opinion, would have been the proper course.
The comment in “filmindia” is absolutely well-meant and does not in any way bring the whole Jewish race into contempt. It is always the few who compromise the fair name of any community and I think it is the duty of institutions, like yours, to improve these few in the general interest of the community.

I do not propose to answer your letter paragraph by paragraph as a lot can be said on both sides but doing so will only lend bitterness to the whole affair.

In fairness to your community I am quite willing to publish your letter and my reply to it in the next issue if you let me do so before the 17th instant. After that it can go in the August issue.

Personally, however, I do not advise this procedure as other readers are likely to take up the subject and turn it into an unpleasant controversy which, with filmindia’s country-wide circulation, won’t be a good advertisement to us all, as Indian people, irrespective of our different religious and racial creeds.

If the explanation given above does not satisfy you, you are at perfect liberty to take whatever steps you deem fit.

In the meantime permit me to lodge a protest against the offensive tone of your letter which, I am sorry to observe, does not do justice to the proverbial wisdom of the Jews.

 Permit me to quote here your own proverb: “When the wise is angry he is wise no longer” (Talmud).

Baburao Patel

DIRTY WORK!

“In spite of so many protests published in “filmindia” against the exploitation of Gandhiji’s name in the show business, some film folk have not yet stopped this unholy practice.

“The other day I saw in Madras, at all prominent places, big film posters displaying the picture of Gandhiji raising both his hands and calling on the people to go to see a Tamil film named “Nalla Thambi”, in which our Madras buffoons, Krishnan and Mathuram, are featuring. The picture is being shown simultaneously in three theatres in the city. Thus the picture of Gandhiji is exploited to induce the people to see this comic film; consequently the three theatres are running to packed houses and reaping a bumper harvest.

“What do you say to this?”

SOLDIER’S PROTEST:

“I have read your article an ‘Appeal to General Cariappa’ with great interest. I have also had occasion to see the picture which provoked you to write this article.

“I do not know what the General has to say about it. Nevertheless please accept our best wishes in your campaign.

“Soldiers are the greatest asset of a free country. Such scandal as portrayed in these films will make no difference to us. We shall go on doing our duty. But remember ridiculing true men is a risky game. Let them take a warning in time.

“For not only is there a possibility of the foreigners laughing at us, there is a probability of our own men being misled.

“I hope your appeal succeeds”.

“MELA! MELA!”

“The other day my misfortune took me to see ‘Mela’ and I was greatly shocked to see the distorted portrayal of the chivalrous qualities of our Fighting Forces through the characterization of Maiku (played by Jeevan). His lean and lanky figure, his tottering gait, his round about references to the starvation meals supplied to our recruits in the military and other monkey antics devoid of all etiquette, discipline and decency are a very bad and serious reflection upon the glorious name and traditions of our world-famous men-at-arms.

“The depth of demoralization to which he sinks and the deceitful part played by him in striving for the separation of the two lovers are simply abhorring and are a blot on the fair, noble and dignified status of our soldiers.

“Mr. Patel, how harmful this painting of character of our military Jawans can be to our ‘Join the Forces’ campaign and what impressions such portrayal creates on the minds of our younger generation and future warriors, can only be imagined rather than describe.

DELHI.

ANOTHER SOLDIER PROTEST:

“In May issue when I read article, under the heading “Ap to General Cariappa”, I was wondering as to how you got time to write something in defence of your own soldiers, because the first time, since I started reading “filmindia”, that you have written something for soldiers. Well, Patel, I thank you whole heart for this favour.

“At the same time I would like to say that one article will not affect our producers. They need a gong hammering. Our producers can go on slandering and disgracing Jawans, who play with death daily for their country and for the sake of millions. But who is to be blamed for all this? Well I can loudly, the Censors. They are the people who allow this slandering of soldiers by passing such pictures.

DAMN DIRTY

“In old times filmgoers used to retain a counterpart of the admission ticket whilst entering the auditorium.

“But nowadays so many cinema hall proprietors of Andhra Pradesh (especially Guntur and Bezw) have been adopting a different method. They take the entire ticket without giving us a counterpart and collecting a number of such tickets they sell the same for the same show. In this manner the government lose the tax and the distributors lose much of their daily collections.

“What do you think of this business?”

P. R. Mol GUNTUR.

TAKE IT, PANDIT INDIRA!

“In Gemini’s ‘Chandralekha’, the songs which smack of rank novelty on the part of your friend Pandit Indira, whom you regard as one of the best writers of the film industry.

“His ‘Saanjha ki re, Jaia ak is an imitation of ‘Saanjha ki banchhi akela’ of Boubay Tale ‘Jwar Bhata’ and his ‘man bhan sawan aya re’ is the same as ‘Bandhan’.

“Is it not a pity that these writers could have to stoop so low to earn their living?”

“If these poets are bankrupt of grace and have no originality left, they should quit the precious film industry.”

KICK THEM NEXT TIME!

“Few days ago at the end of show of “The Last Days of Pompeii” at Odeon, New Delhi, I was prised to find an Anglo-Indian couple rushing out when the National Flag was flashed on the screen. These very people under the British regime used to stand in respect when ‘God Save the King’ was played at the end of the show. Now they have been enjoying equal rights for the last 20 months and if they are not prepared to respect the flag of the country, why should they wish to remain in India? It is high time that they shift to a country whose flag they actually seem”.

W DELHI. Maharaj Krishan.

TOO BAD, JAYANTILAL!

“We have a theatre in Bangalore called the Prabhat, which since its opening a decade ago has maintained a very high standard of efficiency at cleanliness. It can boast of having the best of seating arrangements and the best of comfort. Many new cinemas have been built in Bangalore after that but none has reached the excellence of Prabhat, thanks to its slick and efficient management.

“Recently a defect is seen in the management of this cinema. The booklet of the picture running at the theatre is sold at a price higher than that printed on the booklet. Whereas all the other cinemas sell booklets at the printed price, it is surprising to find the management of Prabhat careless about such a trivial matter. I must have lost over a couple of rupees owing to the extra amount charged by those who are responsible for the sale of the booklets in the cinema. I request Jayantilal Thakore of Famous Pictures, under whose management the theatre is being run, to look into the matter and put an end to this bad habit which is spoiling the fair name of the cinema”.

V. K. Fazlur Rahman
BANGALORE.

ASK ANOTHER!

“Reading about the treatment meted out to our films in Pakistan one feels strongly that Indian producers should stop forthwith sending for exhibition our films to that country. There won’t be much to lose financially by doing so.”

“Taking inspiration from the fact that in Pakistan proceeds of ‘Mela’ and ‘Pugree’ were donated to the Red Cross Fund, we should donate, in turn, the entire proceeds of ‘Sachehai’ and ‘Heer’ (produced in Pakistan) if and when released in India to the Gandhi Memorial Fund. ‘I do not think that Pakistan will object to this noble cause’.

SIMLA. Sohan Sharma.

PAYING THE GROCER!

“While complimenting you on your comments on the film ‘Actress’ (filmindia, April 1949), I feel that it is really regrettable that a person like K. A. Abbas should write such a story to be presented on the screen. We did not expect that after all those progressive articles (especially those we see in some weeklies) he would give us such stuff. The story is so fantastic, so grotesque and so odd that we are at a loss to understand what he actually wants to convey to the masses.”

PATNA. Jayant Kr. Mohapatro.

PLEA FOR PIPERS!

“Apart from the existing un-business like practice of raising the prices of cinema tickets while a popular picture is running at the particular theatre, the new Liberty Theatre has added one more hardship to the middle class families by charging full tickets even for babies who may be a few months old. This new rule of insisting on tickets for children and babies in arms who do not actually occupy any chairs, indirectly amounts to doubling the rates of admission, since every Indian family invariably carries on an average two children. No other theatre in Bombay or elsewhere has so far charged for small babies nor are they justified in doing so as long as their sitting accommodation is not affected in any way.”

“Perhaps the proprietors of the Liberty do not realize that due to this practice they are likely to lose the patronage of several middle class families who simply cannot afford to pay for themselves and their children. Or do the owners of this theatre deliberately wish to keep away such families as cannot afford to keep baby sitters at home, by imposing a Baby Tax on them?”

JAGAT PICTURES (Bombay)

Running at twenty-five different stations all over India and Pakistan, Lala Jagat Narain’s “Sunhere Din” has proved popular with all types of filmgoers. With good performances from stars like Nigar Sultana, Rehana and Raj Kapoor, it is no wonder the masses are flocking to see it. “Shair”, their next, dealing with the life and loves of a poet promises to be another interesting picture. The cast consists of top-liners like Kamini Kaushal and Suraiya, the hero being played by Dev Anand.

FILMISTAN LTD. (Bombay)

Producer S. Mukerji is working at a feverish speed to complete “Shabnam” scheduled for an early release in Bombay. “Shabnam” stars the romantic screen team of Kamini Kaushal and Dilip Kumar and deals with the Burmese refugees who came here during the war. “Samadhi” starring Ashok Kumar and Nalini Jaywant and directed by Ramesh Sehgal is more than half completed. Meanwhile director Santoshi is busy picking out gags for his ambitious musical “Sargam” starring Rehana. And Najam Naqvi has completed the script work for his next directorial assignment.

FAMOUS PICTURES LTD. (Bombay)

“Bari Bahen” has again done the trick. The long queues day in and day out, outside the Imperial, Bombay, testify to the box-office popularity of “Bari Bahen”. This probably explains the ear-to-ear smile worn by Producer Baburao Pai these days. At the studios two pictures, “Hamari Manzil” featuring Nirupa Roy and Prem Adib and “Galyachi Shapath” (in Marathi) are more than halfway through. Producer Pai is now busy planning the production of a classic picture on the life of Swami Ramteerth, one of India’s noblest saints.

HALDIA NANDA PRODUCTIONS (Bombay)

Director J. K. Nanda’s pride picture “Singaar” is awaiting release.

All reports about “Singaar” have only made filmgoers more anxious to see it. With a sensitive artiste like Madhubala, Suraiya and Jairaj, “Singaar” has every chance of mass appeal. Meanwhile, “Mehfil” is ready to go to the sets.

NATIONAL THEATRES (Bombay)

The always-enterprising K. Asif, has taken charge of the Amar Studios, Dadar, to enable him to do the shooting of “Hul Chul” as smoothly as possible. The Amar Studios have been christened Rang Mahal Studios and let us hope with this change-over, a new cycle of good motion pictures starts. Producer-director Raj Kapoor is also completing some scenes of “Barsaat” in these studios.

HINDUSTAN CHITRA (Bombay)

“Sawan Aya Re” written, produced and directed by Kishore Sahu is still going strong at the Krishna. Always known for his novel approach in writing story and dialogue, Kishore has gone up in the estimation of his film fans by giving an original treatment to an otherwise ordinary plot. Apart from the histrionic talent of the film artistes is fully utilized and perhaps adds to the emotional contents of “Sawan Aya Re”. Side, Kishore is now working on script of “Rim Jhim” starring himself and the talented Ramola.

RATAN PICTURES (Bombay)

“Char Din” directed by one of the most popular directors, M. S. is doing good business at the Bombay, where it is drawing packed houses. The highlights of the picture are the photography and enterprising shots taken by Asif. “Char Din” stars Sadiq. “Char Din” stars Suha and some of the tunes sung by her are reported to have become popular.

FAVOURITE FILMS (Bombay)

Directed by Mohamed Hussain starring Shyama, Gulnar, the graceful Cuckoo, comedian Bhagwan debonair Arvind Kumar, “Lekha” has made good progress at the Rang Mahal Studios. On the attractive features of the picture is its lilting music. Distri...

MAHAL PICTURES LTD. (Bombay)

With the ever-fresh beauty of Madhubala and the catchy music of Shankar-Harnam, filmgoers seem to have succumbed to "Chandni" which is doing excellent business at Calcutta. In Bombay, "Chandni" will be released at the newly-constructed, air-conditioned Liberty when its turn comes. In the meantime, "Ajeeb Larki" starring beautiful Naseem is making steady progress on the sets.

SHAHIN PICTURES (Bombay)

Produced and directed by S. M. Nawab, "Khel" promises to be something different in the field of motion picture production. With a story by Zia Sarhadi, music by Sajjad and the vivacious Nigar as the heroine, we may not be far wrong.

SHREE RANJIT MOVIEDONE (Bombay)

"Bhool Bhoolaiya" featuring Zeb Qureishi and her sister Laila and directed by Taimur Behram Shaw is awaiting release. "Nazaara" directed by Prahlad Dutt is nearing completion.

O.S.S. PRODUCTIONS (Bombay)

Screenplay writer, Vajahat Mirza, is reported to have given a new twist to his story "Chilman" starring popular Rehana. Under Mirza's supervision, director Changazey is making "Chilman". Others in the cast are Pratima, Shanti, Madhok, Hamid etc. Makers, Jagat Talkies Distributors have secured the rights for U.P., Delhi and East Punjab.

ALL INDIA PICTURES LTD. (Bombay)

Directed by Anant Thakur under the active supervision of Producer P. N. Arora, "Paras" has progressed fast and steady and is reported to have become a worthy successor to their popular picture "Pugree". The cast headed by Kamini Kaushal and Madhulika is in itself an attraction and you can always rely on these two sincere artistes to do their bit. In the supporting cast is Sulochana Chatterjee. Producer Arora has already disposed of the distribution rights for C.P. & C.I. and Bengal to Kapurchand and Co. and that of Pakistan to Kardar Pictures.

PEARL PICTURES LTD. (Bombay)

This company has secured the distribution rights of Shanti Lokchitra's "Gopinath", written, produced and directed by Mahesh Kaul and starring Raj Kapoor, Tripti Mitra, Latika, Anwari and Baby Zubeida. The music is in the hands of Nalin Muzumdar.

INDIAN PRODUCTIONS (Bombay)

With his wide and long experience of films, Yakub, our popular character actor, seems to be using this knowledge in directing and producing "Aaye". A good bit of shooting of "Aaye" has already been completed in the Eastern Studios. "Aaye" stars Sulochana Chatterjee, Nigar, Masood, Sheila and Yakub himself.

GOEL CINE CORPORATION (Bombay)

Their maiden production entitled "Ankhen" is ready to go to the sets. "Ankhen" has a good cast consisting of...
of Nalini Jaywant, Yashodhara Katju, Yakub and Bharat Bhushan.

VARUNA FILMS (Bombay)

Producers G. A. Thakur and K. N. Kapur have made headway with "Roomal" starring Nargis, Rehana, Jairaj, Indu, Jeevan, Badriprasad and dancer Cuckoo. "Roomal", as the name indicates, seems to be the keynote in the story and let us hope that our painstaking director Ramchandra Thakur adds a few emotional touches in his direction.

SUPER PICTURES (Bombay)

Producer-director Aspi is in earnest about "Sipahiya", the way we see him rushing on the sets. With a sensibly chosen cast consisting of Madhubala and Yakub, lyrics by Hasrat Lucknavi and music from C. Ramchandra, director Aspi might well succeed in making "Sipahiya" one of the best pictures of 1919.

HIMALAYA PICTURES (Bombay)

Lt. Col. Drona Sumsher Jung Bahadur Rana, the chief executive of the company, has disposed of the distribution rights of their three pictures, "Nazrana", "Naaz" and "Nazakat" for Delhi, U.P., East Punjab and Bombay. Director Jagdish Pant is reported to have made a good job of "Nazrana" and we can quite believe this of him with artistes like Kamini Kaushal and Geeta Bali to put the picture through. The other two, "Naaz" and "Nazakat" are in the script stage and will go to the sets soon. The lyrics are by Gopal Singh Nepali and the music by C. Ramchandra.

VANDANA PICTURES (Bombay)

Starring Raj Kapoor opposite charming Nalini Jaywant, director Jagdish Pant has made rapid progress with "Khoj". The story and dialogue are by Avtar Visharad, the lyrics by Gopal Singh Nepali. The musical score is given by K. C. Varma. The light side of the picture is looked after by comedian Gope and his screen partner Yashodhara Katju.

VANKALWALA PRODUCTIONS (Bombay)

"Jio Raja" featuring Agha, Prakash, Shanta Patel and Mumtaz and directed by Nari Ghadiali is more than half completed. The music for this stunt thriller is given by Nisar Bazmi.

MADHUBAN (Bombay)

Director K. Amarnath has gone ahead with "Surajmukhi" and with his love for serious work. He is bound to make a quick job of it. Producer Prashad has given him the necessary material in a picked cast consisting of Rehana, Shyam, Mumtaz Ali, Durga Khote, Gope and Yashodhara Katju. The music is by Husnainal and Bhagatram who often give catchy tunes as in "Bari Bahen" and "Pyar ki jeet".

NEW BOMBAY THEATRES LTD. (Bombay)

Producer-director Pareeuja who is speed-crazy has completed "Tara" featuring Nayanrtara, Kuldip, Majnu and Jawahar Kaul. Added attractions of "Tara" are the dialogue and lyrics by Santoshi. Pareunja's next picture will go to the sets at the Central Studios shortly.

SHOREY FILMS (Bombay)

Producer-director Roop K. Shorey is busy directing the attractive Meena in "Ek thi Larki". Playing the role of the hero is Motilal and the supporting cast is led by Kuldip, I. S. Johar and Majnu, etc. The lyrics are written by Aziz Kashmiri and set to music by Vinod.

POPULAR INDIA PRODUCTIONS LTD. (Bombay)

After a long time Chaturbhuj Doshi is reported to have given an emotion-}

Tional story with plenty of appeal in "Ma ka dil". Producers Jawahar Lal Chaturvedi has engaged director S. M. Yusuf and stars Paro, Ulhas, Sharda, Kuldip and Mirza Musharaf to add spice to "Ma ka dil". While the lyrics are by Abid Gulrays and Moti, the music is by Hansraj Bahel and Khan.

VARMA FILMS (Bombay)

"Patanga" starring pretty N. Sultana, Yakub and Gope has nearly completed at the Film Studios and there it's a rush for distribution rights. Two other pictures planned are called, "Ek Nazar" and "Sagai". "Ek Nazar" has Rehana as the heroine and C. Ramchandra to give music. The direction is by H. S. Rawail with lyrics and dialogue from Rajendra Kris.

HIND KAMAL PICTURES (Bombay)

Their maiden picture cast "Kamal" stars Surendra opposite Nyanartara. Others in the cast are Madanpuri, Mohana, Munshi Kesar, Lalita Rao etc. The story is written by Y. N. Joshi. Pop lyric writer Gopal Singh Nepali composed the lyrics, set to music by S. D. Varma.

The impossible has happened.

Over 2200 theatres, all that India can boast of, were used on the 30th of June as a protest against the crushing taxation imposed on the Indian film industry by the various provincial governments and the Government of India.

For the first time in the history of the Indian film industry was such a country-wide unanimity of protest as purpose shown and not a single cinema, counting on those owned and operated by foreign interests, was open in the entire country. The unique unanimity in this method of protest was due to the combined efforts of fourteen different trade associations located in different parts of the country all of which unreservedly felt the need of recording a country-wide protest against the crushing impost of various taxes which have afflicted the Indian film industry at present.

Like the rest of our countrymen, our film people also thought that with the dawn of freedom in the country, their industry would receive all the help and support from their own governments to make it stable and independent. But like the rest of their countrymen, our film people have also been disillusioned by the various provincial governments which are manned by people who seem to take an almost sadistic delight in rusting on our people their own ultra-moralistic inhibitions by enacting one prohibitory law after another and thus poisoning the entire fabric of our society.

Like the rest of our countrymen, our film people so danced to the unmusical refrain of our different national songs on the 15th of August 1947 and their spirits became quixotic clapping into power our different jail pilgrims as ministers of state.

Little did they dream that some of those white- helmeted patriots, who had once walked meekly to the Irish jails like so many sheep, would soon become wolves and take a sadistic delight in biting chunks after chunks of individual liberty from our people under the pretence of building an impossible topia.

The Indian National Congress, once our nation's postitory where millions of our countrymen banked their freedom-loving souls, has today become a frightening bedlam of power-crazy politicians scrambling for their wooden thrones to extract profits out of anything from molasses to a mountain. Sadism dressed in a shroud of pseudo-moralistic concepts is let loose all over the country. While millions of stomachs remain empty and millions more go half-naked, these empty stomachs and naked bodies are placed under new enactments imposing on them one abstinence after another and turning the country into one big colony of criminals.

Little men of yesterday have become the big Caesars of today, who in their utter intoxication of power, have lost sight of the real weal of the people and are feeding millions with words of laws and lies instead of with grains of wheat and rice.

Two years of freedom and we are more hungry today than ever before. Two years of freedom and we are more naked today than ever before. Two years of freedom and we are poorer today than ever before. Two years of freedom and we are less free today than ever before. Thanks to the sadism and the utter inefficiency of some of our little Caesars of the day!

When the entire country is in such a sorry and miserable plight, how can our much-maligned film people expect a better deal from our governments?

To lend a vindictive tenure to the several pseudo-moralistic abstinence thrust down our throat with the ramrod of law, the different provincial governments have turned the Indian film industry into a handy milch cow for new revenues. Bloodshot with power our rulers have lost the vision to see that there is no more milk left in the udder of their favourite milch cow and that her teats are now too inflamed even to be touched. Now they are raping the milch cow with new taxation and in place of milk they will soon collect the wages of their sin when the theatres begin to play pictures to empty houses.

Here is a list of taxes which the film industry is paying today:

1. An import duty on raw film at 3 pies per foot in spite of the raw film being an essential material. 2. An import duty of 10% on all cinematographic equipments and another ad valorem 30% duty on spare parts.

3. Sales tax on raw stock, machinery, make-up materials, setting materials, plywood, paint, coarse cloth, dils and all other items required for motion picture production.
4. License fees for laboratories and storage of films.
5. License fees for theatres.
7. Tax on water consumed.
8. Sanitary tax, called Halalkore Tax.
9. Property Tax and other Municipal taxes.
10. Graduated tax from 1/ to Rs. 10- per show.
11. License fees and advertisement tax by Municipality on outdoor posters.
12. Provincial tax on newspaper advertisements.
13. Performance tax on theatres levied by different municipalities and governments, varying from Rs. 1- to Rs. 10- per show.
14. Censorship fees of Rs. 5 per reel in provinces.
15. Additional censorship fees according to the whims of local authorities in different provinces.
16. Additional tax in the Madras province from Rs. 2- to Rs. 5- per show.
17. Octroi duty on films collected by different municipalities and states.
18. Import duty of Rs. 10- per film parcel charged by the Government of Madhyabharat.
19. Entertainment Tax on admission prices all over India varying from 33-1/3% to 75% according to the whims of the local ministers.
20. The usual income-tax, super tax.

Add to these the different charges paid for police assistance from time to time. The cost of the shows that are semi-officially demanded for one charity or another, the cost of free admission tickets which corrupt officials often demand and the numerous little presents, in cash and kind, which are the annual expectations of many subordinate officials, and imagine the weight of the crushing impost on our ever-struggling film industry.

Add to all these the losses incurred by "No Show" days due to communal riots in the past, and deaths of our national leaders and local fuhrers and the fall in collections at the box-offices due to a general slump in the country and greater poverty among the people, and it is not difficult to explain the economic crisis through which our film industry is passing.

Closing all the cinemas in India on the 30th June was a silent protest of our much harassed film community.

We do not think that the nation wide hartal will move the power-crazy sadists to sympathise with our film industry. It will take more than a mere hartal to wake up these bigots.

We must wait for the next elections. Till then let our film folks bravely pay for their crime of trusting a clique of politicians who no longer represent the people.

Just a narrow strip of celluloid, a fraction of an inch wide — yet here is a perfect portrait of the pure, liquid notes which poured from the throat of the singer. Each little inflection, each subtle variation of tone and pitch — captured forever by the magic of the moving picture, ready to spring to golden-voiced life through the miracle of RCA reproduction!

The people who know — the people whose business it is to show films — all agree that when you buy RCA, you buy the best. For behind every RCA product are the years of intensive research that have made the name of RCA pre-eminent in the field of sound reproduction.
The present system of censoring is not at all an efficient way of doing the work. It is neither fair to the people for whom the censoring of films is being done nor to the producers who often suffer due to the ignorance of the censors of the idiomatic use of the language.

The censor boards must therefore insist on being given a copy of all dialogue and news commentary prior to censoring any pictures.

These scripts should be carefully filed at the censor offices for future reference.

Is this not a practical solution to the present blindfold censoring that is being done by people incompetent to judge the niceties of a language merely by the ear?

INDIANS BLUSHING IN BURMA:

Way out in Rangoon, the Burmese people are laughing at Indians because of the inefficiency of the people who are in charge of the India Information Services, a department attached to the Indian Embassy in Rangoon.

Vijay Desai of Rangoon tells us that this Information department has been severely criticised for its

FILMINDIA

SYNOPSIS

Locust inefficiency by the Indian-owned press in Rangoon. He says that a number of Tamilians, who do not even know Hindustani, are making a mess of their work and giving our country a bad name.

Apart from other blunders in the information section, which this department is supposed to give, the newsreel section, in charge of a Tamilian clerk not knowing a word of Hindustani, has become a favourite subject for ridicule among the residents of Rangoon.

It seems that this film section has not been supplied with a single 35 mm print of any documentary film in India since last year and the 16 mm prints which are to be in stock cannot be shown because the department does not possess even a single 16 mm projector for silent or sound films.

With great difficulty, the film section could release a weekly a documentary film on Gandhiji ed the "Immortal Mahatma" as against the run of newsreels in Rangoon given to the film of Mr. Jinnah's visit. This film was, moreover, purchased for Rs. 3000 by a local distributor.

While there is absolutely no demand created for Indian documentaries by the people in charge of the newsreel section in Rangoon, there is a great demand for Pakistan newsreels and documentaries due to the art and efficient organization of the "Film and Publicity Division" of the Pakistan Embassy in Burma. No owners are asking for newsreels and documents from Pakistan and paying good money for them. It is useless to ask the question: What is Pandit Nehru doing? Because we know that he is lecturing on wheat, votes, Kashmir and other fast disappearing commodities. But if there is someone else in the Ministry of External Affairs—someone with a little brain—and imagination—he should look into this farce in Rangoon and set matters right before all the Burmese get an impression that Pakistan is a better run state than India.

To begin with, the idli-eating Tamilians, who do not know Hindustani, should be recalled and competent people, knowing our national language and a bit of Hindustani should be sent to Burma. Several boxes of newsreels and documentaries in 35 mm size should be sent there immediately, seeing that the current film is still being shown in this size and the others have not yet got the 16 mm equipment. Indian newsreels should be flown to Rangoon to give the Burmese a good flavour of our news before it becomes stale and putrid.

There is no sense in our opening dozens of embassies all over the world if we cannot send out the right personnel and conduct our national publicity in a right manner. With such inefficiency in our foreign missions, we shall only succeed in illustrating what the British have been telling the world about us last 200 years.

SECTIONATE POSTAL & RAILWAY FRIENDS:

Aproach from efficiency, honesty is the primary essence in all public services. There is so much of graft and corruption prevalent in the country these days that it is become very difficult to identify the present day officials with their ancient traditions which, we are so often told, were hallowed and glorious.

Forgetting for a while the ministerial scandal of molasses in Bihar or the Deo investigations in Madras, let us, as ordinary citizens, look at our postal department which manages to lose copies after copies of "Filmindia" from month to month whether you send them by ordinary post or by registered post.

When the subscribers miss their copies, they complain to us and we in turn complain to the postal authorities. The postal authorities promise to look into the matter and after looking into it for a month or two, they fail to produce the missing copy of "Filmindia". Similarly we never recapture the copies which escape from well-wrapped and well-tied post parcels. With the anxiety of a convict who is being taken to jail, these copies escape on the way somehow and never reach their destination. How come? (That is American).

The other day a Delhi daily reported about a large number of foreign periodicals never reaching the right hands but being sold by the wrong ones on the pavements of New Delhi. We are touched by the postman's sympathy for the refugees in Delhi who sell these pirated magazines and make a little money but is it necessary to sacrifice our primary honesty and national prestige to oblige the refugees?

Rafi Ahmed Kidwai, our Minister for Posts and Telegraphs, with his characteristic impulse promised to take all our letters by air to any town in India, bleeding us a little more in postage. But when our letters started flying they stopped arriving on land for days and sometimes for weeks and many went with the wind.

Very much same is our complaint with the railway parcels of "Filmindia". "Filmindia" being hot stuff, the copies seem to need fresh air and many parcels reach their destination with seals broken and lighter in weight. When the agents complain about shortage in the number of copies, we complain to the railway authorities. They "look into" our complaint for a month but we never see the missing copies again.

We dare not brand the Congress regime as dishonest and corrupt. That will be staining the white cap and disturbing the sleep of Gandhiji. But we cannot afford to lose copies of "Filmindia" from month to month in the post and railways in this manner just because our postmen and railway men are so affectionately attached to the magazine.

Government aside, we are willing to come to a compromise with the postmen and the railway men directly: that in lieu of their honest services in delivering copies of "Filmindia" to our subscribers and agents in future, we are prepared to supply free copies of the magazine every month to the postal and railway recreation clubs in important towns so that the literary-minded postal and railway employees can read the magazine without losing their character.

Isn't that a fair deal?

COMMUNISTS AND FILM WORK!

When film actor Balraj Sahani was recently put under arrest and detention for Communist activities, Producer K. Asif went like a child—not because Asif had lost his most favourite son but because Balraj was midway through an important role in Asif's "Hulchul" and over 20 days of shooting was needed to finish Sahani's work in the picture.

"Hulchul" had already cost over four lakhs of rupees and in the sequences already taken Balraj Sahani had finished over 50% of his work. Asif was on the horns of a dilemma. He could not scrap Sahani's role without losing four lakhs of rupees nor could he finish the picture without 20 more shooting days for Sahani.

Had it not been for the sympathetic consideration shown by the police authorities, who allowed Balraj Sahani to go to the sets under police guard on every shooting day and return to his prison cell in the evening, Asif would not have been the producer of "Hulchul" any more. In fact, there would have been no "Hulchul" at all.

Asif's sad plight should provide an object lesson to other film producers who often engage important artistes without investigating their political leanings. We have quite a few people in our film industry—artistes, writers, directors and other workers—with the Communist background and it would be bad business to engage these people for indispensable jobs seeing that they are likely to be picked up by the police any day without a previous warning.

The Communists are on the war path and so are the police. Let not our producers pay the wages of this war by taking up people whose political activities are not approved by the state.

CHANDULAL POCKETS ASOKA MEHTA!

Chandulal Shah and Asoka Mehta, the Socialist leader of Bombay, went into labour nine months ago and have now brought forth the proverbial mouse in the shape of an arbitration award for the 2,500 employees of eleven film studios in the city.

The workers themselves do not like the award. They feel that they have been betrayed by the Socialist leaders. They feel that because the film producers had helped the Socialist Party to win a recent election with cars, petrol and funds, the Socialist leaders have played into the hands of Chandulal Shah and helped him to stab the workers in the back. Among other unfulfilled demands, they want to know what has happened to Chandulal Shah's tall promise to give the Ranjit workers a bonus of Rs. 2,75,000. We, personally, know of this solemn declaration by Chandulal Shah in the presence of over a thousand guests at the time of his production-centenary celebrations. Unless the Jam Saheb of Nawanagar was deaf at the time he can also be relied upon to have heard this tall declaration.

The workers have now formed a new union called the National Film Kamgar Sangh under the official aegis of the Indian National Trade Union Congress. Thus, precisely what the producers want has happened—a split among the workers themselves. The old game of playing one against the other will now begin and as usual the workers will be the ultimate losers.

The split among the workers is also an opportunity for the Congress-controlled I.N.T.U.C. to wean the workers from the influence of the Socialist Party. The workers' future is going to be a three-party game in future in which the workers themselves will have no say.

Coming to the award given by Asoka Mehta there is a lot in it for workers to be dissatisfied. The present remunerations have been illogically split into basic salaries and dearness allowances, thereby providing very little immediate relief to the workers. An efficiency bar has been introduced placing the workers at the absolute mercy of the employers. The classification of different workers has not been defined in detail with the result that even assistants to the recordist are termed as “coolies” and are compelled to work on the lowest scale of rates with fixed annual promotions. The salaries of the cameraman and the recordist have been fixed at the pecuniary figure of Rs. 150/- with Rs. 35/- as dearness advance, while several cameramen and recordists in the industry are actually drawing anything from Rs. 400/- to Rs. 1,500/- per month. A similar mess has been made of the scales provided for the laboratory chief, editor setting master.

The only good thing in the award is the 40 days’ leave (Privilege 15, Sick 15, Casual 10) in place of the 30 days allowed previously.

D. S. Thakur, the Secretary of the Filmi Mazdoor Union, is himself not quite satisfied with the award as stands today but he feels that it provides a starting point for future demands. Let us hope that Thakur is telling us the truth with the general elections fixed next year.

In the meantime we congratulate Chandulal Shah pocketing the bearded bird of the Socialists.

“U’LL HARDLY BELIEVE—

That Producer Mehboob took over the Liberty theme for five years by paying five lakhs cash keeping S. M. Kardar gaping at the gates. Now “Andaz” can sit till the push-back chairs cannot be pushed back any more and Liberty becomes just one more Indian Cinema. That Mehboob’s Liberty deal brought the two sisters, Sardar Akhtar and Bahar Akhtar (Mrs. Mehboob and Mrs. Kardar respectively) almost to a duel and now old relations are settled in the usual political manner by dividing affections.

That Mian Kardar is these days carrying a 1949 calendar to find a release date for his “Dillagi” at Liberty under Mehboob. We suggest taking the 1950 calendar.

That the Liberty deal was a fine example of Muslim brotherhood between Habib Hussein, Mian Kardar, and Mehboob not counting the two beautiful sisters. What surprises people is the generosity of Habib Hussein in giving away the theatre for Rs. 12,000; a week when he was drawing Rs. 30,000 per week. Is it to save the Liberty from being branded as “Evacuee Property”, because Habib is reported to have been allotted some property in Pakistan?

That Chandulal Shah is also reported to be having a finger in the Liberty pie—probably to provide a Hindu label to a Muslim deal. Besides, if there is trouble under the new ordinance, the Hindu Chandu can always take over from the Muslim Mehboob.

That Habib Hussein is also reported to have sold his managing agency in the Bandra Talkies to Pai, Executive of the Censor Board. Has Habib, by any chance, decided to migrate to Pakistan?

That with his own brother-in-law cutting him out of the Liberty deal, Producer Kardar is having bad luck these days. S. S. Vasan of “Chandalekha” is producing a story based on “The Corsican Brothers”, the very subject for which Kardar had made all the preparations.

That like Producer Kardar, Producer V. Shantaram, brother of V. Kashinath in turn brother of V. Avadhoot, is also having hard luck these days with “Apna Desh” behaving like an alien entity and Kishore Sahu being declared the best director of India.

That V. Shantaram, brother of V. Kashinath in turn brother of V. Avadhoot, is also worried about his wife, Jayashree, playing Goddess Parvati and Prithviraj playing Lord Shiva in “Shiv Shakti” with the Shaivite societies collecting their forces to launch an objection against human beings portraying gods and goddesses and thereby slandering and outraging the sanctity of the Hindu Trinity!

That the Hindu Sanatanists find justification for their protest in the fact that Christianity, Islam and Buddhism do not allow even their prophets, who were only human beings, to be used for the purposes of the screen. Islam does not even permit the Quran to be photographed.

That to add to all his worries, V. Shantaram, brother of V. Kashinath in turn brother of V. Avadhoot, was defeated at the recent annual elections of the Indian Motion Picture Producers’ Association and could not become even an ordinary member of the Executive Committee, leave alone being the president. And all this in spite of his new khaddar uniform of national service! That is another Congress defeat!

That the results of these elections will reveal to Minister Morarji Desai the amount of popularity which his pet censor, V. Shantaram, enjoys among his own colleagues.

That the producers had to fall back upon old “gentle” Jamsu as their next year’s president. That is how “new order changeth, yielding place to old” in India.

That the still photographer of Wadia Movietone had denly to turn out a hundred copies of “gentle” Jamsu’s intelligent new look to announce to the world his election as the president of I.M.P.P.A. for the year. Why isn’t Chandulal Shah or Chuni Lall ever advertise their preidential elections in the past in this manner?

That Minister Morarji Desai will now find it rathericult to convince “gentle” Jamsu who has studied his politics and arguments at the feet of M. N. Roy.

That “gentle” Jamsu will now officially protest inst the proposed cuts in “Mela” which picture the literary authorities don’t seem to have liked so much after reading the review of “filmindia”.

That true to his natural desire of being noticed, “jiltle” Jamsu issued his usual press statement aboutation etc., and gave his usual considered opinion ut music and pictures without music. Journalists say great ones at making fools of innocent people!

That Chandulal Shah and Bejon Bharucha flew to Delhi and back after inquiring about Minister Divakar’s present health. Minister Divakar thanked them profusely for their affectionate concern for his health and asked them to wait for the Inquiry Committee definitely. Chandulal and Bejon returned happy and smiling—as usual, of course. The I.M.P.P.A. passed resolution thanking both for going to New Delhi on invitation and coming back safe and sound.

That the countrywide hartal, closing all the cinemasthe 30th June, does not seem to have impressed the congress ministers at all. One of them is reported to have said: “Saroorn thayun, lokona ek divasna paisa hi gaya!” After that what is the earthly use of wing dust to accumulate on the theatre chairs?

That the Suraiya-Dev Anand team is not having a oft sailing with the old Begums scowling and howat the Maidens’ Drive these days. But the cheque k is still with Suraiya and we must wait a little ger to see whether the girl has got some guts.

That some Rotarians in Bombay are reported to efanted after the rambling speech of Censor Chair-

That Censor Chairman Aiyar does not like nosy nalists checking up on the actual qualifications of Board members because his own qualifications would exposed. But Aiyar shouldn’t be so much alarmed. re is V. Shantaram with no academic qualifications ll to give Aiyar a superiority-complex. And as long Minister Morarji smiles benevolently what are a few y journalists! One of these days, however, we are ng to tell the charming story of Aiyar’s appointment he Director of Publicity.

That Minister Morarji Desai invited the Bombay ma owners and asked them to stop blackmarketing in a month. He might have as well asked the thieves he city not to commit thefts because policemen lost sleep.

That in Karachi a boy and a girl had to pay Rs. 20; and Rs. 10 respectively as fines for kissing in the street. That is a new avenue for revenue which the Bombay ministers must explore. If the Government bans kissing in streets, gardens and cinemas and imposes fines for the offence, a good part of the prohibition bankruptcy will be averted and public morality vindicated.

That Vijoo Bhatt of Andheri is reported to be busi grooming a new find, Indu Paul, to stardom. Andheri is a nice and quiet place to train stars.

That a number of film stars are likely to start their own productions to turn their black boards into white piles. Picture production does swallow a lot of black money.

That our white-stained capitalist Birla thinks that Indian films should be shown in America to promote better relations between the two nations. That proves that Birla has not seen an Indian film yet. If Indian films are shown in America, the Yankees will refuse to give us even the dollar loan which they have promised.

That “Baby” Nur Jehan is reported to be having trouble with Hubby Shaukat Hussein in Lahore. With the savings spent the “Baby” probably wants to return to her cradle of success but Hubby Shaukat hopes to become a minister in Pakistan some day.

That Minister Morarji Desai’s police arrested Thakor Desai, his “jatvalla” for alleged breach of rules for feeding people. But no one said anything when Morarjibhai himself deprived his chowpaw of two meals and in broad daylight. Isn’t that also an offence to deprive a poor man of his two hard-earned meals—and mango juice and rice at that?

Ramola gets another good role to play in “Rim Jhim”, a social story produced and directed by Kishore Sahu.
It is a romance between a working girl and a medico—Shyama and Dr. Shyam.

The villain is made to accept his wife and child at the point of a gun by a good hearted uncle.

Seducing girls has become an art with Ajit and living on them has become his profession.

SATYANARAYANA RAO (Kurnool)
What is the important difference between the dreams of the poor and the rich?

The dreams of the poor go in search of food while those of the rich think of different purgatives.

RITHI PAUL SINGHI (Simla)
When a woman is in love, she goes into ecstasy. Is Rithi in love with anyone?

He pays for the ecstasy.

RAJAGOPAL (Mysore)
What do film stars see in their mirrors? Is Rajagopal into that sort of thing?

The terms of their next contract. When someone's close to her love affair?

When her parents give her a licensed bedroom and a man all to herself.

AGDISH PRASAD JAIN (Hapur)
Say something about Nayan Tara. Is he as charming a chameleon as the song?

What is the difference between a college girl and a hool girl?

They are little women on different sides of the keyhole.

OPAL CHANDRA BANERJEE (Barrackpore)
How to handle an old man who starts after young girls?

Ignore him. His desire dies with the season. Name a god-forsaken place?

Try Delhi! It is haunted by ill-clad refugees and white-capped devils.

Do you write poems on a rainy day?

No, I collect the rain in buckets and use it for washing my clothes.

What is indispensable to you?

God's grace! The rest can be replaced. I am a blind supporter of Jawaharlal. Are you?

No! I don't believe in hero-worship though I admire Jawaharlal. I do not consider it fair to follow him blindly, when his life provides so much material to think. Have you ever met Pavlova, the dancer?

I did and I fell in love with her. But then she told me she was a Russian. That settled our future.

ISS KUNDA SARANG (Bombay)
What is prostitution?

Commerce that started with the loose-leaf system of Adam and Eve.

MISS GANGU KUSHALPA (Mercara)
What sensation does a full moon cause in you? She reminds me of a thousand idiotic film songs wickedly thrust on us under her aegis. I get nausea when I see the full moon these days. Does darkness frighten you?

Only when it is lonely. May I know the list of pet names with which you are called?

My wife calls me 'Babu', my father calls me 'Baburao' and producers call me —. Never mind that!

K. T. RAMACHAR (Rayadrug)
Do you know the name of the new Madras premier? It is P. S. Kumaraswami Raja. Does it frighten you?

Dilip Kumar, the most popular hero of the Indian screen, gives one of his happy-go-lucky performances in "Shabnam", a Filmistan hit now running at the Roxy in Bombay.
HAVE GREAT PLEASURE TO ANNOUNCE THAT...

SS ANIMA CHATTERJEE (Bankura)

Has death got age?

Death is a birth of a moment and lives an eternity in that fraction.

Have tears a language?

Tears have words that hurt if their theme is anguish inside.

Do flowers blush?

Some of them even close their petals and refuse to show us their face.

Is there any relation between begging and borrow?

Begging is always honest. Borrowing is linesmanship.

What happens when a girl ceases to blush?

Nothing more happens! Everything has happened already.

S. INDIRA DEVI (Kanpur)

What birthday present did you choose for Kamini?

I took myself to the party. That is more than Kamini ever expected.

Why have you a soft heart for Nigar Sultana?

She is a blue-eyed belle with a pretty face and lovely complexion. Isn’t that enough to soften any heart?

I strongly recommend your “Grey Dust” to the editors of minor film journals for certain reasons.

They don’t need your tip. Twisted bits are already appearing in different periodicals.

T. L. KRIPALANI (Simla Hills)

Differentiate between Gandhi cap of 1930, 1942 and 1949.

In 1930 it was a slave’s hope, in 1942 it became a warrior’s helmet and in 1949 it is both the ruler’s crown and the black-marketeer’s camouflage.

RUST BOMANJI MISTRY (Bombay)

Government are contemplating prohibition of tea and coffee after liquor prohibition. What will be the next item of prohibition?

They might put a meter in the marital bed to stop overindulgence and incidentally solve the population problem through punitive taxation.

F. S. DHANASHRI (Hyderabad Dn.)

Name the actresses who generally stay at hill stations in summer?

Popular actresses never have a summer. They are always in the spring of life, hopping from one studio to another.

L. MASSEY (Hathras)

Being disgusted with the useless talk of women I have decided to marry a dumb girl. What do you say?

Good idea but see that she is not deaf. Deaf women are as annoying as talkative ones.

MRS. MANAK S. KANTHAK (Bombay)

What makes you refer to V. Shantaram as brother of V. Kashinath in turn brother of V. Avadhoot?

That is the way they are. If I don’t mention all the V’s of Rajkamal in the same breath, we shall have another fratricidal war. Those V-brothers are publicity crazy.

O. SAROJINI (Vellore)

How many types of beggars are there in our country?

Politicians who beg for votes, ministers who beg for garlands, patriots who beg for funds and the starving who beg for a meal.

What do people think when an old man marries a young girl?

Let residents of Dalmianagar answer this question or ask that white-capped poet-politician Balkrishna Sharma.

How to hold a slippery wife?

The slipper often holds a slippery one. It is an old and popular remedy.

S. PEREIRA (Bombay)

Why do couples generally go for strolls in moonlight without watches on them?

The moon is their dial on which the hours of romance turn into minutes of happiness.

MISS T. V. RAO (Madras)

I am told that you are good at palmistry. How many actresses’ palms have you read so far?

I read their faces. Their palms they stretch before the producers.
MISS SUBODH M. DALVIE (Bombay)
Man was born stark naked. Then why does he die all covered up?
Under the shroud death is as naked as birth.
We dress the dead to cover the sins of life.
Does your magazine sell in Russia?
It will if I print it in red ink.

K. N. RAO (Bombay)
What is your opinion about the sky-scrapers of America?
It is capitalism kissing the sky.

A. DEVA RATNAM (Bangalore)
If I come to Bombay where can I easily see my dream girl Rehana?
You will have to be Santoshi's guest.

H. NAGESH RAO MANAY (Bangalore)
Can you name a leader who is free from egoism?
The way Gandhiji often emphasized his humility and reiterated his non-membership of the Congress, even he could not be acquitted of egoism. Why talk of others?
What has become of Nargis Art Concern?
Out of the news since "Romeo and Juliet" committed suicide.

SARASWATI DEVI (Dehra Dun)
What is the best part of "Geeta Bali"?
Her sex-appeal!

H. VENKANNA (Kurnool)
Which film actress' photo have you hung up in your room?
I like blank walls more than blank faces.

SUNIL KUMAR MUKERJEE (Jubbulpore)
On what grounds does India claim to become leader of Asia?
On grounds of Nehru's fertile imagination.

JAWAHIR S. THANVI (Jodhpur)
What is the difference between a slap and a clap?
A clap is the tonic of the politicians while a slap is the food of the masses.

P. SARVESWARAR RAO (Masulipatam)
Knowing that everything in this world is unreal why should most of the people take things seriously?
This is a world of creditors in which the first reality is the debt we owe to others. It has to be paid before we leave this world. And paying this debt is a very serious matter.

N. L. DUTT (Arogyavaram)
I get a red rose from a girl friend as a daily present. Red being the colour for love what should I conclude?
Conclude the bargain. Don't wait for the rose to fade.

MRS. MONE (Bombay)
Is it Morarji Desai's white cap or his stick that makes you sing his praise?

Caps and sticks don't scare me. I praise Morarji when he does something good. I criticize him when I find him slow.

How is it that you are the only Bombay journalist to like Bombay's Home Minister?
I like him as a man. He is honest, sincere and earnest, though some of his views are antiquated. If he is sent on a world tour for six months and he cultivates a little sense of humour he will make an ideal Home Minister.
If woman is 'honey', what is man?
Money!

KHARAK SINGH (Kuala Lumpur)
Suraiya and Nargis are seen in most films. Will this spoil their career?
They are running gold mines—not serving in what way do the Sikhs help India?
They give us soldiers, watchmen, carpenters, labourers, sportsmen and once in a while a politician.
Are you a capitalist?
Without any capital, though!
Who are the aristocrats of India at present?
The Nehrus of India!
I would like to correspond with Nargis. Will you introduce?
Write to her C/o Akhtar Hussein, Marine Drive, Bombay.

B. CHAKRAVARTY (Kasganj)
Tell me how to please a sophisticated girl?
Sophisticated types like Tarzans of the jungle—but the jungle is more important than the Tarzan.

K. A. Abbas is a cheap writer!
When did you discover that?

T. M. KANNAPAN (Trichinopoly)
What explanation would you offer to a man who does not believe in God?
It is stupid to convert an atheist. If he is long enough he dies in the lap of God.

PRAKASH SHARMA (Delhi)
Mr. Patel! How, when and from where did you contract this habit of picking holes in other men's coats?
It is an inheritance from my father. He was a lawyer with a cross-examination which often discerns the bladders of witnesses in the court.

D. WILLIAM MOSES (Tanjore)
When does a man look twice at himself?
The second look is a glimpse of the inferior complex in a man—his anxiety to present more than he can.

I. N. HAZARI (Bombay)
Is it a crime to kiss a girl in public?
Yes, girls between 16 and 60.
What will happen to the race horses after 19?
They will be harnessed to our minister chariots and our little men will become little Caesars.

Can our Indian film producers give us a picture like "Johnny Belinda"?

You will soon get its distorted bits in a dozen Indian pictures. The first one of the series will be "Paras".

K. V. GANAPATHY (Nagpur)

How many parties do you attend every month? Most of the actors and actresses must be giving you dinner parties every month!

The very first party I ever attended was at Kamini Kaushal's place and I hope it is the last. As a rule, I don't accept invitations for dinner because of my dietetic restrictions.

Some of our ministers who were on the verge of insolvency have built bungalows and become owners of villages. How do you account for this?

Don't make wild allegations. Name the ministers and get proofs and I shall see that the bungalows and villages are taken away. There is no sense in multiplying idiotic rumours.

PURUSHOTTAM RAJ (Kathmandu)

What is the root of slavery?

Not the strength of the tyrant but the cowardice of the slave!

Where lies beauty—at heart or in face?

A beautiful heart lends a glow to a beautiful face.

D. MUTHUSWAMY (Bombay)

Why did Pandit Jawaharlal meet Bernard Shaw?

Presumably to advertise Indian mangoes because we don't know where they scratched each other.

Who's going to be the first President of the Indian Republic?

It is difficult to get rid of Rajaji.

What would you do if a beautiful film star is shipwrecked on an island with you? Say you are thirty and she is twenty-five!

I am forty-five and that is hardly an age for day dreams.

GUNVANT DESAI (Navsari)

Does anybody at Karachi worship the Mahatma's statue opposite the Governor General's residence?

"But-parasti" (idol worship) is forbidden in Islam though "Peer Parasti" (saint worship) is practised generally. But the saint must be a Muslim.

What are the achievements of the present ministries of health and education?

One man dies every minute from tuberculosis in India and education has become twice more expensive these days.

P. N. KHOSLA (Dehra Dun)

Do Americans carry umbrellas?

Oh yes, they do! It has not yet begun to rain

RESHI NAKUL (New Delhi)
What disease do the politicians usually suffer from?
Stomach colic, constipation, liver congestion and piles? They can't digest their own lies.
What is wrong with your old director friends—Rai, Modi and Jayant Desai?
Barna took his art to the doctor, Modi lost it in his marital bed while Jayant Desai handed it over to his banker.

G. TREEBHOOHUN (Mauritius)
Can you name me a single producer whose primary drive is not money-making?
To answer this I must name the dead—Himansu Rai. But when Rai lived he too chased Mammon.

YANTILAL RATILAL BHATT (Kandivili)
Formerly whenever our leaders appeared on the screen, people clapped but now they don't. Why?
Now people spit and spoil the theatre. Our present politicians are no longer popular leaders. Many of them are self-righteous tyrants who have turned the nation into a colony of criminals by enacting many new and vindictive laws.

EROI (Kenya)
Do we maintain any blood bank in India for transition purposes?
The bank is a place where the surplus is deposited. In India the original veins are running dry.
Did you meet Walt Disney? If so what have you say about him?
I met Disney and found him more modest than his Mickey. Success has not spoiled this great artist whose genius has kept the world gaping.

BINDRANATH ROY (Cuttack)
Were you a nuisance at the age of 14? What were doing then?
I was playing with school books and studying cricket.

J. SANKHE, M.L.A. (Bombay)
Are you an impostor?
Critics never become impostors, but clappers do and they often wear white caps to misguide the world.
What tickles you most?
The fact that a Congress legislator like you cannot recognize an impostor when he meets one. Next time when you attend the Assembly session, watch the crowd of mountebanks around you.

HAKRAPANI (Bombay)
Is Kamini’s hubby an actor or a businessman?
He is a Port Trust engineer with banking as a hobby.

SHRIWASTAVA (Rajnandgaon)
Did you ever talk to Sushila Rani to get her again at her next birth?
Don’t you think that will be boring?

It is a cruelty to put a charming girl like Rehana behind a chick curtain but there she is, stepping out in “Chilman”, a social picture of O.S.S.

You don’t altogether agree with Sardar Patel. Does it matter?
It should to Sardar Patel who is a conscientious patriot because I am one of his intelligent voters. No politician can afford to ignore intelligent opinion too long if he hopes to win elections.

MISS L. RAU (Bangalore)
Why does Jairaj, when singing, throw out his arms with such force every two seconds as though he were drowning?
Music is deep waters for Jairaj and no wonder he struggles for the proverbial straw.

CAPTAIN PRATAP (Mussoorie)
Would you like General and Madame Chiang Kai Shek, old friends of Pandit Nehru, to seek asylum in Delhi and start a Chinese restaurant?
We have enough Chinese restaurants already—some of which need to be watched closely because of the Red dishes they serve these days. Some of our missing Communists might be found in them cooking the porridge.
Should Stalin take a lesson from Truman and invite Nehru to Moscow?
Stalin believes in counter-strategy. He has invited Pakistan’s Liyagat Ali Khan who is a nearer neighbour. Truman might now send a hurried invitation to Liyagat.

I am a wage earner. I know addition and subtraction, the only mathematics of middle class life. Capitalists know multiplication, division and ratio and proportion. Politicians know vulgar fractions.

V. K. FAZLUR RAHMAN (Bangalore)
Whom would you choose if the choice is between Rehana and Begum Para?

For what?
What do you call a person who adorned his drawing room in 1916 with the photo of King George VI; in 1947 with the photo of Mr. Jinnah; in 1948 with the photo of Gandhi and in 1949 with the photo of Pandit Nehru?

A bread and butter patriot.
Are our popular ministers still popular?
Not with me, at least!
What does motherhood mean to a prostitute?
Continuous business if the little one is a girl — irritations if it is a male brat!
What is the difference between a Nationalist Muslim and a Congress Muslim?

A Nationalist Muslim can be a Socialist or a Communist but a Congress Muslim must be a spiritual heir of Azad — nothing less, nothing more.
What do you think of our Government's plan to thrust Hindi on the masses?
As idiotic as their other plans.

PRAN NATH CHHIBER (Delhi)
What exactly does a man mean when he says to a young girl, "Darling, you are the sweetest thing on earth"?

That he hopes to meet a sweeter one in heaven.
What is the worst thing which a young girl can hurl at a young man?

Herself! That inflicts a wound which needs a new dressing three times a day.

A. RAGHAVAN (Guntur)
What is the difference between Christ and Christians?

It is a gulf of one thousand nine hundred and forty-nine years.
Have you ever scrambled to garland a minister?

Not yet! God is still merciful to me.
Sardar Patel said that he is not a capitalist. Well, what about his son?

He is not a capitalist either. He is a princely wage earner.
I sympathise with prostitutes. Don't you?

Only with young and beautiful ones.

A. S. RAJA (Vizagapatnam)
Recently Dr. Pattabhi performed the opening ceremony of one of the costliest theatres in these parts. The show started with a newsreel of the Jaipur Congress. What do you say?

More incense to the year's idol!
Who is a sadist among our popular ministers?
Most of them seem to be sadists the way they have deprived the people of the cup that cheers.
Why are girl beggars increasing day by day?
To collect funds for the Socialists.
Who is the next of kin of Nargis?
She has a huge mother, two interfering broth-with a dozen nephews and nieces not to mention a score of moths who appear at dusk. And yet she is a very lonely damsel.
Is it possible to avoid loneliness by going through love letters?

Love letters, on the contrary, give an edge on loneliness and project the past on the horizon present.
How is it that our national leaders are so per in delivering speeches in public places?
That is how they have hypnotized the nai with words that raise hopes which are never filled. They ask us to eat words, wear words live and die on words.
Who is the real winner on the race course?
The Government which makes profits with giving us a run for our money.
Define good news?
The defeat of a Congress candidate in the Calcutta elections recently. That defeat was the beacon of democracy.

MITTU ROW (Waltair)
Would you take a hand if permitted to reorganize the South Indian film industry? How?
That is improving only one man, Vasan, who I can give a correspondence course when necessary.
The South Indian film industry begins and ends in one man and that is why it is hardly an indu

M. K. ADVANI (Bombay)
What will be the fate of Madrasis after the recognition of Hindi in Parliament?
They will be once again relegated to their position in Ram Rajya with a few Angads and Sr ris of Ramayan acting as representatives of a di province.
Compare “Apna Desh” with “Deccan Queen”?
“Deccan Queen” never insulted the unforturefugee women by branding them as traitors to the country. If the refugees had a backbone “Apna Desh” would not have been on the screen too

MISS T. PAI (Bombay)
Is dignity inherent or assumed?
Assumed dignity is affectation.
What is the percentage of idiots to geniuses in the film industry?
The idiots of the film industry are outside the streets, people who pay for idiotic pictures.
When do our nails remind you of claws?
In clubs when I see the cats with pointed and painted nails.
Isn’t everyone secretly a Narcissus?
With the only difference that the mirror has replaced the fountain.
I love Napoleon!
Quite safe! You won’t have cradles.

N. VISWESWARIAH (Bangalore)
Why do some people grow beards?
Probably to hide the barber’s itch or facial eczema.

A. RAMANATHAN (Poona)
What will the Yankees do if they miss dollars?
They will holler and won’t let the rest of the world sleep.

P. JHUNJHUNWALA (Kanpur)
What is the difference between the graves of martyrs and traitors?
The martyr’s grave intrudes on us with its tombstone of memory while the traitor’s is politely silent.

Is pain palpable?
Physical pain often screams while mental anguish sheds only silent tears.
When is laughing a necessity?
When ministers ask you to study under the municipal lamp post and mayors forget to put oil in the lamp.
When does a widower remember his wife?
When mere memories can’t warm a cold bed.

K.S. KUMARI (Vizagapatam)
Is marriage necessary for every girl?
Men never insist on the ceremony.

N. SYAL (Delhi)
Is Raj Kapoor handsome?
No, but he is not repulsive either.

BHASHARAN (Madras)
Why don’t the Indians call their wives as ‘darling’?
They do so in the cities but they never mean it.
What do you think of Madras politics?
Is there anything to think about them? They are so obvious.

I. KAJI (Bombay)
What is a sense of humour?
The toleration shown by our people towards the idiotic speeches of our leaders.
What would happen if barbers go on strike?
We shall all become education ministers like Maulana Abul Kalam Azad.

Z. BHASKAR W. (Madras)
Why don’t the Indians call their wives as ‘darling’?
They do so in the cities but they never mean it.

R. NADGONDA (Dharwar)
Do you know, Mr. Patel, the postal envelope now contains two annas?

I know and the weight of the extra postage has made its journey slower than before.

S. AHIJUVALLA (Delhi)
What is there honourable and noble about a soldier?

If his willing consent to give his life for his country. Do you know that soldiers always die young?

AHZADAKHAN ZAROBWAL (Bombay)
Could you tell us why Dilip Kumar was not invited to Kamini Kaushal for her birthday party?

His absence was suggestive but I am told that Dilip is a boy of retiring disposition and does not like crowds.

What was the exact time and place when you first met your wife-cum-secretary?

At 8.30 p.m. on the 15th of January 1942 at the Wayside Inn on Rampart Row, Fort, Bombay, India. Let me know what the future has in store for us.

LEELAVATI MENON (Madras)
Do you think the creation of an Andhra province could end this ministerial tussle in Madras?

More provinces—more ministers—more tussles. I would like to see all the provinces turned into as many Commissioner’s districts and ruled from the Centre with a single legislative assembly. We shall then have some peace, unity, uniformity and efficiency. The present provincial autonomy is making a mess of our freedom which the ever-hungry Chinese may roll one day on their red tongues.

VELJI (Jamshedpur)
Should a girl marry a man who snores during sleep?

A snoring man is better than an empty bed.

Why do Hindus take off their shoes before entering an emple?

To keep the street dirt out of the temple and not to trade in old shoes for new ones.

GHUNATH DAS (Darbhanga)
Please name the producer who is kind and sympathetic to his workers?

Chuni Lall of Filmistan who distributed a lakh of rupees to his workers very recently.

Hon’ble Thakin Nu returned with hope. What hope?

Same hope which China’s Chiang entertained.

VANTILAL K. DOSHI (Bombay)
How is it that brothels are still flourishing opposite Congress House in Bombay with the Congress Government in power?

Probably to prove that white-capped Congressmen can remain saints with sin facing them. It sounds like an illicit distillery in the lap of the prohibition police.

A. DE’ CRUZ (Nagpur)
How many more times you expect to marry?

These Congress laws have cut short an enterprise career.

Could you tell me the exact number of times you laugh per day?

I am not so extravagant as to laugh every day. The last time I laughed was when I saw Shanta-ram standing like a Congress volunteer beside Minister Morarji. Previous to that the sight of Chandulal Shah in an English suit while on way to Geneva gave me a severe stomachache laughing for days.

S. K. AGARWAL (Lucknow)
What is a college romance?

Usual a theory for a future domestic laboratory—sometimes an actual rehearsal of the future experiments.

S. C. SIVANANJAPPA (Sangenahally)
In which role has K. A. Abbas succeeded: as a journalist or as a platonic lover?

Judged by the money he earns, Abbas is a successful journalist. Platonic loving is an honorary pastime.

ARIAN D. BHARWANI (Ootacamund)
Why is Sardar Patel called “Vir Hanuman”?

Because he was the first lieutenant of our “Rama” saint.

Why has twenty-three months of freedom failed to produce even an Indian national anthem?

We are trying to describe our freedom before we sing about it.

FILMINdia

What is the difference between Stalinism and Communism?

Stalinism is the fascist form of Communism.

How is it that after so many years of hard and intelligent work, your bank balance does not show big figures?

Journalism is not a textile mill for turning cloth into currency.

Why does the entertainment tax vary from province to province?

In the present Congress Raj it is dangerous to use the word "why". The ministers themselves do not know why they are doing what they are doing these days.

SHANKER G. MAKHIJANI (Curacao)

Has Government of India done anything for the Sindhi refugees in India or are they only given hopes?

Don't worry about the Sindhis. They are doing fine and have turned their erstwhile hosts into refugees now. You can't use DDT against the Sindhis so they grow and multiply fast.

SHEEL C. JAIN (Delhi)

Are women really the source of inspiration?

Yes, they drive you to work to give the grocer, the milkman, the servants, the landlord, the dhobie etc.

A. N. SHIKHARE (Bombay)

What is the last refuge of a defeated politician?

A defeated Congressman becomes a Socialist. A defeated Socialist becomes a Communist. After that there is no defeat. Everyone becomes a Stalin. What is the result of morality going out of politics?

We get prohibition laws, anti-bigamy laws and other vindictive and pseudo-moralistic measures. The morality of politics lies in combining the largest measure of freedom to the individual with the least amount of interference from the State.

MADAN SURAJ SOLANKI (Jodhpur)

Is garlanding a proof of real greatness?

Greatness of heart of the man who garlands, seeing that those who are garlanded so often turn out to be narrow-minded bigots.

A. ABDULLAH (Dibrugarh)

I saw Suraiya in "Omar Khayam". She is so ugly? Don't say it loudly. Her producers will hear.

SUSHIL KUMAR (Hyderabad Dn.)

Can we call death our own?

You need not be unnecessarily affectionate because death won't disown you.

What is a virtuous woman to her husband?

A silent prayer for his soul!

V. N. MATHUR (Delhi)

Generally young girls of today desire to choose only those persons who want to become henpecked husbands. Why?

Henpecked husbands are symbols of peace and harmony and never ask embarrassing questions.

A. V. NARASIMHAN (Hyderabad Dn.)

What is temptation?

To drink whisky during complete prohibition in defiance of the State laws and doctor's order. What is your value in the money market?

Only the man who borrows has a market value. I live within my income. What will you do if some one sets a price on your head?

If the price is attractive I shall collect the paise and deliver the head.

ANVERALI A. C. (Secondabad Dn.)

Are you a good chaperon for girls of college age?

I have no time to waste on these teenage girls. Can a woman become a prophet?

Every housewife is, the way she preaches.

KAILASH NATH (Laskar)

What is the reason for the present-day increase in crime?

Politics, poverty and prohibition. The other day I saw a Sikh sitting in the barbershop. Can you tell me why he was there?

He must be reading old newspapers. What is wrong with the Congress nowadays?

There is nothing right with it. The Congress is no longer a people's organization.

Should cabinet ministers always fly?

It is all the same to us whether they fly or crawl as most of them never arrive anywhere.

A. KOTESWARA RAO (Tenali)

Why do people enjoy stage dramas more than cinemas?

In a stage drama people feel the hot breath of the living artiste and the moisture of human tears.

A. N. RAMACHANDRA RAO (Madras)

The world is fast passing out of the investment dividend stage. Why?

Because too many dividends were being paid to too few people and too many sweated to do without.

S. S. RANE (Bombay)

Why is man ambitious though he knows he is mortal?

That is precisely why he is so ambitious, squeeze in a long career within a short span.

D. D. TUNGIKAR (Hyderabad Dn.)

What is polygamy?

A virtue of Hindu gods but a crime of Congress raj.

Babu Rajendra Prasad is not given any ministerial post. Why?

He sits up in the night and sleeps during the day. The Secretariat will need an asthmatic dog to keep pace with Babu Rajendra Prasad.

Do you want to improve society from within or without?
Heavens, no! That is the self-arrogated job of our Congress ministers. I want to sell only "film-india".

S. W. SINGH AHLUWALIA (Delhi)
What is the function of money in love?
It is food for Cupid.

NORANJAN DUTTA (Titaghur)
Is peeping a sin?
If what you see is also a sinful act.

HAKUNTALA (Mysore)
Why is the price of coffee powder increasing day by day?
Might be because Narsu, the South India coffee man, needs more money for motion pictures.
What opinion do you hold about Vijaylakshmi did?
She is too old for my opinion. Call her Mama Pandit and solve the problem.
Why have the lady students in Mysore started throwing stones at the ministers' cars?
Those ladies probably want to drive those cars and thus run the state.

ASH RAADZ IRANZ (Singapore)
Does a modern woman like to become an early mother?
She doesn't because motherhood is an orthodox profession but when she risks a husband, accidents must happen.

RAHAKAR (Madras)
What do politicians lack?
They lack everything we expect of them.

JAAYARAMAN (Trichinopoly)
When another member of the British Commonwealth of Nations, is daily adding insult to injury, why Nehru tie India's lot with the British?
Nehru has a new neighbour who still feeds the British bull dog and in doing so threatens India's security. An old enemy is always a lesser risk than a new friend.

HATIA (Meerut)
If you meet a girl in the street and she smiles at what will you do?
I'll hit back with a bigger smile. I am not a man to take things lying down.

RUDHIN AHMED (Ranchi)
What impressed you most in America?
I saw people running, chasing, bending, stretching, shouting, struggling and working all the time. It is difficult to find an American in bed unless it is a hospital bed. In India—alas!

RAJAN (Bombay)
Which part of their body is most highly prized by a man?
They respect all parts except the tongue which they turn and twist unmercifully.
Who is the most beautiful film star—I mean, with cosmetics?
From the present active lot—Madhubala. She has figure, features, womanliness and modesty.

CHAMPA LAL BOTHARA (Jaipur)
I want to give you something as a gift. Please let me know your choice.
Send me a nice 4 carat pink diamond. That is the best a jeweller like you can give. Don't back out now.
Have you saved something for the future?
Nothing much in worldly possessions but the goodwill of a million readers makes me a millionaire.

C. K. NATARAJ (Chalapuram)
We are living in an age of terror?
Yes, terror of our politicians who are wrongly called patriots.

MISS G. A. INDRA (Bombay)
Is horse racing a clean sport?
Very much so! It cleans you out.
Is woman an income reducing agent?
Had she been only that men could have purchased their peace of mind with money but she is a lot more.

VINOD S. KAPUR (Simla)
Why do you hate Communism if you are not rich?
I like Communism as a political doctrine but I disapprove of the violent methods used by the Communists.

Smartly rigged up Sitara makes "Hulchul" a thrilling motion picture and gives K. Asif a new reputation as a producer.
What is Nigar Sultana's address?

Mamajiwalla Cottage, Mahim Bazaar Road, Mahim, Bombay. But approach carefully as Nigar has a rare temper in spite of her attractive smile. What do you think of Dilip Kumar's usually open mouth?

Must be a hungry bloke collecting the studio dust on his tongue.

K. N. SUBRAHMANYA (Mysore)

Pandit Nehru is reported to have presented mangos to George Bernard Shaw. What does that mean?

That mangos are better than our politicians.

G. JAGANNATH PATNAIK (Jeypore)

I am an ale-house politician. What are you?

An arm-chair grumbler.

V. P. SHAH (Bombay)

Do Communists ever lead a peaceful life?

Only when they sleep, I guess, if they sleep at all.

V. A. ABRAM (Bombay)

Do you think the Socialist Party is ripe to take over from the Congress?

When the Congress itself is not qualified enough to rule efficiently, how can you expect this little step-child of the Congress to take over?

B. KISHEN RAO (Bolarum)

Nehru kissed Lady Pamela, Rajaji embraced Lady Mountbatten but Sardar Patel kept quiet. Why?

The Sardar embraced the princes and they disappeared into his large heart.

MISS ASHA KUMARI (Dehra Dun)

What sort of women do film actors fall for? Not the good type, let us hope!

With the exception of a few uneducated rotters most of our film actors are decent married folks who don't believe in chasing other women whether actresses or from the "good type" you presume.

RAMZANALI CALCUTTAWALLA (Secunderabad Dn.)

I am crazy about Kamini Kaushal. I want to write to her; what is her address?

Mrs. Uma Sood, C/o B. S. Sood, Gate Side Clarke Bunder, Mazagaon, Bombay.

S. M. SRIVASTAVA (Meerut)

Why is the U.P. Government ready to spend Rs. 10,000/ to remove monkeys?

Do the monkeys collect a bigger crowd than the Congress ministers? If that be so, the monkeys must be shot because crowds are the essential vitamins of the Congress organization.

MITHU M. WADHWANI (Bombay)

Is there anything peculiar about your dog, Moti?

He is handsome, intelligent and loyal. How many human beings deserve this compliment?

KRISHAN KUMAR KALRA (Bombay)

They also love who stand and stare?

But they tire their eyes and legs.

K. NAGARAJA RAO (Kurnool)

Why are the Mountbattens so much interested in our country?

Their first cousin is the Prime Minister of India.

BISHAN SAHAI (Ghaziabad)

Bombay's Home Minister recently declared that the government would ban all forms of gambling. Is this applicable to marriages also?

No, nor to the privilege of voting for the next election.

MISS PARMATI PANJWANI (Bombay)

Is your mind a magazine of knowledge?

A magazine takes its contents from our minds. Thought is the product manufactured inside our minds.

P. N. RAMACHANDRA (Mysore)

Have beautiful women got beautiful souls?

Women are not known for their souls.

RAJ KEJDIWAL (Kanpur)

Can you tell me why Suraiya is becoming bullheaded by day?

She is competing with her bank account.

Do you approve of smoking by the so-called cultured girls of India?

I hate Indian women smoking, drinking, and doing the rumba.

K. G. S. KRISHNA (Bombay)

What is the place of Communists in India and you fall in line with the government's policy towards them?

If we must have Communism, let it come peacefully and constitutionally and not riding on the bronco from Moscow, kicking and killing poor innocents without rhyme or reason.

HALIMA BEGUM (Secunderabad Dn.)

A Muslim friend argues that Islam is 99% Communism. What do you say?

I disagree. The brotherhood in Islam is spiritual and not an equality in spoils as in Communism. In Islam all human beings are equal in the eyes of God. In Communism all human beings supposed to be equal from the viewpoint of state. There is a difference between God and a white man. Islam insists on charity. Says the Holy Qur'an: "Practise 'salat' and pay 'zakat' to the poor, bow down with those who bow down" (Holy Qur'an Ch. II 43). The words 'zakat' and 'poor' imply that the rich must give charity to the poor. In Communism the rich and the poor don't exist. In my opinion, there is 99% disagreement between Islam and Communism.

Acharya Vinobha Bhave, Mahatma's disciple, travels only first class and is not afraid of public criticism.

How do you like that?

Who is to ask him after Gandhi's death?

He never traveled the way when Gandhi lived.

D. P. OROSKAR (Bombay)

In an article about Pandit Nehru published in an English weekly "Life" (international edition) of August.
y 28th, the author writes “Modern India has the 2nd largest movie industry in the world. It is patronised by subconscious India. Sixty per cent of its pro-duced films deal with this world of racial myths, magic and sly”. Is it true Mr. Patel?
No! The writer is misinformed. Hollywood produces a greater percentage of myths, magic and fantasy than India does. And Hollywood produces in addition a number of perverted problem dramas. As regards the filmgoers, their mental age is about the same all over the world.

LUMAR (Patiala)
What would you do if you go to Kashmir?
Take a houseboat and flirt with girls, if there are any good looking girls around, I won’t write stupid articles about Sheikh Abdulha and sell them to penny papers.
When writers write, whom do they write for?
They write for their grocers but don’t admit it even to themselves.
Which is the costliest picture produced?
Rajkamal’s “Blous”! It was the most expensive mistake of the year seeing that it brought in no returns.

ATARAJAN (Poona)
Are there University degree holders amongst our lancers?
Quite a few but the box-office does not recognise these degrees.

RAJENDRA SINGH (Agra)
Do our film stars ever get jealous of each other?
Jealous? That is hardly the word. They would bite each other if they only got the chance.
Why are memorials not raised for our dead film stars?
Memorials are built for those who serve selflessly. Do you know how much our stars eat, drink and waste when they live?

RAO (Bombay)
We have hardly any female directors in our industry. Isn’t the fair sex suitable for such work?
Somehow when a woman starts doing this work, she remains neither fair nor female.
“Honesty is the best policy.” Which is the worst?
Honesty again, and again!

NAIDU (Vovalpad)
What is it that you like most in our white-capped tucians?
Their humility in bending their heads before garlands.
Why do school teachers make the best wives?
Leela Chitnis was a school teacher and in spite of two marriages she is a lovely soul today.
How to reduce ugly fat?
Neither medicines nor exercise can do this.
Keep away from the dining table as much as possible and the trick is done. The scientific approach is to lessen carbohydrates and fats and concentrate on proteins.

VASUDEV RAO (Bangalore)
How do you avoid the insurance agents?

I show them the old policies and ask them to lend me money to pay their premiums.
What are the highlights of your life?
My life has had no highlights. It has been one long gruelling session of work.
What is horse sense?
The sense which Chandulal Shah displays in picking up Derby winners.

VASANT VARDE (Bombay)
What was the beginning of your success?
Six failures one after another before I realized that people would pay to read what I wrote.

MIRMA (Rewa)
Do the husbands of our actresses live on earnings of their wives?
What else do they marry actresses for?

OUR REVIEW

“Chhota Bhai” Revives New Theatres’ Old Glory!

Kartik Chatterjee Deserves A Salute!

“Chhota Bhai” takes you back to the golden age of the Indian movies when the New Theatres of Calcutta gave us one beautiful picture after another and in doing so lent rare art and purpose to entertainment.

We are so rudely disappointed with the spate of rotten pictures turned out from the studios these days that despite the proverb that one swallow does not make a summer, we still cling to the fond hope that “Chhota Bhai” is the precursor of a series of beautiful creations from New Theatres.

“Chhota Bhai” is a beautiful experience in which one forgets the usually dirty environments of a rotten theatre and lives with the modest and unobtrusive characters of a story which has more in it than the mere antics of a high-spirited, self-willed boy.

The story is a provocative essay in child psychology and an eloquent lesson for parents and guardians entrusted with the care and upbringing of problem children. Taking the too simple, and a little dull story, “Ramer Sumati”, written by the late Sarat Chandra Chatterjee, Kartik Chatterjee, the director of “Chhota Bhai”, has made a picture which, in its human appeal and social purpose, far surpasses the original work of the great author. It is like putting life into clay models and creating a vivid world of ideals and emotional conflicts.

LOVE AS CURE

It is all about Ramlal the young step-brother of Shyamlal a middle-class wage-earner. Ramlal is an orphan entrusted to the care of Narayani, Shyamlal’s wife. Narayani seemed to love Ramlal more than she did her own little son Govind. Probably because Ramlal was an orphan, possibly because he was a step-child in the family and certainly because everyone else hated Ramlal. Narayani protected the boy with all her love. To the boy, Narayan was the only goddess of his little world.

Ramlal nursed almost a very keen sense of justice and fairness and tried to mend the ways of the world with his impetuous and childish methods of retribution which made him a terror among the people of his village.

Incidents after incidents, which look like so many pranks of a spoilt and self-willed child but which are in fact expressions of the inner conflicts of a high-spirited child, contribute to portray the character of Ramlal who is hated by everyone but his ever-loving, always-understanding Bhabhi. Though the world around including her own husband, sees such a lot of evil in the little boy, Narayani, with her eternal motherly love, cannot see anything bad in him. It is this loving faith of Narayani that ultimately helps the boy to adjust himself to the expectations of the world and assume normal behaviour.

After showing a series of childish pranks in an indirect manner, the director brings Digambari, Narayan’s old, shrewish mother, to portray a direct conflict and lend the story its intimate soul.

Digambari creates numerous embarrassing and heartrending situations in which the soul of the little boy gets his callous hammering from a cruel world till it cannot bear any more and the climax is reached when the little rebel relinquishes his struggle in the loving lap of his Bhabhi.

MOLINA’S SUPERB PERFORMANCE

The production values are in keeping with the old standard of New Theatres—the standard we have learned to love. Without a single crazy angle, the photography is at once beautiful and effective. The Hindi dialogue of Mohanlal Bajpai is perfect with the solitary exception of the word “Langhan”, used twice by Digambari, which only educated Hindus can understand. Pankaj’s music does not at all intrude but mixes well with the emotional pattern of the story. Only the last song of the boy looks detached enough to be an after thought. It is, however, very effective.

It is a pity that a superb artiste like Molina is not seen on the screen more often these days. In the role of Narayani, she lives the role of an ideal mother, the greatest poetical solitaire of the world. No one could have done better.

Both the boys, Shakoor and Khurshid, in their respective roles of Ramlal and Govind, do extremely well as maiden artistes. Rajlaxmi is good as Digambari in spite of her diction of Hindustani having the round Bengali tone. Mohinder gives a good stoic performance as Shyamlal, the middle-class drudge.

In short, “Chhota Bhai” is a picture worth going a long way to see. And it is worthy of the old reputation of New Theatres. Thanks to Kartik Chatterjee. whoever this guy is!

Did you dust your grey matter with “Grey Dust”?
Whatever the danger, human beings still need entertainment. Here is Kamini Kaushal giving one of her popular dances.

Cuckoo is caught by a crowd of clowns but not for long. Once she gets going on the screen, people go crazy with her grace and rhythm.

“Shabnam” seems to be a dance lover’s paradise the way several impressive dances are executed. Here is Paro adding grace to entertainment.

Filmistan’s ‘Shabnam’ is at last on the screen at the Roxy cinema, Bombay. Tear page from the scarred history of Burma during Japanese occupation. Director B. Mitra has given us a thrilling tale of sighs and P.S.

It is punctuated the people in France for safety shelter. Producer Verjee seems to have placed all the resources of the Filmistan Studios at his disposal to make the film at once thrilling and entertaining.

Kamini Kaushal and Dilip Kumar, well-matched in all respects, become ideal lovers of the screen and lend a strange realism to the romance which surprises people.

Cuckoo, that pretty poem of curves and contours, sends a million hearts perambulating when she swings her hips to the rhythm of music.

And "Shabnam" is not without its grim drama with Jeevan becoming a menace to two young girls.

OUR REVIEW

"Char Din" Presents A Pretty Suraiya!
Sadiq’s Direction Saves A Poor Story!

If the story of “Char Din” had been thoroughly criticised prior to shooting we would have without doubt got more logical, more dramatic and certainly more purposeful a picture than at present. As seen on the screen “Char Din” presents a clumsy story which in spite of expensive presentation fails to appeal. The producers seem to have spent neither lavish nor the story was hardly worth the trouble seeing that similar stories have already appeared on the screen many times before.

It is a story of a rich England-retumed heiress who, obsessed by the Western way of life, keeps demanding all the freedoms for the air sex. Her reversion to the Indian way of thinking, of course through the magical touch of love for a tall man, provides the entire dramatic material of the story.

FARCICAL SEQUENCES

Rai Saheb, a wealthy businessman, returns home with his daughter Hakuntala after seven years’ stay in England. Rai Saheb is shown as being absorbed the right things from the West while Shakuntala has evidently picked up the wrong ones. Shakuntala is soon on her toes addressing crowds of women and making them rebels. With one lecture of hers, we see wives leaving their husbands in odd costumes and Muslim begums tearing off their purdah.

There is a pandemonium among the men who lose their wives with an ease that suggests that they did not even deserve to hold them. They all rush to Rai Saheb and complain about Shakuntala’s teachings. It is planned to enlist the help of Deepak, a poet and writer, as a cure for Shakuntala. How Deepak is qualified for this job, we are not told. Deepak and Shakuntala soon clash and part. Now an old learned Brahmin, called Panditji, is brought in. Shakuntala tolerates him but his teachings fall on deaf ears.

Shakuntala now tries to run an insurance company and as expected makes a mess of it. But the story writer shows a greater ignorance of an insurance organization than Shakuntala does with the result that all these sequences are reduced to a farce.

Deepak appears at the office of the insurance company and takes some photographs of the women there in a hand to hand fight. Shakuntala decides to destroy these photos and in trying to do so is trapped in Deepak’s cottage. Now begins a sequence of shrew taming which kindles sparks of love on both sides.

BAZIDPURI’S BHAGWAN!

Shakuntala now becomes the traditional Hindu cow too quickly. She accepts silently her father’s choice of a husband for her. Her wedding to a stranger is soon fixed without a word of protest from Shakuntala. Deepak quits the scene and Shakuntala soon goes chasing him supported by Panditji.

God (Bhagwan) now takes a hand in Bazidpuri’s story and discovers a previous wife of Randhir, the betrothed. Bhagwan drops her in the lap of His priest to be used at the very last moment.

The last moment is the wedding time when Panditji produces Randhir’s first wife and supports the Congress government’s anti-bigamy law in an impassioned speech. Randhir is chased out and Deepak is put in his place and married to Shakuntala.

The story is limpy and illogical. The writer has introduced most of his characters without portraying their social and personal background. Shakuntala’s reversion to the old Hindu way of life is too sudden. The rebellion amongst married women is too farcical to contribute to the theme. Rai Saheb’s character does not carry conviction in the story. There are two limping characters in the story unnecessarily. They lend their limp to the tempo and make the picture slow. The hero, who is supposed to be a writer, poet and man of ideals, is shown as a crank and with this complexion he does not help the theme. In fact, almost all the characters in the story are portrayed in too frivolous a strain to become dramatically effective. Thanks to Azm Bazidpuri!

GOOD CAMERA WORK!

The picture is produced on a lavish scale and you can see a lot of money sprinkled over the wedding scenes and other sets. Deepak’s house is an attractive set. Photography is attractive. Suraiya has been intelligently photographed and looks almost pretty in parts. The music is poor and so are the lyrics which have words and sentiment alien to the Hindu characters of the story. A qawwali, however, is well sung. Cuckoo’s dance is as graceful as her person. Sadiq’s picture presentation is very attractive. In fact his good direction saves the story from being completely boring.

From the players, Suraiya makes a good impression as Shakuntala, the heroine. The cameraman has given her face a new complexion and moulding. She should hire this cameraman for her future pictures.

Suraiya’s “modern” costumes, as designed by Maison Vienna, are to say the least clumsy and idiotic. The square-shouldered coat which she carries looked stupid, so did the short jacket.

Om Prakash, in the role of the “Holy Father” as Randhir calls him, gives an excellent performance without the unnecessary limp. Shyam has hardly anything to do as the hero except carrying himself about and keeping himself handy.

Jayant fails to convince as Shakuntala’s father. His poise and make-up needed age. Randhir over-acts as the West-struck youth. Badri Prasad’s limp takes the knavish aspect out of his role. A straight portrayal would have suited him better.

In short, “Char Din” is quite good time-killer and the star-cast likely to attract crowds.

Did you dust your grey matter with “Grey Dust”?

"Anokha Pyar" Presents An Old Story!

Bad Recording Kills The Music!

This picture is called "Anokha Pyar" (Uncommon Love) but its titre uncommon aspect begins and ends with the title. The story is one than merely common. It is, on the other hand, boringly familiar. "Anokha Pyar" is the old romance prescription in which two girls desperately in love with the same boy and keep sighing and singing with the pendulum movements of their hero till one of them throws away the sponge at the end and the other throws her arms round his neck.

A FANCY FLOWER-GIRL!

Though common in its main plot, the picture is yet uncommon in other aspects. It has, for instance, a beautiful young flower girl, all alone in the world, selling flowers to insensible customers and living on her visible earnings with smart and very visible costumes. She has in addition enough surplus to lend a little money to the local barber.

This flower girl meets only odd characters like the barber, the goonda and a couple of other crazy people. In the town where she lives, there are no other women except her val. Geeta, and her two old aunties, is evidently a town of seven men and four women with a maid thrown in for grace. And yet the town has a book publisher with a printing press that turns out a best-seller within a short time and with its sales makes the author rich enough to hire a big house and buy a car. And you say that India is an illiterate country. As if to make up for the ortage of men and women in the ain sequences of the story, the oducer introduces a small crowd of disreputables in a party which the publisher gives to the young hero.

The picture has a six-feet wide ver, it is called a blood-thirsty ver, which either begins or ends the ruins of some old palace with rich the setting man stops the fur-

LOVE WITH BOTH EYES!

All the row is about a hungry-looking young writer, Ashok, whom Bindiya, the flower-girl, discovers on the riverside—the same six-feet wide river mentioned above. To throw this hungry-looking man into the arms of his ultimate lady-love, the story writer brings a goonda on the scene. The goonda delivers a neat one on the hero's eye and the hero becomes temporarily blind. Bindiya takes Ashok to a near-by doctor who has a daughter named Geeta. After four blindfold days Ashok opens his eyes on Geeta and falls in love with her with both eyes open. That starts it on both sides.

Bindiya also falls in love with Ashok without, of course, Ashok knowing it. The doctor now kicks the bucket to inject some pathos into the story. The pendulum of love now starts swinging to and fro to the sad rhythm of sighs and songs. Both the girls sigh and sing at regular intervals making the whole screen wet with tears. Refusing to go unnoticed, the hero also raises a wail or two on his own and makes the story quite pathetic till he nurses the idea of committing suicide. But the audience is not so lucky as to see the floating corpse of the hungry-looking hero.

The two girls, Bindiya and Geeta, with their strange love for an old man, arrive at an understanding and decide to save the hero who keeps looking into the river but doesn't jump in. Geeta ultimately claims Ashok and Bindiya goes out of block for good.

To say that the story is stupid is to put it modestly.

SONGS OR ONIONS?

With the exception of the photography, which is very attractive in parts, there is hardly anything to commend in the picture. Anil Biswas has given us a rehash of all old tunes and even these are badly recorded. In fact, bad recording has killed the old music completely. Probably it deserved to die because of its age. The different Muslim lyric writers have let out Urdu and Persian sighs through the mouths of Hindu characters. They emit the foul breath of onions through the young lips of Bindiya and Geeta. The solitary lyric of Gopalsingh Nepali is the only appropriate composition in the picture.

From the players Nalini Jaywant, though still too chubby, makes a praiseworthy attempt to stage a comeback in the role of Bindiya. Nargis is very well photographed and gives a subdued performance as Geeta. Dilip Kumar could have given a better performance but he seems to have missed his favourite heroine. Kamini Kaushal, Kesarbai and Amirbai, the two aunties of the heroine, tickled the audience with their antics.

Well, if you do not mind seeing an old story once again, you may like "Anokha Pyar". It has a star-cast that draws the crowds.

OUR REVIEW

"Dil-Ki-Duniya" Draws Crowds
At Kamal!

Mazhar Khan’s Masterly Performance!

It was a happy surprise to see another picture from Mazhar Khan. Quite a few people had thought that Mazhar Khan has had enough of motion picture production to be up and doing once again. But in “Dil-Ki-Duniya” he is back again with a vengeance with all his flair for something new and dramatic.

Mazhar is a very sincere and conscientious producer. He always strives to give something different, something sensible and something ambitious. He never uses the usual risque and poisonous box-office prescription to regale the idiotic masses to make mere money.

“Dil-Ki-Duniya” is a picture in keeping with these ideals of its producer. Not that the picture is anywhere near being perfect but it has in it seeds of thought and versatility in addition to the picture having well-balanced production values.

MISUNDERSTOOD MAN!

It is a story of a lone man who has suffered much in life and seen his affectionate attachments being torn away from him one by one. The last one whom Lalaji loses is his only grown-up daughter who dies suddenly whilst singing to the rhythm of Lalaji’s sitar.

Lalaji cannot get over this shock and he sees a glimpse of his daughter every time he listens to the sitar. Faced with grief, he weeps green by peering in the face of every damsel he sees, Lalaji is soon misunderstood as a vicious old man with a weakness for young women. The village folks, wallowing in the muck of their own filthy thoughts and veiling their vision with shades of their own sins, condemn this afflicted old man as sex-obsessed maniac and describe him as a menace to society. Little did they realize that the old man was searching for a daughter to cover up the affectionate love he had for his own departed one and in doing so quench the thirst of his ailing heart.

One day the ever-searching old man meets Lalna, a street dancer, and in her sees the glimpse of his own daughter. When Lalna’s own father died, she shifts herself to Lalaji’s house to live as his daughter.

The old man is happy again but the villagers twist his comradery to suit their own evil minds and plan punitive measures against both, Lalaji and Lalna.

Lalna has in the meantime fallen in love with Anil Kumar, a wealthy young man, whose married life is vitiated by his scheming brother-in-law who has helped to alienate the wife from her husband.

Unhappy and miserable in his own home, Anil meets Lalna on the hill near the village and snatches some hours of bliss in her company. The town starts talking now as all towns do but Lalaji doesn’t yet hear the scandal.

Pretty soon the villagers smash Lalaji’s shop and home and compel him to take up work in Anil Kumar’s household. There Lalaji meets Neena. Anil’s wife, and with his experienced eyes he sees the tragedy of a broken home.

Very soon, Neena’s brother makes an attempt to poison Anil to appropriate his wealth. But fate holds the poison up in the wrong hand and takes it to the wrong lips, killing Billo, the young sister of Neena. The brother now quits the field in fear, leaving Neena alone to face her destiny.

At this stage Lalaji learns of Anil’s love affair with Lalna. He comes home a sad and miserable man and talks to Lalna about Anil’s young wife. He points out to her the folly of building her love nest on the ruins of a married home. The girl goes to the hill top to meet her lover for the last time and there she succeeds in convincing Anil of her disloyalty. Anil rushes back to his waiting wife but Lalna does not return home in time.

Lalaji rushes to her rescue despite the steep climb and the waters of a burst dam rushing out in a death dealing fury. Though the dam suddenly appears in the story to help Mazhar Khan revive the memories of his work in “Padosi”, the rushing waters provide a dramatic ending to the story when they drop the final curtain on the physical existence of Lalaji.

It is a pathetic ending.

MAZHAR’S PET ROLE!

The picture is very well produced, with the exception of the crazy-angle shots which Mazhar uses without any psychological reason. The music of Pandit Gobindram is very attractive. The photography is pleasant throughout. The dialogue is philosophic and beautiful in parts. Mazhar Khan’s direction is very good.

Mazhar Khan, who takes the camera most of the time, plays the old grief-stricken Lalaji. Mazhar Khan delights in such cranky, melodramatic roles since the one he played in Debiu Babu’s “Sonhea Sawar”. He gives an excellent performance in the present role too and takes thundering applause whenever his fingers deftly move over the sitar.

Munnawar Sultana looks pretty in this picture, thanks to Saju Naik. She plays Neena with the requisite dignity and emotion; Geeta Bali plays Lalna and gives a smart performance in addition to a smart dance.

Jaswant, evidently a new boy, plays Anil Kumar. His little figure, puerile poise, jerky movements, and blank face—all shrivel out in a chorus his utterly amateurish effort.

Well, “Dil-Ki-Duniya” is a melodramatic affair which may appeal to the crowds all over the country. It has attractive music in addition.

OUR AMBASSADOR TO HEAVEN!

At 10 p.m. on the night of Tuesday 28th June, Dixit, ace comedian of the Indian screen, took his usual injection, wished his doctor goodnight and went to sleep.

At 4 a.m. in the morning of 29th June, he woke up in heaven. Dixit slept into eternity. When his young nephew, who had been his son and heir, dropped in at five in the morning to see whether his uncle wanted anything, he found Dixit dead. The doctor said that Dixit had died of heart failure an hour earlier.

For eleven long months, Dixit, the man who had brought smile and sunshine into the lives of millions of his fans, lay groaning with severe heart pain and dropped big chunks of his weight from month to month, till he had become a fourth of his old self. Showing his thin, shrunken legs to Baburao Patel on his last Sunday Dixit had said "People paid for my fat. Now all the fat is gone and with it my star value."

Manohar Janardan Dixit, Dada Dixit as millions called him, was born at 11.5 p.m. on the 12th of November 1906 at Sinnar in the Nashik District where his father was a district judge. After a scrappy education and a number of frustrations in his early youth, Dixit took up the screen as a career and for the first time appeared before the camera on November 14th, 1929. The picture was called "Sparkling Youth" and was produced by Navjivan Studios. By June 1948, Dixit had worked in over 75 pictures—4 silent and the rest talkies—his last being "Pugree", produced by All India Pictures.

Dixit had good friends and no foes. And that is a great compliment in these times of man eating man. A superb artiste, with a new face for every mood, Dixit will never be replaced on the Indian screen. Philosophic and scholastic in his approach to life, Dixit could quote verses and paragraphs from Sanskrit and English classics with an ease that surprised professional scholars. (For his complete biography read Filmindia January 1947 issue).

As the news of Dixit's death spread, all the studios in Bombay were immediately closed as a mark of respect for the great artiste. His funeral was attended by all in the film industry and as human flesh disappeared into smoke, many a touching tale was told and retold of Dixit's loving idiosyncrasies which had kept the industry giggling behind the screen for 20 long years.

We mourn a friend and may he take his wit to the other world to punctuate its ascetic virtue with some earthly humour!

SHANTARAM DEFEATED!

Bombay; June 22.

At the annual elections of the Indian Motion Picture Producers' Association, held on Tuesday the 21st June, the following office bearers were elected:—Mr. J. B. H. Wadia, (popularly known as 'gentle Jamsu') President; Mr. C. J. Desai, Vice President and Mr. M. A. Mughni, Treasurer.

The following 11 members were elected for the Executive Committee: Mr. Chandulal J. Shah; Mr. Chuni Lal; Mr. D. J. Bhat; Mr. S. C. Modi; Mr. J. G. Mehta; Mr. R. G. Pandya; Mr. Jaimini Dewan; Mr. Mehboob; Mr. M. Bhavnani; Mr. C. D. Desai and Mr. Harish.

Mr. V. Shantaram and Mohanlal T. Shah who stood for the election were defeated.

Hollywood's 'most eligible bachelor', film star James Stewart (41) will be bachelor no longer. Mrs. Gloria Hatriek Mc Lean, a former New York model, has hooked him.

Jimmy and Gloria will be married as soon as Jimmy is free from his acting commitments. Mrs. Gloria Mc Lean, was once married to Edward B. Mc Lean Jr., of Washington. She has two children.

CASTE SYSTEM IN AMERICA!

Hollywood, June 25.

Believe it or not, 'Jim Crow' exists even in the realm of motion pictures in America, the self-styled champion of democracy. According to the attractive Negro singing star, Lena Horne, there is a lot of racial prejudice in Hollywood.

Says Miss Horne, "The Negro race is making great advances. What happens to me isn't important. I had lots of trouble when I first bought a house here in 1941. But when I moved a little while back everybody was nice. A lot of my neighbours told me they refused to sign petitions against me because they were getting tired of all this nonsense. Most of the night clubs are friendly. A few might let me in only because I'm Lena Horne. But if they refuse admission to my friends, I won't go in either."

Experience has taught Miss Horne to be contented with her lot. Without bitterness she says, "I learned

No wedding among the upper hundred in New Delhi can be solemnized without the distinguished presence of Pandit Nehru. Mere priests are not enough. long ago not to want anything too hard; then you are not disappointed when you don’t get it. So I go on appearing in technicolour musicals. The studio has to give me singing scenes—ones that won’t be missed when Southern movie houses cut them out. And they always do. They even black out my name in the advertisements. I can’t shake hands with a white person on the screen. And I can’t play straight roles in anything but all Negro pictures. But the worst thing about ‘Jim Crow’ is the inconvenience. We hate driving across town to eat when there’s a restaurant right round the corner. We hate having to live in a restricted neighbourhood that’s miles from our work. It’s just a darn nuisance. But there are more important things than restaurants”.

At the moment, five studios are trying to make movies with Negro themes and this says Lena Horne is the best thing that has happened to her people in the last 300 years. “Hollywood has a great influence around the world. We’ve come a long way in the past few years. But this will do more good than anything. The intelligent people have already abandoned their racial prejudices and the unintelligent ones will also do the same if the pictures become big successes. We don’t care if they practise tolerance just to be stylish. It’s the results we care about”.

“Liberty, equality and fraternity,” screams the Statue of Liberty from the Hudson River. The old dame must blush after what Lena Horne says.

BANNED!
Delhi, June 27.

According to a recent report, the Commander-in-Chief of the Army has issued instructions to the effect that film music should not be played on military brass bands.

This was long overdue as playing silly, meaningless film songs had become a craze and the military band players were no exception to this. In the meantime, the Defence Headquarters have advertised for good martial tunes to buck up the ‘Jawans’.

CRY, BABY, CRY!
Massachusetts, June 25.

The Fine Arts Theatre in Massachusetts, U.S.A., has been furnished with a “cry room” for babies. The room is sound-proof and glass-walled and mothers with crying babies can sit there in peace without having to listen to the angry comments of other filmgoers. The mothers can watch the screen through the glass-wall and listen to the sound track over a public address system loud enough to be heard over the screams and screeches of several babies.

This is, however, not the first of its kind in America. Memphis theatres have similar “cry balconies”.

But what about India? When are we going to give our little piper’s “cry room”? To keep pace with our speed of production, we should set up separate theatres for the piping brats.

BREAKING THE BACK:

Madras, June 17.

Keeping with the relentless tax imposed on the film industry, the different provincial governments, the Government of Madras have levied a new tax on each cinema show in the province with effect from July 1st 1949 in addition to the present entertainment tax.

At first the rates proposed were: Rs. 5/- for each cinema show in Madras city, Rs. 1/- per show in theatres within the area of major municipalities, Rs. 3/- per show in theatres within the area of small municipalities and Rs. 2/- in other areas. This was expected to bring in a revenue of Rs. 14 lakhs to the government.

However, a Select Committee of the Madras Assembly intervened and their recommendations have been accepted by the government although the expected revenue from this source will be only Rs. 5 lakhs.

"LOVES OF CARMEN"

Gauhati, June 25.

The Governor of Assam has in exercise of the powers conferred upon him under Section 7, sub-section (7) of the Cinematograph Act 1918 (11 of 1918), declared the film "The Loves of Carmen" as an uncertified film in the whole of the province.

"The Loves of Carmen", produced by Columbia Pictures, was banned by the Bombay Board of Censors some time ago.

What about West Bengal and other provinces in white caps?

HULLO, MORARJIBHAI:

Cawnpore, June 20.

For not collecting entertainment tax on tickets sold, the license of the Liberty Cinema was cancelled by the authorities.

Minister Morarji Desai of Bombay should adopt this technique to drive them home a few lessons in right showmanship. What about suspending the license of the Liberty Cinema for showing "Loves of Carmen", an uncertified film?

A POPULAR WEDDING:

Bombay, June 20.

Perhaps the most popular and best attended wedding in the film industry during the last ten years took place on June 19th, when Snehatalata, the eldest daughter of Director J. K. Nanda, was married to Madan Mohan, a commerce graduate from Cawnpore.

The College Street in Matunga was completely blocked to traffic with the Singhis, Sethis and the Kapoors—all acting as hosts to a huge crowd of friends and hefty Punjabi relatives of Director Nanda.

Eldest of his five daughters, with Snehatalata's marriage, Director Nanda fulfils only a fifth of his fatherly obligations! And a fifth is reported to have cost over 60 thousand rupees. After that girls can't blame the boys for being in demand. May God bless Snehatalata and may she improve on her father's record of doll-darlings!

A & U OF FILMS:

Delhi, June 19.

The Governor-General has given his assent to the Cinematograph (Amendment) Bill which was passed by the Central Legislature recently.

The amendment provides for two kinds of certificates—"A" certificate, authorizing exhibition to adults only and "U" certificate, authorizing unrestricted, universal exhibition.

As soon as the provincial governments make arrangements to issue the two types of certificates, the Cinematograph (Amendment) Bill will come into force.

Films showing drunken brawls, torture, war atrocities and destruction of human life and property were liked. Such films like "No Ords," "Forever Amber," "Bright Rock" and many westerns were considered unsuitable for children.

The other hand, Mickey Mouse and "Henry V" were considered as just the sort of thing for children.

It is high time Indian children also prevented from seeing horror and gangster films and the morbid themes we see so often in Hollywood pictures.

ART AND COMMUNISM!
Washington, June 15.

With Communism spreading far and wide, it is not surprising to find film stars being connected with the Communist party.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation received information saying that Hollywood actors Frederic March, ward G. Robinson and eight other personalities were members of the communist party.

How about hauling up Indian film stars who get mixed up with Communism instead of confining themselves to art? Balraj Sahani is already in jail but there are more.

Nagpur, June 20.

An amendment proposed by the Indian Government to the C.P. and other Entertainments Duty Act makes it obligatory on the part of cinema managements to pay the entertainment tax on concession tickets also.

The proposed amendment reads: The proprietor may admit any person to an entertainment at a concessional rate subject to the condition that the proprietor will be liable to pay the same amount of entertainment duty as would be payable had the holder of the concession been charged on full payment to the extent to which he is entitled.

Another amendment to the Entertainments Duty Act says that complimentary tickets issued to members of the families of the proprietor, distributor and owner of the film will be exempt from entertainment tax. The maximum number for exemption under this class has been fixed at 3% of the total seats provided in the class to which they are admitted. On all other complimentary tickets, the managements have to pay entertainment tax.

The C.P. Government seems to be stealing a march on Minister Morarji Desai.

MUSICAL FAIR!
Benares, June 17.

The All-India Vikram Parishad is holding an "international musical and theatrical fair" in Benares in December in memory of King Vikramaditya of Ujjain.

Mr. Sampurnanand, Education and Labour minister of U.P., has invited different artists, musicians, dancers from all over the world through their respective foreign embassies in India.

The Parishad is 6 years old and was founded by the late Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya, founder of the Benares University.

The Parishad should, at least, serve as an incentive to our ever lethargic Ministry of Information and Broadcasting by presenting something attractive at the fair.

The measures came into force from June 1st onwards. This will cost the Irish government about Rs. 400,000 annually.

In India, the government is literally fleecing the film industry by levying new taxes every day.

WHAT ABOUT BOMBAY?

Lucknow, June 18.

The U.P. Government propose to go ahead with their rural education plans. For this purpose, 25 mobile film units will be utilized with every single film unit for two districts. The Government of West Bengal also made out an ambitious scheme of imparting education toiterate adults and children in the province through the help of films.

At present, however, they need help against Communism.

CELLULOID FOOD!

Lucknow, June 15.

To help Prime Minister Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru in his enthusiastic “Grow More Food” campaign, the U.P. government began the shooting of their first documentary film in the village of Dhakni, Hardoi district.

Evidently the shooting of the film offered an opportunity to the officials for a motor trip. Mr. C. B. Gupta along with Mr. Bhagwan Sahai, food commissioner and Mr. M. L. Tewari motored to Hardoi to witness the shooting of this great film.

Haven't we enough films from the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting to make our eyes sore and is the government going to fill empty stomachs with only celluloid?

WELL DESERVED!

Bombay, June 16.

In order to push the films produced by the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting down the throats of the exhibitors, the Government of Bombay have inserted a new clause in the cinema license providing for the compulsory exhibition of such films of approximately 2000 feet in length by the licensee at each performance for such periods and on such conditions as the Assistant Controller of Distribution, Films Division, Ministry of Information and Broadcasting, Government of India may specify.

Bangalore, June 24.

During the Budget discussion in the Mysore Legislative Council on Friday the 22nd June, Mr. H. C. Dasappa, Minister for Finance and Industry, revealed that a few American film manufacturers have approached the Mysore government for starting a raw film manufacturing industry.

MORE Grist:

Bombay, June 14.

The members of the Film Advisory Board were kept busy reviewing the films, newsreels etc. made by the Films Division, Government of India.

Inspite of the high cost of maintaining the Films Division, it seems that the Government cannot produce a sufficient number of films. So 16 documentaries are proposed to be purchased from the film industry in addition to the 36 documentaries and 52 newsreels produced by the Films Division annually.

RUPADARSI

Artist M. R. Acharekar who had once revealed his genius in designing the artistic sets of Kardar’s “Shah Jehan”, has now published a beautiful monograph called “Rupadarsini” (Rekha Publications, Dadar, Bombay 11) priced at Rs. 15/- per copy.

“Rupadarsini” is a miniature university in anatomical art for the advanced student. The book, which has numerous pencil drawings of the human form, both ancient and modern, provides an enlightening and comparative study in art expression which, through ten centuries to the present day, seems to have retained its traditional grace and glory.

It is a book which every student, whose pencil aches for curves and contours, must buy.

YOU ARE RIGHT!
It's a strange thing to notice that none of our producers are still very much interested in minor details in a film. In "Lahore" I saw Karan that was being tried in a court with four persons present.

Did such things ever happen in a city like Lahore? If we remain careless about such details, how can we compete with foreign films? It's because of such idiotic mistakes that we do not like to see Indian films.

CASHING SENTIMENT!
The Diamond Theatre showing in Bombay pictures here is an awful one yet we have to patronise it as it is the only way by which we can see our Indian pictures. There are not enough fans. The broken seats are not repaired. And old pictures are shown here two days at a time and revived several times to make money for the theatre owners. Can we change this state of affairs in our town?

VIJOO'S RABAAN!
Thanks for your unbiased criticism of "Ram Baan" that refrained from spending my hard-earned money on such a stupid and rotten film. Here in Kanpur it was with a great effort that the exhibitor could show this film for a few weeks and in the concluding days with empty houses. The public has to have realized the old tricks of Vijoo and in future they will have the same reception to his mythical products.

I.P.U. T. P. Jhunjhunuwalla.

ES, THANKS TO MORARJI!
I.P.U. people who use the country's passes have to pay the Entertainment Tax before they enter the cinema. Isn't it a system like this that makes us Indian? Do all the people get treated equally?

J. D. Singh.

LOT MORE!
"The other day I had been to see a Kardar Production's "Dillagi". It seems to be a craze with our film producers to have Suraiya in every alternate picture they produce. A picture needs more than mere Suraiya and Naushad's worn-out music to become a success."

Pooran Chandra Pande.

LUCKNOW.

FIND A MAN!
"We feel rather unfortunate that we do not find criticisms and reviews of Bengali pictures in your reputed "Filmindia". Your magazine provides us with information regarding the Hindi pictures only. Filmindia as its title implies, should give a candid view of the Indian screen as a whole and not a part thereof. I do not understand why Bengal should miss your unique and helpful criticism.

"The productions of the Calcutta studios, of late, are straining our nerves beyond the limit of toleration and hence the need of your masterly pen to give a corrective. You may, however, speak of the local film journalists who can help us in this line. But they are worse than worthless. I do appreciate your difficulty in giving reviews of the Bengali films from Bombay. But I think you can appoint some one reliable in Calcutta."

CALCUTTA. Birendra Ch. Gupta.

ME
"If any one reads your magazine continuously for three or four months he is certain to be wedded to "Filmindia" all life. After that it is impossible to 'divorce' filmindia on any account. Mr. Patel! Can you tell me the reason for this?"

TANJORE. Mrs. William Moses.

"APNA TRASH"
Yesterday I had the saddest experience when I went to see Shanta-ram's "Apna Desh". The picture is nothing but trash and a jumbled piece of fantastic ideas. It charges the refugees with anti-national and treacherous activities which no one can ever dream of. I wish you would protest vehemently that such pictures which serve no useful purpose and malign our nation should be banned. It is really surprising how Shantaram could have thought of producing and directing this picture.

when I came here, last November, thought that in a big city like New York I won’t be in need of “filmindia” as I can have many other magazines.

“But after one month I realized that I just couldn’t do without filmindia. I feel just as if I was missing something.” So I wrote to my friend in Bombay and once again I am receiving your magazine regularly. Aren’t we forget our “filmindia” even in America?”.

REHANA’S JOCKEYSHIP!

“As an owner of racehorses you know, no doubt, aware of the fact that it takes years of training to become skilled rider, and none can ride a race without a licence, be he a professional jockey or an amateur. Yet the director of “Chandani” expects us to believe that when a village girl, who has ridden buffaloes and has never known that it is like to be on a horse’s neck suddenly decides to ride in a race, the Stewards do not seem to mind it, and what is more she beats the skilled riders and Chavan in a close finish! I don’t think of a horse that Rehana is riding anything else but a horse.”

BLUSHING TOO EASILY:

“I am a loyal reader of “filmindia”. While I greatly enjoy your witty and witty answers in the Editor’s Mail, sometimes I don’t approve the way you behave towards some of the female readers. To quote a recent example, in June issue “filmindia”, you have called Miss Samuel of Cuttack “darling”. Can’t say how Miss Samuel took it but personally speaking, I actually blushed when I read it.

“Darling” is a word which is used only by people who are very close to each other. In the present case, I wonder if you know that it is about Miss Samuel and the obvious fact that she is a reader. Our civilization, greatly though it has advanced, has yet to reach that stage where men are allowed to address young girls—and unknown too!—as ‘Darling’.

(“Darling” is a term of affection which can be used for any one from a dog to a daughter. It needs not necessarily smell of sex. Ed.)

MORARJI ALWAYS KNOWS BEST:

“After “Shah Jehan” we had hopes of Mian Kardar giving us some sensible and polished social pictures. But it is a long time, if ever, since we have seen a picture that has not betrayed us. We are thankful to him for not allowing the script to be available to him, but the story of “JAZ” is nothing but a mechanically printed series of bits from the biographies of other heroes. The story is so weak that it cannot even be used as an excuse for the miserly acting and direction.”

MORARJI.

Filmindia
The latest presentation "Dillagi" has added insult to the injuries of "Natak" and "Dard".

"The work of Kardar in this picture is a huge fiasco. His direction amateurish and lacks all common sense. His hero remained behind iron bars for a long time but his intent remained that of a gentle man instead of the uniform of the prisoner with the prison number.

"Again in the villages in which our film is depicted we find not even a single cow, animal or human being except the hero, heroine and me others connected with the story. Has he adopted his trade mark of High, Higher and Still Higher for this erratic and sexy film in which we come across dozens of be- thching village belles flying kites, sporting their limbs, passing vulgar obscene remarks about strangers without any sense of modesty?

"Is this our village life, Mr. Patel? Will Mr. Morarji answer this question?" (Mr. Kardar has already shown picture to the Home Minister recently. Editor.)

HULLO, KEKI MODI?

The Plaza theatre, owned by the western India Theatres, Ltd. who own a chain of theatres in different parts of India, is the worst theatre of New Delhi. For the whole of the Lower Stall (Rs. 1-2-0 class, which is the minimum) consisting of about 180 seats, there are only 2 fans, one on each side of the wall. Though we can see some devices for air-cooling, the management is not paying the least attention to make it work. And about the seats themselves, the less said the better. Stuff ed with coir and covered with leather, the seats make the body ache in any posture and the filmgoer deserves to be congratulated for his monumental patience in undergoing this torture for the sake of the film! Due to all these drawbacks, it is most uncomfortable to sit inside the theatre and see a film, much less enjoy it! Has not the management enough money to attend to this most pressing necessity? And what are the health authorities doing?"

K. S. Sankara Narayanan,
NEW DELHI.

WELL, MORARJIBHAI?

"Ghar Ki Izzat" was screened at Colombo a few days ago. A song by the heroine has been made an instrument by the producer to introduce Mahatma’s funeral shots in the film. It is not untrue to say that I, and every other Indian who was unfortunate enough to see the film should have, felt like leaving the theatre the very moment these shots were shown. Our film censors headed by the Hon. Mr. Morarji Desai evidently did not consider the introduction of these shots, quite inconsequential to the main theme of the picture, as exploitation of Mahatma’s name on the part of the producers.

"It is absolutely essential that the censor code should prohibit unncec-

THEY PAY AND READ!

"Filmindia—the very name, its colourful cover and the brilliant pictures on the art paper, inside form rash opinion in a new reader's mind that it is an advertisement gum of film fans. But once you go through it, especially the editorials and the "Editor's Mail", it becomes a veritable book of knowledge and wisdom.

'I lay particular stress on the editorials which deal with burning issues of the day like those of the be issue and advise every politician in power to read the magazine regularly.'

CENSORS AND GIRLS:

Since I came out of the picture house after witnessing Amiya Chakravorty's "Girls' School" I am wondering what this film has to do with women's educational institutions? There is not a single scene depicting how our rustic Indian girls are taught to become 'good mothers, good wives and good sisters' though the headmistress of this "Girls' School" uses this phrase so generously.

"Nowhere do we come across a single shot showing the newly appointed young teacher and the headmistress taking the class but nevertheless we see a good deal about their Leila Majnu 'affairs'. I shudder to think of the consequences that might follow if all the unmarried teachers begin to act in this manner."

KANPUR. T. P. Jhunjhunwala

DILLAGI, AFTER ALL!

"On 12th June 1949 I went to see "Dillagi" produced by Mr. A. R. Kardar. It seems that Kardar who once produced a beautiful picture like "Shah Jehan" has completely forgotten that art and wants to make box-office hits with Suraiya alone.

"The way this picture has failed again shows that our producers should realize that they can now no more cash on Suraiya. Picture making requires good education and talent which producers like Kardar seem to lack. Suraiya, in this film, looks a wooden person and this girl who has neither good looks nor any talent for acting should only restrict herself to music.

"The photography of the film is very dull and barring a couple of catchy tunes from Naushad the picture is a boredom for two and a half hours."

"I fully agree with your suggestion to the Government appearing the editorial for the month of me to have a better check on the price of film booklets and the tax collected on the same.

"But what about the cheap song booklets of almost all the leading ms being sold at the rate of one anna per copy outside the theatres? These booklets are published by some venturous publishers known as Ismails. Sultans and Buranpurwalas on Falkland Road, Bhendi Bazar and Charni Road, not only from Bombay but by Mohmad Ismails, Yusuf, Mohmad Ismails and Buranpurwalas.

"Can't the Government do something to stop this racket which is losing them so much revenue?"

USUAL MONEY-MAKING GAME!

"Hankering, to see the typical Indian phase of life, goads me to the local cinema, where Indian films are projected. Almost a year has passed since I last saw a reasonable, good entertaining picture portraying a true-to-life story.

"It is simply surprising to note that an average Indian dialogue-writer forgets the fundamental basic factor which governs the utterances of various characters on the screen. In order to glorify the sequences, the writer puts high idioms, punctuated with high-flown metaphors and similes, in the mouths of simple illiterate innocent characters. Thus, we find an average peasant girl, leading a rural life and unaware of the modern conventions of society, uneducated and thus ignorant of flashy eloquence, bursting into rhetorical outbursts loaded with literary gems. It sounds all unnatural and unconvincing. The sentiments of a peasant girl are simple and thus should be translated into simple language.

"In Hollywood pictures we do not find the utterances, of the ordinary class of people portrayed on the screen, loaded with philosophical sentiments symbolic of a novelist or a journalist."

"Apart from this, whenever, I see educated artists like Prithviraj, Jairaj, Surendra and Ashok Kumar cast in cheap unconvincing stories, I marvel at the intellect of these

Why in the name of rational dual faculty do these artists ape imitators moving to and the made-to-order sets of the film directors? high time Mr. Patel, that these stress the demand for good acting true-to-life roles which enhance their fame on the ment of filmdom.

AGREED: I went to Hubli to see a picture 'Dekcan Cinema'. Its sur- ngs are very dirty. The in- of the theatre is like a kitchen of an old house. The screen has many patches. The fans need a man with a long pole to give them a start. The chairs are useless for sitting. Even the 1st class chairs have no arms.

"And the sound? Alas, neither song nor dialogue can be heard. Such theatres must be closed because of their uselessness to the public."

Dharwar. H. Hemakeshri.

WISE BUSINESSMEN! "I congratulate the Gramophone Company on their wise decision to withdraw from sale records of songs banned on the screen on grounds of morality. It is ridiculous that while the film censors ban songs as morally harmful to the public, these songs are played everywhere on the gramophone. Ironically enough, they become more popular than others on account of their very objectionable nature. Hence the decision of the Company is indeed gratifying."

BANGALORE. Abdul Rasheed.

AS GOOD AS THEM: "Mr. Patel, I wish to tell you that the picture "Matlabi" which was banned by the Bombay Board of Film Censors ran here successfully for about three weeks.

"It is matter of pity that the Gov- ernment allow such rotten pictures to run overseas.

"Africans are generally fond of such stunt pictures, especially of Bhagwan, because they contain vulgar dances and disgusting actions of Bhagwan.

"The theatre owners are cunning enough to keep such pictures on the last days of the month when the Africans get their salary. While people like me hate such pictures what do you think Africans think of Indians?"

HULLO, CHERIAN! "There are four theatres in the town of Kottayam two out of which are not functioning and the other two are owned by Mr. M. M. Cherian. This is a monopoly town and Mr. Cherian shows whatever rot he likes and never a good Hindi picture.

"As soon as he finishes a Tamil programme, he screens some English picture for one day—you know it is cheap business—and then begins another Tamil torture which lasts for weeks. The idea of showing Hindi pictures does not occur to him it seems!"

T PICTURES (Bombay)
Producers Lala Jagat Narain seem to have come off with flying colours. "Sunehre Din" now running in, almost all over India. Apart from its entertaining story, a couple of new entries have emerged that perhaps explains its success. It is not half of "Shair" has been deleted and the distribution rights of various territories have been sold. "Shair" has a galaxy of stars—Suraiya, Kamini Kaushal, Dev Anand, plus attractive dances from Kamini Kaushal. Two other pictures ready for the release are "Ek Nazar" by Satish Nigam and "Sunehre Din" by Kamini Kaushal.

US PICTURES LTD. (Bombay)
Every day adding to the popularity of "Bari Bahen", it is in order to see crowds still flocking to the box-office and scrambling for tickets. Evidently producer N. Pai carries the box-office in his pocket and comes out with one hit after another. Work at the studios is progressing rapidly. "Hamari Manzil" featuring Prem Adib and Nirupa Roy will soon be ready. "Galyachi Shapath" in Marathi is also nearing completion and the script work of their ambitious picture, "The Life of Swami Ramteerth" is in hand.

FILMISTAN LTD. (Bombay)
"Shalnami" has become the latest craze of filmgoers and is doing excellent business at the Roxy, Bombay, where it is running to packed houses. Producer S. Mukerji, another of our box-office kings, has given all the necessary ingredients to entertain the people. "Shalnami" has one of the popular screen teams—Kamini Kaushal and Dilip Kumar, with eye-filling dances by Paro. At the studios, director Ramesh Saigal is busy with "Samadhi" starring Ashok Kumar and Nalini Jaywant. As for director Sasto-si, he has decided to make "Sargam" a feast of song and dance with Rehana's curves to emphasize word and action. Najam Naqvi has not yet christened his picture though it is ready to go to the sets.

HALDIA NANDA PRODUCTIONS (Bombay)
Director J. K. Nanda is never tired of talking about "Singaar", the picture with an emotional theme. Director Nanda has taken all pains to frame it attractively and we do hope "Singaar" clicks at the box-office. Madhubala, Suraiya and Jane are all reported to have given fine performances and the musical numbers by Khurshid Anwar will certainly add to the entertainment value of "Singaar". "Mehfil", the second of Haldia Nanda productions, has also a moving story and will go to the sets shortly.

NATIONAL THEATRES (Bombay)
Ever-active producer K. Asif is completely at home in the Rang Mahal Studios, which he has taken over recently. Work is going on smoothly and "Hul Chul" is bound to be ready soon if K. Asif continues with his present speed. "Hul Chul" has popular Dilip Kumar starred with Nargis and Sitara, with K. Ojha directing it.

HINDUSTAN CHITRA (Bombay)
Producer-director Kishore Sahu is all smiles since the release of "Sawan aya re" which has earned praise from critics and filmgoers alike. Kishore, however, is not a man to rest on his oars and leaving complacency behind, he is labouring hard on "Rim Jhim" to make it another beautiful motion picture. Once again we have pete and versatile Ramola as the heroine, Kishore as the hero, pretty Mohana for sex-appeal and Mubarak to put over a nice character role.

RATAN PICTURES (Bombay)
"Char Din" had a good run at the Roxy and seems to have been liked by many filmgoers owing to the fine direction of M. Sadiq. At the moment, director M. Sadiq is busy working on "Sabak" with a cast headed by vivacious Munawar Sultana, and character actors like Om Prakash, Nawab and Jagirdar.

DIAN NATIONAL PICTURES (Bombay)
Producer Hiten Choudhary, director Shahid Lateef and story writer Nat Chughtai are all bent on making “Arzoo” one of the best pictures 1949. A lot of “Arzoo” has already been shot and the distribution hits for the South, Bengal, C.P., and Pakistan have already begun. “Arzoo” has the evergreen Kamini Kaushal with her secret screen partner. Dilip Kumar. That itself should make the picture interesting. The lyrics are by Urooj Sultanpur, set to music by Ali Biswas.

ADHUBAN (Bombay)
Producer Prashad is supervising director K. Armanath and helping him to make “Surajmukhi” an attractive picture. “Surajmukhi” has popular stars like Rehana, Shyam, Amat Ali, Durga Khote, Gope and Shobhna Katju and catchy music from Husnalal and Bhagatram.

YOURITE FILMS (Bombay)
Shooting at the Rang Mahal Studios, director Mohamed Hussain has made a good hit of “Roop Lekha”, starring Shyama, Gulnar, Bhagwan and Arvind Kumar. “Roop Lekha” reported to be a good musical medley and we have no doubt about its comedy part of it seeing that Jagwan is featured in it. Distributor Lulla has sold off quite a few rental rights.

J MAHAL PICTURES LTD. (Bombay)
“Chandhi Raat” starring beautiful screen have been a success at Calcutta but Bombay filmgoers will be seeing the pleasure of seeing this picture as it will take some weeks before it is shown at the popular bhetty cinema. Director Ehsan, who hopes to go one better in “Jee Larki” with attractive Naseem, guide and inspire.

S.S. PRODUCTIONS (Bombay)
Director Chhangsey has made good progress with “Chilman” starring Shanta. The screenplay is by Ijazah Mirza and if the name is index to a story, “Chilman” could contain an output of a story. Others in the cast are atima, Shanti, Madhok, Hamid etc. Distribution rights for U.P., Delhi, and East Punjab are with T. K. Talkies Distributors.

GOEL CINE CORPORATION (Bombay)
Producer-director Devendra Goel is one of those who believes in putting speed into his work. No wonder “Ankhen” is three-fourths complete and according to some who had the fortune of seeing the rushes, it is supposed to be an altogether different type of picture. “Ankhen” has co-operative technicians like Keki Mistry and Dada Kothare to enhance its production values and an interesting cast headed by Naushad, Shobhna Katjui and a new find Shekhar. The lyrics are by Pandit Bharat Vyas, S. K. Deepak and Raja Mehendi Ali.

SHAHIN PICTURES (Bombay)
With pretty Nigar Sultana starring in “Khel” and an enthusiastic producer-director like S. M. Nawab, “Khel” threatens to become a good motion picture. Work has already started at the Bombay Talkies Studios. Others in the cast are Dev Anand and Hafeez Jehan.

In the meantime, the paper work of “Angrai” is already ready and has two fine stars like Nargis and Madhubala to add to its attraction. The music of “Angrai” has been entrusted to Husnaldal and Bhagtrarn.

HIMALAYA PICTURES (Bombay)
“Nazrana” has made good progress at the studios under the active supervision of Lt. Col. Drona Sumsher Jung. Director Jagdish Pant is reported to have made “Nazrana” interesting, with coquettish Kamini Kaushal and talented Geeta Bali giving their best performances. The script work of “Naz” and “Nazakat” are ready. One of our best lyric writers, Gopal Singh Nepali, is also reported to be writing catchy words, set to music by C. Ramchandra.

SUPER PICTURES (Bombay)
Director Aspi, one of our modest and hard-working directors, is satisfied with the results he has achieved in “Sipahiya” starring Madhubala and Yakub. The lyrics are by Hasrat Arzu Lucknowi and the music by C. Ramchandra.

ALLIED ART PRODUCTIONS LTD. (Bombay)
Director Mahesh Kaul is shooting “Har Singaar” at the Famous Cine Studios. “Har Singaar” has talented artistes like Madhubala and Dilip Kumar. Their next in the script stage is called “Lehru” and will feature popular Suraiya.

VARUNA FILMS (Bombay)
Working steadily everyday, director Ramchandra Thakur has done more than half of “Roomal”. The two producers, G. A. Thakur and K. N. Kapur have selected a fine cast consisting of Rehana, Nargis, Jairaj, Jeevan, Cuckoo and Badriprasad.

VARMA FILMS (Bombay)
“Patanga” is almost complete at the Famous Studios and stars attractive Nigar Sultana. Quite a few distributors are trying to get the rights of “Patanga”, “Ek Nazar”. Their next, has Rehana as the heroine and H. S. Rawal as the director.

HIND KAMAL PICTURES (Bombay) “Kamal”, their maiden social, has Nayanatara featured opposite Suren德拉. The story is by Y. N. Joshi and S. D. Varma is in charge of music.

INDIAN PRODUCTIONS (Bombay)
At the Eastern Studios, character actor Yakub plays an entirely different role—that of a producer-director and he seems to be doing it well. We do hope, however, he shows the same flashes of intelligence in his direction that he does in acting. “Aeye” features favouites like Sulochna Chatterjee and Nigar.

Through ages women carried their burden in the front. Now they are carrying the load on the back. Here is one from the Girls’ Division of the National Cadet Corps with a Morse message transmitter.

PEARY PICTURES LTD. (Bombay) Shanti Lok Chitra’s maiden picture, “Gopinath”, written, produced and directed by Mahesh Kaul is with this firm of distributors. It is scheduled for release immediately after “Chandrakala” at the Royal Opera House, Bombay. “Gopinath” stars Raj Kapoor, Tripti Mit Latika, Anwari and Baby Zubedi.

NEW BOMBY THEATRES LTD. (Bombay)
Shrewd producer-director R. Pareenja has disposed of most of the territorial rights of “Tara” featuring Nayanatara, Kuldip, Majnu a Jawahar Kaul. Santoshi has written the dialogue and lyrics. Pareen is busy with his next picture at Central Studios.

SHOREY FILMS (Bombay)
Producer-director Shorey with Meena and others, is reported to have gone to Kashmir for the outdoor shooting of “Ek thi Lakri”. Attractive Meena plays the heroine supported by Motilal, Kuldip and I. Johar. The lyrics are by Az Kashmiri and Vinod is setting the tune.

RANJIT MOVICTONE (Bombay)
“Pardesi Meinhan” is running the Swastik Cinema, Bombay, “Bho Bhoolaiyan”, starring the Kureis sisters, Zeb and Laila and directed by Taimur Behramshah is awaited release.

S.T.F. PRODUCTIONS (Bombay)
Produced by Mr. Sharaf, “Py- ki manzil” is making good progrce at the Central Studios. We can re on director Keki Mistry to give an emotional picture if his direc- tion in “Meri Kahani” is any inde Director Mistry, is in addition, excellent cameraman and he has pretty Munawar Sultana to photog- raph. Others in the cast are Re man and Cope. An additional attrac- tion is the musical score by the popular team—Husnaldal and Bhagaram.

Hinduism And Celluloid Demons!

Of all the deities inherited by the human race through ages, the Hindu gods and goddesses are perhaps slandered the most by film producers in India. The Hindus of India have such tolerant and well-behaved gods and so many of them that even Muslim producers can use and misuse them in an endless rotation or making some easy money.

While our film producers dare not even photograph the Holy Quran for motion pictures, leave alone the heretical misadventure of presenting a human being as the Paighambar, for fear of the screen being torn into shreds and the shreds dyed in human blood, any Muslim or Hindu producer can with impunity get away with his own fanciful conceptions of the Hindu gods and goddesses.

35 years of this mercenary vandalism by different producers has completely changed the face of Hindu gods and made them look so many monkeys and onasters performing impossible miracles at the slightest bid of the film directors and selling millions of tickets or the gold diggers.

Raja Ravi Varma's remarkable paintings of the numerous Hindu gods, giving beautiful mental images of millions of Hindus and creating spiritual altars in our minds have been mercilessly trampled upon by the various hideous characterizations presented on the screen by different producers from month to month tiring the last 35 years of film-making in India.

Never before has the epic history of any nation been so mercilessly raped and distorted as has been the true Hindu mythology. Men who would make monkeys of us and laugh at our deities, who have left behind a lofty altar of worship for millions of Hindus. In the greedy hands of the producers, our gods have lost their spiritual stature and become but so many box-office demons to lure the devout masses to cinemas to see their gods turned into circus clowns of Hinduism slandered in the most vile manner.

With our Hindu gods stripped of their spiritual reverence, with the philosophy of the Hindu way of life sacrificed and with the sacred concepts of Divinity distorted beyond recognition, it is no wonder that our people are fast heading towards Communism, the godless menace for a thousand sufferings. Nothing hits a nation more than to defile its people's spiritual altars and fame its time-hallowed gods.

Persons, whose physical deformities and mental deficiencies make them repulsive members of human society, have often played the roles of gods like Ram, Krishna, Brahma, Vishnu and Mahesh on the Indian screen. They have wrought impossible miracles on the screen, made hideous faces and uttered the immortal words of spiritual wisdom written by peerless sages like Ved Vyas and Valmiki. How can these cheap and revolting portrayals ever contribute to our ancient spiritual heritage?

If it is the intention of our secular state to liquate Hinduism by slowly destroying its spiritual heritage, better iconoclasts than our present film producers cannot be found anywhere. These people can be relied upon to shatter the Kingdom of God and replace it with Satan and hell.

Some recent instances of such vandalism are "Ram Baan", "Ram Vivah", "Narsinh Avatar", "Jai Hanuman", "Ram Bhakt Hanuman" etc.

In "Ram Baan", Ram, our warrior-god whom Sage Valmiki describes as the perfect human being—physically, mentally and spiritually—is played by an actor with a filthy face, short stature, thick and ugly nostrils and sagging muscles. While Sita—the noblest ideal of Indian womanhood, sublime in her physical beauty, spiritual stature and devotion to her husband—is played by an old and emaciated actress, a mother of several children, with bulging anaemic eyes, sunken cheeks, protruding cheek bones, shapeless arms and sagging hips.

Add to this monstrous film portrayal a bulging pregnant abdomen of eight months and you get perhaps the most repulsive picture of Sita whom we are asked to worship as a goddess.

How do such filthy portrayals by a film producer compare with the beautiful conceptions of Ram and Sita, with brush and paint, by Raja Ravi Varma?

If Ram, the eternal soother of millions in pain and the final whisper of dying lips, is permitted to be distorted in such a monstrous manner by our film producers, the spiritual magic of the name that has healed the ailing and the dying through ages shall soon be lost to 320 million Hindus and the heritage of millenniums shall ultimately be reduced to dust.

It is the sacred duty of our popular ministers to protect the religious institutions and culture of our people by stopping these vandals from desecrating our ancient idols of worship and not hurting our religious susceptibilities.
Great Indian Films of Today are shot with a Mitchell

The MITCHELL STUDIO MODEL "BNC" is a truly silent camera for sound photography. No blimp is required. It's smooth, positive operation saves many costly hours of production time. Since the introduction of the "BNC" more and more major studios have made it standard equipment.

ANOTHER PROGRESSIVE PRODUCER TAKES TO MITCHELL B.N.C

Mr. A. R. Kardar, Ace Director and Proprietor of Kardar Studios, Bombay, is one of the most discriminating in the choice of studio equipment. His selection of Mitchell B.N.C. is yet another proof the important role Mitchell is playing in Indian Studios.
Every new leader is a symbol of the hopes and frustrations of the people and a symptom of the change that is imminent in a nation's life. So is Guruji Golwalkar, the Sarasanghchalak of the R.S.S., who has been recently thrilling millions all over the country with his message of hope for the revival of Hindu culture and traditions.

The Muslims have a right to object to the portrayal of their religious legends on the screen. The Christians don't let any producer show Christ on the screen. The Buddhists scream whenever the life of Lord Buddha is planned for the screen but in a country essentially populated by the Hindus, Hindu gods are mocked at in a disgusting manner and made the laughing stock of the world. And all this at the hands of a few mercenary producers, many of them Hindus, and with Hindu ministers in their power posts.

Motion picture producers cannot understand the language of persuasion, however sincere and well-meant, but they can certainly understand the smallest letter of law and we demand that our film producers should be stopped by a law from producing pictures and presenting portrayals that bring into contempt the Hindu gods and heap ridicule on our entire spiritual heritage.

If the ministers of our secular state cannot protect our altars from the vandalism of our film producers, it is high time that the Hindus themselves rush to the rescue of their cultural and spiritual heritage to save it from these demons of celluloid.

Doesn't the Bhagvat-Gita give the Hindus this sanction in the following words of the Lord Himself:

परिश्राणाय साधुनि विनाशः च हुस्कातम ।
ब्रह्मसम्बन्धाय संभवाये पुरो युगे ॥

Sound engineers prefer Gevaert films for the many advantages they offer. The major virtues are an extremely finegrain emulsion with a colour sensitivity restricted to blue and violet. Added to this advantage is the incorporation of a special dye which reduces irradiation to a negligible minimum. Consequently, these Gevaert films possess a very high resolving power, registering the highest frequencies with the utmost accuracy.

GEVAERT ST-2 is a film of full contrast, high speed, good resolving power and high transparency. It is ideal for registering by the "constant".

GEVAERT ST-4 is a new finegrain sound-film for variable area recording. Very high contrast and about the same speed as ST-2, No background noise.

"HIS MASTER'S VOICE"

THE GRAMOPHONE CO., LTD. CALCUTTA BOMBAY MADRAS DELHI
ASAN AND BOMBAY PRODUCERS!

By producing "Chandralekha", S. S. Vasan of Gemini Pictures, Madras, has not only stormed all the box-offices all over the country but has also shaken the morale of the Bombay producers.

In their anxiety to see this wonder man of the outh who has again given a box-office smasher in "Nishan", the Bombay producers give Vasan expensive and dinner parties in an all-out effort to understand him and know a few of his production tricks. Vasan as no secrets to tell except that he has money, brains and enterprise—three vital essentials of motion picture making which many Bombay producers lack.

While at the tea and dinner parties these Bombay producers behave very sweetly and show a lot of affection towards Vasan who has wrested the monopoly of industani pictures from them, they go back to the I.M.P.P.A. offices and there conspire to standardize the publicity of pictures so that no producer with guts and enterprise may be able to exploit his pictures to the full and in doing so outwit the Bombay producers.

Forgetting the basic quality and spectacle of "Chandralekha" which captured the imagination of millions, these jealous producers have hypnotized themselves into believing that the thundering box-office success of the picture was primarily due to the tremendous publicity campaign done by Vasan. Vasan is reported to have spent over seven lakhs of rupees for the publicity of "Chandralekha". An amount many producers in Bombay would like to earn in their life-time by hook or by crook.

So these Bombay producers now want to stop Vasan and other enterprising producers like him from selling their product in an open competitive market in the most honest manner i.e. through country-wide publicity.

On the 12th of September J. B. H. Wadia, the present president of the I.M.P.P.A., called the usual meeting of the Executive Committee and demanded "sanctions", as he described them, to fine, punish, boycott or expel the producer who commits a breach of the publicity standards to be prescribed by the I.M.P.P.A.

Jamshed Wadia informed the Committee that the Distributors' and the Exhibitors' Associations were prepared to boycott the product of the producer who did not follow the mandate of I.M.P.P.A. in observing space standardization of publicity.

Jamshed Wadia also sought to fine the defaulting producer and ultimately expel him from the Association if necessary.

C. D. Desai, however, thought that only newspaper publicity and not magazine and periodical publicity should be restricted. He knew that Vasan always used more newspaper space than magazine space.

K. M. Modi, a film magnate without films of his own, thought that any such discrimination as suggested by C. D. Desai would lead to complications in determining exceptions. He evidently does not know the difference between a magazine and a newspaper.

The only man who took a sensible view of the whole affair seemed to be Chuni Lall of Filmsnstan who stated that new producers should be allowed to take more advertising space to enable them to establish their trademark. Chuni Lall also objected to victimization by fining or expulsion without a previous warning.

Apart from these individual opinions on the subject of space restriction and standardization of publicity, we would like to know by what canons of trade morality can a trade association like the I.M.P.P.A. stop a producer from advertising his picture to the best of his purse and ability in his honest attempt to recover his investment and make a little profit?

whole circus and takes it travelling on the celluloid to the most distant villager who has never seen a trapeze artist. He gives a sword fight in the true Fairbanks tradition and thrills millions. He erects big and sprawling sets which fill the eye with their art and grandeur. He takes three years to make a picture and spends 35 lakhs of rupees on it. He spends seven lakhs in publicity. He gives his workers a bonus of six months' salary. He gives away a lakh of rupees to the Mahatma Gandhi Memorial Fund.

How can the Bombay producers stop an enterprising man like that by victimising him with immoral and unbusinesslike restrictions on his publicity? A man who invests money in production—may it be three lakhs or thirty—wants his money back from the people. And how are the people to pay it back to him unless it is dinned into their ears with constant publicity that the man’s picture is worth seeing?

Publicity is the vital item of a producer’s prosperity. It is their only link with the consumers—the people who pay to see our motion pictures and make the industry stable and prosperous. How can the Bombay producers cut off this vital branch that supports their future merely to put down Vasan?

This type of unanimity amongst producers is a hostile front against their own customers. Cutting down publicity will bring down the box-office receipts. Producers must not unite against their own patrons. They must organize themselves in their production field. They must stop seducing each other’s stars; they must stop sabotaging each other’s pictures during premier weeks; they must stop paying blackmarket prices to the stars; they must fix up the ceilings of star salaries; they must stop the exhibitors from taking blackmarket money; they must stop buying expensive cars, racing, gambling and indulging in other degenerating pastimes.

Producers have a thousand don’ts to observe and another thousand do’s to do to improve themselves and the industry before they start hitting their patrons on the face with such stupid and immoral proposals of standardization of publicity.

There is no sense in sinking the whole industry in an attempt to drown one man from the South. No man nor an association has any right to put down honest competition in any trade or business—least of all in a trade of creative art like film making.

PRAYER TO PREMIER BHARGAVA!

From Delhi comes the harrowing tale of an old exhibitor of Lahore who has, in his helpless old age, four married sons, several grandchildren and a total family of nearly thirty people to support merely with the dirty dust of Delhi.

His name is Nandlal Oberoi. He had four cinemas in Lahore: the Regent, the Crown Talkies, the Taj Mahal Talkies and the City Cinema. He had a well-equipped film studio and a lot of residential property in addition.

- The Crown and the City Cinema were burnt down.
- The Taj Mahal Talkies was misappropriated by the Muslim landlord who swallowed Oberoi’s machinery, deposit and other equipment. The film studio and the residential house were burnt down while the Regent Cinema was sealed by Pakistan Government on the 22nd September 1947 and was subsequently allotted to one Said-ul-Rehman and Najam-ul-Hussein (ex-actor of Bombay Talkies) in partnership.

Nandlal Oberoi lost over 10 lakhs of rupees in a day and ran out of the Punjab with his large family to save his people and save for his posterity the precious heirloom of Hinduism.

For two long years he has been selling the few ornaments of the ladies of his family that could be smuggled on their persons and supporting his large family. But now he has reached a stage of destitution where only God or the government can help him.

On the 20th August 1949, Nandlal Oberoi applied to the Minister of Rehabilitation of the East Punjab Government praying for the allotment of Naulakha Talkies at Ludhiana. This cinema is left behind by the same Said-ul-Rehman who has now been allotted Nandlal Oberoi’s Regent Cinema in Lahore.

Though Nandlal’s Regent in Lahore was a bigger and more expensive cinema house than the Naulakha Talkies in Ludhiana, Nandlal prayed for its allotment to him to make some beginning of a new life and to provide his large family with at least a meagre living.

But the Minister of Rehabilitation of the East Punjab Government has not yet granted Nandlal’s just and frantic prayer. The politicians in the East Punjab have been too busy with their own rehabilitation in the quick-changing ministries of the province to worry about the unfortunate refugees who have been mercilessly uprooted from their homes and thrown to the dogs.

There are eight cinemas left behind by the Muslims in the East Punjab. They have all been sealed up by the East Punjab Government since the last two years as the Government have not yet made up their mind about them. They don’t seem to know what to do with them. A better idea would be to consult the Pakistan Government. The Pakistan Government know well what to do with the Hindus, the Hindu women and the Hindu property. And they put their expert knowledge on this subject into action quickly. If the Pakistan Government seal up a cinema on Jume Raat, it is allotted to a Muslim before the Juma prayers next day. And they somehow find the right Muslim for it.

But the East Punjab Government could not find the right Hindu refugee all this time to run even the Naulakha Talkies at Ludhiana though Nandlal Oberoi has been knocking at the door every day. And there are seven more Hindu refugees to be found for the other seven theatres. It seems to be a problem big enough to cause another cabinet crisis in the East Punjab the way they seem to be reshuffling ministries these days to suit the different lengths of the Sikh beards.

And if reports can be relied upon the Rehabilitation Ministry of the East Punjab Government intends to auction these eight cinemas left behind by the Muslims. Auctioning means giving the cinemas to the highest bidders. How can the impecunious, helpless refugees ever bid in an auction like this? When they have no money even to buy their daily rations how can they put up money to buy these cinemas? In an auction these cinemas will be bought by the non-refugee Hindus or Sikhs who have their money and estates in contact. Then how does the Rehabilitation Ministry help the helpless refugees?

Auctioning these cinemas would amount to cashing on the misfortunes of our helpless refugees. The only way to help those unfortunate people who have been thrown out of the West Punjab is to allot them the property left behind by the Muslims. And these allotments must be quickly done before the refugees take refuge in another land from where no one ever returns.

Giving Naulakha Talkies of Ludhiana to Nandlal Oberoi would be a good beginning and let us hope L. Gopichand Bhargava begins his new lease as the Prin- Minister of the East Punjab with a merciful act before the Sikh beards grow longer and resuffle the East Punjab Cabinet again.

NEW TECHNIQUE OF CENSORING!

Film producers, due to the very nature of the profession which needs art and imagination, are perhaps the most intelligent people in the country. The mo laws you thrust on them to improve the films, the more ways they find to circumvent these laws.

The newly organised Censor Board in Bombay with the adoption of the new production code stumped the for a while and they stood up in protest when Sh. Morarji Desai, the Home Minister, reversed the decision of the Censor Board and banned “Jugnu” right in the midst of its triumphant run at the Capitol Cinema Bombay.

This righteous action of the Home Minister, however, made the members of the Censor Board angry and under the none-too-inspiring chairmanship
Mr. S. A. Aiyar, the Board started on a doubtful career of almost vindictive deletions in picture after picture presented by the producers for censoring.

While the Censor Board showed studied indifference to a lot of well-deserved criticism appearing in press, its members continued a merry career of cutting quite a few harmless things from pictures without citing any intelligent reasons. No amount of reasoning or appeal to their good sense moved the members of the Board who seemed to stand with their backs to the wall ready for all eventualities.

But film producers, to whom human psychology is matter of their daily meals, knew that some members of the Censor Board keenly appreciated the allowance Rs. 10/- per picture paid to them for censoring and asked to work on the Board if for nothing else at least for the allowance drawn at the end of every month. The film producers also knew that Home Minister Morarji Desai, in his official capacity as the grand-uncle of the province, was directly responsible for the appointment of the Board members.

Putting two and two together in their usual practical way, some film producers evidently arrived at the conclusion that if the doubtful pictures could be previously shown directly to the Home Minister prior to presenting them before the censors, the pictures would pass muster automatically with the Censor Board.

Thought was action with our film producers who on invited our gentle Home Minister to many a picture prior to the censor examination. Now when the grand-uncle of the province like Minister Morarji Desai sees a picture out of sheer courtesy, the fact cannot remain a family secret. And the producers see to it that it doesn't. Even the grand children of the censors come to know about it, with the result that when the picture put up for censoring it passes without any trouble by virtue of the mere knowledge that the Home Minister as himself seen it.

It is obvious that the ever-busy Home Minister does not see such pictures for the purpose of censoring, that is strictly the function of his Censor Board which, as, according to his own public confession, more educated and cultured people than those found in the film industry. But the very courtesy of his seeing a picture prior to its censor-hip lends a strange protection to the picture from the censors who would not like to differ from their chief in the oft mistaken belief that the Home Minister has liked a picture merely because he found it to his taste.

A glaring example of this technique of censoring "Apna Desh" produced by Rajkamal Kalamandir. Shantaram. the producer of this picture, is known to be a persona grata with the Home Minister who had himself graciously found time to go through the script of "Apna Desh" before production. It was but natural that the Home Minister, who had taken a personal interest in the story, should have been invited to see the picture. It is an act of courtesy which cannot be denied to our popular minister. But V. Shantaram invited the up man of the province, who is incidentally the chief censor of all pictures and public morals, before the routine censorship by the Censor Board. And before the minister Morarji could reach home after seeing the picture, the producer's studio boys, without even consulting V. Shantaram, started telling rosy stories of the way Minister Morarji liked the picture and even described the spots he admired the most.

Now no one can stop people from talking and in such a favourable manner at that seeing that every one who works on a picture is enthusiastic about it. But the censors being human beings have ears like other human beings and they also hear what others hear. And when they hear glowing reports of Minister Morarji's approval of a picture, even though the Minister might have said nothing at all about the picture, they do feel a bit delicate whilst examining the picture for censorship. If they didn't they would be super-human and Minister Morarji has not yet claimed his censors to be super-human.

Is it any wonder then that "Apna Desh" was passed by the censors without a single cut?

And is it any wonder that a filthy, objectionable picture like "Dillagi" carrying its load of slander against the Hindus also passed muster?

Whether the film censors are qualified or not for their job, is it not essential that their minds at least should not be obsessed by the thought that their chief has seen a certain picture prior to its presentation before the censors?

Let us hope that Minister Morarji refuses to see a picture before it is censored by his official censors and Munnawar Sultana is playing good emotional roles these days. Here she is, once again, in "Sabak", a social story produced by Sadiq Productions.

SUPERSTITIONS ABOUT THE “LIBERTY”?

By nature and traditions, the Indian is a very superstitious human being and it is rather amusing to find good many of them in a morass of superstition these days about the newly-built Liberty Cinema in Bombay.

While they know that this cinema was built in the midst of shortages and in defiance of public opinion, they are inclined to attribute a number of coincidental tragedies to the curses supposed to have been showered slyly on this cinema by the unsheathed refugees and the roofless poor.

Commercially the “Liberty” has of course become gold mine with many a producer running after it, pride in purse in hand, to obtain a release for his picture. He theatre collected nearly seven lakhs of rupees in 28 weeks for Mehboob’s “Andaz”, an over-all average of s. 25,000/- per week.

As the second release “Dillagi” is reported to be drawing so well, one wonders whether it was the new theatre or the picture “Andaz” which collected the huge amount of seven lakhs in 28 weeks. If, as some say, it was the new theatre that drew the crowds, that argument should also prevail while “Dillagi” is running because, surely, a new theatre cannot become stale within 28 weeks.

Whatever the reasons of the “Liberty’s” commercial success, the theatre is associated with some very tragic events in Producer Mehboob’s life.

A week before the opening of the Liberty Cinema and the release of Mehboob’s “Andaz”, Mehboob’s other suddenly died and the opening had to be delayed by a week.

During the run of “Andaz”, Mehboob’s young brother dashed himself to death on a motor bicycle.

During the run of “Andaz”, Mehboob’s property at Andra was attached under the Evacuee Ordinance and Mehboob was almost declared an evictee. Mr. and Mrs. Mehboob lost months of sleep on this account.

During the run of “Andaz”, Mehboob fell seriously and slept for days on the “bed of death” as he called the cot he was lying on. His work stopped for months but till “Andaz” had completed its run at the Liberty he could Mehboob begin his new picture.

During the run of “Andaz” Nargis, the chief star of the picture, suddenly lost her mother from heart-lure. And Dilip Kumar, the hero of the picture was buried by goondas at Worli.

In their hurry to get the “Liberty”, Producer Mehboob and Producer Kardar, brothers-in-law, clashed with each other and so did their wives Sardar and Bahar who were sisters. “Liberty” took away peace and harmony from the two families and turned mutual love into mutual distrust.

The “Liberty” brought the two partners J. K. Nanda R. B. Haldia to the point of a terrific clash because they have booked the picture, “Singaar”, for release at this theatre.

The “Liberty” has already put little Habib Hussein, its lessee, into many an embarrassing situation with the result that he is losing friends and risking his good name these days.

The manager of the “Liberty” was convicted for the first time in his life and fined Rs. 100/- by the Presidency Magistrate for showing that uncertified picture “Loves of Carmen” to a private audience.

Pursuing his ambition to get the “Liberty” somehow, even the grey-haired Chandulal Shah flirted with one would-be partner after another till sleep became a stranger to him for months.

It is rather strange that so many unhappy incidents are associated in so short a time with a new cinema. And it is no wonder that some Indians, who run back home if a black cat crosses their path, have already become superstitious about the “Liberty”.

Though the list of Mehboob’s tragedies is formidable we don’t think that human destiny has started borrowing its dates from the release dates of the “Liberty”. The “Liberty” has made many people unhappy because it has proved a gold mine and has therefore whetted the greed of the producers. All gold mines are graveyards of human happiness and cursed cradles of human greed.

YOU’LL HARDLY BELIEVE —

That Producer S. S. Vasan of the South, who gave us that box-office smasher “Chandraloke” and has now come out with another, “Nishan”, has these days become a national menace to the Bombay producers.

That in their all-out attempt to poison Vasan, the Bombay producers have given him umpteen dinner parties at all sorts of places but the little South Indian seems to be having good intestines the way he has digested all food. You know he is used to the chillies of the South.

That these frantic attempts at poisoning Vasan having failed so miserably, the Bombay producers now want to cut down Vasan’s wings by restricting his publicity campaigns for pictures to a few inches for every picture. If Vasan does not obey this mandate of the Bombay producers, his pictures will not get theatres in the North. Some free trade that!

That those producers who thought that with freedom we would have free speech, free trade and other freedoms are surprised at this new mandate of the Bombay producers who will soon ask Vasan to scrap good-looking South Indian girls from his dances and give a huge drum dance with a little “tabla” only. We do that in Bombay.

That little Vasan, protected by his “chaddar” around his seating equipment, is the least worried about the storm that is gathering round him and threatens to turn all his Tamil tortures into Hindustani one after another with the help of Pandit Indra. Let us see who wins the battle between the North and the South.

That while quietly lunching at Baburao Patel’s “Azad” Vasan forgot to eat and talked of the evils of the 11,000-feet restriction imposed on the films by the Government. Quoting villagers and their needs, Vasan made a modest demand for at least 20,000 feet per film.

That Baburao Patel showed a way out of the impasse by asking Vasan to produce a film in two parts of 11,000 feet each and get the parts censored as two different pictures and show both the parts at a single show, as there is no restriction yet on what and how much to show people for their money. Thus Baburao Patel granted Vasan 2000 feet more than his demand. That was a useful lunch at “Azad”.

That Vijoo Bhatt whose “kindly light doesn’t lead” any more these days had to take “gentle” Jamso and Chuni Lall to Madras to induce the South Indians to lift the ban on “Ram Baan”. Now little Vijoo knows whose Ram Baan was more effective: his or Filmindia’s.

That if the Government of Madras banned “Ram Baan” because of Sita being pregnant before her time, how is that Minister Morarji Desai could not see her burden? Evidently, Morarjibhai’s eyesight has become weak these days. Why not change the glasses? They have been used too long.

That with Shobhana Samarth also playing the lead in Sohrab Modi’s “Narsinh Avatar”, Kayadhu, the wife of Hiranyakashyapu, also became pregnant, though her husband was away as long as 11000 and odd years. That is another ‘Sati’ defamed by our producers.

That those film artists who get inconveniently pregnant in the midst of the productions only to slander our sacred deities must be put in a quarantine to protect them from their hungry husbands. A bit of semi denial is good for the artistes and the producers also.

That the Bhatt Brothers—Vijoo and Shanker propose to table a resolution at the next meeting of the I.M.P.P.A. to stop female artistes from living with the husbands whenever they play goddesses for the screen. But how to protect them from the producers’ directors?

That “gentle” Jamso, president of the production Association, will demand another “mandate” to enforce “sanctions” on the husbands of the female stars to expel them to Robinson Crusoe islands if they fiddled with their wives during production.

That if “gentle” Jamso is granted this “mandate” the husbands of stars will have to lead a celibate life for ten years at least seeing that our film stars always work in five simultaneous pictures and in pictures at pictures without even taking a Sunday off. At this rate we shall run short of stars as no new ones would be born.

That there is no need of maintaining a Censor Board any more seeing that the troublesome pictures are shown these days directly to Minister Morarji Desai prior to their routine censorship. After Morarjibhai’s private trial which censor has the guts to ask question?

That according to Minister Morarjibha’s unsympathetic review of “Dillagi”, things do not improve between Mian Kardar and his brother-in-law Mehoob. It was Husain’s Liberty Cinema that took liberties with the mutual affections.

That this Liberty Cinema has badly shaken the solidarity between several Muslim families who have sworn themselves to the motto of “one for all and all for one” after the partition of the country. With a golden rainbow of the Liberty on the horizon, the mottos seem to have been changed to, “each one for himself and Allah for all”.

That the Liberty Cinema seems to have proved suita tickler of temps that Mian Kardar is reported to have even suspected Bhai Jan Mehoob’s motives saying his “namaz” five times a day. Poor Mehoob he prays because he has no other friend in the world except: “Bismillah-ir-Rahman-ir-Raheem. Al-hamdu-lillah-i-Rabbil Alameen. Ar-Rehman-ir-Raheem. Mal Iyyaka nabudu wa Iyyaka nasta'een.

That if Habib Hussein, the little boss of the Liberty nema, could understand the beauty and fervour of at prayer, he would not collect a crowd of greedy gun bid for his cinema.

That film actress Geeta Bali seems to have mistaken magistrate’s court for a studio set the way she sat in a car and sent up her dummy to answer a charge of giving her car at 60 miles per hour. When the Presidency Magistrate said: “What does she think she is? till her up”, Geeta quickly went up three steps at a be before the Magistrate lost his humour. A court not a set, little one, nor is the Magistrate a Kedar arma to accept the dummy for lighting!

That when Income-tax officer Jadhav called upon Suraiya to show the picture in which her toothless amny Badshah Begum worked to earn thousands from producers, Suraiya was stumped. And so will Munnawar Sultana when Jadhav wants to see Suraiya lata on the screen. This guy Jadhav is becoming a gular screen fan these days the way he sees pictures and makes notes. They say that he counts even the rras in a picture. What love of pictures!

That the Income-tax Department has evidently securate a smart guy in the ever-smiling Jadhav whose disarrmg smile has made many producers confess their “black” with the result that Jadhav now knows very well the complete scientific process by which white money is ed into black and vice versa in the film industry. But person who has beaten Jadhav so far is our popular Yakub.

That Munnawar Sultana is learning English these is to be able to convince Income-tax Officer Jadhav easily. But the woman whom she carries with her English practice seems to be teaching her the wrong rds as Jadhav still insists on seeing the pictures in which Suraiya Sultana worked and was paid by the producers.

That Dr. N. D. Patel recently examined Suraiya and lared her heart completely out of danger. That says that Dev Anand did not do much damage after God bless Suraiya’s heart and may it live long to ask the producers’ hearts while meeting her ever-increasing demands!

That realizing the shortage of sugar during Divali. Rajkamal boys recently devised a method of string some sweetmeats without much sweating. At aial of “Dahej” songs they praised Jayashree’s eaky songs and asked for sweetmeats. The next day entire staff got sweetmeats. Now they laugh both her voice and her intelligence. Poor Jayashree, she good and simple.

That the new Evacuee Property Ordinance has only allayed the suspicions of Muslims in India and strengthened their belief in the secularity of our state. Their pop-eyed expression has changed into broad smiles as the new Ordinance lent caste to their sons, nephews and in-laws in Pakistan. We have now a real secular state with all freedoms for the Muslims. Jai Jawahar!

That we should have half-a-dozen more Ordinances tying up the majority hand and foot to emphasize our secularity and to prove that we are so hospitable a people that we throw even democracy overboard to prove that democracy is not the rule of the majority but a licence to the minority. Jai Jawahar!

That Producer W. Z. Ahmed, who took his star-wife Neena all the way to Pakistan after relieving his Indian creditors of several lakhs, does not seem to have found the Garden of Allah a very congenial place for his unpeen money-making plans. After running a Hindu cinema for a while, he flirted with the stage and has now become a salt merchant in Karachi.

That Ahmed’s salt business, however, does not seem to be giving the right taste to his home life the way Neena is reported to have demanded a divorce from him. Some friends, however, have temporarily relieved the saltish strain on the family life.

That Neena’s miserable mental life in Ahmed’s home is making her ex-husband Mohns also miserable and he is worrying about his ex-wife and having long consultations these days with Ahmed Abbas, a common friend of both the ex’s.

In “Sipahiya”, a social theme, produced and directed by Aspi, Madhubala gives an excellent performance as the romantic village maiden.
The Imperial Cinema in Bombay seems to have become the Mecca of all filmgoers, the way it is crowded inside and all around. Reason? "Hamman Manzil", the scintillating social picture produced by D. Kashyap for Famous Pictur Ltd. It is a picture which crowds seem to have liked because of its lilting music and interesting story.
Gope uses his face and hands and somehow makes the people laugh. He is the laugh-maker supreme.

Nirupa Roy makes "Hamari Manzil" a dream of all young film-goers and it is not surprising that she has become popular.

Gope is trying to sell from Adib's idea to a stern-looking chap at the desk. Does he succeed?

VIDYA RATTAN MITRA (New Delhi)
Does ballroom dancing have a good effect on Indian girls?
Oh yes, it makes them less feminine and gives them an opportunity to teach men how to dance attendance on them.

What is the real name of Dilip Kumar?
M. Yusuf Khan but he uses that only in seaside hotels.

LAXMI DUTT (Dehra Dun)
Why was your recent trip to Mussoorie Hills covered with so much secrecy?
I needed rest and my friend K. N. Singh put me in the hands of his brother, Raneshwar Singh.

Touring the East Punjab, Pandit Nehru met a soldier who deserved the Military Cross for gallantry, of course, in Kashmir. Well, a military cross is always better than a wooden cross.
You cherish it highly, for it is the flame of freedom. Keep the flame alive and hand it to your children and grandchildren. Teach them to preserve the priceless heritage.

Tell them the epic story of 'our struggle' for independence in all its glory. "Our Struggle" tells the full story on the screen in the form of an unforgettable stirring drama.

It is not only a film - it is an event.

MOTWANE LTD., 127, MAHATMA GANDHI ROAD, BOMBAY I.
a leading lawyer of your town, who knew all the decade, of protecting my privacy even from his young collegiate-brother who threatened to throw a whole college at me.

Why is Pandit Nehru loved and admired by Amer-cans in spite of his declared policy of remaining nen-al as far as two power blocs are concerned?

Nehru’s grand reception in America is too transparent a political flirtation born out of the fear of Communism. It was indirectly a homage paid to the might of Stalin.

RS. SEETA DEVI (Tellicherry)
Can you name one good hospital in India where greatest care is taken of all the patients, rich and or alike?

You won’t find one in the whole world. The poor are nursed by God.

V. JOSHI (Belgaum)
I want to see Kamini Kaushal. Will she give me a personal interview?

Do you look like Dilip Kumar. hair and all?

ODHYA RAM SINGH (Dumka)
Whom do you call innocent?

The dead. They leave their tricks behind.

ANTI NEGI (New Delhi)
I am a member of a classless society. would you
me?

I am yours for the asking. What do you want to do?

G. AGANUR (Dharwar)
What is your opinion about the present day ness and Juliets?

The Juliets are smart and intelligent but the Romances are still below-the-balcony sissies.

ABDULLAH (Ambattur)
What do you think of the influence of women in ities?

A bad influence. It makes a dirty game dirtier.

Could you mind telling me how it was that you me be the editor of “Filmindia”?

I started the magazine and appointed myself.
And for fifteen years I have been trying to justify my own choice.

A. PRANKANT (Bagalkot)
What did the late Jaddan Bai leave behind?

Freedom for Nargis.

You neither spin nor wear khaddar. In what way you respect the preachings of Mahatma Gandhi?

I don’t. I do the next best thing—live my life my own way without the present national masque-

VENKATARAMANAYYA (Visakhapatnam)
Is Simla still important?

It is now a sanctuary of whiskered frogs who Madhubala goes gay in “Pardes”, a social story directed by M. Sadiq and produced by P. N. Arora.

make more noise than is needed for the size of their well.

PREM PRAKASH KAPUR (Simla)
When does a chair dis-like you?

Why is it put in an Indian cinema theatre.
It sucks blood.

SRINIVAS S. JOSHI (Poona)
“Legislators may be shirtless”, said the Speaker of the Madras Legislative Assembly. Let us hope they don’t go any further!

Anything can happen in Madras. Let us pray!

How is it that the Learned Deputies of the Italian Chamber of Deputies fight with each other on the floor of the house?

We are equally progressive. The other day two Congress members of the Legislative Assembly of East Punjab came to blows forgetting their creed of non-violence.

N. HARI (Khoramshar, S. Iran)
Would you recommend, Mr. Patel, that instead of calling “nath” and “swamy” in our pictures, they should now resort to calling “babies” and “tomatoes” as the Americans do?

And “honey” and “toots” too!

Why don’t you wear a white cap to hide your -growing baldness?
When a man is fast becoming a Jawaharlal Nehru, at least in one thing, he need not hide his shining glamour.

OMESCH CHANDRA WHIG (New Delhi)
In which form do you see the end of Kashmir trouble?
Prize cakes are always cut and eaten.

FRANCIS D'SOUZA (Sholapur)
Do you carry your girl's photograph in your wallet?
I carry the girl.

TEJESHWAR NATH (Jaipur)
Why is Jeevan given a comedy role?
Because he looks like Pandit Indra. And he often plays a villain too for the same reason.

J. LAL THANVI (Bombay)
How does Shri Morarji Desai feel when he sees beautiful girls in bathing costumes at the sea beach in Juhu?
His health improved pretty fast in Juhu after a serious illness. I don't know whether it was due to the beach or the beauties.

SAVITRI DEVI (Kanpur)
Why does Dilip Kumar lick his lips so often in "Nadia ke par"?
How else can he wipe off the lipstick?
What is sin?

I don't know. There is probably no sin left in the present world. Every act has become a crime.

VINOD S. KAPUR (Simla)
What do you think of those fat women who wear slacks?
Painted barrels without wine.
If Nigar has a rare temper, then a woman's eyes and smiles are no index to her heart!
Does a beautiful house necessarily mean happy home?
Will you accommodate me in your house if I come to Bombay?

No. The minister for accommodation is Tapas. Get in touch with him at the Secretariat.
Some women are not good looking but still the attract boys; Suraiya for example, why?
Suraiya is worth several lakhs and blacks.

T. R. SWAMI (New Delhi)
Why is Juhu so popular amongst the film people of Bombay? What are the peculiarities and special attractions of the Juhu Beach?
Juhu has hotels where no questions are asked and the hotels have waiters who become dumb when they see a ten-rupee note. The beach has sand as soft as a bed and moonlight does the rest. Juhu is the Honolulu of lovers.

V. SRINIVAS SASTRI (Bombay)
I am very anxious to see a film being shot, but hav... friends who can help me in this matter. Can you help?

Take this copy to Raj Kapoor, College Street, Matunga, and he will take you to his set. If he doesn’t, report to me.

D. K HARE (Lucknow)
How do you like the policy of the Government of India towards Kashmir?

We are spending 190 crores on defence every year. We can afford the men but where is the money? If we give half of that amount to Guruji Golwalkar he will give us an army which will keep our neighbours trembling in their shoes.

BANNERJEE (Poona)
What is a poem in Russia?

A national anthem.

DR A KHOSLA (New Delhi)
If you commit suicide!

What optimism!

Have you anything to say on India becoming Asia’s leader?

India is not leading anyone not even Indians. Watch those snake-eaters of China.

D. SHANAND SAHU (Jamshedpur)
What is your definition of a clerk?

A drudge with a grudge against the world.

Are you in favour of lipstick and why?

So that you get something at least from a kiss these days.

When a lady offers a smile in a cinema house what would one do?

Refuse it by smiling back at her unless you are sure that she is a lady.

K TOSH KUMAR (Lucknow)
I want to correspond with Madhubala. Can you give me her address?

Her address is: Cassim Manzil, Peddar Road, Cumballa Hill, Bombay.

A. VISWANATH (Calicut)
How is it that Cuckoo being an Anglo-Indian girl does not wear her ‘Anglo’ parts?

The Anglo parts excite the Indian censors and she has to keep them covered.

RAJAGOPAL (Mysore)
Are you in favour of animal slaughter in the name of God?

I like any slaughter in the name of God if it provides food for the empty stomachs.

What do Americans think of white caps?

The white cap has a bad meaning in America. The white caps belong to a self-constituted body in U.S. who commit outrages upon persons under the pretence of regulating public morals. Strangely enough this American definition describes our white caps most aptly.

When do women’s tears turn into pearls?

She is not a good-looker for a Canadian but she is on their embassy staff and has to learn Hindi to make herself understood to the Hindi-crazy Indians around her.

When men hold them in their hearts and set them in sentiments.

Why are statues built?

To provide open-air closets for birds. We have a number of them in Bombay fouled by the birds.

P. C. PANDEY (Lucknow)
Why do our leaders indulge in tree planting whenever they visit some place?

If they plant themselves they won’t grow. So they must plant something that will grow at least.

What, in your opinion, are a few of our liquor-addicted leaders going to do when total prohibition is enforced?

They will live in New Delhi where there will be no prohibition.

MISS P. S. SILAS (Secunderabad)
Which is the noblest form of revenge?

Forgetting the injury.

MARRIS NELSON (Agra)
What is the advantage of a double chin?

That is more area for spreading the lipstick.

What is the advantage of a high heeled shoe?

It improves the height of a kiss.
MRS. MANORAMADEVI BHARADWAJ (Indore)
If Samaldas Gandhi could win a war in Junagadh, why is he not posted in Kashmir?
In Junagadh it was a war of words. In Kashmir it is a matter of bullets and a nephew of Gandhi can’t be sent on a violent front.

L. PUSHPAVATI (Secunderabad Dn.)
Why do I prefer seeing you in photo than in person?
You mustn’t be much to see and you don’t wish to disillusion me. I appreciate your courtesy.

I. HARDET SINGH (Singapore)
How many Patels are there in India?
Only two. Vallabhtras and myself, the rest are bankers.

D. MERCHANT (Bombay)
Why are guards of honour provided to our leaders?
To provide us with an exhibition of their strutting. That is one of the vices we have inherited from the British.
Please note that it is dangerous for you to move at night, with your wife wearing valuable jewellery. Don’t you remember Aza Khan’s recent mishap?
My wife has no jewellery worth robbing. I am her only Kohinoor and no one else wants that.
Is kissing dangerous—in a medical sense?
But doctors don’t let the nurses escape. Do they?
Why is Sarabhai’s family more in the news nowadays?
Because one of them is suffering from dancing hysteria.

ISHAN SAIHAI (Ghaziabad)
How can a hen-pecked husband be recognized in a crowd?
He walks behind with his bed-accident in his arms.
Cannot the displaced Indian princes be of some use to the film industry?
Some of the princes have already adopted quite a few of our celluloid princesses and we can smell a lot of money burning these days.

L. PURI (Simla)
If “Loves of Carmen” could be banned why not “Barsaat”?
Then “Barsaat” must be an interesting picture, because there were more “legs” in “Carmen” than “loves”.

RS. RAMANI MUTHANNA (New Delhi)
How can one live year after year with the same man and yet hold his love and interest?
By being the shadow of his self and the widow of one’s own.

G. K. THATHACHARY (New Delhi)
What is the qualification of the Honourable Sardar Dev Singh?
I he belongs to the race with virgin hair.

S. H. DAGA (Bombay)
Why did Pandit Indra leave Sardar Chandulal and go to Vasanta?
Frogs travel when a well dries.
What is pain?
The democracy of God.

E. RATNASWAMI (Kancheepuram)
What are these Madrasis doing in Matunga?
Not Matunga but Matungam. They are cooking idli and dosai and cursing their employers.

MUNEB (Trichinopoly)
‘Love is an art’. Is it?
It is food for the lovelorn—food that you can’t grow with tractors.

V. D. MAHABAL (Poona)
What can you say about Madhubala?
Nothing yet to say. Her eyes are still blank and innocent.

MISS RUBY CHOUDHURY (Bankura)
What is mental polygamy?
It is a love-thy-neighbour game on a big scale.
Is love a worship?
Only, if the beloved is a deity.

MISS SAROJA (Bangalore)
Have you visited the Brindavan Gardens in Mysore?
And also noticed the waste of water and electricity on the half-starved population. We need fountains in fields and not in parks.

NIRMAL (Rewa)
Are there saints in America?
America has several “Saints Incorporated” paying regular dividends.
Who creates problems for the politicians?

Politicians themselves set the problems for the people to solve, e.g. Pakistan. Did the people want Pakistan?

Why is Aga Khan getting fatter everyday?

Because his Khojas are getting leaner. He knows that it is healthy to be slim and as their Imam he is taking the weight of his Khojas on himself and keeping them healthy.

RAM SHANKAR PRASAD (Patna)

What is the depth in a drop of tear?

It can be eye-deep or heart-deep.

B. K. LALDAS (Madras)

Can a man die ignorant?

Gandhi died ignorant of the intentions of his followers.

IKRAM U. KHAN (Bilaspur)

What is the smell of sex?

It is a perfume in love but a stink in lust.

How do you pray—with unfolded hands or folded?

I only remember Him, God doesn't want gestures and demonstrations. They are reserved for Congress ministers.

MISS S. BHALERAO (Bombay)

What are the raw materials of love?

A green heart and some weak flesh.

VISHNU NARAIN SARIN (Navalgund)

What is Minister Morarji Desai thinking these days?

He is wondering why his own kidneys are not taking his orders while the rest of the province is.

What, in your opinion, is going to happen in Bengal if the present state of affairs continues?

The Bengalis seem to be straining for an independent united Bengal with the East and the West thrown in and India and Pakistan thrown out.

SURINDER SINGH (New Delhi)

Do our ministers really plough and drive tractors or do they simply pose for photographs?

That is all photo-ploughing and word-sowing which grows no food but increases only our hunger. Recently the wives of the I.C.S. officers also did some photo-ploughing in New Delhi but got wild when the Agricultural Department sent them a bill for the loan of the tractors. They wanted to grow photos and not food. They should have called in our film producers who would have given them better photographs with dummy tractors.

A. N. NARAYANA RAO (Mysore)

Is woman man's dearest rib?

Yes, the most expensive.

When does a man gesticulate unnecessarily?

When the tongue can't spit out as fast as the mind piles up thought.

What are predatory friends?

Parasites who eat at your table and foul your garden.

What's dating a girl?

Poornima, chic and smart, makes Jagat Pictures' "Gaum ani interesting picture.

Rating her appetite for fun and food.

When does a woman stop wondering about a man

Next morning!

Why do you like to paint yourself black?

It is a popular colour these days and college profits.

MISS U. PAI (Bombay)

What is sharper than razor's edge?

That boneless blade which God put in woman's mouth.

How will you differentiate "aping" from "imitating"?

Imitation is flattery, aping is mockery. To first is a compliment, the latter a caricature.

UMESH SAXENA (Dehra Dun)

Why should military officers be allowed to drink when civilians are being prohibited?

We have inherited our army from the British and those watered with liquor cannot now live without it.

MISS T. D. BHARUCHA (Bombay)

What do you think of the pictures M.G.M. produces these days?
One good picture as against ten rotten ones. Some of them however entertain but don’t enlighten.

SACHARIAS HAMLET (Madras)
How did a question originate? Can you please tell me who put the first question to whom?
When Adam saw Eve and wondered, the first question took shape. The Serpent answered it.

DERRICK BAILEY (Meerut)
Can Raj Kapoor be called handsome?
He is too short to be handsome. A man must be man-sized. Raj’s father was very handsome once.
Why do you charge for your autographed photo when Nehru gives it free?
Thousands of Nehru’s photographs are published every day. His photos have no market value, mine have as they are not published so frequently.

M. H. JAFERY (Madras)
Is smoking prohibited in Bombay cinemas also?
All prohibitions begin in Bombay first because we have a government with more inhibitions.

KUMARI SHAMA (Srinagar)
India has given her jwans, her wealth and her everything to save Kashmir from the raiders. What gave the film people contributed to this cause?

Didn’t we send some of our acting junk to be photographed with Sheikh Abdullah?
We have got a thousand and one raped women in refugee camps here. They are in a miserable condition due to no fault of theirs. They are looked down upon as untouchables, even worse than that. Don’t you think that their faith in religion, God and humanity has been shaken?

But still they seem to have faith in our gib-tongued politicians. I think some of these politicians should marry these unfortunate women and set an example to others.

SATINDER PAL CHOPRA (Jullundur)
Do you believe in fortune telling?
Only if the hands are fair and soft and the fingers are long and artistic can I remember Cheiro’s remarkable conclusions of palmistry. Fortune telling is a good drawing room pastime if there are less men and more women as guests.

MRS. TARA V. GOPAL (Madras)
What do the masses see in Suraiya to go crazy about?
They are crazy about what they don’t see.

ALBERT D. GONSALEZ (Bombay)
Does imagination help us to forget our worries?
You can’t imagine sugar, rice, wheat, money etc. You got to have them to forget your worries.

MISS SNEHALATA SRINIVASAN (Bangalore)
Did you ever dream of becoming such a witty person?

A hungry man becomes either a humorist or a Communist.

M. M. NAIR (Poona)
What was Minister Morarji Desai before he became a minister and Congressman?
He was a deputy collector in the British regime for years and then he became the S. K. Patil of the Gujarat Provincial Congress Committee.

K. G. MATHUR (Ghaziabad)
How do you feel on seeing our filmstars making love under the Municipal lamp-post?
That is degrading the lamp-post. Minister Morarji learnt under it.

SATINDER PAL CHOPRA (Jullundur)
Is Tata related to Bata?
Tata has got his head in the air, Bata has got his bread in the boot.
Is Pandit Indra your friend?
Oh, no! I am his friend.

SARLA KAPUR (Mussoorie)
I believe in a few years time Sardar Patel will not allow ballroom dancing in India. Is it also a vice?
The Sardar has none of these puerile inhibitions. Sarla. He would have danced with you had he not had a heart to nurse. It is these little provincial Caesars who are killing all the joys of life.

MISS G. SREE (Vizagapatam)
What is love?
To a man an argument of desire, to a woman a guarantee of security.

SATYA PRAKASH JAIN (Karachi)
Are you aware that even the tailors of Karachi have stopped stitching Indian-made cloth?
But the idiots forget that their skins are still Indian and so were the breasts from which they once sucked milk.

KRISHNA SINGH (Kuala Lumpur)
What does Kardar mean by “High, higher and still higher”?
That refers to his pile of money.
I have often seen young, beautiful girls mentioning your name and admiring your answers. Ain’t you a lucky guy?
Where is the luck? See the blasted distance between us!

HARIHAR SHAW (Dumka)
Why did a man like Gandhiji take birth in India and not in Europe?
Gods are born in the midst of worshippers.
Did you ever hear of a prophet being born in England or America?

V. SUNDIRARAJAN (Poona)
A friend complains of emotional poverty in his wife. What is it?
Your friend has failed to warm the bed properly.
Define ‘middle class’?
The crowd midstream in the whirlpool of ambitions and economics clutching at straws.

If an erstwhile Muslim Leaguer can be admitted into the Congress, why not a R.S.S. man?

We accept a Muslim Leaguer into the Congress to emphasize the secularity of our state. It is like capturing a snake from the jungle and putting it into a snake-charmer's basket without realizing that however much poison you may extract from the fangs, more is accumulated immediately. Congressmen are fast becoming street-jugglers and they prefer the poisonous snakes to the non-poisonous ones. They should know that the R.S.S. can't hurt India however angry.

D. J. JHALA (Rajkot)
Whose services are more essential to the nation: a teacher's or a journalist's?

Both are needed, one to teach, the other to preach.

Do you think Socialists are able to run the government?

Leave alone the government, they can't run their own Party properly.

DAYA KHAURA (Hong Kong)

What will be the feelings of a young girl who in her gorgeous paraphernalia goes for dancing on a Saturday night but returns home without getting a partner to dance with?

The last one I met tore a new dress and we go out with me but these days I invite a couple of dancing boys to save the dress because we have cloth shortage in the country.

KUMARI MOHINI MANSUKHANI (Lucknow)
What will God say to Godse?

That he deputized well and truly. Isn't God responsible for life and death? Godse is merely instruments.

Have you ever lied deliberately?

I have always lied deliberately otherwise I tell the truth and bluntly.

SYED MEER MOULANA (Bangalore)
What is a train romance?

A flutter between two stops.

S. R. SINGH (Kanpur)
What is the size of your purse?

Just the size of my family.

MISS SUMATI BHALERAO (Bombay)
Who discovered, "I love you"?

Not Adam, He didn't have competition. "Love you" is a slogan of a rival.

What do you think of the ban on Rummy?

I don't worry about the ban but Rummy Soo Kamini Kaushal's husband, has reason to becase his wife read the notification and became a laudabving citizen.

Do friends in need remember you?

And how? Their affection often makes me poor.

UMESH C. AGARWAL (Lucknow)
Did you ever search a lady's vanity bag?

I had no need to search the bags, I searched the women and found what I wanted.

PIYUSH DHAR CHATURVEDI (Tundla)
Why should a man be honest in the dark?

Otherwise the light is switched on.

GURBAKSH SINGH (Kanpur)
How do you like Pushpa Hans?

Quite tall and talkative and she sings Punjabi songs which remind you of the wheat fields we lost.

V. P. VASWANI (New Delhi)
When will the Indian Government place before the public the balance sheet of Kashmir operations?

When they stop grooming Sheikh Abdulla as India's son-in-law.

MISS G. B. GUSHTASP (Bombay)
How do you resist temptation?

I don't because I'll miss experience. And experience is knowledge.

JATINDAR NATH (Hoshiarpur)
What is romance to a politician?

In India it is the death-bell of his popularity.
December, 1949

JAYALAKSHMI (Negapatam)
Authors compare women’s faces with the moon but not with the sun. Why?
They want to stare at women without getting blind.
What did Gandhiji leave for his countrymen?
The Congress octopus with its long-armed suckers,
Who is the most honest and sincere minister in India now?
Most of them are honest and sincere but few of them are competent and efficient.
Why is Gohar still a ‘Miss’?
Probably she waited in the queue too long.

MISS T. A. PIPARWALLA (Karachi)
Who calls Nargis beautiful?
Raj Kapoor does. Write and ask him why. His address is College Street, Matunga, Bombay.

HOMINDER SINGH KAINTH (New Delhi)
Have you ever been to an inn?
Once and I brought home a wife. The place is called the Wayside Inn.

AJENDRA (Delhi)
Is politics really so easy a subject nowadays that even a tonga driver can discuss it?
He has a right to, seeing that his horse is taxed, his tonga is taxed, his stable is taxed and his own food, water and movements are taxed. A man who is taxed that way has a right to yell.

B. P. SHAH (Ahmedabad)
Who is the best leader of India at the moment?
Sardar Patel in the national field and Pandit Nehru in the international one.

G. CHANDRASEKAR (Begumpet)
Which producer has great regard and reverence for me?
Mr. Himansu Rai. He is in the other world and that is where he cultivated his regard and reverence for me.

K. FAZLUR RAHMAN (Bangalore)
Who is more beautiful: Jayashree or Kamini?
Jayashree! She is charming and good-natured in addition.
Which ‘ism’ do you follow, brother?
Communism without Moscow is my philosophy. Socialism is my practice and Congressism is my politics.

R. MUNIPALLE (Poonam)
I think there is no love lost between you and Dewan Sharar these days?
There is a lot of love lost when we meet but when we part we start searching for it.

WILLIAM MOSES (Tanjore)
What am I to do with people who fail to understand the spirit of your criticism and writings?

Poison them with datura.
Are you strictly a one-woman man?
Save me a blush, madam.

M. A. HAQUE (Chittazong)
What future relations between India and Pakistan do you expect?
Armed neutrality with disarming hypocrisy on both sides.

A. BALAKRISHNAN (Manali)
One often finds the nude figures—especially of the fair sex—dominating the studios of the modern painter and sculptor. What has the nude to do with art?
Art reveals what is otherwise denied to the eye and the sculptor and the painter lend to the nude a morality in marble and colour—morality which flesh and blood evidently lack.

MISS K. SRIVASTAVA (Allahabad)
Which pen and ink do you use in replying to our questions?
It is not merely a “pen-and-ink” matter. It is a “brain and think” business, my dear.

MADANLAL S. SOLANKI (Jodhpur)
What makes you hungry?
Time. It is a two-hour feeding schedule with me.
What is Chandulal Shah’s hobby?
To have his finger in every pie.
I want money. Mr. Patel!
So do I and so does my neighbour. We all want money, son, because money is the honey of our existence.
Would you prefer your sons to start from a scratch with no money as soon as their education is finished?
They will have to because there isn’t enough money to give them a push.

P. N. JOSHI (Rajkot)
Is monogamy natural?
Quite natural in bed.

B. KISHEN RAO (Bolarum)
Wherein lies the evil genius of Stalin?
His genius lies in harnessing Communism for the happiness of his people. The evil part of it begins when he starts rushing others to do so.

N. S. SAWANT (Bombay)
How many types of moralists are there in our country?
The genuine ones and the Congress ones.

MAHBOOB ALI KIDWAI (Bara Banki, U. P.)
Do you think the spate of Islamism will sweep away the fragile structure of the film industry in Pakistan?
Islamism has swept off great empires in the past and there will be no Pakistani one day, leave alone its film industry, if the fanatics don’t heed the warning of history.

GOPAL CHANDRA BANERJEE (Barrackpore)
Are quarrels worth picking?
Only if hearts would be lighter and cleaner at the end of them.
Is Nargis the Norma Shearer of India?
She is merely a shearer of producers.
What will be the position of monkeys when Ram Rajya comes into existence?
The monkeys have Ram Rajya already. They get more food than men do in this country. The other day Sir Shri Ram of Delhi, an industrial magnate working on the Food Committee, told me that India has 200 million monkeys as against 320 million human beings and that the monkeys were more healthy than the human beings because they get all the food they want, even if they have to snatch it from us. Sir Shri Ram wants the monkeys to be shot. Isn’t it strange that a man with his name is so dead set against the monkeys?

K. S. PATIL (Wun, Berar)
Isn’t India a paradise of plenty?
It is a bedlam of babies.

KR. RAJENDRA SINGH (Agra)
How can one distinguish a Parsi girl from an Anglo Indian one?
One has a nose and pallor, the other has a face and colour. The Parsi girl usually has no legs while the Anglo Indian one has a pair of good ones.

D. WILLIAM MOSES (Tanjore)
You are one of the very few intellectuals in our country. Why can’t you become a politician and serve the country?
I want to remain an intellectual.

V. KUMAR (Uchana, P.E.P.S.U.)
Is snoring an art?
When it is practised in a crowded room to hypnotize others to sleep and to bring one’s opportunity nearer. Watch a newly married man in a joint Hindu family and you will understand what I mean.

S. W. SHIRODKAR (Bombay)
Define a harmonious home?
“Azad”! Only two chaps bark here—I and Moti. The rest listen. For harmony a home needs listeners.
When does a husband of a film actress commit suicide?
Never. It needs courage and character to commit suicide. Most husbands of film actresses believe only in pimping and profits.
Does religion count so much in marriage relations?
It does if one is based on philosophy and the other on fanaticism.

M. DEVARAJ (Mysore)
Is it true that artists are snobs?
Not if you know them. Some of them however are too unintelligent to be social.

MISS S. SARASWATI (Madras)
Devdas Gandhi’s hands ached every morning he took up American papers to read. Did you also feel that way when you were there?
No. I am not jaundiced and anemic.

M. N. ROY (Lucknow)
If love is so heavenly why is it practised in camera?
Isn’t heaven a difficult place to reach? I take the virtue of a lifetime to reach its gates.

A. V. NARASIMHAN (Hyderabad Dn.)
It is said that you use the word ‘I’ too often?
I don’t have to say the word. I look it every inch.
What is a hard currency area?
The home of the mortgagee.
Isn’t Rajaji very far-sighted?
Yes, but he sees only himself at the end of his far-sight.
What is a striking beauty?
Eyelids which lift reluctantly and drop quickly. Few have survived the hit.

M. JAYARAM (Mysore)
How to serve India in the best possible manner?
The present prescription is: don’t smoke, don’t drink, don’t gamble, eat bananas, grow cabbages, wear khadi, pay taxes, garland the leaders, cultivate patience and vote Congress. The latest is “Miss a meal”. The last one will be: “Miss all the meals”.

Shekhar plays the lead in “Ankhen”, a social theme produced by Goel Cine Corporation.
December, 1949

KUMARI P. M. BAILEY (Meerut)
When a young girl is in love with a youth, she even worships his shadow. Why?

That is the trouble with love—too much of shadow hunting.

If you are offered the choice between an interview with Shri Morarji Desai or the music of Sushila Rani, what would you choose?

I would prefer music to a lecture.

H. NAGESHA RAO MANAY (Madras)
Some men close their eyes and dream; others open their eyes and hope. To what category do you belong?

I open my eyes and see my dream taking shape and then I close them and hope my fellow women won't ruin my dream.

What is one grey hair in the head of a beautiful woman?

It is the dawn of her soul as the mother of man.

How do you feel when you listen to the late Saigal's songs?

What the dead sing is always music.

India, Pakistan and Afghanistan—don't you think that these countries will make history?

Yes, they will as forge and field for the hammer and sickle.

K. CANESH (Bombay)
Who is earning more these days, the producer, the distributor, the star or Mr. Patel? Please for God's sake speak the truth?

The Government and that is God's truth.

H. D. JAYASENA (Matugama, Ceylon)
If you were my father on his deathbed (which God forbid!), at this very moment, what advice would you give me?

Look up, son, for guidance and you will never have to look down in this world.

A. B. NATESAN (Chittoor)
What is the son of our Deputy premier Mr. Patel doing?

He is a municipal corporator, company promoter and newspaper magnate. His name is Dahyabhai which means a "wise brother". He is wise, brother, to establish himself well before Papa's heart gets the better of him.

P. K. KUNJU MOIDU (Fort Cochin)
Is God a belief or a hope?

He is Faith, the Healer of all woes.

S. D. SHUKLA (Kanpur)
How do you react to a female smile?

If the face is good and the teeth are nice I admire the smile. To be effective even a smile needs a good setting in this world of showmanship.

CHITMAN L. SETHI (Saugor)
What are the equipments of a professional beggar?

The conscience and generosity of the almsgiver.

What is the poor pedestrian to do?

He can get under a car and be a poor corpse. Muslims are happier in the Indian Dominion or in Pakistan?

In India, the new Republic will be a Kingdom of Allah with Nehru as the first Caliph. If you don't believe me read the latest Evacuee Ordinance.

A. G. KRISHNA (Rajahmundry)
What does every husband expect from his wife daily?

Smile and silence! The rest she provides without any effort.

M. J. NANAYYA (Bangalore)
Is Nargis pessimistic by nature?

No one can remain pessimistic in Raj Kapoor's company. That boy's bubbling enthusiasm will brighten up the dead.

D. NATARAJAN (Poona)
What do you think of our ministers disguising themselves?

They should assume their previous disguise if they wish to win the next election.

Names of popular movie stars have already been exploited by race horse owners. What about naming some after our popular ministers?

Not unless we have mule and donkey races.

G. MADHAVA RAO (Visakhapatnam)
Once you told that Manu Subedar is constructing the Liberty. Now you say Habib Hussein sold his Liberty Cinema to Mehboob. How come?

Manu got the land, the license and the materials. Habib borrowed the money and built the theatre protected by Manu's magic wand. Now Habib has turned the theatre into a negotiable commodity with weekly fluctuations. Mehboob has been thrown out of the deal recently.

MANU G. BHAGAT (Bombay)
Is America a land of women's opportunity?

Yes, to exploit men.

Why do some women beat their breasts while mourning their dead?

To wake up their heart and induce it to shed some tears.

Is life an art or a science?

It is both—art in distress and science in success.

B. SURYA RAO (Khargpur)
When do sinners pray to God?

When their sins become painful.

A. S. NAIDU (Secunderabad Dn.)
Can you guess the age of the person from the type of questions he puts to you?

Your mental age is 12. I don't worry about the physical age as all bearded goats are not our educational ministers.
What are your qualifications for calling yourself a Congressman?

I have invested Rs. 6/12/- in the Congress during the last 27 years.

L. KRISHNA RAO (Anantapur)

Is there any value for beard nowadays?

There is a ministership in Abul Kalam's and leadership in Guruji Golwalkar's. Last time when the beards clashed—Aurangzeb's and Shivaji's—new history was made.

Why do the Presidency College students pass by the side of Queen Mary's college?

To learn some bed-side manners, perhaps.

MISS VANMALA R. BIJLANI (Thana)

Do you really worship Sardar Patel with all your heart?

No. I don't worship human beings, but I pray for his long life because the country needs him very badly today.

H. H. SINGH (Singapore)

How does the present devaluation affect your "filmindia"?

The price of production has gone up by only 40 per cent. I am furiously thinking of recovering this increase from the readers so that they learn to vote intelligently next time.

RATAN PRAKASH SAXENA (Kaithal)

Differentiate between Nehru, Acharya Kripalani and Vinoba, the disciples of the same saint?

One is the heir, the second one is the conscience and the last one is the cartoon of Gandhiji.

S. K. MEHTA (Simla)

Is it a sin to fall in love with a married woman?

Yes. Wrecking a home is a crime in addition.

Why do all our leaders wear chappals?

To throw them away quickly and run when they are chased. But in this country they are never chased. Even their damn chappals are stolen and worshipped.

H. HEMAKESARI (Dharwar)

Do you know why most of our heroines worship Lord Krishna when they are in difficulty?

Lord Krishna always rushed to the rescue of women and right from his childhood Krishna understood the problems of Gopis better than those of others. No wonder our heroines appeal to a God specialized in women. This is an age of specialists.

Why are many old Congressmen marrying nowadays?

Power is a rejuvenating force in human life. Look at our ministers the way they are looking younger day by day despite all the hard work they are supposed to be doing. It is a pity they have banned bigamy.

IQBAL K. BHALLA (Jagraon)

Mr. Patel you are so popular, why don't you stand for elections?
No. Your questions are boring, your face may be worse.

Why is Nargis so innocent?

Who told you that?

MRS. P. R. SUGUNA JOHN (Kakinada)

Do you possess a copy of the Holy Bible and do you read it at any time?

I was taught the Bible in a Jesuit school but my neighbors were not with the result that I am denied the privilege of loving them. And some of them are good-looking.

H. R. KRISHNA MURTHY (Bangalore)

Why boys follow girls?

That is Papa Adam's legacy to his posterity.

What is birth?

Birth is but a beginning of death.

Why are some men called dogs?

Only to insult the dogs!

OM PRAKASH VYAS (Mhow)

Can you become a saint?

I think I have become one already. My wife's ever-increasing circle of girl friends confirms my suspicion.

H. P. SAMPAT (Bombay)

Which nation of the world can boast of virtuous women?

Wherever there are births, there are mothers and mothers make nations virtuous.

Y. C. WHIG (New Delhi)

Why doesn't Suraiya manage a false set of teeth or at least file her front ones short?

She has had new ones put in very recently but they look funny because her mouth is flat and wide which is an inheritance from her mother.

JENNIFER LOBO (New Delhi)

What would you do if you found yourself on an uninhabited desert island with Morarji Desai?

I would distill liquor, grow tobacco, gamble with cowries, dance, sing and do all sorts of things to keep Morarjibhai busy lecturing to me. At the end of six months he would die of a sore throat.

S. V. ORPE (Bombay)

What do you think of a person loving a married woman?

Loving a married woman is poaching. In England and America—the democracies of modern civilization—they shoot poachers.

What is your opinion about Miss Nancy de Saffa alias Miss Universe? Is she so beautiful as to be called 'Global Beauty Queen'? I think, even our Maharashtrian ladies are more beautiful! What do you think?

Foreigners always pick up a wrong one and call her a beauty queen. Nancy is neither beautiful nor queenly. We can find a million Indian women better looking than this 'Miss Universe'.

I hear Producer A. R. Kardar is quitting India. Is it true?

Not yet! He has still to add to his dozen fortunes before he thinks of shifting.

S. H. THAKKAR (Bombay)

Dr. Ambedkar said the other day in the Constituent Assembly that he does not like newspapers. Why?

Because they don't print his photographs.

MOHAN CHANDRA MISRA (Lucknow)

Do you believe in relations?

Absolutely! I believe in their talent to make my life miserable. I keep them at arm's length.

What is suicide for an orphan?

Acquiring a parent in death.

ISHWAR V. MAHUBANI (Bombay)

What sort of death do you wish to have?

A quick one. I am an impatient type.

S. P. VASUDEV RAO (Bangalore)

I want to become a successful politician. How should I begin?

Take a soap box to a seashore and start raving. That is how most of our leaders began and they are still raving.

S. VENKATRAM (Visakhapatnam)

Who is older: Leela Chitnis or Durga Khote?

They are both at an age where a few years more or less don't matter. Never ask the age of mothers.

SURESH NAKUL (New Delhi)

If the Pakistan Premier invites you for a post in his cabinet as the modern Birbal, will you accept it?

Pakistan's Premier is not an Akbar. He is the modern Aurangzeb.

Is going to jail an additional qualification?

Not nowadays. The jails are not sanctuaries of patriots these days.

RAJESHWARI TANDON (Agra)

Can you spend a night all alone in a cemetery?

I have spent nights in a crematorium in search of ghosts and then I discovered that ghosts walked the earth outside the crematorium.

L. SUBBU (Secunderabad Dn.)

Why don't you sell your autograph?

I do. The charge is ten rupees for an autographed photo. Cash in advance and no V.P.P.

MRS. ESTHER DORAISWAMI (Tanjore)

To what degree does reading assist self-education?

I am purely a product of books having had no university education. If you like what I write you know what reading books can do.

OM PRAKASH JHUNJHUNWALA (Kanpur)

Pakistan merchants have decided to boycott Indian goods. What does it mean?

It means one more kick on our bottoms.

ARJAN D. BHARWANI (Ootacamund)

When does a home become Hiroshima?
When the film hero arrogates the privileges of the trusting husband.
Why is it that we are always quoting Gandhiji but never following him?
Quoting Gandhiji is at least more honest than following him. In quoting there is no blackmarketing.
What opinion do you hold about Shri Purshottam Tricumdas?
An intelligent man in the wrong camp.
What will the Congress be without Pandit Nehru and Sardar Patel?
With them it is on the rocks already. Without them it will be a bedlam of boobies.

MISS VINODINI J. CHAUDHARY (Bombay)
What will be the fate of the Gandhi Fund?
Ask Mahatma Gandhi. He can see more from the heaven than we can from the earth.

Is Pakistan a poor state?
That is the general delusion in India but the Pakistanis are beating us in every field except in speeches.
In what respect are Americans superior to Indians?
In hard work, imagination and enterprise.

PROF. DEVKI NANDAN NASEH (Delhi)
Why don’t rich ladies blush when poor clerks stare them in the face?
The rich blush when the richer stare and so do the poor when the poorer stare. But the first blushes in embarrassment while the latter in sympathy.

K. KRISHNA (Bombay)
How far is the Honourable B. G. Kher right in saying that Bombay is beautiful because of Parsis and Parsis alone?
The Honourable gentleman has become old now and old men often flatter their audience with some harmless praise.

MRS. SHEILA T. KRIPALANI (Simla Hills)
Your “Warning to Don Juans” is obviously a warning to married-women-turned-heroines and their husbands; yet so often you have recommended a film career to respectable girls and women?
Yes, but I expect them to remain respectable and not rush into the arms of film heroes leaving their husbands in chilly and lonely beds.

N. GANAPATI (Negapatam)
Why are people so much interested in scandal?
Scandal has a spicy taste which sharpens the tongue.

K. A. PATNA (Madras)
Why was Pandit Nehru given such a terrific reception in America? Do the Americans love and respect Pandit Nehru so much?
Americans love and respect none but themselves. It is the shadow of Stalin that has raised the stature of Nehru. Nehru has been a great man last 20 years but the Americans never invited him. Why have they suddenly fallen in love with him now?

K. T. RAMACHAR (Waltair)
Who is the common man who often figures prominently in the speeches of our leaders?
He is the blind idiot who is led to the poll and asked to deposit his destiny into the ballot box. Having done that he has to grope his way back all on his own.
What is the cure for provincialism in our country?
Scrapping provincial autonomy.

A. BABU RAO (Secunderabad)
What does the 15th August remind you of?
Of six million refugees who paid the price of freedom in blood and flesh of their dear ones.

H. S. VENKATA RAO (Mysore)
Are you afraid of man or God?
Neither. Man is not worthy of my attention while God is all love.
Do you believe in carrying tales?
In telling them. Carrying is done by women. Are you an atheist?
I am not that intellectual as to deny God.
What is hope?
Hope is a bee that collects honey without a flower.

S. D. REGE (Hyderabad Dn.)
Do you think ballroom dancing fits in well with the present social structure?
It doesn’t but we have to find some idle men for the bubbling wives of our officers and administrators and give them a little synthetic thrill while their husbands do late hours at their offices.
Have you ever indulged in platonic love?
Perish the thought! How can I be as intellectual as Plato to reach the ideal without the help of desire?
What is your opinion of a man who has attained a good social position through the influence of his father-in-law? I would rather be a beggar!
A beggar makes a poor son-in-law. What is wrong if the man who gives you his daughter gives you a push in life? Wouldn’t you accept similar help from a friend?

MISS CHANDER K. SYAL (Delhi)
What will happen to ‘filmindia’ when you pass on to a better world Mr. Patel? I hope it won’t stop publication. Have you a successor? Do live for another 60 years. You musn’t let that guy Shaw beat you!
If Bernard Shaw had brains he wouldn’t have lived so long in such a wicked world. After I die, and may God oblige me early, there won’t be any filmindia—not the one you are reading today. I have no successor except my little wife who will probably be too stunned to write. But you have always a chance to get a better magazine from some one else.

K. NAZIRUDDIN (Hyderabad Dn.)
Have you got the wisdom of Solomon?
Yes, without his gold mines.
A Hindu friend of mine is in love with a Muslim girl and his relatives do not like the idea. He has been thrown out of his home. What poison would you prescribe so that he is through?

He can take potassium cyanide or become a Muslim. Both are the same to a Hindu.

Will prohibition encourage black-marketing?

It will but as against that we shall have a flourishing cottage industry with a distillery in every second home.

V. M. MANUEL (Mandya)
Suggest some improvements in our theatres?

They are beyond improvement. Burn them and build them again.

S. SIVALINGAM (Colombo)
Rajaji is a saint?

Is he?

T. P. JHUNJHUNWALA (Kanpur)
Is ’filmindia’ to be chewed, tasted or digested?

Purchase it first. You can do with it what you like afterwards.

R. SANE (Bombay)
The principles of Congress are truth, non-violence and justice. What are yours?

The same but neither of us follows them.

MISS SUDHA Joglekar (Poona)
What do you prefer: violet or pink?

That depends on the complexion of her skin.

Are you growing more food in the veranda according to Pandit Nehru’s advice?

No. I refuse to follow Pandit Nehru’s advice, till the Bombay and Madras ministers follow his advice by scrapping prohibition.

G. C. Vyas (Kapadvanj)
What should be done by readers of ’filmindia’ after your death?

Forget me so that they can enjoy reading other magazines.

M. VASUDEVAN NAIR (Puliyar)
In the next general elections your vote goes to the Congress, the Socialists or the Communists?

To the Congress as the least of the three evils.

ARVIND K. DESHI (Bombay)
What is the quickest way of squandering money?

Throw it out of a window.

Is it safe to lend money to a film actor?

When a film actor arrives at the borrowing stage, it is dangerous even to give him a smile.

How is it that the films that are given the widest publicity generally turn out to be flops?

Bad eggs are always put on the top.

M. M. SAXENA (Agra)
Prime ministers of the provinces are serving the country faithfully as they say. What are their sons doing?

Supporting their families faithfully.

K. K. GOPAL RAO (Bangalore)
Frankly tell me whether you are susceptible to corruption. Can the producers buy you over to get a favourable review of their films from you?

At 45 with a large family to support, I am quite ready to be corrupted but where are the producers with money? Most of them have not paid their grocers yet.

25 PRIZES EVERY MONTH.

In response to the demand of numerous readers, Filmindia Publications Ltd., have decided to give copies of Editor Patel’s book “Grey Dust” as prizes for questions which are considered interesting or elicit interesting replies in “Editor’s Mail”.

The prize scheme has therefore been revised as follows:

1st Prize: Rs. 90/- and one copy of “Grey Dust”; 2nd Prize: Rs. 70/- and a copy; 3rd Prize: Rs. 40/- and a copy; 4th Prize: Rs. 30/- and a copy; 5th Prize: Rs. 20/- and a copy and 20 Consolation Prizes of one copy of “Grey Dust” each.

A reader can ask as many questions as he likes. Questions should be neatly written or typed if possible. Unless the letters are signed, they won’t be considered.

In awarding prizes the Editor’s decision shall be final and absolutely binding and no correspondance will be entertained.

“Ahooti” is the fifth stage play of Prithviraj Kapoor. In comparison with his four brilliant plays staged previously, “Ahooti” remains a dull, boring and ineffective production. It hasn’t the vigour, the crisp action and the dynamic dramatization which distinguished Prithviraj’s previous four plays.

“Ahooti” is a none-too-effective appeal to the Punjab Hindus to lick their own wounds and to forget and forgive the Pakistani Muslims despite the demoniacal bestiality they perpetrated on innocent Hindu women in the unfortunate communal massacre of 1947.

A BORING PLAY

“Ahooti” is a play in three acts and all the three acts become long-winded and boring because of Prithvi’s irrepressible enthusiasm to talk a person’s head off on almost every problem under the sun. This all-wise approach of Prithvi makes his character a very tiresome and boring affair and the audience wonders why they should pay for a play in which its political-minded producer wants to air his views at the least provocation. “Ahooti” has thus a good few thousand useless words which far from succeeding in dramatizing the theme get on the nerves of the audience.

If the climax of the play is to be taken as the theme of the story, then Bismil, the play-writer wants us to reclaim those unfortunate young Hindu women who became the unwilling and unfortunate victims of the brutal vengeance of the Muslims. This is a humanitarian theme with a lofty spiritual ideal which finds its eloquence in the dialogue of Mehtaji, a social worker of the Congress.

In the young and delicate Janki, on the threshold of her wedding, Bismil creates a pathetic symbol of a Hindu maiden ruthlessly raped by Muslims during the Punjab massacre. And when Janki is rescued and brought back to the refugee camp by Mahomed Shafi, the Muslim in ten millions, Bismil lifts his other character, Ram, to those spiritual heights where human crimes cease to hurt the human mind. Sprinkling the soothing dew-drops of wisdom and forgiveness over the fresh and burning wounds through the choice dialogue of Mehtaji, Bismil persuades Ram to look at the misfortune of Janki with divine forbearance and in doing so appeals to the young men of our nation to reclaim their Jankis and take them to their hearts as heroines of their homes.

The character of Mehtaji, symbolic of service, patience, wisdom, forbearance and humanitarianism, is beautifully conceived by the writer and excellently portrayed by B. M. Vyas. Vyas lives the role and in doing so easily gives the best performance of the play.

With these three key characters in view Bismil opens the play in a Hindu home in Rawalpindi on the 7th of March 1947. In Ram’s home his mother and other women, including of course one good Muslim woman, are shown singing as an advance celebration of Ram’s wedding with Janki.

Boredom begins when Ram’s father, Rai Saheb, enters with Ram Krishan, Janki’s father and with some more characters appearing on the stage an ineffective dissertation on politics begins. Prithviraj, being the producer, of course holds the floor and bores every one around with his pre-conceived wisdom on all matters.

The first act, however, gets suddenly electrified when the set goes red with fire and the news of Muslims burning Hindu homes and raping and killing Hindu women is heard.

THE RARE MUSLIM

The second act opens on a dismal set which looks like a penal settlement. It is supposed to be a refugee camp with only one prominent refugee, Prithviraj, a singing Sikh with a rotten voice and a few volunteers rushing about aimlessly. Here again Prithviraj holds the floor with his hoarse philosophy and his temporary rebellion against God. Mahomed Shafi, the good Muslim in ten millions, brings Janki raped and tattered by Muslims and we soon arrive at the theme and philosophy of the play through the dialogue of Vyas and Sarjan. But Prithviraj keeps growling and punctuating till Rai Saheb arrives to take them all to Bombay.

The third act opens on a thatched set which is evidently a refugee camp in Bombay. We are shown the Now showing to packed houses at:

Royal Opera House, Jai Hind & Rivoli, Bombay and at ALAKA, Poona. refugees licking their wounds with miles. Here again Prithviraj monopolizes with his through-the-hat talk. Janki has a bath in this set and looks Hindu once again. Ram is still ready and loving. But the Hindu tragedy is now coated with scandal. Lachmi slanders Janki and Rai L. A., Ram's father, picks up the refrain. All this leads Janki to commit suicide. That gives Prithvi a chance to give us all another picture.

"Ahooti" is a story of Janki, a Hindu maiden, raped by the Moslems but driven to commit suicide by the Hindus.

PRITHVIRAJ SABOTAGES

"Ahooti" is a poor play. It could have been a forceful drama had it not been for the few thousand extraords arrogated to himself by the producer. Prithviraj makes the play dull and in doing so embarrasses the her players. A producer must give fair chance to others if he wants a play to be successful. Prithviho thinks himself to be the wisest in the play— and he is in a way—takes too much on himself and in consequence rores the audience. Prithvi's own performance as Ram Krishan is poor. His talk takes his action away. His accent is still sharp and staccato. He sounds rather unnatural and Pathanish.

Sajjan seems to have divorced himself from his individuality. He sees Prithviraj in the opening scene and proves that Prithvi's direction bad. A direction that intrudes always bad. Direction doesn't mean making monkeys out of men. Sajjan acts like Prithvi's monkey— doing all the while.

Indumati stretches her mouth too much and too often and looks weak in consequence. Her role is just but not felt. Kumudini who says Lajwanti is a graceful and attractive girl and worthy of a screen career. We are sure she will be creaked up soon and lost.

Krishan Dhawan who plays Rai heb doesn't seem to like the footlights. He keeps his head down all the while and in consequence misses intimacy with the audience. His performance is poor.

Pushpa gives an excellent performance as Janki but her voice is still a bit too thin for the gallery. Man-saram does well as Dayaloo. the domestic servant, but he tries to hold the stage a trifle too long in the early scenes without suitable action.

Prithvi's second son, Shanmee, doesn't know what to do with his face and hands after vomiting his dialogue. He should be taught to take interest in the drama around him.

There are thirty-two characters in the play, out of which only three are effective: Pushpa, Sajjan and B. M. Vyas. And the best performance is given by Vyas.

In fine, "Ahooti" is a failure. The play is not worth the high price of the admission ticket. This play is Prithvi's first failure on the stage.
With Puri at the jacket, Raj Kapoor is evidently in a soup and Muntaz Ali is thinking hard about the way out!

Pathans, be they watchmen or moneylenders, also become allergic when they see a woman at any age. And when this guy sees Rehana —

Rehana plays the daughter of a musician and puts plenty of music and rhythm in her dancing bells when she meets the man in a million.

SOME GOOD
Producer S. Mukherji, Director Santoshi have again conspired to get other entertainer in "Sargam". When they worked together last time, they gave "Shehnai" which became huge box-office hit. "Sargam" is likely to be a lilting and entertaining. "Shehnai" the way the picture is planned with new girls and quite a few stars.
It is lucky David is not on this side of the balustrade with Rehana looking so attractive. But she can't stop David from talking.

Rehana and Paro make a regiment of romance and threaten all the boys within a hundred miles.

It looks like a real 'sitar' even though Rehana is handling it. Motion pictures usually have 'sitars' that have stopped singing.

Gemini's "Nishan" Draws Huge Crowds!
Bhanumati Attracts Attention!

Producer-director S. S. Vasan of Madras, who stormed the box-offices with his mammoth picture "Chandralekha" and set fire to the ambitions of other producers by collecting over 20 million (2 crores) rupees, has now given us a second box-office hit in "Nishan", the Hindustani version of "The Corsican Brothers", a novel by Alexandre Dumas.

In comparison with "Chandralekha", "Nishan" is a modest picture in spectacle but "Nishan" has more speed and action than "Chandralekha". "Nishan" is also a better knit picture with the vein of the story constantly in view and not lost in a circus or a spectacular dance.

Having decided to film a famous novel the producer hasn't worried much about changing any sequences and with the usual additions of songs and dances, "Nishan" could be said to be quite a good screen adaptation of the original work.

RURITANIAN ROMANCE:
It is the usual Ruritanian story with two feudal lords at loggerheads. One of them, Zorawar Singh kills the other, Mahendra Singh, and burns down his palace. But a loyal family doctor saves the twins of Mahendra Singh. One of these twins is looked after by a friend while the other is brought up in the forest by Madho Singh, a faithful servant of the family.

The city twin is called Vijay Singh, while his forest counterpart is called Vikram Singh. They look alike as twins usually do but the city-bred boy is more patient and cultured while the other fellow is more primitive and violent.

They become 21 and the doctor brings them together and tells them to avenge the murder of their father. The boys take the usual oath and from that day onwards Zorawar Singh becomes a marked man.

To make the story a romantic triangle, a girl named Bhanumati is now introduced. Vijay falls in love with her and she reciprocates his love. Vikram also feels the same way about the girl while Zorawar Singh wants to marry her by hook or by crook.

With the girl tossed between the twins and Zorawar Singh, a lot of thrilling drama is created on the screen. till at the end Zorawar manages to kill Vikram but is himself killed by Vijay. It ends well.

GOOD DIRECTION
The picture is smartly produced being good in photography and recording. The sword and dagger fights are very well taken and both Ranjan and Nagendra Rao give a good account of themselves. The illusion of twin acting by the same artiste is well maintained in camera and action.

The dances are well presented with young and attractive girls who are not a disgrace to their sex. The dances have in addition some theme and school. A couple of tunes are attractive and the music generally is quite suitable for a story of this type and so are the love songs sung by Bhanumati and attractively tuned by Balkrishna Kalla. The dialogue of Pandit Indra is short and pointed and fits the lips of the Tamilian characters very well. Vasan has done a good job of direction, especially in maintaining a fast tempo for the story.

SHE HAS "IT"
From the players Bhanumati attracts attention. Though she is not beautiful, she has yet a sex-appeal which she uses very effectively in her romantic sequences with Ranjan. The song at the piano, which is incidentally beautifully begun, reveals this girl's talent for some natural flirting. Bhanumati plays her role very well. She has that illusive "it".

Another one with an unsympathetic face for a hero is Ranjan. With thick lips, big bulging eyes and short curled-up wig, Ranjan could be said to have Negroid looks. But the boy is extremely active and has talent for acting. He plays the twins, Vijay and Vikram, and despite his rugged Negroid looks does his job well.

Nagendra Liao who plays Zorawar Singh gives a good performance. His photogenic value would improve a lot if he gets his upper front teeth removed and new ones put in to suit his short upper lip.

J. S. Casshyap, a versatile film man, gives a fine stoic performance as the doctor of the story. He almost lives his role of a loyal family doctor. Maya Banerjee makes many ugly faces as the mistress of Zorawar Singh and fails miserably. V. P. S. Mani who plays Himmat, the henchman of Zorawar does a good job in a straight role. The rest are just the rest.

In fine, "Nishan" is a good entertainer for women and children and with Gemini's trade name well established, it is bound to become another box-office hit. This picture is a good money-spinner.

“Narsinh Avatar” Becomes A Mass Entertainer!
Little Laxman Makes A Good Prahlad!

The story of Prahlad, the devotee of Vishnu has been produced and reproduced so many times on the Indian screen, that there was really no necessity of one more version to be produced now. But Producer Sohrab Modi, encouraged by his big prospect-paunch which he recently developed, seems to have fancied himself very much as the half-man-half-brute hero of “Narsinh Avatar”.

SINHKA OR HOLIKA?
The story of Prahlad as told in the Vishnu Puran is however slightly different from the one presented by Sohrab Modi. In Producer Modi’s “Narsinh Avatar”, we are presented with a sister of Hiranyakashyapu called Holika, in whose memory, says the producer, the Holi festival of the Hindus is celebrated. This is a debatable point because the Vishnu Puran (H. H. Wilson’s Translation 1840 Edition page 123) says that the only sister of Hiranyakashyapu was named Sinhika and she was married to Viprachitti.

Writing about the origin of the Holi Rati Bahadur B. A. Gupte in his learned book “Hindu Holidays and Ceremonials”, (1919 Edition page 88) says that Holi festival is observed in celebration of the victory of Lord Krishna over a she-demon called Holika. The same view is held by E. Denison Ross in the Government of India publication, “An Alphabetical List of the Feasts and Holidays of the Hindus and Mahomedans” (issued by the Imperial Record Department in 1914, page 38).

There was really no need for the story-writer Shukla to introduce a doubtful character like “Holika” but there it is in “Narsinh Avatar” with a fantastic explanation that though Holika had a boon that she would never be burnt in fire she forfeited this privilege because of her evil intentions.

MIRACLE MONGER
Quite a few incidents of Prahlad’s trials at the hands of his father have been conveniently left out. It is related in the Vishnu Puran that Prahlad was attacked by the poisonous snakes Kuhaka, Takshaka and Andhaka, who hit his body mercilessly without any effect on the young devotee of Vishnu. So was he attacked by the elephants, but he still lived. Then Samvar, the sorcerer, tried to destroy him but Prahlad was protected by the flaming Sudarshan. Lastly, Prahlad was thrown into the sea and rocks were piled on him and yet the young devotee was saved by Vishnu.

If these incidents had been added to the miracles already shown on the screen, little Prahlad would have been accepted as the best miracle-monger in the history of mankind.

The story travels in the usual mythological rut with Producer Sohrab Modi telling us that Hiranyakashyapu did a penance of only 12 years to obtain the boon of immortality while Chitrav Shastri says that he did the penance for 11500 years. (Page 306 under “Narsinh” in “Prachin Charitra Kosh")

Whatever that be, his pregnant wife, Kayadhu, receives him on return. Though his wife looks pregnant, it was not Kayadhu who was pregnant but Shobhana Samarth who seems to have carried her burden from “Ram Baan” to “Narsinh Avatar”. As Kayadhu was a sati, like Sita, Savitri and others, she could not have become pregnant during the absence of her husband for 11500 years. But there it is a visible evidence of Kayadhu looking pregnant in “Narsinh Avatar”, the only authentic feature of Kayadhu is the ageing on her face. She looks as if she had waited 11500 years for her husband.

Hiranyakashyapu starts his braggadocio career now and soon finds his own son Prahlad in the opposite camp. He conquers all gods and kings and brags more and more. All the while Prahlad goes through one acid test after another.

It all ends ultimately when Sohrab Modi decides to don the half-man-half-brute make up to kill Hiranyakashyapu.

STUPID ART
As miracle pictures go, “Narsinh Avatar” is not at all a bad picture inspite of its defects. Technically it has the usual Minerva defects. Russi Banker’s art direction is at once fantastic and incongruous. His sets, to say the least, are utterly idiotic and unimaginative. Persian lions, Moghal colonnades, Syrian balconies, Buddhist pillars and what not—all are thrown in without any art, sense or proportion to provide the mythological background of the story. The result is grotesque and stupid. The music is Maharashtrian at best. Sohrab Modi’s direction is quite good. The dialogue is good.

From the players, Laxman, who plays Prahlad, looks his role and gives a good account of himself. Narendra Sharma does well as Hiranyakashyapu. Mahipal looks a good Narad. Shobhana Samarth plays Kayadhu and clearly shows the evidence of having waited 11500 years for her husband on her face. Her performance is poor.

In short, “Narsinh Avatar” should appeal to the devotional masses who like to see their gods doing their usual miracles.

"SHAHEED" BANNED!
Bombay, October 20.
Filmistan's popular picture "Shaheed" starring Kamini Kaushal and Dilip Kumar has been banned by the Pakistan censors giving no particular reason.
"Shaheed" contains a tender love story against the background of the 1942 Quit India movement but the Pakistanis having nothing in common with Indians now seem to have disowned even the past.

DISSOLVED IN TEARS!
Hollywood, October 17.
Shirley Temple will soon divorce her actor-husband John Agar on grounds of "mental cruelty". Shirley says she has already been "crying about it for the last two weeks".
Shirley and John were married with a lot of tom-toms and they have a daughter too but the one-time "favourite child star seems to be following the notorious Hollywood pattern of divorce.
Only two weeks' tears are now going to dissolve a wedding bond.

LESS TAMASHA:
Dacca, October 15.
In order to cut down the consumption of electricity in Dacca, the District Magistrate has passed an order to the effect that all cinema houses must remain closed from 6-30 p.m. to 8-30 p.m.
Consumers who fail to comply with this order will have their electric connections cut off.

NOT A SET!
Bombay, October 16.
Film actress Geeta Bali was fined Rs. 45 for exceeding the speed limit and driving at 60 miles per hour.
Geeta sat in her car and sent a 'representative' to answer a charge of overspeeding. But Presidency Magistrate H. G. Mahimtura said, "What does she think she is? Call her up!"
Geeta went up two steps at a time and pleaded guilty.
That was a real court, dear.

DOUBLE FARE!
Madras, November 1.
It is reported that the Government of India insist that as all the other provinces have agreed to restrict the footage of films to 11,500 feet, the Government of Madras should also "fall in line in the interest of uniformity".

But then what will happen toproducer Vasan and his villagers who want nothing less than 20,000 feet? They will have to be shown two pictures for a single ticket.

OH! SARAH!
Sea Island, October 19.
Miss Sarah Churchill, actress daughter of Winston Churchill, married Anthony Beauchamp on Wednesday the 19th October.
Anthony is a British fashion photographer. Now that he has married an actress, he will have enough material in Sarah to keep his camera clicking.
That is Socialism in Churchill's home.

TAX OR FINE?
Lucknow, October 18.
For allowing five persons to see a cinema show without paying the entertainment tax, the manager and the proprietor of the Regal Cinema were fined Rs. 500 each by the Additional City Magistrate under the Entertainment and Betting Tax Act. This evasion of tax was noticed by one of the senior entertainment tax inspectors.
Isn't it time that the inspectors of the Government of Bombay caught some people for similar offences? Or are all people in Bombay so damn honest?

SO WHAT?
Hollywood, October 16.
A friend argued the difference in age thus: "What's wrong with that? When she is 100, he will be only 145."
Victor is, however, in line with the South Indian, E. V. Ramaswamy Naicker, 70, who recently married a 25-year-old girl.

WE MISS HIM, TOO!
Poona, October 26.
We regret to report the death of Colonel Amarnath Kashyap on Tuesday the 25th October from heart failure at his residence, 7 Lothian Road, Poona. Amar, as he was affectionately called, was the elder brother of Kamini Kaushal. At 36, he was quite hale and hearty and his sudden death shocked everyone. He was worried a lot in recent months in trying to smoothen the domestic problems of his star-sister, Kamini.

SEASON TICKETS!
London, October 30.
Mr. R. J. Minney, retiring honorary President of the London School of Economics Film Society, has hit upon a new plan of “season tickets” to see any cinema in Britain as often as the filmgoers liked at a price of £1 or £2 a year. Incidentally. Minney thought that this procedure would lessen the queues and the rush at the box-Offices and also increase the collections in the long run. He said, “There are estimated to be 30,000,000 filmgoers in this country. A subscription from them should ensure a far larger sum annually for film production than is received at present from the box-offices”.

BLOWING OFF,
Dhanbad, October 28.
Some goondas threw some crackers at the 3rd class booking office of the Ray Cinema, after the midnight show of October 26/27 was over.

A portion of the outer wall was blown off. The Police are making investigations.

This is nothing unusual, however, because the Bengalis have become such experts in handling bombs, hand-grenades etc. these days.

SEVEN YEARS SAFE!
24 year old Kishori Alladitta, who once described herself as a film actress without, of course, having worked in any film, was found guilty and sentenced to seven years’ rigorous imprisonment, by Mr. M. B. Honavar, Sessions Judge, Greater Bombay.

The special jury unanimously found Kishori Alladitta and two others: Jagdish Kumar and Rampal Singh, guilty of culpable homicide not amounting to murder in causing the death of Dattatraya S. Nadkarni, a former sub-inspector of police.

When Kishori heard the sentence, she broke down and wept.

CUT AND RELEASED!
Madras, October 30.

He said, "If we have a centre, a very big centre where artists can be trained and sent to Europe for propagating the art and culture of India, it will be very much useful". Perhaps it is with this intention of carrying India's message of art and culture, Uday Shankar is planning a series of shows in New York assisted by his talented wife Amla Devi and some other dancers. This is his sixth professional trip abroad. Let us hope Shankar brings home some dollars from the Yankeeland.

"TRASH" AGAIN

"Recently I had the sad misfortune of seeing Shantaram’s masterpiece "Apna Desh". Masterpiece, my foot! I was shocked to see the way in which a Punjabi girl was shown helping those very people who had outraged her modesty. I challenge Shantaram to show me a case where an Indian woman has thus betrayed her country. Is Shantaram ignorant of the fact that our women were once and still are the glory of our nation and shall remain as long as history is in the making? Has he chosen to trample and molest their glory and our nation’s for the sake of money? It is a disgrace to Shantaram. There can be no difference of opinion about this picture and the only opinion it leaves behind is that it is a dirty rotten picture, produced for the greed of gold."

THERAPEUTIC VALUE

"I was a regular reader of "filmindia" since my childhood. To my misfortune, I was attacked with tuberculosi and was advised by medical authorities not to read magazines.

"Luckily, one new young Medical Officer was posted to our hospital. When he saw one of the patients worrying himself about his domestic affairs and brooding over his terrible disease, the Medical Officer brought one copy of "filmindia" (August 1949) and gave it to him. On going through it, the patient has commenced commenting over the news therein and appreciating your magazine, having forgotten his agony and worries.

"The following day, while enquiring about his condition, the Medical Officer asked with a smile: ‘How did you like yesterday’s prescription?’ and since then we are being supplied with one copy of "filmindia", monthly.

"This is how, Sir, your "filmindia" has served to allay our sufferings and to sleep by its sweet and subtle humour."

MADRAS. K. Venkateswara Rao.

RIGHT:

"I have greatly admired your article ‘Homes on Fire’. I hope this will knock some sense into the brains of young girls who are crazy about film acting and ruin their lives in such pursuits.

"Although you have only treated the subject of girls being film crazy the same is true about boys also. Many boys have given up their studies and ruined careers in trying to become film heroes.

"There is another aspect of this problem as well. There are many bogus people posing as producers and directors to take undue advantage of young boys and girls. They give false promises to make them heroes and heroines and end by making fools of them. Even if the young people want to join the films they should do so intelligently and not fall into the hands of such racketeers."

SIMLA. B. N. Tikkoo.

HOME FIRST!

"The story of the war bride in your editorial of ‘filmindia’ of September 1919 deserves sympathy and truly speaking that is the real picture of an average Indian woman after marriage, as depicted by her. I congratulate you not only on the manner in which you have dealt with all the points arising these days between weary and hungry husbands and wives but also on the right advice that you have given to both so as to contribute to the building of a happy and harmonious home."

DELHI. Naunihal Singh Rawat.

ALL FOR A HOME!

"Your signed editorial in the September issue of "filmindia" was a remarkable masterpiece of healthy journalism. I have yet to come across in any other film journal, English or Vernacular, such a sound, creative and constructive advice as you have tendered argumentatively to those cine-crazy women, who desert their homes to adorn the screen.

a battling home will transform itself into a ‘home sweet home’. This is not unblushing flattery of your leading article. No reasonable critic will have the guts to withhold recognition and appreciation where they are indisputably due.”

THANKS, BUDDY!
“The sound rebuke which you have administered to husbands and the timely and friendly counsel offered to the wives in your September issue, should open the eyes of scores of families of film stars and others. Oh, what a noble service you are doing to the country! Many people are under the impression that yours is merely a film journal. They do not know the treasures of social, moral and political aphorisms contained in the pages of your valuable “filmindia”, the magazine of magazines. May God bless you and your efforts.”

A. B. Natesan.

PLEASE!
“Your review of “Chhotabhai” is appropriate and accurate in details. This picture presents a “silver lining” amidst dark clouds that loom large over the cine world. It marks a happy return to the old glory for which N.T. is reputed. Not only this picture should go a long way to refute the producers’ oft repeated plea that they have to play down to the masses but it should also provide an impetus to the hesitant producers to raise the over-all quality of their pictures and search for fresh avenues.

“More pictures of this sort please, producers!”

P. C. Parekh

THEY SHOULD!
“We often see the hero or the heroine of our films playing the piano or some other musical instrument along with vocal music, sometimes in a happy mood and sometimes in a sorrowful one. It is a known fact that the hero or the heroine only pretends to be operating the instrument. But due to lack of proper direction we often observe with wonder the artiste keeping the hands at the lower octave while the music is going at the corresponding higher octave and vice versa. Further, the artiste also does not (and in reality cannot!) move the fingers to the proper places as the song progresses. The masses, of course, do not mind this because they are carried away by the thrill of the song (often sung by somebody else in the background). To the intelligent spectator, however, this looks very odd and ludicrous. Cannot our producers and directors take cognizance of this simple but significant fact and show us only the face of the hero or heroine without showing the movement of their fingers on the instrument?”

K. S. Sankara Narayanan.

“Your crusade against improving the conditions in theatres will be of no use if the audience is not taught a few good manners.

“One very peculiar habit of our people is to start singing simultaneously with the song of the picture. Now when your neighbour starts singing with his hoarse voice you cannot possibly concentrate on the song. Worse of it is that you hear many such voices coming from all the directions and all the charm of

The song is lost. Our pictures contain only songs to be of any value and that little entertainment is also marred due to the bad manners of our people.

"Say what is the remedy for this?"
BOMBAY. Udhae M. Daga.

LET’S HOPE!
"Your editorial "A Warning to Don Juans" is certainly an eye-opener to our film stars and producers who are responsible for the ruination of many happy homes knowingly or un-knowingly. If our film-stars read your editorial and understand the value and spirit of it, I hope such things will never occur again."

KHARGPUR. G. M. B. Sankarasastri.

PITY, INDEED!
"Your pointed, candid and thought-provoking editorial "A Warning to Don Juans" in October issue has come just in time and ought to serve as an eye-opener to many of our Hindu film-actresses who, under the disguise of artistic expressions and the lure of screen glamour, ultimately fall easy victims to the temptations of Muslim boys working in the films. Not a single day passes without hearing the public scandals, some of these film-actresses make of their private lives. It is a pity and shame that even the directors and producers encourage their illicit sex relationships instead of nipping them in the bud."
BOMBAY. Manu G. Bhagat.

BUT THEY PAY!
"Your warning to ‘Don Juans’ (Editorial, October “filmindia”) is undoubtedly a brave exposition of deplorable facts. But the trouble is that fools themselves cannot be expected to brood over their follies.”
DELHI. Omesh Chandra.

MILLIONS MAD!
"I have a brother who becomes a ‘Mr. Hyde’ on the day he receives ‘filmindia’. He gets very excited, turns crazy and becomes normal only after he finishes reading the magazine. Surely you can suggest some sort of remedy for this madness!”
Miss Soundrammal Doraiswami.

TAXJORE.

LEARN?
"Your editorial, "A Warning To Don Juans" is really an eye-opener to all the film-crazy men and women. No doubt it will serve as an effective antidote to all those young wive and girls who yearn day and night to join the films. And husbands should learn that money alone can never make a home sweetter.”
CUTTACK. Sorojit Mahapatre.

SPITTING EYES
"I hope that the filmindia would mobilise public opinion against the habit of spitting in the cinema theatres, a dirty habit which some of our modern eyes have adopted. Unfortunately the ladies class is on the first floor in all the cinema houses of Jodhpur. They spit from there and that too after chewing some betel. Once I was the target of this foul practice.”

JODHPUR. L. N. Vyas.

SAME FACES!
“Suraiya-Nargis-Suraiya-Nargis, my god! What an eternal boredom one feels when only these two stars, God knows whether from hell or heaven, are shown in every film running in one’s own town. It is in the very nature of man that he likes to see something new, something better every time. This is more so in the case of art, theatre and cinema. But when in one’s town all the cinema houses show only two faces, that too with completely similar type of roles—one singing and dancing, the other weeping and crying all the time, one must be bored enough. Moreover the film industry is daily expanding, earning a lot, and has still vast scope for further development. There being no dearth of new and better talent, I shall request the industry to care more for their fans in future for their own sake, and provide new faces.”

MEERUT. Prem Chandra Bansal.

INDEED!
"Recently, Mr. Patel, a free show of ‘Thes’ was given to the public at Delhi and a prize of Rs. 100 was offered for the best criticism (mind the word criticism) of the picture. Of course, many went to the show and sent their review, but do you know which criticism got the prize? One that was not a criticism but all in all flattery of the picture and the director. Is it not purchasing journalism? Is it not a shame for a person to sell his pen for money?

And these are the same persons who call Baburao Patel, a black-mailer. What a pity!”

NAWALGARH. B. B. L. Kapoor.

MONEY AND GLAMOUR!
“Being an educated Hindu girl from the Punjab, has it been proper for Mrs. Pushpa Hans to portray the role of a treacherous girl in Shantaram’s film entitled “APNA DESH”? Being a true Hindu girl she ought to have refused to act in such a role and at the same time, protested against that kind of a role as depicted in this picture.”

KHARGPUR. A. K. Pany.

MORALS?
“A Warning to Don Juans” is a timely article. It is an eye-opener inasmuch as it 1. clarifies the legal position, 2. emphasizes the moral and social obligations and 3. stresses the different heritage and traditions that separate Hindus and Muslims. It is a great pity that much havoc is being done, for it is true that no Hindu-Muslim marriage can ever be happy.

“Being a student of sociology, the remedy seems to me to lie in inculcating a higher sense of morals and making the fear of punishment, wherever necessary, more effective. In this case the responsibility of the parents or the husbands concerned is the greatest. It is, of course, a highly problematical proposition whether a ‘star’ can be a good housewife, for her profession gets into her blood and she is likely to turn the home into a studio set. But she can, if well-bred, at least keep within the respectable limits of morality and decency. It is also the responsibility of the directors and studio people to see that they do not exploit the talented that come to them by creating unnecessary inducements and encouraging illicit contacts.”
DELHI. S. Nagappa.

DOUBTFUL.
“Your recent Editorials ‘Homes on Fire’ and ‘A Warning to Don Juans’ were unique and splendid. Everything you said of the subject was nothing but the naked truth but do you believe that the lepers of society will take your precious advice seriously and turn over a new leaf to lend dignity and status to the Indian film Industry?”
TANJORE. D. William Moses.

BAD BUSINESS!
“The picture ‘Nishan’ is running in Bombay these days and the management of Rivoli Cinema, Matunga, has taken this opportunity to increase the rates of admission tickets. To the public this form of entertainment had seemed a standardised thing, but now it appears that here too there is as much speculation as in any other thing.

“Whenever a well publicised picture comes to the screen the owners consider it their duty to cash in as much amount as they can. Is this fair?”
BOMBAY. A. S. Agnihotri.

BUT—
“I was stunned when I read your article ‘Film Loss in Pakistan’. You seem to have spared no pains to give full information about all the Evacuee misappropriations in Pakistan. Every word of it should serve as an eye opener to our Government and it should be their utmost desire to see that the Evacuee Ordinance is enforced in full. It should not spare those Ahmeds or Mohammeds whose feet are in India while their hearts are hanging in Pakistan.”
BOMBAY. I. N. Hazari.

THAT BAD?
“Kedar Sharma’s latest ‘hit’ has perhaps been most appropriately named. The picture is called ‘Thes’, and it does succeed in breaking the hearts of the audience. Now let us save space and not go into its torturing details”.
DELHI. R. C. Whig.

PICTURES IN MAKING

JAGAT PICTURES (Bombay)

“Shair” will be released in 20 different stations all over India shortly. For Bombay, Producer Madanlal Mehrotra has taken a release date at the “Liberty” cinema. “Shair” has many top liners like Suraiya, Kamini Kaushal and Dev Anand and the picture is reported to have been well directed by director Chawla. To add to its box-office value, there are many lilting songs and a couple of nice dances by Cuckoo.

“Gauna” written by Vrajendra Nath Gaur and directed by Amiya Chakraborty is making good progress. To make the village atmosphere authentic, Producer Madanlal and director Amiya have taken quite a few outdoor locations. “Gauna” features two new finds—Usha Kiran and Anoop Kumar and they are both promising newcomers.

Their next is called “Raj Rani” and will be directed by Satish Nigam, who has already “Sunehre Din” to his credit. The story, dialogue and songs will be written by the popular Madhok.

FAMOUS PICTURES LTD. (Bombay)

“Hamari Manzil” featuring Nirupa Roy and Prem Adib has been released at the Imperial Cinema, Bombay where it is drawing huge crowds. From the box-office point of view “Hamari Manzil” is a worthy successor to “Bari Bahen” and very few producers carry the luck and business acumen of Producer Baburao Pai. Once again the music of Husanlal and Bhagatram has proved popular and “Hamari Manzil” threatens to run to crowded houses during the next few weeks.

“Galyachchi Shapath” a Marathi comedy with witty dialogue is running at the Central Cinema, Bombay, while the script work of the next film is almost completed.

FILMISTAN LTD (Bombay)

“Shabnam” starring Kamini Kaushal and Dilip Kumar is having a triumphant run at the Roxy, Bombay. The success of “Shabnam” seems to have put more energy into Producer Mukerjee, the way he is labouring over “Sargam” with director Santoshi. A row of pretty girls such as Rehana, Paro, half-a-dozen dances, tuneful and catchy songs are thrown in to add interest to an entertaining story and there is every chance of “Sargam” becoming another box-office hit. “Samadhi” starring Nalini Jaywant, Kuldip and Ashok Kumar and directed by Ramesh Saigal is reported to be almost ready.

HALDIA NANDA PRODUCTIONS (Bombay)

Producer-director J. K. Nanda has got a load off his mind ever since he released “Singaar” at Calcutta, and witnessed its crowded premiere there. Nanda is extremely happy because both the press and the public have applauded it—for its emotional story, its attractive music and the fine performances of Madhubala, Suraiya and Jairaj. “Singaar” is scheduled for an early release in 1950 at the Liberty, Bombay. Meanwhile, he is getting the script work of “Mehfil” ready.

HINDUSTAN CHITRA (Bombay)

Producer-director Kishore Sahu’s “Rim Jhim” a social comedy, is doing well at Calcutta and its success only goes to prove his versatility in treatment of themes—from tragic to the comic. “Hamara Ghar” is more than half completed

Stop! That far and no further! And India’s darling son, Jawaharlal Nehru, has to stop at the barrier of which he was one of the architects. It is at the Indo-Pakistan border at Husseinsulla, Ferozepore, when Pandit Nehru went on an inspection tour. On the other side is Pakistan—the other breast of the same mother which the child in India can’t reach now—and Pakistani guards are seen guarding their frontier. The poignancy of this national tragedy is seen clearly on Pandit Nehru’s face. That barrier makes Nehru an enemy on the other side.

and with a bit of luck Kishore hopes to complete it before the calendar changes over to 1950. Some of the artistes working in "Hamara Ghar" are Durga Khote, Geeta Bose, Veera, Aga and Yashodhara Kathju.

SADIQ PRODUCTIONS (Bombay)

Now that "Sabak" the latest picture of Sadiq Productions, has gone to the sets, producer-director M. Sadiq has not a minute to spare and he is seen working on it all day long. "Sabak" has Munnawar Sultana as the heroine, Karan Dewan as the hero and a supporting cast consisting of Jagirdar, Kumar, Jiloo Bai, Om Prakash and Abbas. The story of "Sabak" is by Azm Bazidpuri, the lyrics are by Madhok and the music by Qureshi.

FILMKAR LTD (Bombay)

The name of their maiden picture "Bahana" has been changed to "Chahat". This is Nitin Bose's pride picture and since he has not given us a good picture for a long time, we will not be surprised if "Chahat" turns out to be an excellent quality picture. Ashok Kumar and Nargis are reported to be in form under the able direction of Nitin Bose. Others in the cast are Nawab, Raj Mehra, Sunder and Sunalini Devi. Their next "Deedar" is being personally supervised by Rajendra Jain. The script is by Shams Lucknawi while the music is by C. Ramchandra.

M.&T. FILMS LTD (Bombay)

"Nishana" starring Madhubala and Ashok Kumar has been completed. Director Wajhat Mirza is reported to have made a good job of it with an interesting story, lilting music and well-composed lyrics by Nakshab.

"Nirala" is making steady progress at the hands of box-office director Santoshi who has also written its story, dialogue and lyrics. "Nirala" has also an imposing cast consisting of Madhubala. Dev Anand, Yakub, Mazhar Khan and Durga Khote.

Yet another, entrusted to B. M. Naresh is called "Nirmohi" and will be directed by Mazhar Khan. who has already shown his directorial skill in pictures like "Pehli Nazar", "Dil ki Duniya", etc. Charming Veena plays opposite Al Nasir and the two seem to make as romantic a team on the screen as they do in life.

Many more pictures are being planned by this company and it looks as if M. & T. Films Ltd., will sweep the field very soon with an ambitious programme like this.

ALL INDIA PICTURES (Bombay)

Producer P. N. Arora got "Paras" censored and all those who saw its private trial are of the opinion that it will definitely click at the box-offices. In the meantime, "Pardes" is taking shape with all the three partners—Madhubala, Sadiq and Arora—taking a keen interest in it. "Pardes" is a picture worth waiting for, when we consider the talent of the three persons associated with it, the star, the director and the producer.

OMAR KHAHYAM FILMS LTD (Bombay)

Producer Sheikh Mukhtar has nearly completed "Sartaj" a social story written by Sultan Siddique, the man who wrote his two previous pictures "Toote Tare" and "Dada". Encouraged by the success of "Dada", Sheikh Mukhtar is reported to have gone one better in his "Sartaj". The stars working in it are Munnawar Sultana, Motilal and Manorama. Husanalal and Bhasham are in charge of music while direction is in the hands of S. Kha- lif.

GOEL CINE CORPORATION (Bombay)

"Ankhen" a social story of sighs and smiles, produced by Devendra Goel is ready for release. According to reports, producer-director Devendra Goel has spared no pains to make "Ankhen" attractive. and that may be the reason for his selection of artistes like pretty Nalini Jaywant, Shekhar, Bharat Bhushan, etc. The music by Madan Mohan is also considered to be one of the box-office ingredients.

PARO ART CONCERN (Bombay)

Working quietly and steadily, director Chaturbhuj Doshi has completed his assignment "Kisi ki Yad" in record time. This picture contains some graceful dances of Paro Devi apart from an emotional story. The cast consists of Sulochana Chat- terjee, Paro Devi, Jeevan, Bharat Bhushan and character actor Badri- prasad. The music is given by Hans Raj Behal and both Mohanlal Wahai and M. S. Phatak, the joint produ-

When the politicians are being entertained so often why not an honest soldier? Sardar Kapur Singh therefore gave a grand party at Ludhiana in honour of General K. M. Cariappa and as usual the women surrounded the soldier. Here they are Mrs. Kapur Singh (busy eating), Dr. Mrs. Snow, Dr. Mrs. Gibson and General Cariappa, the chief guest without anything to eat.

ers of “Kisi ki Yad” are happy with a good picture in hand. They are now concentrating on the script of “Chhoti si baat”.

RANJIT MOVIE TONE (Bombay)

After a long time, Sardar Chaukral Shah is all smiles because of the success of “Nazaare” in Calcutta, Delhi and many other North Indian stations where it has been released. “Nazaare” is an entertaining comedy with a popular cast like Reshma, Aga Jan and Satish and directed by Prahlad Dutt.

“Sadhvi” a social story starring Nargis and Dilip Kumar and directed by Kedar Sharma is supposed to be a quality picture from the Ranjit studios. The title of “Sadhvi” has however, been changed to “Jogan”, another picture getting ready side y side is called “Garibi” and is being directed by Ramchandra Thaur. The story is by Prabhalal Divedi and the cast includes Geeta Bali, Jairaj, Nirupa Roy and Kailas.

AV KETAN (Bombay)

Producer Chetan Anand who once made “Neecha Nagar” is again up and doing. This time it is a social Afsar”, starring the popular screen team—Suraiya and Dev Anand. Chet an will write and direct it and we hope he makes it different from the usual rut of screen stories. The music is by S. D. Burman. In the supporting cast there are Kanhaiyalal and Manmohan Krishna.

MADHUBAN (Bombay)

“Surajmukhi” produced by Prashad and directed by O. P. Datta has been completed and it will not be long before it is released. With a star-studded cast consisting of glamorous Rehana, Shyam and Durga Khothe, “Surajmukhi” has a good chance of success at the box-office. Some of the songs are said to be well-tuned by Husanlal and Bhangaram.

ARBHINAYA CHITRA (Bombay)

Their maiden picture “Narmada” featuring Sulochana Chatterjee, Jeevan, Umakanth and Ishwarlal is ready for release. For lovers of mythology, the story of Sati Nar mada—the woman who stopped the sun from rising by the power of her tapasya—is bound to have a lot of appeal and the subject is reported to have been treated in an interesting and correct manner. The distribution rights for Bengal and C.P.C.I. have been sold out. The music is by Khenchand Prakash.

GEMINI STUDIOS (Madras)

“Nishan” is attracting crowds everyday at the Royal Opera House, Bombay. Produced and directed by S. S. Vasan, the motion picture wizard of the south, “Nishan” is an Indian adaptation of the classic Alexandre Dumas novel, “The Corsican Brothers”. The heroine is played by the slim and talented Bhanumati while Ranjan plays the double role of the twin brothers. “Nishan” has been released in many other cities also where it has proved as popular as “Chandralokha”.

PANCHOLI PRODUCTIONS (Bombay)

It is reported that Producer Pan chol wants to give some spectacular dance numbers in his “Meena Bazaar” starring Nargis, Shyam, Gope, Sapru, Kuldip Kaur etc. With this idea, he is planning a few days’ shooting at Madras where there are many talented dancers to add life and lift to the dances. The dialogue is by Agha Jani Kashmiri and the lyrics by Qamar Jalalabadi.

NATIONAL THEATRES (Bombay)

Producer-director K. Asif seems to be fast reaching the end of his present goal with “Hul Chul” in the final stage of completion. “Hul Chul” stars popular Dilip Kumar opposite Nargis and is reported to contain a story with plenty of mass appeal.

NOBLE ART PRODUCTIONS (Bombay)

Some of the rushes of “Birha ki Raat” starring Nargis and Dev Kamini Kaushal attracts attention in “Shair”, produced by Jagat Pictures and directed by Chawla.
Hafeez Jehan gets a good break in "Khel", a social subject produced by Shahin Pictures.

Anand and produced by J. N. Sharma, seem to have put new life into director Jagirdar. Let us hope he utilizes the talent of Nargis well so that the picture gets a sufficient quota of pathos—something which our masses like to see on the screen.

SHAHIN PICTURES (Bombay)

If filmgoers want to see the charming Nigar Sultana in a dynamic role, they should wait for "Khel" produced by S. M. Nawab. Nawab is optimistic and tells us that "Khel" will definitely appeal because of its touching story.

AKASH CHITRA (Bombay)

"Hanste Ansu", a social, produced and directed by K. B. Lall and starring pretty Madhubala is making good progress. Madhubala is a talented artiste who can smile or weep according to the mood of the moment and this in itself should make "Hanste Ansu" a good picture. K. B. Lall is busy side by side with the script of "Angrai" starring Madhubala and Nargis.

NIHAL FILM CORPORATION (Bombay)

R. Vasudeva, an enthusiastic refugee from Pakistan, is making "Jalte Deep" starring Nimi, Kuldeep, Randhir, Deepak, Amir Banu etc. He has a co-operative team in the following:—Deepak Asha for story and direction, Nazim Panipati for songs, Masood Mashebidi for dialogue and T. K. Dass for music. We wish him all luck in "Jalte Deep". His sincerity and hard work should take him a long way.

KULDIP PICTURES LTD (Bombay)

"Aadhi Raat" starring Nargis and Ashok Kumar has gone to the sets. The story is by K. A. Abbas while the direction is by S. K. Ojha. In the meantime, the script work for the next picture starring Suraiya is getting ready. This one will be entrusted to Jayant Desai. "Naach" has already been released in some North Indian towns while "Jaitaran" is awaiting release.

JAIMINI DEWAN PRODUCTIONS (Bombay)

Producer Jaimini Dewan seems bent on finishing "Anmol Rattan" as early as possible, the way he is at it all day long. "Anmol Rattan" is reported to contain a box-office story and might probably turn out even better than "Rattan". Meanwhile the script work of "Kamini" and "Chattan" is getting ready.

FORWARD PICTURES (Bombay)

S. Tharani has completed his maiden picture "Achhajee" in record time. Some of the stars working in it are, Bhagwan, Baburao, Cuckoo, Usha Shukla etc.

JEENVAN PICTURES (Bombay)

This new company belongs to another refugee. Jeevandas Chandna, from Pakistan, who was compelled to leave Lahore after partition. Producer Jeevandas who made "Arsi" is not a man to be scared so easily. In Bombay, he set up his own team and now he is busy shooting his new picture "The Stage" at the Bombay Talkies Studios. "The Stage" stars Ramola, Dev Anand, Kuldip, Kubarak, Gulab etc. The director in charge is Vijay Mhatre while the music is by Husanlal and Bhagatram.
